LONDON, March 16—(CP).—The captain of a British trawler that destroyed a German submarine in a 17-hour running fight on the ocean surface gave the credit today to his son, the trawler's chief engineer.

Harry Westerden, the captain, said the submarine was detected recently off the Scottish coast. Depth charges brought it to the surface, where it attempted to escape while firing deck guns at the trawler.

The trawler was hit and the engine room flooded. In knee-deep water chief engineer George Leonard Westerden, 31, forced the speed up to 18½ knots, although the top speed rating was 15.

"The vibration was terrific and you could see the engine foundations shifting," said Captain Westerden. "Throughout the chase the vessels pounded each other with shells. We got within fully effective distance and sent the submarine to the bottom with gunfire. There were no survivors from her."

In a sinking condition, the trawler managed to reach port, where it was found the engines had shifted five inches off their supports.

Engineer Westerden was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal "for gallantry and devotion to duty."

Killed In Action

Hall Renovation Plan Enlarged

HASTINGS, March 16—(ENS).—Council is going farther than their original plans for the repairs to the Town Hall. An attempt will be made to have the heat registers moved from the centre of the floor to the baseboard in front of the stage. Some 225 chairs in the auditorium are in the process of receiving their second coat of paint.

Zionettes Stage Pot Luck Dinner

ZION, Mar. 16 (ENS)—The members of the Zionettes Project Class were hostesses at a Leap Year party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beatty on Tuesday evening. Entertainment was in the form of games, contests, and dancing. Being Leap Year the girls had to do all the "asking," and it was soon found the weaker sex was not lacking in that respect. Prizes were awarded to the various contest winners. This party, as one of the requirements of the project group, displayed in a commendable manner the subject the girls have been studying—the art of entertaining. The supper was served buffet style from a daintily arranged table, carried out in a spring-like color scheme of green and yellow. The menu consisted of tasty sandwiches, crisp cookies, delicious tarts, cup cakes, and tea. Miss Alma Robinson moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Beatty and family for the hospitality of their home, and the motion was seconded by Miss Velma Crane. The girls of the group responsible for the evening's program and refreshments were Misses Alma and Sadie Robinson, Marion Beatty, Velma and Luella Crane. Music for dancing was supplied by Harold Nurse and Bert Orde.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. T. MacDonald in Toronto.

The March meeting of St. Mark's W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Robinson on Thursday afternoon.

Owenbrook Farmer Is Found Guilty

Archie Whitmore, Owenbrook farmer, was found guilty in police court Thursday afternoon of having assaulted William Mansfield in Chandos township on March 6 when Mansfield called at Whitmore's place to obtain his horse.

Magistrate Langley in his judgment said that he was satisfied that more force had been used by Whitmore than was necessary, and he would therefore have to register a conviction but he felt that it was not a case for very severe punishment.

Accordingly he allowed Whitmore to go on suspended sentence condition that he pay part of the costs amounting to $25.85.

IN MEMORIAM

HUMPHRIES.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Walter D. Humphries, who passed away March 17, 1939.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

—Always remembered by Wife and Family.

GLOVER—In memory of my mother, Mrs. Robert Glover, who died three years ago to-morrow, March 17, 1937.

Oh, could I have her back again,
To kneel once more down by her side,
I'd love her better than before;
I'm lonely since mother died.
Three little words— forget me not;
They don't mean much, but to me a lot.
Just a memory fond and true
Just to show, dear mother, I think of you.

—Sadly missed by son, Earle.

ONE FALSE STEP

BY KATHRN BEMIS

She Meets an Old Friend

She whirled about to meet Dr. Stephen Black's gray eyes looking down at her with a degree of admiration and reverence she had not met in so long.

"Dr. Black!" The lilt in her voice plainly showed how glad she was to see him.

"How fortunate running into you like this. I've thought of you often—but I've been so busy," he told her, swiftly.

His blue serge suit hung loosely, but becomingly, on his tall, athletic figure, his big-featured face was boyishly animated; yet there was an indescribable maturenes about him that was wholly comforting. "A good bedside manner," she thought quickly.

"Yes, I know how busy you've been—your sister told me. But I've been hoping to see you. You never did give me that list of books, you know."

"That wasn't altogether neglect on my part. I somehow gathered you had little time for reading—that you went out a great deal. I tried to break into some of your spare time—and failed." Janis sensed the hurt under his short, negligent laugh.

"I'm sorry," she told him, truthfully, "but it was—unavoidable."

"Why are we standing her like this? We're outside one of the best seafood places in town. Will you lunch with me?"

"I'd love it," she told him unhesitatingly.

They walked quickly past the liveried doorman, entered a large, high-ceilinged room, and seated themselves in one of the mahogany stalls running along a side wall. There was no music here, either to lull or heighten the senses, and there were few customers at this early luncheon hour. A few waiters were busy arranging tables, but, otherwise, the place was serenely restful; perhaps, dangerously so, if a man and woman were mutually attracted.

At Luncheon

Stephen Black assisted Janis out of her coat with the air of a Raleigh serving his queen. A compelling sensation of his protection encompassed her, warmed her consciousness, and she was glad she had accepted his invitation to come here.

"There now," he began, when they were settled and a waiter had taken their orders, "tell me everything."

She lifted startled eyes to him, her cheeks flaming.

"Do you—why do you think there is anything to tell?" All the ache and pain in her heart rushed to the fore again.

"It was merely a guess," he acknowledged soberly. "You've lost weight—and generally there's a cause. It might be worry—disappointment—any one of several reasons."

She tried to laugh, but she couldn't make a sound. She clutched her lower lip in sharp little teeth for a long moment, trying to straighten out her weary, muddled brain. At last she managed flippantly: "Are you always such a good mind reader, doctor?"

She hoped he wouldn't probe too far, get down to her humiliating difficulties. For some vague reason she wanted him to think well of her. If he only knew how foolish she had been! But then, she'd be gone, be working again in Boardman West's St. Louis office before Dr. Black had much of a chance to censure her.

She dipped a fork into the lobster cocktail the waiter had just brought, avoiding what she thought was Stephen Black's purely professional appraisal.

"I didn't mean to be inquisitive, Miss Sheldon, I'm concerned about you—a young woman alone in a strange city."

"You would diagnose my case then as—loniliness?" She sighed. "I have been—very lonely."

Resolutely, she threw back her shoulders, smiled companionably at him. "Let's talk about something peasant. How is Mary?"

"Perhaps you don't know how much she admires you — what a friend you have in my sister."

"I'm so glad you told me—it's a real compliment. She's the one woman I'd like best for my friend. I thought I'd made so many new friends—but now I know I was mistaken.

She Tells Her Secret

"You may have made a poor selection," he hazarded, then gave his attention to buttering a wafer.

"I did," she acknowledged promptly.

"Even I wanted to be included—but you'd have none of me." He laughed a little and passed her the olves.

She noticed his unsteady hand and thought, "He's overworked, like so many successful professional men."

"I regret it—but I couldn't do otherwise, Dr. Black," Her eyes were swimming in tears.

"Perhaps your affairs aren't going so well. Can't we do something about it?" he said, anxiously.

"Oh—you'd think—you see, my difficulty concerns another person," she blurted out impulsively.

He looked startled, gave her close scrutiny. He told her gently: "Whatever you tell me I will hold in the strictest confidence. I might be able to suggest a way out."

"You met Rock Conover that evening you and Mary dropped in—if you remember."

"Yes," he encouraged. But he immediately thought, "That bounder! What's he been doing to her?"

"Well—I—I married him," she gasped out, her eyes downcast.

CHAPTER XXI

"YOU—what!" Stephen Black exclaimed, clenching his fists until his knuckles showed white as Janis told him she was married to Rock. "What in heaven's name were you thinking of?" He sighed, shook his head disparagingly, said in a lower tone, "Excuse my outburst—I was so—taken aback."

Janis was astonished at his attitude. She thought, almost gladly: "If he were my brother, he couldn't be more concerned over me."

"I don't wonder you're surprised," she offered aloud.

"It's the most—most unfortunate ——" He checked himself just in time, added sternly, "Is he—good to you?"

She took a deep breath, said stoutly: "It was all a—a mistake. And—if your sister will let me sublet the house—I'll be careful to get in responsible people — I'm going back to my old job in St. Louis, I'm sure I can have it back. Mr. West told me——"

"But you can't — you can't go away," he chopped out.

Janis Confesses

She gazed at him uncomprehendingly. "Why not?" she asked. "If I'd be happier—why isn't it best to leave. I have to support myself—I've—I've used all my money."

He glanced at her quivering lips, looked quickly away. He passed a hand across his broad forehead, thinking: "Married to him—and he ill-treats her. I'd like to break every bone in his body!"

"I think you should talk this over with Mary," he suggested. "She'll be able to give you some good advice. I'm wondering why you married him. But don't tell me if you'd rather not."

"I loved him, Dr. Black. What other reason would a girl have for marrying a man?"

He smiled down at her in gentle comprehension. "A girl like you never would have any other reason for marrying a man."

She was so intent with her own problem that she did not discover the pain and longing in his gray eyes so intent upon her.

Abruptly, she slumped back in her chair, very pale, visably trembling. He was all physician immediately. He inquired: "What is it? Are you ill?"

"Yes—it's so—so warm in here. I'll—have to get out in the air."

She held a hand to her lips, jumped up, and started for the entrance. He threw a bill on the table, snatched up her handbag and coat and ran after her.

He caught up with her as she reached the street, insisted that she get in his car. She needed no second invitation, and gratefully allowed him to settle her in the roomy seat. She leaned back against the soft cushions, closed her eyes.

He drove her swiftly down the street toward the Professional Building where he had his offices. He stopped the car before the entrance, said quickly: "Let me take you in to see Dr. Christopher. He'll fix you up with a little medicine." In the state of mind he was in now, he wanted no part in the treatment of what he suspected her indisposition to be.

She Learned The Truth

"Yes — please," she mumbled through set lips.

He half carried her into the building, supported her firmly in the elevator. He took her past a dozen patients sitting in Dr. Christopher's reception room, on into a private office, and left her there with a nurse. He took Dr. Christopher away from a patient in another room, had a few seconds earnest conversation with him. Then he went out, began pacing the corridor, smoking cigarettes chain fashion, in callous disregard of his own reception room on the floor above now probably overflowing with patients expecting his immediate attention.

When Janis finally came out to him, she was still pale, and added to this now was a hint of fear in her wide, blue eyes that hurt him to the quick. He asked no questions, but led her compassionately back to his car, and began driving her in the direction of Beverly Hills. His face was set drained white beneath its coat of tan. There was a purposefulness about him, like a man who has suddenly decided to see a certain affair through to the finish, as if it were his inalienable right.

He adapted the car's speed to accommodate the dully staring young woman beside him, her elbow propped on the sill of the open window, chin in hand. He knew her thoughts must be unbearable and he wanted to do something about it, but felt about as awkward as he'd ever been in his life.

In a situation like this, what could a mere man offer? If he extended too much sympathy, he'd go overboard, say a revealing too much, perhaps frighten more than befriend her. She had said she married a man because she loved him. Undoubtedly, she still loved him—her husband. Gad!

She Makes New Plans.

But Janis' thoughts were far from love. Her worry was how to keep going when she felt so ill, so utterly forlorn and forsaken. She wondered if she would ever feel any better. The cool, fresh breeze blowing in her face now somewhat revived her, but the tragedy of her predicament was close to the surface, and she was wrapped in a cloak of self-pity she could not throw aside.

Her apathy continued even when Dr. Black accompanied her into the hall of her house. He stood in the security of his old home, gazing down at her tenderly, dreading to leave her alone.

She suddenly held out a hand, saying, "I'm so thankful — for a friend like you, Dr. Black. You knew—didn't you?"

"Yes," he told her gravely. "I took you to the best obstetrician in town."

He held her hand a second longer than necessary, then abruptly dropped it.

"I'll send Mary to see you," he promised in a choked voice and hurried out the door.

Janis wandered blindly into the living-room, stood in the middle of the black velvet carpet. She gazed around at the luxurious furnishings as if seeing them for the first time. The fine paintings, bronze statuary, the Chippendale sofa, the desk with marquetry inlay, the petit point chairs and lamps of antique gilt and marble now seemed like odd appurtenances from Aladdin's palace. She shuddered. She gripped her hands at her sides, thought savagely: "What am I doing here — in this beautiful home—why did I ever decide to live here?"

Now Up to Rock.

Suddenly a new hope percolated through her tortured mind. With definite responsibility, Rock might be a real man. He'd have so much to work for now, so much to be happy about. She would give him that chance. She would shelve the idea of going back to her old job, which she could only keep for a few months at the most. Rock and she would begin life on a sound basis from this very moment.

With this much settled, she felt slightly calmer.

She hunted out Maud in the kitchen, paid her what she owed her, gave her two weeks' extra wages, and discharged her. Never again would she let her expenditures exceed her income. She could see now,

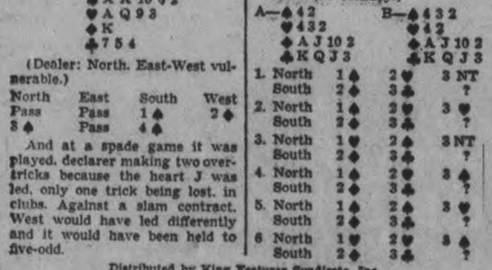
"The Authority on Authorities"

VALUE DISTRIBUTION

SOME PLAYERS get so "honor trick minded" that they overlook an equally effective trick-taking element—distribution. The little cards of a long suit, when established, are just as good as so many more aces. And a blank suit, when you hold plenty of cards in your partner's suit, is just about as valuable to your side as the ace or ace-king of it would be, sometimes more so. After your partner has shown his suit, you must calculate its value if laid down on the table as a dummy for him, and not the same as you would rate it when thinking about an opening bid.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
3♠	Pass	4♠

And at a spade game it was played, declarer making two overtricks because the heart J was led, only one trick being lost, in clubs. Against a slam contract, West would have led differently and it would have been held to five-odd.

But the sad part of it is that East and West can make a small slam at diamonds against a heart lead, a grand slam against the probable lead of a spade. West hopped all over his partner, when it was over, for not bidding. East pleaded that he could not dare come in at the five level while vulnerable. He didn't have to. He could have bid 4-Diamonds on his first turn after hearing his partner make a vulnerable overcall of 2-Diamonds. Then, after South bid 4-Spades, West could have gone to 5-Diamonds, at least making sure of a game bid. If North and South overbid that, East ought to go to 6-Diamonds, which probably would get doubled by South.

religion, section or class issues, which threaten the national well-being, then there might have to be what is called a National Government—a combination of parties strong enough to deal with that issue.

"In other words it would be disunity not unity that might give rise to a National Government for the time being."

"I believe from the bottom of my heart," Col. Ralston said, "that never has the population of Canada been united as it is united in the war effort from coast to coast."

Preceding Col. Ralston on the platform, Revenue Minister Ilsley said there was "neither patronage nor profiteering in our war effort."

Mr. Ilsley said he had "never seen so much abuse an vilification as in this campaign." One of the offenders in this respect was Conservative Leader Manion. The others were Premier Hepburn of Ontario and the Ontario Conservative leader, Col. George Drew.

Some Equipment Details.

At Toronto Col. Drew charged in an address over a network of Ontario radio stations that two units of Canada's defence forces in Port Arthur, Ont., the home city of Transport Minister Howe, are inadequately clothed and equipped.

Col. Drew said Prime Minister Mackenzie King had said "again and again that our defence forces are adequately clothed and equipped" and Mr. Howe had been "even more emphatic."

The infantry battalion has half the number of rifles needed for the men it is authorized to train, has no anti-tank rifles, no light machine guns, no heavy three-inch mortars, no two-inch mortars and no bayonet

Worry Saps The Nervous System

Worry over business or household duties, sudden shock, the insane quest for pleasure, the foolish attempt to put a week of normal life into twenty-four hours, feverish activity, the demand for sensational literature are all conducive to the aggravation of wear and tear on the nervous system.

If you are tired, listless, nervous, and worried why not give Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills a chance to help put you on your feet again. They are a body building, nerve strengthening tonic containing the essential elements for the nervous system.

service belts, Col. Drew charged. In addition, it had no uniforms.

The artillery unit in Port Arthur should have four 60-pounders or four six-inch howitzers, Col. Drew said, but instead has "two old 18-pounders, only one of which is of any use for training purposes because the other has no barrel or breach." Though the Ross rifle had been criticized, this unit was equipped with 72 Ross rifles, while the signal equipment was "obsolete and practically useless."

Trade Minister Euler was charged with twisting the words of Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of Canada's First Overseas Division, by quoting him as calling the Canadian forces "the best-equipped army he ever saw."

General McNaughton "deserves protection from such deliberate distortion of his words," Col. Drew said. "He never at any time suggested that the First Division left Canada as the best-equipped army he ever saw.

"What he did say was that when it goes into action it will be as well-equipped as any in the world. And it will be, Mr. King, because they are being supplied with the weapons they require in Great Britain."

Rogers Replies.

At Lindsay, Ont., Defence Minister Rogers, in a statement he read at a political rally, replied to charges made by Col. Drew at Toronto Thursday with regard to lumber orders of the Defence Department.

Col. Drew charged that A. Grant MacLachlan, Mr. Rogers' secretary, held the "main interest" in the MacLachlan Lumber and Woodworking Company of Kingston which had received Defence Department orders in 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939 and that the last order had been given on November 24, 1939.

"This statement by Col. Drew is as deliberately misleading as other charges he has made in the course of the present campaign," Mr. Rogers said. "In the first place, the contract for lumber could only be described as patronage or favoritism if I, as Minister of National Defence, had used my official position to obtain the contract for the MacLachlan firm.

"There is not a shadow of truth in any such suggestion. I have never intervened at any time to obtain business for this firm. It is equally true that Mr. MacLachlan has never used his official position to obtain business for this firm."

Mr. Rogers said the November contract was placed by the War Supply Board, "a non-partisan agency having no connection with the Department of National Defence. The Board, in buying lumber for the Kingston area, had followed its regular practice of calling for tenders and the contract had been obtained "on a strictly competitive basis with other firms.

Denies Patronage

Mr. Rogers added: "It is nothing less than a wilful perversion of truth to imply, as Col. Drew does, that there is even the slightest suggestion of patronage or profiteering in such a transaction."

When Mr. MacLachlan had joined him as secretary in 1935 he had withdrawn from active direction of the lumber company though his savings were invested in it. Contracts the firm had received from the defence department subsequently were obtained on a competitive basis. Col. Drew, the statement said, had failed to say that the lumber firm was formed in 1927 and had implied it came into existence in 1935.

The minister concluded: "I challenge Dr. Manion or Col. Drew again to provide a single specific case where there has been patronage or profiteering in the Canadian war efforts.

At Vancouver R. L. Maitland, British Columbia Conservative leader, said in a 15-minute radio broadcast that Mr. King "has been taken out of circulation by his own party" and that the present government is "the most useless we have ever had."

When Mr. King dissolved parliament last January he said the proper place to meet charges against his administration was on the hustings, Mr. Maitland said.

"But Mr. King is not on the hustings. He has gone out of circulation. He says he is too busy to meet the Canadian people and discus these issues.

Says Records Changed

W. A. MacPherson, National Government candidate in Regina, charged at Winnipeg that Mr. King "deliberately falsified" parliamentary records to prevent people from knowing why Parliament was dissolved after a one-day session.

"As an example of political craft, chicanery, trickery and dexterity, Premier King's performance has never been exceeded in any democratic country in the world," Mr. MacPherson said.

It had been parliamentary practice to list upon the order paper of the opening day all the questions and notices of motion which members sent to the government prior to the opening. Although at least 72 questions had been sent in this year, not a line was printed on the order paper. This, he said, was deliberate falsification of the records.

T. L. Church, Toronto Conservative, had put in at least one question which the government did not want published. It asked if the government would consider appointment of a select committee to investigate and fix responsibility for Canada's "unpreparedness" for war and "lack of co-operation" with Great Britain, he said.

The 5 Per Cent. Profit.

Most successful sit-down strike in Canada's history was the refusal of Canadian manufacturers to take war orders for war supplies with profits limited to five per cent, M. J. Coldwell, national chairman of the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, said at Toronto.

He recalled the passage by Parliament of the Defence Purchasing Board Act limiting profits on Defence Department contracts let without tender to five per cent.

"Then Mr. Howe (Transport Minister Howe) had to come before Parliament and tell us the Act was set aside by order-in-council because they hadn't succeeded in letting a single contract on that basis. A people's government would have taken over the factories of those manufacturers and would have operated them as public service corporations for the duration of the war."

What an outcry there would have been had Canadian labor gone on a sit-down strike when filling of orders for war supplies would have been impeded, said Mr. Coldwell.

shorts, the by-products of flour. The only answer, if the price structure was not changed, it was argued, would be to increase the price of milk.

F. C. Biggs of Dundas and Gilbert McMillan of Huntingdon, Que., presented the brief of the farmers. They were assured that the board would study the whole concentrated feed situation, with special attention to the price of bran and shorts in relation to the price of flour.

Mr. McMillan stated that milk producers were most anxious to keep the cost of milk down to the consumer, but this could only be done by keeping the feed prices at an equitable level.

The discount on the Canadian dollar is one of the main reasons for the feed price difficulties. There is a duty of 5 per cent., on mill feeds going into the United States. The distcount on the dollar pays the duty and leaves 5 per cent. profit to exporters. Hence, increasing quantities of Canadian mill feeds have been exported at a high price which has resulted in increasing the price on the domestic markets.

Courage Needed

Told by the premier that "to make peace often calls for more courage and far greater initiative than the resort to war," the diet, except for three members of the Swedish people's party who voted no and nine members who are absent with the army, voted solidly for the pact.

The supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. meets March 29 to approve the treaty and possibly decide on government of the territory acquired from Finland. This includes the Karelian Isthmus, Viipuri, areas in northeastern Finland, parts of the Arctic coast, and, by lease, the Hanko peninsula in southwestern Finland.

Explaining his government came into power Dec. 1, the day after war broke out, Ryti said it "has regarded as its chief task the restoration of peace."

Of Finland's struggle, the premier commented:—

"We were given an abundance of sympathy, but no effective help from any direction. Not until it had become evident that Finland was capable of successfully defending herself did we begin to receive humanitarian and material help and munitions, especally from Sweden and the western powers.

"On the other hand, we received no help in the form of manpower in actual fact, merely a few reinforced battalions, mostly from Sweden."

Allied Troops In April

When the western powers (Britain and France) eventually offered soldiers, Ryti said, "the first batch of troops would have reached the front, providing normal transport could have been maintained, not earlier than the end of April, and the strength of the troops when arriving would have been so small as to have been insufficient even to make up for the casualties our own army would have suffered in the meantime."

In addition, he said, acceptance of such help would have made Finland a battlefield in "the great war," because "the opponents of the western powers would have resorted to war against these troops."

Germany, in need of Rumania's oil and grain, is reported to want:

Rumania's promise to demobilize most of her 1,600,000 soldiers at once so they can return to work in fields and factories;

Acceleration of Rumanian industry and agriculture to an unprecedented degree;

Officials abruptly dismissed any possibility of installing a Guardist in the cabinet. Although the government is offering amnesty to 800 Iron Guardists now in concentration camps if they pledge allegiance to the King and join the National Rebirth Front—Rumania's only political party—fugitive leaders still in Germany will be barred from the homeland.

The reported army demobilization proposal was opposed by military leaders as putting Rumania completely at the mercy of foreign powers, no matter what guarantees were made on paper.

Home Baking Sale

An afternoon tea and sale of home-baking was successfully sponsored by the Parish Guild of St. John's Anglican church, yesterday afternoon, despite rather unfortunate weather conditions which partially spoiled the attendance. The church basement was prettily decorated for the occasion in a combination of St. Patrick day and Easter colors and motives. The main table was lace-covered with an attractiv centre piece, a nest of baby chicks reposing on a mirror, and a gleaming silver tea service. Lighted candles added to the decorative scheme on both this and other individual tea tables.

The function was formally opened by the rector, Rev. R. E. Lemon, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Robert Jones, as vice-president, received the guests in the absence of Mrs H. W. Roche, the president, and tea was poured by Mrs. George Smith. In charge of the bake table was Mrs. F. Watson, while Mrs. James Cook officiated over the sale of fancy goods. Assisting were Mrs. L. Sanderson, Mrs. D. D. Kirk, Mrs. T. W. Quinn, Mrs. William Rice, Mrs. F. Thompson, Mrs. R. F. Covert, Mrs. H. Davies, and Mrs. D. Hutchinson. Proceeds from the event amounted to $14.

Statesmen's Snapshots

W. L. MACKENZIE KING

In the whole world today there is only one political leader who is still a leader of the party he led in 1919...that man is William Lyon Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada.

In the past 20 years parties have risen in every country in the universe and parties have gone...leaders have been swept away, governments have vanished.

The one leader who is still a leader of his party across these two decades and more is Mr. King—he alone.

People have said that Mr. King is probably the only leader Canada has ever known who, as a boy, set as his life goal the prime ministership. Whether he deliberately educated himself for the post he now holds or not, the fact remains that he achieved and earned the highest political honor that can be given any Canadian.

It has been said that he is unromantic, incapable of the dramatic, yet he is one of the most romantic figures of his century. Grandson of William Lyon Mackenzie, labelled a rebel and an exile, he has used his life to build a monument to this man, long since been dead.

It was not a wealthy home into which Canada's prime minister was born in Kitchener, then called Berlin, 66 years ago. Both his parents were of Scotch descent and he inherited a natural will to achieve.

At the University of Toronto he won his degrees with a high scholastic standing, then became a reporter on various Toronto papers. His pay was fairly good, about $1.00 a day.

But at the end of a year of journalistic work he had the urge to continue his studies and took a post-graduate course in the University of Chicago. Then followed a two-year course of study in Harvard, where he added to his scholastic laurels by winning a travelling fellowship.

During the year that followed he toured Europe and met and studied at first-hand the leading political men of the last century.

His first entry into the field of statesmanship came when he was 24. As a member of a special committee appointed to inquire into the methods used in carrying out government contracts in Canada and Europe he did much to eliminate "sweatshop" practices.

It was Mr. King who suggested to Sir William Mulock that a department of labor be established by the Canadian government. This was done, with Sir William as the first first minister, and Mr. King was appointed deputy minister. Eight years later he resigned to contest and win a seat in the House of Commons and a year later was himself appointed minister of labor. When the Liberal government was defeated in 1911, Mr. King joined the staff of the Rockfeller Foundation in New York as director and was given credit for saving them millions of dollars. He returned to Canada in 1917 to contest a seat in the federal election, but was defeated.

In 1919 Sir Wilfrid Laurier died. The leader picked by the Liberal party to succeed him was William Lyon Mackenzie King. He has been leader ever since.

Since he was first elected prime minister in 1921 Mr. King's name has become known around the universe. He has been host to their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth, he has been a guest of the Nazi leaders in Berlin and has visited with the president of the United States.

He is like none of them. He is far from being a dictator, because he abhors dictatorships. He is not a charmer of the public and has a personal dislike of publicity. Frequently he prefers his books and his thoughts of the constant society of his fellow-men, yet few leaders have known their people quite so well. It has been said that no other statesman who has spent 40 years in public life has ever succeeded in remaining so much himself as William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Allies Pushing U.S. Powder Production

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP)—Heavy allied orders for explosives appeared likely to-day to produce an expansion of United States powder manufacturing facilities comparable to that now taking place in the aircraft industry.

Great Britain and France, already contemplating purchases in excess of $100,000,000, were represented by munitions authorities as ready to finance new factories as they did in 1914-17, before the United States entered the First Great War.

The first evidence of this was the disclosure yesterday of a $1,427,000 Franco-British advance to the Atlas Powder Company of Wilmington, Del., to increase facilities for manufacture of TNT, the explosive used in artillery shells. The concern was said to have contracted already for doubling the capacity of its plants in Missouri.

Negotiations have been in progress for months with another firm for a $25,000,000 powder plant financed by France. Other negotiations have hung fire for weeks.

Warship Hit, Civilian Killed In Nazi Attack On Scapa Flow

Ten Arrested In N. York Murder Ring

Charge Racketeers Paid "Punks" Low As $3 a Job

NEW YORK, Mar. 18 — (AP).—A murder-to-order combine which killed by contract for "big shot" racketeers was said to-day by a Brooklyn prosecutor to have been responsible for at least a dozen—possibly 20—gangland slayings.

District Attorney William O'Dwyer said 10 men were under arrest in connection with the crimes. He said the gang was implicated in seven murders and two attempted slayings in Brooklyn, and three killings in Sullivan country in Up-State New York.

Youthful gunmen, described as "young punks," did the trigger work under agreements with such racket overlords as Lucky Luciano, imprisoned Manhattan vice king; Louis (Peke) Buchalter, and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, O'Dwyer said.

The prosecutor quoted one informer as saying the gang leaders had boasted to him of having "rubbed out" seven witnesses in District Attorney Thomas Dewey's Buchalter trial, and had planned to kill the remaining four witnesses in the case.

One Shot in Mistake.

In one case, the District Attorney said, the "rubout ring" shot to death Irving Penn, 42-year-old music firm executive, whom they mistook for a Dewey witness in the Lepke case.

Two young members of the syndicate, fearful they would be deserted by their leaders and left to face alone charges under which they now are held, spilled their stories, O'Dwyer said. He named them as Anthony (Duke) Maffetore and Abraham (Pretty) Levine.

Sums of $10 and $20—sometimes as little as $3—were paid for the slayings. The Brooklyn killers apparently were allied in some way with the Detroit Purple Gang, the

85-Minute German Air Raid May Stir U.K. Cabinet Shakeup

Naval Base Attack Brings First Civilian Casualties

LONDON, March 18 — (CP). — Germany's boldest aerial stroke of the war—a one hour and 25-minute raid by 14 Heinkel bombers on the Scapa Flow naval anchorage—was followed today by expressions of belief in political quarters that Prime Minister Chamberlain is planning cabinet changes to institute a more dynamic war policy.

The Prime Minister's 71st birthday found Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in a meeting at Brenner Pass, which centered speculation on whether Germany plans an intensified conflict or a "peace offensive."

Press clamor for greater initiative in the Government's direction of the war was heightened in anticipation of the debate in the House of Commons tomorrow when the Labor and Liberal parties and some Conservatives are expected to press for more vigorous action.

Informed political observers expressed the conviction that Mr. Chamberlain is planning ministerial changes soon, probably after the Easter Parliamentary recess starting Thursday.

Some thought he might adopt the pattern set in the first Great War by David Lloyd George for a small war cabinet engaged solely in direction of higher war policy with all departmental duties given to ministers outside the cabinet.

Nazi Fliers Jubilant Claim 4 Warships Victims On Attack

BERLIN, March 18 (AP)—Elated German fliers today told of their week-end raid on the British naval anchorage at Scapa Flow, declaring it was carried out on a meticulous plan.

It was claimed that three battleships and one cruiser were struck and damaged and that the 42,000-ton battle cruiser Hood and the 32,000-ton battle cruisers Renown and Repulse were at anchorage, when the German bombers roared in from the North Sea.

One flier told of "the bright fire of burning hangars" and the official communique said Orkney Island airports at Stromness, Kirkwall and Earth House, as well as a number of anti-aircraft positions, were bombed.

(The British communique on the raid acknowledged that the Germans had reached objectives at Scapa Flow and in the islands but said only one warship was slightly damaged and that other bombs fell in civilian areas, killing one man, wounding seven other persons and damaging five cottages. They said one of the attackers was shot down and other were damaged.

The unit leader, Major Fritz Doench, said the Germans "had known for days that the British home fleet was at Scapa Flow" and gave this glowing account of the raid:—

"We waited for days, loaded carefully, prepared for weather which would be most favorable. Just before taking off we talked our plans over once more and then departed. We flew a roundabout way because we were not foolish enough to do directly. We came toward the Orkneys from the east and still could see well.

Hit 4 With 1,000 Pounders.

"Before us was such an endless number of ships we had trouble picking out which one we should make the target. We hit four of the biggest, each at least once, directly with 1,000 pounders.

"For half an hour as we circled about the north we saw huge columns of flame. About 7.55 p.m. we disappeared into the darkness toward home."

Lieut Honno Phillips, 24-year-old observer, whose unit was assigned to the reported attack on the airports in order to keep grounded as many fliers as possible, told this story:

"On the trip out we were tense because it was the first raid on a British airport. We headed for Earth House, first. Coming out of the east our objective lay clear before us. We let our row of bombs go.

"We saw bomb after bomb strike clouds of dirt as they struck the runways, then the bright fire of burning hangars.

"During the attack British pursuit planes tried to reach us from below but we turned off and disappeared into the night."

SUDBURY, Ont., March 18.—(CP)—A Finnish farm-laborer and 14-year-old Nellie Smeagle rescued two Sudbury fliers and set two broken legs in splints at the side of the wrecked plane on Lake Ramsay last night.

The plane, a home-made machine piloted by Stan Baxter, cracked up on the lake when the flier attempted to make a forced landing at dusk.

With Baxter in the plane was Mel Butcher. The sound of the crashing plane was heard a mile and a half away by the hired hand on the farm of Mrs. Mike Smeagle. Accompanied by Mrs. Smeagle's daughter, Nellie, the man, whose name was not available, set out in a sleigh with a team of horses in the direction of the crash.

Breaking a trail through deep snow they found the wrecked plane and saw the two men semi-conscious.

The man and the girl revived the fliers, but when they attempted to move them it was found both had broken legs. Baxter gave instructions and the rescuers fashioned splints and applied them. Then they lifted the injured men into the sleigh and rushed back to the farm-house.

Any Peace Move Now, Doomed Says Paris Press

PARIS, March 18.—(CP)—If the meeting between Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini is the first act of an Easter Week peace offensive, the play is doomed to failure, according to the French view.

Government sources said today, in commenting on the Brennero conference, that the Allies cannot accept a compromise peace but will fight on until they have won victory and guarantees of security.

The press almost in one voice condemned any "Nazi peace."

Newspapers simultaneously urged the formation of a new war cabinet after a Chamber of Deputies debate tomorrow on the conduct of the war. One complaint against the government has been that Premier Daladier holds too many cabinet posts.

Premier Daladier conferred for more than an hour with President Albert Lebrun.

New Cabinet Looms?

Welles and Pope Confer As Duce Consults Hitler

ROME, March 18—(AP). — While Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini conferred today at Brennero, Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's emissary, revisited Pope Pius XII at the Vatican and foreign observers were inclined to connect the two.

Although the public did not learn of the impending meeting until overnight trains were rolling toward the Brenner Pass, Mr. Welles had been informed when he talked for more than an hour with Mussolini on Saturday.

The Hitler-Mussolini appointment offered the two leaders their first opportunity for face-to-face consultation since the start of the war—indeed their first since September 29, 1938, when Czecho-Slovakia was partitioned at Munich.

Whether it presaged a German move to obtain a truce in Hitler's war with Great Britain and France was impossible to ascertain. There was a belief in foreign circles that Mussolini would refrain from tak-

Sudden Conference Reported Link In New 'Peace Drive'

A communique described their conversation as cordial.

Their conference, preceded by the barest of formalities, began at 10:10 a.m. (4:10 a.m. EST). There was no inkling of what might come of the rendezvous, linked in diplomatic quarters with talk of a so-called "peace drive."

Hitler's private train was here when the eight-car special bearing Mussolini and his foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, pulled in from its night-time stop at Bressanone, 26 miles away.

Mussolini, Ciano and Hitler met on the station platform and then went at once to Mussolini's parlor car. The German ambassador to Italy, Hans-Georg von Mackensen, also was here. He travelled with Mussolini from Rome.

Snow began falling as the two leaders met in the shadow of the Brenner Pass, once the gateway of Teutonic invasion of the Roman Empire.

Lavish decorations which marked Hitler's visits to Italy in times past were lacking. Ceremonies were cut to the barest requirements of official etiquette.

Italian and German banners ornamented the railway station and a red carpet lay across the platform between rows of potted plants. These were the only festive signs.

Completely Secret

Except for the extremely brief communique describing the talk as cordial, nothing was known definitely of the nature of the conversation.

The meeting was held at a critical time in the war, the Finnish peace having removed for the moment the prospect of a two-front war and the approach of spring bringing with it the widely-suggested possibility of "real war."

With the briefest ceremony Hitler and Mussolini began their talk immediately after meeting. Il Duce's son-in-law and foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and the German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, entered the special car with their chiefs, and the four went into a closed compartment, where curtains were quickly drawn.

The train stood on the siding just within Italian territory in the historic Brenner Pass. The long platform was kept clear and so was the space for some distance around the station.

Only a few provincial, military and civil authorities were at the station for the meeting, arranged swiftly and carried out with clockwork precision. The world did not learn it would be held until the two leaders were out of their capitals and well on their way.

Italy To Speed Up Trade Dealings As Germany's Ally

BERLIN, March 18—(AP).—Extension of the Rome-Berlin axis to Moscow and possible eventual participation of Italy in the war on Germany's side were cited today by excellently informed Berlin circles as the main apparent results of today's historic Brenner Pass meeting between Fuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

The two statesmen appeared to have worked on plans for a complete reorganization of Europe, with Soviet Russia as their partner.

Berlin was filled with rumors that German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop would confer with Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff as soon as possible, either in Berlin or Moscow.

Hitler and Mussolini were said to have agreed on possible ultimate participation of Italy in the war on Germany's side if and when such a course should be deemed preferable to the present status of Italy as "not neutral and yet not waging war."

(The only description given in Italy up to the same time of the meeting at the Brenner Pass was that the conference was "cordial.")

Germany's Economic Ally.

Meantime Italy would lose no opportunity to demonstrate to the Western powers that she is Germany's ally economically, politically and ideologically, the story said.

As evidence of this, the Associated Press's sources said Italy, for instance, ceased furnishing certain implements of war to France as she had done hitherto.

The present German-Italian coal agreement will be followed by other agreements for putting resources of each country at the disposal of the other. (The coal agreement, to fur-

French Stop Germans In 3 Attacks

Enemy Patrols Suffer "Cruel Losses" Before Retreating

PARIS, March 18—(AP).—German attacks with the largest number of men put into action since the war started were reported by military quarters today to have been turned back by French machine-gun and artillery fire.

German patrols operating Sunday in separated sectors west of the Vosges Mountains and east of the Moselle River suffered what military sources described as "cruel losses" in extended operations.

At least three separate engagements occurred during the day. The first came at dawn Sunday when French observers, moving forward to posts which are not manned during the night, found Germans installed in them. The French attacked with automatic light arms and were met by German counter-fire. Later the Germans withdrew. In the second engagement the Germans sent about 300 men to meet a French patrol operating in the Vosges. The French unit replied to enemy fire and repulsed waves of Germans seeking to captures advance positions, according to these advices.

Heavy bursts of machine-gunning were succeeded by fire from the artillery which blasted the German troops and forced them to retreat in disorder. Shell explosions ripped through the Germans causing a large number of dead and wounded. Two French soldiers "disappeared."

All Posts Retaken.

Military advices said all positions temporarily occupied by the Germans were retaken.

Along the Rhine, French and German troops exchanged rapid rounds of machine-gun fire while loudspeakers on both sides blared

Finland Hopeful Of Saving Pulp Industry

HELSINKI, March 18 — (CP-Havas).—A determined effort will be made at the impending Russo-Finnish negotiations at Moscow to save the Finnish wood pulp industry from crippling efforts of the territorial concessions exacted by Russia, it was said here today.

The Moscow negotiations will cover exact demarcation of the new frontier, resumption of diplomatic relations and trade questions. Many details were left for later settlement when the peace treaty was signed last week.

One of the most important is the disposition to be made of Finnish timber formerly floated down rivers and canals to paper mills in the Karelian Isthmus area now ceded to Russia.

Finnish timber and wood products such as cellulose and paper were shipped principally from Viipuri, now in Russian hands. It is hoped these two problems can be adjusted

Douro Farmer Is Killed By Straw Stack

DOURO, March 18 (ENS)—Gerald Condon, 33, of Douro township, was killed Sunday morning as a result of a fall from a straw stack on his farm eight miles from Peterborough. The accident was discovered an hour after the young man had left his house to do some chores at the barn before preparing to go to church with his wife.

About ten a.m., Mrs. Condon became uneasy when he had not returned and went in search of him. A look through the barn and a walk to a nearby creek failed to uncover a clue and then she discovered part of the straw stack had toppled over. A hurried call to a nearby neighbor and to St. Joseph's church brought assistance and Condon's body was found pinned to the fence with a frozen section of the stack covering him.

PORT ALFRED, Que., March 18—(CP).—Five children, including a 10-year-old girl who made a vain attempt to rescue her younger sisters and brothers, perished last night in a fire that swept the three-storey tenement building in which they lived.

The dead, children of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Hebert, were: Colette, 10 years of age; Philippe, nine; Jacqualine, seven; Marie Paul, five, and Camil, nine months. Several other children suffered partial asphyxiation.

The fire, worst in the history of this small Saguenay River industrial centre, broke out at 10 p.m. while the children slept. Their parents had gone out for the evening and a 21-year-old maid, Laurette Hovington, was in charge. Five-year-old Jacqueline Jauvin was minding the two small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Gravel, who lived in another apartment.

Occupants of the other apartments all had gone out.

Gravel apparently was one of the first to reach the fire. He and Roland St. Gelais broke down a door. St. Gelais carried the Gravel children through the flames to safety.

Gravel had to break into the Hebert apartment. He fumbled in the dark and bumped into a cradle in which three-year-old Suzanne Hebert was sleeping. He rescued her while Charles Edouard Gravel went to the third floor and carried to safety Jacqueline Jauvin, who was semi-asphyxiated.

Miss Hovington, asleep on the third floor with the five children who were killed, was suffering from asphyxiation when she stumbled into the street. Spectators had to hold her back from re-entering the burning building when she learned the children still were in their beds.

TORONTO, March 18.—(CP)—Six men, three of them from Northern Ontario, were sentenced today to penitentiary terms on charges of conspiracy to sell high-grade ore or silver ore. 9 To 12 Million Jobless Now On U.S. List

WASHINGTON, March 18—(AP). — President Roosevelt's economic advisers, it was learned today, have sent him a memorandum indicating the United States started 1040 with from 9,000,000 to 12,000,000 unemployed.

The memorandum is a compilation of different estimates from prominent Labor statistics sources. A federal economist whose figures are used regularly by several federal agencies said an average of 2,000,000 were unemployed in 1929, with the figure rising to 14,000,000 in March, 1933, declining to 6,250,000 in September, 1937, rising again to 103,000,000 in February, 1938 and touching temporary bottom again at 3,300,000 last October.

If the usual seasonal factors operate this year—a circumstance of which he is not sure because of the recent business decline—this economist calculates that unemployment should be down to about 9,000,000 in April.

Allies Confer With Turkey Upon Final Plans For Aid

LONDON, Mar. 18 — (CP). — Great Britain, France and Turkey are consulting on the form of aid the Western Powers will give Turkey in the event she becomes involved in hostilities, Foreign Under-Secretary Richard Butler told the House of Commons to-day.

The Government at the same time turned down a suggestion that it ask the eLague of Nations to set up a neutral commission to examine responsible proposals for peace.

The suggestion was made by Arthur Woodburn, Labor. Mr. Butler declared Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax "is not convinced" adoption of the proposal "would be best in the present circumstances."

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House his statement to-morrow on Finland and the progress of the war would contain information on the quantity of guns, ammunition, and planes given and offered to Finland.

Questions were asked on the future of Finland, but Mr. Butler asked members to await the Prime Minister's statement.

Asked for assurance Finland would not be prejudiced when the peace conference came because she accepted the Russian peace terms, Mr. Butler replied: "It is not possible to forecast at this stage the scope of the peace conference."

Asked whether a comprehensive plan existed for immediate military aid to Turkey if "her integrity should be threatened or if it becomes expedient for her to go to the aid of a neighboring state," Mr. Butler replied:

"Great Britain and France are bound by article 1 of their treaty of mutual assistance with Turkey to

Reds Hint Finn Nickel Mine To Do Britain Little Good

LONDON, March 18—(CP Cable). —While a Finnish delegation, headed by Juhu Paasikivi is flying to Moscow to clear up final details of the peace treaty with Russia, reports reaching London today suggest the question of the Canadian-operated nickel concessions in Northern Finland is likely to be raised at the Kremlin.

A Rome propagandist broadcast heard here said the subject will be done of the most important to be discussed before final ratification of the treaty.

The German newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung was quoted as saying Germany is paying close attention to the question of utilization of the mines and that Russia is not prepared to tolerate any British privileges in these important mines."

The broadcaster took this to mean that both Germany and Russia will attempt to prevent Britain profiting from the concessions, hitherto held by the International Nickel Company of Canada.

Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim, Finland's Army Commander, has been proposed as Director "of the national fate in general," it was reported in Helsinki today.

So far it is only a newspaper suggestion, offered yesterday by the influential Uusi Suomi, and there has been no indication that the Field Marshal would accept. Many such opportunities have been offered Baron Mannerheim in the past but he never accepted.

Uusi Suomi, in a special dispatch from Moscow, said Soviet Russia plans to begin immediately construction of fortifications along the new frontier with Finland, and that they are to be known as the "Voroshiloff Line" after War Commissar Klementi Voroshiloff.

Spanish Captive Dahl Home After 3 Years

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP).—Penniless but glad to be alive, Harold E. (Whitey) Dahl, 30-year-old aviator-adventurer, came home Sunday after having been saved from a Spanish firing squad through appeals in which he said a photograph of his platinum-blond wife figured.

Dahl, who went to fight for the Spanish Republican (Madrid-Barcelona) Government as a pursuit pilot at $1,500 a month, was captured when his plane fell into Spanish Insurgent territory, during an aerial dog-fight July 12, 1937.

"I was condemned to death by court-martial and was cheduled to die at 6 a.m. on Oct. 8," he said as he disembarked from the American export liner Exiria at Jersey City after a twenty-one day voyage from Seville, Spain.

Dahl said ten hours before the scheduled execution, Edward J. Neil, Associated Press war correspondent who was later killed at Teruel, intervened with the Insurgent leader, General Franco, and won clemency by showing him a picture of Dahl's wife, Edith Rogers Dahl.

"I heard General Franco was quite struck by my wife's beauty, and I guess there's no question it saved my life," he said.

Mrs. Dahl, a night-club singer, arrived at the pier with a phalanx of press agents about thirty-five minutes after the liner docked, and after a fleeting kiss—preceded by a whispered warning "don't spoil my make-up, darling"—greeted the husband she had not seen for three years.

Looking healthy for a man who had spent nearly three years in a Spanish war prison, Dahl said he had received "pretty fair treatment."

Dahl—in appearance anything but the swashbuckling soldier-of-fortune type portrayed in fiction, with mild blue eyes, pink complexion and nearly bald plate—said he shot down six planes during his six months in action on the Madrid front and that he was paid $1,000 bonus for two of them.

"But I've got nothing to show for it now," he said.

Goes To Gallows

BALTIMORE, March 18—(AP).—Alvin Kenton, 23, walked unafraid to the gallows today, after a confession in which he said he was "sorry" for the criminal assault of an 83-year-old woman, and torture-robbery of her husband, 80.

He was hanged with Thomas Sanchez, 40-year-old Mexican, also convicted of the attack upon Mr. and Mrs. Peter Aiken at their Templeville home last September.

If, on the other hand, Hitler intended to discuss plans for a spring offensive it was thought Mussolini would avoid involving Italy in it.

Truce Outlook Dim.

The outlook for any truce appeared slightly indeed to diplomatic eyes. While there has been speculation for some time as to the possibility of Hitler's offering to restore a certain amount of independence to Poland and Czecho-Slovakia there has been little hope that this would satisfy Britain and France.

The United States Under-Secretary of State was accompanied to the last conference of his tour by Myron Taylor, special United States representative at the Vatican. The Pope received them in his private library.

The audience lasted one hour, after which Mr. Welles visited Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Papal Secretary of State.

Mr. Welles plans to leave Rome tomorrow night for Genoa to board the liner Conte Di Savoia for the United States and it is possible Mussolini will be in position to add last minute data to the dossier he is carrying back to President Roosevelt.

Colette Hebert, eldest of the 32-year-old Mrs. Hebert's children, had almost reached the street which she heard the cries of her sisters and brothers and turned back to help them. She died before she could reach them.

Thick smoke pouring from the building hampered firemen in their work. The firemen ran a ladder up the side of the building and one of the men was obliged to turn back when he kicked through a window. The thick smoke kept him from entering.

Fireman Henri Nil Maltais said one spectator had told him there was no one in the building.

Maltais and Roland St. Gelais suffered severe cuts about the hands. Miss Hovington also was injured slightly.

The fire, which caused material damage estimated at $20,000, burned through the night and searchers were unable until this morning to penetrate the smoking ruins to look for the bodies of the five children.

All the belongings of the four families who lived in the building were lost.

All Air School Buildings Standardized

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP)—Standardization of buildings and hangars at schools being established under the British commonwealth air training plan was announced today by the national defence department.

Forty standard designs have been prepared by the engineer services branch of the Canadian militia and the works and building divisions of the Royal Canadian Air Force. They embrace every type of structure required for any air force station, school or depot.

Suggestions by British firms that standard portable steel hangars be constructed were discarded in favor of Canadian designs and materials when it was found cost of importing steel sections would be high.

Of timber construction, hangars will have a span of 112 feet and depth of 126 feet. The connector-type truss will be employed, providing for rapid erection and also for easy removal to other sites.

Manion-Rogers Hustings Feud Livens Weekend

(By the Canadian Press.)

A new outburst in the hustings feud between Defence Minister Rogers and Conservative Leader Manion enlivened a dull political weekend, but generally the Dominion election campaign continues to move at a comparatively slow tempo.

Speaking at Brantford, Ont., on Saturday the Defence Minister said Opposition charges are designed to create disquiet solely to put the Opposition in power.

"When Parliament was dissolved," he said, "it was generally understood that the Government's war record was to be the issue, but Hon. Dr. Manion has moved further and further from it until he now has criticism for the record but nothing constructive."

nish the major part of Italy's coal needs by rail, followed upon Britain's blockade of German coal being shipped by water).

In the event of Italy's entering the war, it was said Germany would supply her partner with all necessary warlike materials.

Hitler and Mussolini further agreed according to these sources, that an Italian-Russian rapprochement must follow next. This would involve careful delineation of spheres of influence in the Balkans.

Another Chance for F. D. R.

The Associated Press said that Sumner Welles, United States Under-Secretary of State now in Rome, would be one of the first to learn the details of to-day's meeting. As seen in Berlin, the story said, this would give President Roosevelt "one more chance to find some formula" for peace.

Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's personal monthly organ "Berlin-Rome-Tokyo" to-day published an article characterized by three stars, instead of the author's name. Such three-star articles are understood to have been approved and to be tantamount to an utterance by the Foreign Minister.

The argument in the course of the article is concluded:

"We are acting unrestrictedly and irrepressibly with war and victory as the sole dominating thought. We are amused to see how some people believe that German and Italian statesmen, contrary to all their practices thereto, will permit the initiative to be wrested from them through cajolery, threats or blackmail, or to allow themselves to be provoked by noisy statesmen or an angry press on the other side.

"For the benefit of these strategists let it be said quite clearly and pointedly: The German-Italian alliance is a reality built not only upon power but just as much upon wisdom, it is a reality which can be active everywhere at any time without restriction."

An authorized spokesman soon after the Hitler-Mussolini meeting said it was held "to discuss all questions which concern both Allied and the authoritarian nations."

"We flew toward the Orkneys sometimes so high we had to use oxygen, sometimes through brief rain and sleet storms," he said.

"Our radio man entertained us by playing hot music on his harmonica, which was relayed to the others by our radio system.

"As we approached the Orkneys there were no clouds, hence it was unfavorable for us because the English could quickly spot us.

"All was quiet on board as we flew to attack one of the warships most favorable situated....

"Then I sensed the plane lightening. The bombs were dropping. It was a few seconds before I learned the results. Then our bomber called, 'We hit; she's burning.'

"The prow of the boat was enveloped in a cloud of smoke which spread so that the entire craft soon was buried in a black mass. Tongues of red flame shot out. We made a few curves to watch the fireworks. Anti-aircraft firing appeared to be aimless shooting, as though the English were not able to see us.

"Then came the warning that pursuiters were on our tail. I rose in spirals, stepped on the gas. As we parted into the darkness we saw another great torch spring up. Apparently another big one had been hit."

Premier intends to broaden his government to include all parties from Socialist Leon Blum on the left to Louis Marin on the right, or whether he will confine himself to adjustments affecting a few of his senior ministers.

It is generally agreed he will separate the foreign and war portfolios, which he now holds himself, and will probably set up an inner "war cabinet" of about half a dozen key ministers in whose hands will be concentrated supreme executive power.

There was also considerable guessing as to whether the Premier will wait until after tomorrow's chamber debate to carry through his expected changes, or will confront the chamber with an accomplished fact.

Le Matin said: "He is undeniably master of the situation and will choose the moment he thinks best for the interests of the country. It is indispensable that the ministerial crisis should be solved at the same moment it is officially made public."

Le Petit Journal also urged quick action once the crisis comes into the open to prevent the Nazis taking advantage of the few days when France might find herself without a government.

Albert Baynet, in L'Oeuvre, said "The cabinet must emerge as a 'war cabinet,' both in its structure and its act, showing inflexible resolution against the enemies of France."

New Gas Mask Prevents War Pilots From 'Suicide' At 35,000-Foot Level

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 18.—(AP).—A new hip-pocket oxygen flash and a new face mask designed to save the lives of military fliers were exhibited Friday before the meeting of the Federated Biological Societies.

Dr. Walter Boothby of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., who developed the new devices in co-operation with Captain Harry Armstrong of the United States Army Air Corps' material division, declared the new equipment is designed to prevent a pilot inadvertently "committing suicide" if he accidentally opens his mouth at high altitudes.

If a pilot flying an airplane at the present "ceilings" of around 35,000 feet does not have oxygen he will die a quick violent death. This is prevented in the newer types of fighting ships by either sealed pressure cabins or oxygen masks. With the old type of mask a member of the ship's crew could breathe through his mouth and one gasp would be his last.

The new type of mask, which resembles a hog's snout equipped with a sponge rubber valve, keeps both the nose and mouth covered, with oxygen from a pressure tank.

The hip-pocket bottle of oxygen was developed to ensure the necessary supply if pilots are forced to bail out from high altitudes. It fits into the pocket, is connected by a rubber tube to the mask, and provides enough oxygen to drift by parachute from a height of five or more miles down to a safe altitude for normal breathing.

Several friendly foreign governments have already expressed interest in the new equipment.

Hope Fades For 71 Trapped In Ohio Mine

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., March 18—(AP).—Hope virtually was abandoned today for 71 miners trapped since Saturday in the Willow Grove coal mine.

Rescue crews continued their efforts to penetrate falls of slate blocking the chambers in which the men were caught by an explosion, attributed by mine workers either to gas or coal dust.

More than 100 miners reached the surface safely through an air shaft shortly after the blast. Two men lost their lives breathing poisonous afterdamp fumes in an attempt to reach the others.

John Owens, president of the Ohio district of the United Mine workers, surveyed the wrecked tunnels last night and declared he held "no hope whatsoever" that any of the entombed miners were alive.

Four-man squads, equipped with an automatic loading machine, worked in shifts removing slate from the clogged passages. R. V. Clay, general manager of the company, said about 44 men, working as a unit, were trapped about three miles from the mine entrance. The other 27 were in scattered groups nearby when the explosion struck.

Rotarians Hear Col. Hindley

Rotarians were advised by President E. L. Sackville at today's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club to get out on March 26 and exercise their franchise. "There will be no meeting of the club next Monday because of the holiday" he said "but don't forget to use your ballots on the following day. I am not going to tell you how to vote but simply to vote. Remember 1,500,000 people failed to use their ballots at the last general election."

The guest speaker today was Col. the Rev. A. Talbot Hindley a padre in the British army in the last war and a brother of Lord Hindley who in an unusual address stressed the necessity of turning to God in this hour of national peril.

He was introduced by Rotarian Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr. Rev. Mr. Hindley described himself as a religious travelling missionary. He liked, he said, to think of himself in the words of the great Baptist divine in London who said that he was God's errand boy.

Stressing the seriousness of the struggle in which the Empire was engaged, he suggested that his audience should remember that Hitler had the backing of 13,000,000 German youths, every one of whom regarded him as a God. "I was in Baden some years ago" he said "and my car was held up for a long time while we watched a small section of Hitler's youth march by."

It was a time, he declared for thinking of the things that matter. In Russia the Bolsheviks had abolished God, in Prussia the Nazis had Germanized God and in England they had put God on a shelf.

"Fortunately, however, said the speaker "They know where the shelf is and in this period of national emergency they are turning to Him.

It was always easy to get men at the front to come to service, Col. Hindley said as he recalled some of his experiences in the days of the last war. On the other hand at home he had come across a sense of uncertainty on the part of youth in regard to religion. He recalled that Sir Henry Irving was once asked why the theatres were filled while the churches were practically empty and had replied "Probably because we actors present fiction as facts while the preachers present facts as if they were fiction."

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Past President James Dutton.

Colonel Dewart Charges Half Truths Told

"In my opinion it would be a national catastrophe if the King Government was interrupted in its war effort,' 'Colonel John A. Dewart, M.C., officer commanding the 9th Infantry Brigade, told a Liberal rally at the Legion Hall on Saturday afternoon.

Col. Dewart was introduced by Howard Quinn, president of the Peterborough Liberal Association, who mentioned pamphlets which had been dropped from an aeroplane over Peterborough on Saturday and he described the papers as listing a "bunch of lie." The pamphlets were distributed by the National Government supporters.

Col. Dewart was former commanding officers of the Prince of Wales Dragoons at Peterborough before being elevated to the rank of staff officer. He served overseas in the last war.

"To-day we are in the midst of a most peculiar election, and besides that we are facing a grave danger, far greater than the threat which existed in 1914 when Britain declared war on Germany. The government of Germany in 1914 was made up of men of culture and good breeding but to-day the leaders of Germany represent the most sinister forces in the world. Their rise to power has been over the dead bodies of all who dared oppose them either in a military way or in political views.

Be a Long Struggle.

We must not delude ourselves on the duration of this war. It is imperative that we get set for a long struggle We must work carefully and build up strong reserves in men and equipment if we are to finally win out

Dr Manion and his colleagues have made many statements that are certainly not designed to help Canada's war effort."

Col. Dewart went on to say that he had been quite happy over the nomination of Rollie Glover as Liberal candidate and had left the city on a holiday. When he returned he learned that Gordon K. Fraser in one of his election ads had referred to the Peterborough regiment, stating that they had been neglected and that their rifles had been taken away and given to another unit.

"This is a half truth designated to mislead people. In the first place this is a machine gun unit not an infantry regiment. It is true that the Enfield rifles have been taken away and the Ross rifle substituted for drill purposes, but if these Enfield rifles were needed elsewhere is it not logical that they be taken there at once.

Only about one-third of the militia units in Canada were called because only two divisions of soldiers were needed and they were chosen from all across Canada so as to have country wide representation In military district No 3 which includes Peterborough there are eleven regiments and only two were called. If Mr. Fraser says the Rangers were neglected then there are eight other regiments also being neglected. We have a chief recruiting officer in the district and he has the authority to recruit where he wishes in Military District No. 3. Politics do not enter into it.

All the military staff of this great country has received for their splendid work is a barrage of abuse and slander. I am happy to say they have had no political interference from the King government but since the election started Dr. Manion and his party leaders have continually criticized these military men who have the knowledge and experience to do the work of preparing Canada's army for their part in the war

In my opinion as a soldier it would be a national catastrophe if the King government was interrupted in its war effort

Everybody in this riding knows Rollie Glover; his life is an open book to the people of this city and I would suggest to Mr. Fraser that he make sthe people in this riding a little better acquainted with himself. He has two columns in his advertisements, one describing the work of Dr. Manion during the last war, and the other describing the work of Mackenzie King. Let him put in a third column and tell the people of his own actions during the years 1914 to 1918."

Howard Quinn, the chairman, in introducing Rollie Glover, the candidate, said this was one time when the job sought the man, as Mr. Glover had not wished for the nomination but had been induced to accept it.

"I am satisfied that the people of Canada through their government have done all that was humanly possible in the preparation and prosecution of this war," said Mr. Glover. "Those who are condemning the government's war efforts are unfair. Any reasonable minded man or woman can readily see and appreciate the thoroughness of the work already done toward helping Britain win the war."

Canada's Naval Officers Studying Aboard Ship That Never Puts To Sea

Lt. B. G. Sivertz, instructor, second from RIGHT, is shown with Lt. St. Clair Balfour, Lt. W. Evans and Lt. S. S. Barr, grouped around the binnacle of the H.M.C.S. Stone Frigate.

One of the most important lessons taught aboard H.M.C.S. Stone Frigate is the use of the sextant and Lt. S. S. Barr of Montreal; Lt. A. G. Osborn, of Vancouver; and Lt. D. D. Armour, of Oakville, Ont., are pictured on the quarter-deck of the Stone Frigate "shooting their position."

Hand-picked from Royal Canadian Naval Volunteers Reserve centres in all parts of the Dominion, a group of young Canadian naval volunteers, averaging just under 30 years of age are undergoing a strenuous eight weeks' course aboard H.M.C.S. Stone Frigate at Kingston, Ont., to qualify as officers in the Canadian navy. These young men are smart. They are tough, too, and they have to prove their ability and smartness before they are allowed to tread the bridge of a destroyer, a mine-sweeper or a sub-chaser. Tying knots is still an important part of every seaman's training and, ABOVE, a group of future officers are learning the fine points of tying the various knots used by sailors and seamen the world over.

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XXII

That afternoon after Maud had moved out of the house Janis inspected the modernly equipped kitchen. She felt better now, lighthearted, too.

She would cook the dinner. How surprised and pleased Rock would be. He had promised to come home early to-night. She would have dinner ready at 6.30, and they would have a long evening together, thrash out future plans on a sensible basis. She would explain how kind Dr. Black had been. Perhaps after this Rock would feel more kindly toward the Blacks, whom he called "snobby highhats."

In a simple flowered print, her cheeks flushed, her eyes shining, Janis bustled about in a determined attempt to assemble a man's favorite dinner. Thick porterhouse steak, French fried potatoes, broccoli, fruit salad and chocolate ice-cream were all included on he rmenu.

Preparing a Feast.

She was aghast at the quantities of food spoiling in the refrigerator, blamed herself for allowing Maud to be so extravagant. But never again would this wastefulness be allowed in her home — from now on she would be a most frugal cook and manager.

She had had little experience with cooking, but she thought she could learn its intricacies as well as any woman. Anyway, to-night things were turning out gloriously. The potatoes were fried a golden brown and lightly salted, the tender broccoli temptingly covered with hollandaise sauce, the steak waited to be placed in the broiler the instant Rock came in.

She went to the cheery breakfast room to give the small table final inspection. It was set for two with Mary Black's handsome flat silver and Doulton china; gold pompom dahlias in a yellow bowl gave it an air of lively welcome. Janis' spirits rose to the heights. Her pink cheeks lifted in a whimsical smile. Certainly this meal WAS to be an occasion.

She laid a silver ashtray beside Rock's place and stood off to survey the effect of her handiwork. Yes, the table was lovely—so much cosier to have dinner here than in the big formal dining-room.

The telephone behind her cut sharply into this reverie of hers so close to high adventure. For some unaccountable reason she was trembling. Oh, nothing — nothing must happen now to spoil this beautiful evening.

JANIS took up the receiver, when the phone rang as she was preparing dinner, sang out, "Hello!"

"That you, Honey?" Rock sounded hurried.

Her heart sank. "Don't tell me you're not coming home to dinner," she begged.

"Why? What's up?"

"Rock Conover, you'll simply have to come home—right away. I've—I must see you."

"What's the mad rush? I'll be there 'round 10. I've got a story conference on with Doyle — we're dining at the Troc."

"But couldn't you—oh, well——"

"Good grief! What's the matter with you—can't you be sensible for once? I suppose I can leave everything here at the studio — drive twenty miles home just to humor a temperamental woman."

"Yes, you can. I shall expect you, Rock," she told him, firmly indignant. Only her pride and anger now kept back the tears striving to break loose

She replaced the receiver, thinking, "He has to come home—just this once, he has to do as I wish. He may or may not have a dinner date with Max Doyle—it's hard to believe him. But—he's got to see me first."

Rock Heard the News

She scarcely expected he would come, however, and was surprised when he stalked into the living room where she sat tense and white, her eyes big with misery.

He gave her an impatient glance and dropped beside her on the sofa.

"Well, spill it," he chopped out. "I'm in the devil of a rush. Jilly Morse is waiting out front in my car. I'm taking her home."

"Jilly Morse? I — see," came faintly from Janis.

"There you go, always imagining things! I have to be nice to a big star like Jilly—she might give me a break. Can't you get that through your stupid little head?"

"But, Rock——"

"Don't be a fool!"

She thought of the delicious dinner ready and waiting for his approval. Her anger rose. "You ought to be ashamed! I've discharged Maud—got dinner myself." Sobs choked her. "Now you tell me I'm a ——"

"You let a good cook like Maud go? What got into you? Now you've tired yourself out and want to cry about it."

"Why—oh, why can't you figure things out, Rock? Our expenses were terrible—I'm cutting down on everything. I'm going to sublet this house, if I can. We'll find an apartment."

"On what?" he shouted at her.

"I'm not deaf," she told him, dangerously low.

"But I'm asking you—what do we live on in some dinky little apartment?"

She looked at him squarely, her face working convulsively. "We've got to economize, Rock—we're going to have a baby."

Left Alone

She waited breathlessly for his handsome face to light up with joy. Instead, it twisted into bitter incredulity. She had a terrible feeling that he was drifting away from her, although he was so physically near she could reach out and touch him. It set up a panic within her.

"Damn" he ejaculated. Then he said slowly, as if weighing his words. "What a mess! Well—that's that, isn't it?"

She shrank from him in cold disbelief. She gulped out, "You mean—mean you're—not glad?"

He got to his feet, threw back his broad muscular shoulders, said quickly: "You know I can't afford to be tied down—and this—complicates matters like the very deuce."

"You mean Max Doyle wouldn't like it—it's your career you're thinking of?"

"Partly."

"But, Rock—doesn't it mean anything—to you—to have——"

"We'll talk it over later. I can't keep Jilly waiting. Cheer up, Honey." He leaned down and hastily patted her arm. "I'll be home early—and we'll fix everything."

"I guess—there's nothing to fix, Rock." Her voice sounded a long way off.

He snapped his fingers in midair, slamed out: "There you go again—trying to be a killjoy. When a man's as busy as I am, he can't take it, that's all!" He wheeled swiftly and without another word left her sitting there.

She stared vacantly at the black carpet that seemed symbolic of her own future. She suddenly slid down on the sofa, buried her head in her arms. Her racking sobs sounded through the house like a ghostly echo of despair.

When finally she sat up, the room was flooded with bright morning sunshine. She had drifted from sobs to slumber as easily as a child, sleeping the night through on the sofa.

The canary in the breakfast room was chirping insistently, reminding her of his feeding time. She dragged herself to her feet, her heart heavy, her head buzzing with pain.

The realization that Rock had not returned to the house all night and what this might signify flooded her with desolation. But she was beyond tears now. She had work to do, a future to plan. Her ravenous appetite suddenly sent her into thankful reminder that there was food in the kitchen.

Mary Black to the Rescue

She had just finished her breakfast when Mary Black called her up, and invited her out to Bridgecliff for the day. Janis thought she was not equal to meeting anyone today, and made hasty excuses which she hoped sounded adequate.

"But I must see you, Miss Sheldon—I've a proposition to put up to you. I think you might be interested. Do you mind if I drop in around 11?" Mary was peculiarly insistent.

After all, there was no courteous way to refuse to see Mary if she came to the house. "Of course—do come in," Janis said, wondering how she could ignore her perplexities long enough to talk coherently to anyone.

But when Mary arrived, stunning in silver-fox jacket and matching beret, her soft brown eyes filled with sympathetic interest the tight band of worry around Janis' heart loosened somewhat. And when they finally sat together in the music room, Mary's personality—that some magnetic personality which stirred screen audiences to fervent praise—impressed itself poignantly upon Janis, convinced her that there was one friend she could thoroughly trust.

"I hope you don't mind, dear—but Stephen told me about—your plight. I need help—and perhaps you do, too—so we should get together."

Janis locked her hands tightly in her lap, gazed at Mary in dim comprehension. She could not trust

"I GO PRETTY NEAR CRAZY WITH DRIVER'S ACHES ... So I'm grateful for the quick relief I get from Sloan's"
Driving is no child's play. Take the wheel of a bus, truck, transport or car for hours on end and you'll know how muscles can play out. Arms, legs, shoulders and back generally feel it most. But Sloan's gently patted over the weary muscles brings quick relief. Fatigue poisons in the tissues are generally the cause of the trouble. The action of Sloan's stimulates the circulation and so helps the blood carry off these poisons. And that is why quick relief follows.
There are many things that we do while at work or at play, which may strain muscles or tire them so that they soon ache exasperatingly. When this occurs, Sloan's is the sensible treatment. Better keep a bottle of this fine liniment in the house. 11P

What Will The Finns Do?

Canada's Government voted money some weeks ago to aid Finland, and it is now reported that $100,000 worth of flour will go forward even if the war has been stopped. We believe that attitude is right enough, otherwise we would be assuming because Finland had bowed to Russian defeat we were no longer interested in the country or its remarkable people.

The suggestion also come that a number of the Finns might find it desirable to settle in Canada, as there are large areas here where they could work to advantage. Some 450,000 of them have to seek new homes and the argument is that they might desire to find such homes in Canada.

Whether the Finns themselves entertain such ideas we do not know. Within recent months they have demonstrated a passionate loyalty for their own land; they are not a military people, but they are not afraid to fight when they have to do it to defend their own land. There is something in that outlook which fits in with the view of Canadians.

Whether any number of folk from Finland would consider leaving their own country is something on which there is no information. We take it that a good many nations would gladly open the door to Finns if they desired to enter. These people may have other ideas at the moment, and it may bulk large in their mind that the business to be done now is the rebuilding of their own land and making it secure against further Russian aggression. It would cause no surprise if the great majority of the Finns decided to stay where they are.

He Can Kill More

There are people who are thinking of how to rebuild a new world order when the present conflict has come to a close. It may be they have been able and wise enough to read aright the mistakes of the past and to have plans by which such mistakes will be weeded out of future conditions.

These people always include in their plans that fine article dealing with disarmament. If there was much less machinery of war there would be much less damage; at least the idea runs something like that.

Meantime there comes Lester P. Barlow, described as an inventor. Responsible men in Washington are going to gather together today and listen to the man and look upon his plans. This is a world of bombs dropped from the sky, and the purpose of dropping bombs is to create death and destruction, fear and desolation.

Mr. Barlow believes he has the ideal in a new bomb. His claim is that it will kill every living thing within a radius of 1,000 feet when it explodes. He is using detonating waves, and he says none can escape. Mr. Barlow is quite definite in his claim that he has brought into existence the most deadly bomb in existence.

So there is something we will have to consider when we are planning for the future, and the solution is not easy. If Inventor Barlow had been working on some plan where he could make life more pleasant, easier and safer, we doubt very much if he could have secured the interest and attention of the leading naval and military men in Washington. We doubt if he could have secured much of an audience any place, and it is not likely people would care to put their money in his venture or spend much in purchasing his finished produet. But when he comes to the front and says he has the most deadly bomb the world has yet seen or experienced, he has an audience. If United States government did not desire to buy it up then governments of other nations would be quick enough to talk business with him.

So Mr. Barlow and the idea he represents constitute something planners of better times in the future will have to consider. We have a long journey to make while we are still at the milepost where the world opens its purse strings and is ready to talk business with the man who finds a new way to kill all the people in a 1,000-feet radius with one explosion.

One Man's View

Social Welfare officials in Iowa are puzzled and pleased. They have been called upon to deal with a peculiar case. They have what is termed the Aged Assistance system, somewhat similar to our own Old Age Pension.

One recipient's case was under consideration and it was found he was entitled to $3 per month more than he had been receiving, but when that was brought to his attention the old gentleman refused to accept the increase. His reason was:

"I have managed to live on the smaller amount all right, and there are undoubtedly other persons in the state who need it as badly as I do."

Of course the incident is not of sufficient size to rate importance as a large transaction. Just the plain reasoning of one man who had not made much of a success of the business of providing for his own old age. Even so he had room in his arrangements of things in general to think about other people. And in this rather selfish world that is worth considering.

The Independent Candidate

Looking over the complete list of nominations as supplied by the Canadian Press for election night purposes, one comes occasionally but not frequently to the name of a candidate who is going to run as an independent. He might possibly have gone as National Conservative, Liberal, C.C.F., New Democracy, Progressive, Labor—but he wants to be an independent.

Often enough we call for more independence in politics, but whether there is much hope in that we do not know. The trouble is that the independent if elected finds himself up a blind alley. We can hardly believe he knows his Ottawa, or the method of running a government, otherwise he would not have been overcome with the strong desire which caused him to run as an independent.

If a man is elected as an independent and goes to Ottawa, then what? If he has some good ideas which he seeks to have incorporated in legislation, he can do so only by having a sufficient number of members in the House vote favorably.

If he is an independent then he is not called to the caucus of any group; he has no chance to advance his ideas there and see if he can secure support. If he speaks in the House and advances his views there he gets no place because he has no supporters. Even a member of a well-organized Opposition finds it next to impossible to have his plans made acceptable to the party in power. It is taken for granted that his business is to oppose what the Government seeks to do.

Within a short time the independent member will be called upon to record his vote, and when he does that he has to cast it with or against the Government, and by doing that he becomes for the time being associated with some party in the House. His one chance might be if the result of an election gave to two parties 122 members each and he, being the 245th man, would hold the balance of power.

Most People Are Poor

A young fellow from a Western Ontario city wrote a day or so ago saying he wanted a position on the Examiner staff. He explained he is 17 years of age and feels it is time he was making a start. "There doesn't seem to be much chance where I am, and I'd have to begin work at very low wages. I can see plenty of families here where men are working and they just about break even, and that is why I want to get away."

He did write a very good and enthusiastic letter, and he also touched on something very large indeed when he mentioned the number of families which were just about breaking even. The trouble is that this young fellow has not seen much of the world; he does not appreciate the plain fact that the great majority of people in this world are relatively poor, or that millions of them live close to poverty.

There was a despatch from London today saying the Government had increased the butter ration which had been set at four ounces as a week's supply for each person. It has been increased to one-half pound. Coupled with that announcement is the information that it will not make much difference because there are so many people who cannot afford to purchase butter at all, the price of which is about 38 cents per pound. They have changed to margarine which sells at less than half the price of butter.

We do not know if the young man who wrote to us ever had to put the butter on thin or go without. We have plenty of homes in Canada where it is considered that a pound of butter per person is about right for a week. There are plenty of people in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales where the problem of existence has always been hard. It has been harder than most Canadians know anything about.

When one goes to the continent and seeks opportunity of finding the standard of living of the peasant class in France, Germany or any other country the same is found. There is not sufficient opportunity; there is drudgery and little reward; there is little hope of anything better; there is that constant and bitter struggle for day-to-day existence. Most of it can be designed by no other word than poverty.

Those who have had opportunity to travel in such states as Georgia and Kentucky know how thousands of the people live, white people as well as Negroes. Just how they manage to keep body tethered to soul is something which puzzles the casual observer or the one who finds opportunity to go deeper into the question. As we understand the phrase there is no "standard of living." It is more a matter of existence.

If one cares to expand the view to include India and China it will be found that millions of people are never far removed from what can be called nothing else than starvation. The supply for the week ahead does not exist; the pressing problem is to secure it for just one day.

So our young friend who is 17 is somewhat depressed because there are families in his community who do not seem to be doing much better than breaking even should become aware that the world is full of such families. The number of those who can sit back and take it easy is very small indeed. We have been advised by those who for years have had an intimate connection with relief matters that the average family, if its income is stopped through lack of employment, will require assistance within one month. The average Canadian community can well stand comparison with the outside world, and those homes where it may seem the folk are doing little better than breaking even are enjoying a way of life and of living which millions of people the world over would envy.

NOTE AND COMMENT

One Montreal candidate retired from the contest, but his preliminary canter cost him $200.

One transport driver says it took him seven hours to get from Toronto to Peterborough. It was tough going but worth it.

No matter if this is a war year when a man goes out to get a set of 1940 car markers he knows he is going to show a yellow streak.

Tokyo hears reports that Japs and Russians are again fighting in the north, and at best we can't promise them more than a couple of inches on an inside page.

Italian papers claim that Russia was due to crack up unless there had been peace made with Finland. Unfortunately most of the cracking up was foisted on Finland.

Mr. Hepburn is not going on the political platform in this election. That young man can kick up enough rumpus by staying at home and talking to the reporters.

Man was fined $100 for illegal possession of liquor in our city, and illegal possession in turn indicates the presence of a bootlegger, and a bootlegger means a job for the police which has not been completed.

Man in Hamilton was charged with having stolen $1,300 from a residence there. That seems a mistake; it must have been a branch bank the man was running.

Man in Gary, Ind., returned a book to the library saying he had stolen it in 1927, but had recently joined the church. That chap apparently joined the right kind of a church and joined it also in the right way.

Mrs. Ruth Fritz, of Philadelphia, received a summons for having her car parked in the wrong place. Then she hastened to court to explain it was the car which she reported three weeks ago as having been stolen. The cop who turned in the number of a stolen car for having been wrongly parked probably felt he had seen his duty and done it up brown.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra marked his list, he's sure that not a name's been missed, he's keener than before; he's lost his faith in meetings too, is sure there's but one way to do, just go from door to door.

¶ And Ezra's list is nearly done, of calls he had to make just one, a rather pleasant chore; she was a lady small and fair, and Ezra raves about her hair, the widow just next door.

¶ He did not wish to run in there, and make of it a rushed affair, such call should be an art; so Ezra figured what he'd say, he said it several times each day, and learned it off by heart.

¶ He didn't know just how she stood, but Ezra's treated her quite good, he'd make her understand; he'd work so smooth when he was through, he'd merely tell her what to do, like clay within his hands.

¶ So Ezra dropped in after tea, she was as pleasant as could be, and she talked politics; she knew her history like a book, could name each hero and each crook, was up to all their tricks.

¶ She jumped on Ezra's party too, and told him all the things they'd do, they worked by crook and stealth; an hour before he rose to go, by then my cousin did not know—just how he'd vote himself.

Finland's Fate Hurts Standing Of the Allies

THE LARGEST share of the responsibility for the defeat of Finland rests upon Norway and Sweden. These democratic neighbors failed in time of crisis. If they had permitted France, Britain to have marched their troops across their territory to Finland's aid, and have come to the rescue themselves, Finland would, doubtless, have been saved. But both Sweden and Norway, which have small armies and feeble defences are terrified of their two totalitarian neighbors. There is not much doubt, says A. R. Ford in London Free Press, that Germany warned Sweden and Norway that if they entered the war on the side of Finland or allowed passage for Allied troops, the Nazis would attack Stockholm, Oslo, and the cities of these two Scandinavian states, are within easy striking distance of Germany. Norway and Sweden want, above all things, peace, and they hope that the cyclone which is sweeping over Europe may yet blow over them.

There is naturally criticism of France and Britain for not coming to the aid of Finland. But frankly what could they have done? Finland, like Poland, is so isolated that it was impossible to reach it directly by land or sea. The only possible way was through Sweden and Norway and this route was blocked by the attitude of these two countries. The only other approach was through the Finnish port on the Arctic Ocean, which was held by Russia. It might have been possible to have forced this port, but what a risk it would have been to send an army of 100,000 men south without transportation facilities and without means of support to the Mannerheim Line. It would have been inviting disaster. It was simply not practical.

Russia has made solid gains. But what a price it has paid for its victory! It has lost, it is claimed 200,000 men, although human life means nothing to the Soviets. Russia has millions of men to throw away whenever Stalin gives the word. But Communism has received a blow throughout the world. Those idealists who believed that Russia was the last word in human government now realize, or should realize that it is a dictatorship as cruel and imperialistic as the regime of the czars. There is no difference between the dictatorships of Hitler and Stalin. The war, likewise, has exploded the incompetence of the Russian army. Before the war there was fear that Russia had the most powerful army in the world. Tiny Finland was only overwhelmed by numbers. It took three months for Russia to crack the resistance of a country one-fifth as strong as its own. The Russian myth has been exploded.

WHAT are the gains and losses of Germany? The chief gain is that there will no longer be interruption of Russian supplies for Germany —assuming Russian suplies are available, which no one knows. If Germany with her organizing genius can regiment Russia, with her vast resources of men and natural wealth, then it is frankly a serious situation for the Allies. But will Russia allow Germany to do so—it is questionable? They may be allies but they are suspicious allies. Germany will, though, be able to secure Swedish iron ore which she sorely needs during the months the Gulf of Bothnia is free from ice. But it cannot be comfortable for Germany to see the Baltic turned into a Russian sea and this is what is happening. Germany has always regarded the Baltic as her sphere of influence and now Russia is the dominating power. There must be a lot of question marks in Berlin. Thieves in the end generally fall out and this may yet happen between Russia and Germany.

The alliance between Germany and Russia has lost Hitler the friendship of Italy. On the very day that the Finns and the Russians were completing their negotiations in Moscow, Herr von Ribbentrop was discovering that his visit to Rome was a humiliating and abject failure. He seems to have been snubbed by Mussolini and been given a cold reception by the Vatican. The facts are that the Italians never did like the Germans and distrusted them, while they fear Communism. The growing prestige of Russia and the possibility of her taking a hand in Balkan affairs has disturbed Rome.

AS FOR the Allies, one may as well face realities. The collapse of Finland is a blow to France and Britain. In particular it will injure their standing amongst the neutrals of Europe. They will say what can the Allies do to help, when, one by one, the smaller nations have been allowed to be overrun by the dictatorial states. On the other hand the neutrals may be forced to join together. Already there is belated talk along these lines amongst the Scandinavian countries. They may yet take the advice of Churchill which was so resented at the time. Churchill told the neutrals that if they did not unite and join hands with the Allies they would be destroyed one by one.

Again there is talk of Hitler invading Holland. He would like to seize the coastline of the Low Countries. This would give him bases for submarines and airplanes within close distance of the British shores. He would then have a dagger pointed at the heart of Britain. If he does, for the first time there would be a neutral attacked which Britain and France could assist. They would pour troops into the Low Countries. The Dutch, in the past, like the Finns, have proven stubborn foes. The Dutch could not hold off indefinitely the German legions, but they could stem the tide until aid arrived. Belgium also would enter the struggle. It all sounds like a move of desperation on the part of Hitler. One thing is certain today no small nation is safe against Nazism.

• The Desire to Bomb Germany

TO RAID or not to raid, that is the question. The Rt. Hon. L. S. Amery has followed seventy-four year old H. G. Wells in pleading for immediate and thorough bombing of Germany, but public opinion is not very hearty in seconding the motion and it is unlikely that it will be carried unanimously. For one thing the airplane is not a decisive factor in modern warfare. Its use is as an adjunct to navies and armies. When used against civilians it has a certain "nuisance" value but the results, judging by Finland, are out of all proportion to the energy and cost expended. This must be ever more evident when a well-defended country like Great Britain is attacked by air, or for that matter, Germany; great inconvenience there must be, but no final aerial decision. One is reminded of what Wells said in 1914: "It is a war not of nations but mankind. It is a war to exercise a world-madness and to end an age." How uncertain is prophecy—even in this column. And how blood-thirsty the aged sometimes become. A wing-commander remarked to your correspondent: "Perhaps H. G. would like to start it himself instead of leaving it to us!" It is certainly an idea.—Clarence Winchester, London Correspondent The Argonaut.

• Where A Newspaper Was Right

WHEN, the other day, Wing Commander Reginald Collis, Officer Commanding the much-in-the-news St. Thomas R.C.A.F. training school, was asked why no earlier explanation had been given by him relative to the disturbance of February 10, he had a good answer. He said: "As far as I am concerned the local paper, The Times-Journal, published that day a story covering the true situation, as known at that time, on what occurred that day."

"Comment," appends The Times-Journal editorially, "is unnecessary." It may be. But then, again, the becoming modesty of the St. Thomas paper need not preclude praise. The Times-Journal is to be commended, says Brantford Expositor, first on publishing the story (the talk about Federal censorship, of course, was mostly imagination run wild) and, second, on having the good judgment not to sensationalize it.

As The Expositor has already said, the whole affair, particularly in the sequel, was highly unfortunate. It may have been but a tempest in a teapot. It may be, as The Montreal Star caustically points out, that "Mr. Hepburn sent his own Commissioner of Provincial Police to hold an investigation under the direction of his own Deputy Attorney-General," that "seventeen hand-picked witnesses were heard, including only one airman in uniform and one former member of the Air Force," and that most of the evidence was little better than hearsay. But these circumstances serve not only to reflect on the bad judgment that resulted in a public and, indeed, international uproar, but also emphasize, by contrast, the level-headedness and sane journalism practiced by the editors of the St. Thomas newspaper. The citizens of that community and of Canada, to say nothing of the Royal Canadian Air Force itself, were well served by The Times-Journal, and if the matter had closed, as it should have closed, with the initial news story, much harm, now done, would have been averted.

• What Is Mr. Welles Doing Now

THE quaint passage of Sumner Welles through all the storms of the Finnish peace negotiations has for most Americans a not of innocent fantasy. As he gravely listens to Herr Hitler's diatribes, offers exceptionally platitudinous plans for post-war economic reconstruction to the French or chats in front of the fire with King George, while deadly diplomatic battle is raging through half a dozen capitals and really critical issues seem hanging in the balance, it is hard to believe that any one could take him very seriously.

The mere presence of Mr. Welles in Europe in these tense moments, says New York Herald Tribune, is apparently having its unsettling effect. The foreign offices have to take account of the special envoy; the publics observe his passing in a cloud of vague rumors about peace moves, and he is leaving varying shades of curiosity, coldness, irritation and dismay in his wake. Nor can such sentiments be allayed by Washington dispatches intimating that no one would be surprised if something dramatic in the way of a peace move should suddenly issue from the White House, or by radio addresses from no less a figure than the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, calling for a thirty-day armistice in Europe.

This is the sort of thing which Europeans cannot neglect, and it has served to get the United States (as well as their President) rather prominently into the foreground of the European complex. It does not explain, even to ourselves, what we are doing there, When Senator Pittman piously declares that "now is the time for neutral countries constantly to hammer for the thought of peace," he is saying a good deal less than nothing so long as he leaves unanswered the absolutely crucial question of what kind of peace the neutrals are to "hammer for."

ABERHART AT BAY

MR. ABERHART called no person either a horse thief or a skunk, but it must be explained that he only spoke for a quarter of an hour and will doubtless appear again. He overlooked no other telling blow, or hard names.

He talked of muddle-brained wise heads, know-la-all old time politicians, the paid henchmen of big shots, the gossip mongering and whispering campaign, the malicious and revolting cartoons, the financially serving and much-raking press, the jackasses sitting on their honkera braying to the stars to "lick Aberhart," cartoons conceived by morons, stool pigeon lawyers making dictaphone records, discarded die-hard Conservatives, the political cowardice of the Liberal leader who should be run out of camp.

All that and much more. He put such vim into the effort that at times sharp blue sparks came belching out of my radio.—W. M. Davidson in Calgary Albertan.

ARE YOU LISTENING?

If the politicians realized how many people aren't listening to their radio speeches they wouldn't get so excited about the censorship. A quiz of townspeople and farmers made on Saturday discovered only one man who had heard any of the recent speeches. As to the censorship which cuts out reference to Canada's lack of preparedness at the outbreak of war, it is just plain silly. That isn't news to the Germans or to anybody else.—Orillia Packet and Times.

HIS IDOLIZED RUSSIA

In Winnipeg Mr.—or rather Comrade—James Litterick, Communist member of the Manitoba Legislature, has raised his voice in condemnation of Canada's entry into the war. The reason he gives for his opposition is that "the last war took a terrible toll of men and money and resulted in untold suffering among the common people." One wonders what he supposes his idolized Russia is doing to the common people of Finland.—Brantford Expositor.

MYSTERY ROCK

HARDY WHITE, of St. Marys, appears to have found a hot spot all his own, a mysterious rock on which the snow never remains even in zero weather. The Arthur Enterprise-News says:

Many a man is worried about the bare spot that is appearing on the top of his head, but Hardy White, Thomas street, St. Marys, is completely mystified and overcome with distraction concerning an entirely different kind of bare spot. The bare spot worrying Hardy is a piece of rock about 12 feet in diameter which is situated near the back of his property, close to the river bank. This small area of rock seems in some strange manner to be always free of snow or moisture. According to Hardy, no matter how much snow gathers in this place, it is sure to melt away, vanishing completely within about 24 hours time. This spot has acted thus mysteriously each year for the past seven or eight years, or as long as Hardy has observed it. Many birds gather about it seeming to relish the sensation of having their feet on dry rock. No one has yet suggested a clue which would solve this backyard mystery. There is apparently no drain near by; or no spring in the vicinity which might create sufficient warmth to melt the snow and bare the rock.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

I will teach you by the hand of God: that which is with the Almighty will I not conceal. . . .He bindeth the floods from overflowing; and the thing that is hid bringeth he forth to light.

But where shall wisdom be found? and where is the place of understanding? . . . The depth saith, It is not in me: and the sea saith, It is not with me. . . .

Whence then cometh wisdom? and where is the place of understanding? . . . .

God understandeth the way thereof, and he knoweth the place thereof. For he looketh to the ends of the earth, and seeth under the whole heaven.—Job xxvii, 11; xxviii, 11, 12, 14, 20, 23, 24.

Last Rites For Dying Fruit Pickers Killed In Crash

A priest moves among the dead and dying administering last rites to some of the 25 fruit pickers who were riding in a truck when it was struck by a railroad train at McAllen, Texas, in the worst accident of its kind in Texas history. Twenty-five women and children as well as men—were killed and 17 hospitalized. One of the dying holds his face, LEFT, while others manage to raise their heads. Almost like a scene from "Grapes of Wrath," these pickers, out of work for many weeks, were in search of a job at the time of the accident.

Manion's One-Party Idea Copied From Stalin And Hitler W. H. Moore Tells Liberal Rally

Dr. Manion's National Government is identically the same as Hitler and Stalin has in Europe today. W. H. Moore, member for Ontario county and Liberal candidate told a Liberal rally at the Legion Hall on Saturday afternoon. He dubbed the National Government idea a dangerous movement that would rob Canada of political freedom and warned his audience to safeguard their cherished institutions.

Mr. Moore took the platform in place of the Hon. Norman McLarty, Minister of Labor, who was unable to be present because of an attack of tonsilitis The hall was comfortably filled with a total audience of approximately 250, many of them farmers. He was introduced by the Hon G. N Gordon, K.C., who described the speaker as one of the foremost economists in Canada today.

"I am suggesting to you to-day that one of the most important questions before the Canadian people to-day is social security, it is something that should be provided and there is absolutely no reason why we should not have it,' he said by way of introduction.

"We occupy one-sixteenth of the world's land surface yet we have only eleven million people and there are more than two billion people in the world.

Let us analyze the world situation to-day. Why has the world suddenly gone haywire? What has come over people during the last year that has brought on this chaotic state of affairs That is the issue in this election.

National government is a dangerous movement and one that will take away our political freedom. said Mr. Moore and then he proceeded to substantiate this statement with a historical sketch.

Started In Russia.

Starting with the revolution in Russa about 25 years ago, Mr. Moore said Trotsky was the first one to start this brain theory system of government, with the brains all on one side. He was the fellow who used to laugh at the representatives of the Russian people when they came to Moscow to attend parliament with their onion sandwiches for lunch. He and his colleagues developed this idea of a one party government. But who was to control this one party? You know what happened as well as I do, purges followed and the fellow who had his own ideas yas promptly liquidated. Now Mr. Trotsky is living in Mexico because he lost the balance of power and was afraid he would be liquidated himself.

You may say this cannot happen in Canada, but let me tell you that the National Government as suggested by Mr. Manion is the same in theory as the National Socialist party in Germany and you know the results without being told.

Our forefathers treasured freedom above evrything else and they feared power. That is why they distributed power among many men and did not give too much to any one man. Because of this I would suggest to you that one vital issue in this election is the preservation of the two party system for your own protection.

Win the war by all means but above all win the objective of the war, our freedom. and if we are to accept the National Government as the one party system, then what are we fighting for.

In 1933 Hitler announced that Germany was arming for world domination and as they said to defeat the Soviet. But France said Germany is arming to fight us, so they spent billions on war preparation. They did it so efficiently and thoroughly that to-day their was appropriations even though there is a war on, are comparatively small.

Peace Loving People.

France asked England to arm and form a stop Hitler bloc but nothing was done. Why? Because we are a self-governing, peace-loving people and we hate war.

As an illustration of how the one party system works, Mr. Moore described the voting on election day in Austria. He said goose-stepping troops with bayonets shining paraded through the streets, armed soldiers were everywhere. When the voters went into a polling booth, each was asked if they wished an open ballot or a secret ballot. Those that asked for a secret ballot were told to pass through a door and the other people soon noticed that these voters did not return with the result that the Nazi cause showed 98 per cent support.

John Robinette, eminent young Canadian lawyer from Toronto, who spoke briefly, was introduced by Mr. Gordon.

He said the youth of to-day are idealists and they demand political honesty. The are not being deceived by Dr. Manion's plea for a national government because they feel that here is a little political dishonesty. They know that Dr. Manion is trying to ride two horses at the same time.

Canada's role in the past few years has been that of interpreter between the United States and Great Britain. There is no man living who is so readily accepted by both countries as Mackenzie King.

The greatest accomplishment of the King administration was the uniting of Canada to face the war as a united nation. The Liberals in doing this were ably assisted by the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, who risked his political future to bring about this condition.

WHY A V-8 ENGINE IN A TRUCK?

Only the Ford Truck Engine has these features

Valve grinding is not required up to 40 or 50 thousand miles, because of the use of tungsten steel inserts on both intake and exhaust valve seats. High chrome nickel-alloy steel in valves practically eliminates warping, burning or pitting.

More even cylinder expansion, with reduced wear on pistons and rings, is contributed by the extra length water jackets, which extend all the way down the crankcase walls.

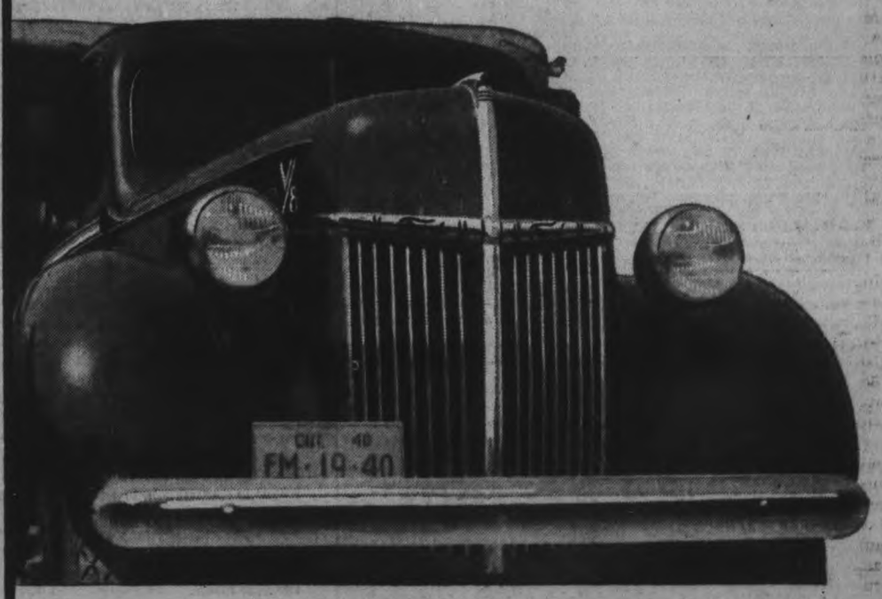
Time and money are saved when you replace worn units with factory-reconditioned units, under Ford Engine and Parts Exchange Plans.



Because the V-8 engine gives more POWER with remarkable ECONOMY at practical operating speeds.

It's the chief reason why Ford Trucks have led in Canadian sales by a wide margin for every one of the past 5 years, and during 21 years of the last 25!

More power with economy is characteristic of Ford V-8 Truck engines because of the high torque which they develop over a wide range of engine speeds—speeds at which truck engines run most of the time—speeds at which greater engine economy is obtained.

See for yourself what Ford Trucks can do for your business. The Ford-Mercury-Zephyr Dealer will arrange an on-the-job test.

Late Free Toss Gives Bees A 38-37 Margin

A free throw in the fleeting seconds of the game after Quakers had come from behind to take up a 10-point deficit and tie the count, gave Bees a 38-37 victory over the Cerealmen in a sudden death semi-final at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night. The victory, coming after 60 minutes of some of the most hectic basketball in local cage history, gives Bees the right to meet Zephyrs in a two out of three city series final.

One of the largest crowds of the season watched Bees take commanding lead in the early part of each half, with the Quakers tallying in the dying minutes ,to tie it up, with Les Ascott counting a free throw to decide the issue. It was the winners' seventh straight win, after dropping the two opening games in the league schedule.

Exhibition Tilt.

A P.C.I. team copped a 24-23 exhibition victory over Zephyrs in a hard fought preliminary with their one-point edge coming in the final half. The Garnet and Gray squad forged in front to stay near the finish of a nip-and-tuck battle that saw the lead change hands many times. At half time it was all tied up at 15-all and a couple of times in the final period it was tied up again, before the winners nosed in front to stay with minutes remaining. Both teams played hard, fast basketball with checking close and the shooting of both sides being a little below par to keep the count down.

Zephyrs suffered a double setback in losing Gord McIntyre for an indefinite period with an injured ankle. Stewart, Dougherty and Sedgewick led Zephyrs, with Johnston, Taylor and the Fergusons looking best for the winners. The teams:

Zephyrs (23)—Centre, Stewart, 8; forwards, Dyer 2, Dougherty 5; guards, Sedgewick 4, McIntyre 4; sub, West.

P.C.I (24)—Centre, B. Ferguson 7; forwards, Taylor 7, J. Ferguson 6; guards, Scott, Johnston 2

Referees—S. Rogow and W. Ward.

Hot Fray

After the Q-men had taken a 5-2 lead early in the game, Bees went on a spree and ran its count to 12-5 midway in the half. Quakers rallied to tie it at 18-all just prior to the end of the half and it remained there to the rest period. Once more in the opening part of the final period, the winners ran wild for a few moments to take a seemingly commanding lead. With 10 minutes to go, Bees led 30-20 before Quakers, led by McPherson's brilliant offensive play, rallied strongly to draw closer and finally knot the count at 37-all with seconds to play. Both teams went scoreless as the time passed, with each having chances to win, before Ascot had a free throw chance with 15 seconds to go and dropped in the million dollar point.

The individual star of the battle was Quaker's Doug McPherson, who besides starring defensively for the losers left his guard position to shoulder part of the offensive burden and count 19 points in a fine showing. The other Quaker stars were Len Thomas at guard and Walt Ward who led the Quaker forwards. Pete McArthur, Jim Thorburn, Les Ascott and Sam Rogow stood out for the winning Bees as the whole team played well. The teams:

Quakers (37)—Centre, Jakafby 8; forwards, Ward 4, Murray 2; guards, McPherson 19, Thomas 4; subs, Gillespie, Gailey, Patterson.

Bees (38)—Centre, Craig; forwards, McArthur 16, Thorburn 19; guards, Ascot 1, Rogow 2; subs, Whaley, Taylor.

Referees— R. Johnston and J. Dougherty.

Remember When—

A Canadian record of 24 years standing for the 40-yard dash was smashed at Hamilton four years ago today when Sammy Richardson of Toronto made the distance in 4.5 seconds, 1/10 better than Bobby Kerr's 1912 mark.

Fred Martin Tops City League With 245 Average

It's going to take some vigorous slugging to bring Fred Martin out of first place in this season's City League average list. The figure released by Secertary Walter Firth to the end of the third section show Fred rolling along at the rate of 245 per game, a drop of 4 points from what he held at the halfway mark. The two "Buds", Weese and White are only separate by fractions for a second-place tie with 240 each, while Jack Playfords wild spree of the last couple of weeks has put him in third place with 238. All told 49 players are hitting at a 200 or better rate. Tom Curvin's 952 is still tops for high three and George Robertson has the best single, 412.

The team standing shows Gordon's well ahead with 75 points, only two points away from the championship and six more nights to get them. The Duffus entry have a slight working edge in the mad scramble for the second position where five teams are bunched together. Duffus show 52 points, Jay's 48 and C.G.E., Grafton's and Capitol Grill 45 each. Grants with 30 points have still a great chance to climb and while the Lock Company have only 12 they can do a lot of damage in the remaining games.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

The "bird of time" was "on the wing" Saturday e'en in the "Y" when the Bees buzzed through for a 38-37 cage nod o'er Quakers. As it was a sudden-death semi-final in the men's senior City Basketball Loop, those last few seconds were as important as an ace in a bob-tailed straight. So Bees won the duel and now march in against the Zephyrs in the final playoffs, and some ambitious poet—nope not us—can rig up a rhyme about a zephyr being a breeze but not against the Bees, or something. Fans saw a thriller in the Quakers-Bees' joust, one of the most exciting hoop tussles seen in this neighborhood since Ashburnham lost its independency. Or did it? Les Ascott, who plays a lot of senior football for a first-year man, dropped in the winning point on a free throw—and 'twas a grrrand feeling for the Bees and a tough one for Quakers. Finals are two out of three.

* * * * * *

Speaking of basketball at the Y.M., there will be a girls' exhibition there tonight at 9.30 o'clock betwixt the Quaker Aces and the Port Hope Grads. In a recent game in Port Hope, the Aces ankled out on top in a nice fray and this return tilt should be worth viewing. The Aces are in the Ladies' League semi-finals now with "Y" Gym and already have a leg on this series with one win—or is it a bit improper to mention leg? Well, then, a limb. The "Y" floor is about the same size as the Port Hope playing surface and the Grads will not be handicapped here. Joe Cooper is referee, with a Port Hope umpire.

* * * * * *

Gridders In Huddle

Election of officers will be one of the main matters of business Wednesday eve at the dinner meeting of the senior football club in the Empress Hotel at seven bells. It's open to officers, players and anyone else interested in the senior grid game here, and ducats are on sale now at the Empress, Play-Mor's, or by executive ossifers. One buck a throw. Reports will be presented, plans outlined, officers elected and general discussion held. It should be an interesting football affair.

* * * * * *

It's "on again, off again, gone again, Flanagan," with the Port Colborne Incos. Once again they have indicated that they do not intend to finish the round-robin series out, and are ready to fold up anytime. Manager Bill Jackson of the Petes has been in touch with Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the O.H.A. re the Petes' game in Port Colborne Tuesday and word has come through that the Ports are agreeable to call it off if the locals dish up a healthy hunk of dough. Which has been agreed upon—the Petes feeling that it is a long, tough trip and plenty expensive, with the Incos liable to drop out right after it, anyway. So the Petes are idle till they go to Collingwood on Friday, but expect to practice tonight and Wednesday, in Oshawa the latter day, if necessary.

* * * * * *

It's Quite A Task

Quite a bit of diplomatic work is necessary in arranging such things as the Port Colborne default to our gang, and ya can't kick too much if it runs into rather heavy sugar—after all, money isn't quite everything, is it. Or is it? And Bill Jackson isn't any greenhorn at diplomatic work. Something of an Anthony Eden, yassuh! Coach Frank Buckland and his players are tickled at ducking that Port Colborne trip—and we're not busting out in sobs, either—and they should be in the w.k. pink for Collingwood on the holiday. The final playoffs will commence next week, but we're offering two to one there won't be ice for the Petes' home joust. With the Incos out, the locals are sure of a final berth. Yippee, we're starting to heat up and if an O.H.A. title comes this way within the next two weeks, we're gonna hit the ceiling in a celebration and not worry one whit about the bump on the head!

* * * * * *

Lindsay scribe Jack Lamb moseyed down and saw the game here Friday. He comments thusly: "While the homsters were full value for their win, we had the impression that the Shipbuilders will be a lot tougher to take on their home ice. The long trip seemed to have robbed them of their pep and at times they looked actually weary. Other times we caught glimpses of smartness which they just couldn't get out. The game was fast and rugged. While the homesters carried the fight to their opposition, they failed to take advantage of the chances that were thrown at them. But one man made good on every opportunity and that was Honey Tompkins, easily the best man on the ice."

Orioles Win Out

Our congrats to Coach Pick Hines, Bill Calladine, Ned Vitarelli and the rest of the Baltimore Orioles upon winning the U.S. Eastern Amachoor Puck Loop. They cinched honors with a 3-2 nod over the Eagles of Washington where Roy Covert plays. Calladine counted one of the Orioles' markers. This gives the Hines' squad the right to clash with Detroit of the Mich.-Ont. loop, either in U.S. semi-finals or finals—we're not sure which yet. In his second year as pilot of the Orioles, Pick — who coached here just before going to the States—headed his club to a championship, no mean accomplishment. His job in the Patrick setup should be plenty secure for another year or two, huh?

* * * * * *

And a wee jab of baseball. Bunny Morganson of the Tely—he is publicity man for Toronto amateur ball—remarked Saturday: "During today's T.B.A. annual meeting, somebody should come up with the clever idea of operating just one big senior league in Toronto and district. The district to take in teams from Peterborough, Oshawa and Hamilton. The day is gone for individual leagues." He means around Toronto. This morning's account of the T.B.A. session makes no mention of discussion on the senior situation, but the subject will be popping up regularly in the near future.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

It was somewhere around five o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday, March 16. The boys, one by one, were strolling in off the different ices—some came in the east door and some the west door. And as they came in groups of threes and fours, we could hear in whispering tones that in all probability this would be the last of the season. Was it not getting late in March. Was not the sun getting hotter each day. Was not spring just around the corner. Even those who scanned the blackboard and discovered that they had been successful during the afternoon and would receive sugar, chickens, or cigarettes as their prize, refused to be consoled. Some of the boys went so far as to remove the handles from their stones, to take them home for safe keeping.

The odd one gathered up his Balmoral and mackinaw, one or two came across the floor and shook our hand and wished us God-speed (we don't know where to), some others lurked in the dim corners, and we could see the white 'kerchief covering up the odd tear. In fact, if we could have induced somebody to play the Dead March, the scene would have been complete.

But why all this solemnity? Have we not to finish the vice-skips' bonspiel? Have we not to decide what rink is to be the proud holder of the beautiful Harry J. Foote Trophy? Have we not to play for the Bottum-Fitzgerald Trophy between four rinks from Bobcyageon and four rinks of local players? Have we not to finish the consolation event of the Sturgeon Trophy? Surely the weather man will not let us down for at least another week. But if such should be the case, we can think of nothing better to end up with than what Omar Khayyam says:

"Come, fill the cup, and in the fire of spring,
Your winter garment of repentance fling;
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To flutter—and the Bird is on the wing."

Local Swimmer In Third Spot

Ralph Rogow, popular Junior Y.M.C.A. swimer, brought honors to the local club on Saturday evening by placing third in the junior 50 yards free stye even at the Island Swimming Club meet held at Central Y.M.C.A. Toronto. Only a few inches from first place, Rogow finished a half a body length ahead of Doug Kilgour, the starry Central Y star, to receive his first award in open competition.

Only two other Peterborough swimmers have ever placed amongst the first three in open competition with Stan McBride coming third last fall in the 50-yard event while Allan Marshall placed second to the Quebec breast stroke champion in Montreal last spring.

Also on the trip were Gord Minty, Y swimming coach, Bill Loomis and Gerald Fitzgerald.

Training Camp Briefs

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 18 (AP)—A lively stepper in the grapefruit league, Detroit Tigers seek their sixth straight victory today as they engage St. Louis Cardinals. The hospital list of the Redbirds was reduced by the recovery of Johnny Mize and Curt Davis, however, and they hope to square accounts.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Hopes that Hugh Casey would have a good year with Brooklyn Dodgers were bolstered by his performance against Boston Red Sox yesterday. He allowed only one hit in five innings and set down his first 11 foes in order.

With a record of nine victories and 16 defeats last year as a rookie, Kramer says he'll be great this year.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Just when there was beginning to be some question whether Lefty Lee Grissom would be a fit companion for that other southpaw wonder of New York Yankees, Lefty Gomez, the former made it clear he would qualify.

In yesterday's game with St Louis Cards Grissom took two strikes batting lefthanded, then crossed the plate and took a called third strike from a righthanded position.

Kraut Kids Lead N.H.L. Scorers For The Season

MONTREAL, Mar. 18 — (CP). — Turn back the calendar to a mere three weeks and listen to master of ceremonies Art Ross say; "I wouldn't be at all surprised to see my Kraut Kids finish one, two and three in the individual scoring."

Look up the unofficial scoring statistics to-day, now that the National Hockey League's regular schedule has ended, and Milt Schmidt is first, Woody Dumart is second, and Bobby Bauer third. They're the Kraut Kids.

It is exceedingly difficult to find a rebuttal, in the light of the records, to the statement Ross made then that the Kraut Kids make up "the best forward line I have ever seen." Sixty-one goals were propelled in by their sticks and together they boast a total of 75 assists.

Schmidt, rated by Ross near the start of the season as one of the game's all-time centre greats, succeeded to the scoring crown won last year by Hector (Toe) Blake of Canadiens. Blake took the title with 25 goals and 23 assists. Schmidt scored 22 times and helped in 30 tallies.

Only Bauer failed to reach the 20-goal mark of the Krauts. Dumart equalled Schmidt in goals, but had nine less assists. Bauer, a 155-pounder compared to his two 200-pound linemates, rifled in 17 goals and had 25 assists.

Picobac BEATS ITS OWN RECORD!

For years Picobac has held the record—richer fragrance, fuller flavour, extra satisfaction in every pipeful—always a mild, cool, sweet smoke—the pick of Canada's Burley crop.

And now, thanks to the efforts of Government experts co-operating with the growers, the quality of the crop is higher—a finer, lighter, more uniform leaf. So Picobac is milder, cooler, sweeter. Prove it for yourself today. After the first satisfying puff, you'll say with the thousands who smoke Picobac and nothing but Picobac—

"It DOES taste good in a pipe!"

"I thought Picobac couldn't taste better", says Mr. Picobac; "but it does, and now I know why."

ONE of these days the itch is going to hit you to get out and get in on the fun a McLaughlin-Buick can be in the spring-time.

Maybe, like others we know of, you've even got the model picked out, and are just "waiting a few weeks" to do something definite about it.

But may we emphasize, in purely friendly interest, that a lot of other people probably have the same idea?

And that when they start buying in droves—as they do every year about the ides of March—even McLaughlin-Buick's big production line has trouble keeping up with them?

Of course, we're doing all we can to be ready for everyone.

But what with everybody wanting Buicks this season, we can't say how long we can promise the delivery we can give now.

So why not play the early bird this year? Why not get the jump on your neighbor and be driving your McLaughlin-Buick while he's still talking about getting his? Better see your McLaughlin-Buick dealer today!

Canadiens Are Only Club Out Of Playoffs

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

All the evidence is at hand and you can't get away from the fact that Boston Bruins, National Hockey League champions for the second successive year, are the team to beat for the Stanley Cup.

The Bruins closed the schedule last night with a characteristic 7-2 victory at home over the last-place Montreal Canadiens, the only club that won't be around when the playoffs start tomorrow night. It was just a breeze for Boston after winning the title Thursday, partly because the Canadiens had only 10 men on hand.

As the schedule closed, Milt Schmidt of the Bruins won the league point-making championship with 22 goals and 30 assists. His mates on the Sauerkraut line, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, ran second and third with 43 and 42 points respectively.

For two periods the Canadiens stayed even. The relentless Toe Blake tied the score after Johnny Crawford had put Boston ahead in the first period. George Mantha gave the habitants a brief 2-1 advantage in the second but Herbie Cain brought Boston level. In the third the Bruins applied their pressure and Red Hamill, Roy Conacher, Schmidt, Dumart and Flash Hollett scored in that order.

Cup Series Starts Tuesday

The Bruins open the cup series against the Rangers tomorrow at New York in a best-of-seven-games round. At the same time Chicago Black Hawks begin a best-of-three round against the Maple Leafs at Toronto and New York Americans start another against the Red Wings at Detroit.

Gordon Drillon picked up five points, three goals and two assists, and landed in fourth place among the individual leaders when Toronto split a weekend doubleheader with New York Americans. The Leafs won 8-6 at home Saturday in the highest-scoring contest of the season and the Americans beat them 5-2 at New York last night when young Pat Egan went on a St. Patrick's Day spree to score three times.

The 14 goals Saturday were spread all through the lineups. Hank Goldup, Red Heron, Drillon, Bob Davidson, Pep Kelly, Sweeney Schriner, Gus Marker and Syl Apps scored for Toronto in that order and Harvey Jackson, Johnny Gagnon, Nels Stewart, Buzz Boll, Johnny Sorrell and Art Chapman for the Americans.

Heron Line Goes Well

The feature to Coach Dick Irvin, however, was the continued success of Heron's line. It was only the third appearance of Heron at centre between Kelly and Schriner, but the line got three goals and eight points. At Montreal last Thursday Heron got four goals and Schriner another.

Drillon grabbed both Toronto goals last night. Lorne Carr and Hooley Smith got the Americans' first two and then Egan went on his rampage, to score once in the second period and twice in the third. The little defenceman was brought up from the minors only last week to replace the injured Wilf Field.

The final period was marked by a wild fist fight between Eddie Shore of the Americans and Bob Davidson of Toronto, which prompted a melee involving every member of the two teams. Shore and Davidson drew major penalties and so did Charlie Conacher of the Americans and Bucko McDonald of Toronto for joining in.

The Black Hawks wound up their regular program with a 3-1 victory over Detroit at Chicago, their second win over the same team in three nights. The Red Wings didn't beat the Hawks all season.

Mud Bruneteau scored for the Wings in the first period but Bill Thomas and Bill Carse sent Chicago ahead in the second. Phil Hergesheimer completed the scoring in the third.

Active Again

Monty Stratton, ace hurler for the Chicago Sox, prior to the accident to his leg, is shown reaching for a high one at the Brookside ball park in Pasadena, where the Sox are in spring training. Stratton hopes to be in there pitching this season, though at present he is acting as a coach for the team.

Weekend Stars

(By the Canadian Press)

Woody Dumart, Boston, finished up the season in second place in scoring behind linemate Milt Schmidt by picking up a goal and an assist as Bruins walloped Canadiens 7-2.

Pat Egan, Americans, scored three goals and two assists as Americans split a pair of week-end contests with Toronto.

Goodyears Win Third Title O.H.A. Senior

TORONTO, Mar. 18. — Greater reserve strength proved a telling factor here on Saturday afternoon when Toronto Goodyears brushed St. Catharines Saints aside 3 to 0 to annex their third O.H.A. senior championship in a row.

A gathering of 3,827 paid customers at Maple Leaf Gardens saw the local Tiremen roll to their third straight success in the best of five series, and qualify to meet Lakeshore Blue Devils in the first round of the Allan Cup playdowns, opening game of which will be played here on Wednesday evening.

Herbie Mortimer, talented young goalie, proved the major stumbling block in the determined but luckless fight of the Garden City pucksters. Mortimer turned in probably his greatest game of the year to frustrate numerous menacing attacks by the Saints.

Ace Line Blanked.

While the hard-checking Saints managed to keep Goodyears' ace line of George Imlach, Johnny O'Flaherty, and Eddie King off the score sheet, offensive power struck from the reserve department and the outcome of the game never really seemed in doubt, despite a grim closing period drive from the Saints.

From the start of the final chapter, St. Catharines ganged five up at the Toronto cage, but could not penetrate the stonewall defence of Mortimer, and his rearguard mates —Russ Bowman, Jack Draper, Bobby Laurent, and Jimmy Drummond.

Murray Ezeard, hero of the Goodyear overtime victory at St. Kitts last Wednesday, started the Ecclestone-Powers lads on the victory road at 11.30 of the first period. From an attack with Shorty Robinson and Paul Mundrick, Ezeard slapped home the latter's rebound.

Goodyears struck again with two rapidfire counters in the early moments of the second frame, Johnny Ingils, hard-working pivot star, netted the second goal, clicking on a rebound from Drumond's drive. Then, just about half a minute later Bowman came to the fore to tally on a play with Turney. It was a rebound that enabled the defence to smash the puck past Forder from close quarters.

All-Star Team

Following is the 28th in a Canadian Press series of National Hockey League all-star selections by hockey writers in N.H.L. cities. A consensus will be prepared later.

Both Have Four-Goal Record

Red Heron went on a scoring spree when the Maple Leafs met Montreal Canadiens in Montreal last Thursday and rang up a count of four as the Toronto team defeated Canadiens 8-4. The four-goal splurge tied Red with Herbie Cain of Boston Bruins for the highest single-game scoring mark. Cain scored four goals in a game against the Leafs at Toronto.

National League Defeats 2-1 American Outfit

By WHITNEY MARTIN
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

TAMPA, Fla., March 18—(AP)—The long-abused National Leaguers today strutted the streets in broad daylight, and if pressed, very lightly, would say casually: "Oh yes, the American League. We had their stars over for a practice game yesterday. Beat them, 2 to 1, with our reserves."

Which, in essence, is true. The National League All-Stars did win an exhibition game, which more than 13,000 spectators contributed approximately $20,000 to the Finnish Relief Fund to see. And three substitutes did blend their talents to score the winning run in the ninth inning.

Pitchers Ahead Of Hitters

But in reality, the game proved nothing, except that the pitchers are far ahead of the batters in spring training, and that a lineup of sluggers is just another lineup when the fast ones, and not the hurlers, are snapping.

However, the victory was greeted gleefully by the senior circuit. It was St. Patrick's day to the rest of the country, but it was groundhog day to the National Leaguers, who popped out of the holes in which they had been hiding since the last world series.

For a spring exhibition it was a corking ball game, with the big surprise the inability of the row on row siege guns in the American lineup to get much more than a loud foul. They were held to five hits, Bill Dickey and Frank Crosetti getting two each and Jimmy Foxx one, and none was better than a single.

The National Leaguers collected six blows, all singles, putting two of them together in the ninth for the ball game.

Took Lead In Second

The Americans took the lead in the second inning when DiMaggio walked, went to second on Dickey's single and went home on Crosetti's first hit.

The Nationals tied it up in the fourth when Ott walked, advanced when Harry Danning was hit by Buck Newsom, and scored on Demaree's single to right, beating a fine throw by Williams by inches.

Bob Feller started the eighth for the Americans. He had plenty of stuff, but was wild. A double play pulled him out of a hole in that inning, but in the ninth Al Lopez, Boston Bee catcher, sent a slashing single to center, went to second when Hal Trosky, Cleveland first baseman, dropped Rollie Hemsley's throw on Terry Moore's sacrifice, and scored the winning run on Pete Coscarart's single through short.

The Hawks will also return to Chicago by the same plane, leaving here on Wednesday afternoon.

Leafs and Hawks, as third and fourth-place clubs in the National Hockey League, engage in a best-of-three-game series in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoff tournament. The second game will be played in Chicago on Thursday night. If a third game is necessary it will be staged here on Saturday. The winner moves into the semi-final round of the Stanley Cup program against the winner of the Detroit-Americans series.

Dutton And Shore Said Dickering For Franchise Of Americans

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 18.—(CP). — The walls of Madison Square Garden echo these days to rumors that New York Americans, the "orphans" of the National Hockey League, will be sold to Red Dutton and Eddie Shore and (or) the American franchise will be moved out of New York. But the rumors remain just that, lacking any concrete basis.

The most persistent of the recent rumors concern the Dutton-Shore deal, a rumor given impetus when Shore was purchased from Boston by the Americans and immediately came to an agreement with Dutton, the American manager, linking Shore's Springfield Indians and the National League club in a close alliance.

Club Is For Sale.

None of the principals concerned however, will throw much light on what, if anything, is being done to negotiate such a sale. Frank Calder, president of the N.H.L. which owns the American franchise says the league has not been approached but adds: "The Americans are for sale—they have been for several years."

"Eddie and I haven't talked about it," says Dutton. "But I'd like to own the Americans, sure I would, but it would have to be with a better contract with Madison Square Garden."

And all the phlegmatic Shore says is that "I've thought of a lot of things," when asked if he ever thought of buying the club.

May Move Out.

Dutton's mention of the Garden and the Americans' contract for rental of the sports palace is linked directly with the possibilities of moving the Americans out of New York. No one denies that the Americans have a tough time making both ends meet under the present contract and no one denies that there has been talk of a move among league officers.

The terms of the rental contract are a secret between the officials concerned, but the best information from unofficial sources is that the Garden gets a little more than 40 per cent of the Americans' gross receipts—a prohibitive figure against the Americans making enough money to purchase first rank players.

Buffalo, where a rink seating 14,000 persons is being built, has been mentioned as a possible home for the club. Dutton admits that and at the same time adds that he would like to move the club to Brooklyn, adjacent to New York and one of the country's most rabid sports centres. But Brooklyn hasn't a rink and, as yet, there's no one in sight to put up the money to build one for the Americans.

75 Men Attend Millbrook Church Supper

MILLBROOK, Mar. 18 (ENS).—Seventy-five men sat down to the second in the series of supper meetings held in the basement of St. Andrew's Church and sponsored by the Senior Men's Bible Class on Thursday evening, having the Young Men's Class as joint hosts with the older organization.

Following the abundant meal, for which the men laid the tables and attended to th service, Wilfrid Elson called for the toast to The King. Gordon Might, president of the young men's class then taking over as chairman for the evening.

The guest speaker for the occasion was Rev. George S. Easton of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, who was introduced by Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., and who gave a most informative and timely address on the theme, "The Church and Christianity." Others who assisted with the program after a sing-song led by Ken Kidd, were Ashton and Harold Fife of Peterborough, who were heard in harmonica selections; Martin Drysdale of Peterborough, whose elocutionary numbers were warmly encored, as was every number of the evening; John Blair and J. W. Hutchinson, who gave guitar and banjo duets; and the local symphony band, which interspersed the program with contributions. The members of the symphony band include John and Robert Guthrie, Howard Lunn, John Blair, J. W. Hutchinson, Charlie Sanderson, John Lunn, and Piercey Pitt.

Ashton Fife also contributed piano solos which were much enjoyed. The supper meeting will be featured again during the current season, the object in view being to interest the men not already enrolled in the Sunday School as members of the Bible Classes and in attendance at the regular church services. The vote of thanks to the guest speaker and to all who had assisted with the program was moved by Earl Edworthy and E. J. Powell, and was heartily endorsed.

Manion-Rogers

Dr. Manion at Windsor, Ont., referred to Mr. Rogers and said there had never been a Dominion Cabinet minister "with the impudence this man shows in continuing to state untruths when he knows them to be untruths."

The Conservative Leader revived a number of complaints of abuse he has been making in his campaign and said: "Yet this unscrupulous little man, Rogers, continues to say in every speech he makes that his challenge has not been answered."

Lapointe Strikes Out.

At Sarnia Justice Minister Lapointe attacked the National Government proposal of Dr. Manion, replied to criticism of the Defence of Canada Regulations and discussed the Government's war organization efforts.

"Dr. Manion has stated that he will enlist the best brains of the country for his cabinet if he is returned," Mr. Lapointe said. "Who are the best brains? I think we should know. Statesmen are not improvised in a day. They have to be trained. They must have experience.

"You all know of the war-time blackouts in Europe but I think the best blackout in the war is this mysterious aggregation of best brains. I ask you, are you going to vote for ghosts?"

"The government of Mackenzie King represents Canadian unity," he said. "Sometimes it is not good for a government to have too large a majority. But this time it is different. The eyes of the world are on Canada. It is the voice of Canada that speaks on March 26 (election day) and it is essential that it be a united voice, one even Lord Haw Haw can understand."

Stating there had been some criticism of the defence of Canada regulation, Mr. Lapointe said they were devised for the purpose of the war effort and did not go as far as they did in 1914.

Drew Raps Star

At Preston, Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, criticized the Toronto Daily Star for "misrepresentation" in publishing editorially excerpts from two letters Lord Tweedsmuir, who died last month in Montreal, wrote to a friend in Scotland during 1929.

The excerpts appeared in a letter to the Edinburgh Scotsman from John Gordon Jameson who quoted the late Governor-General as saying last May, "We are undoubtedly witnessing the revival of anti-Christ," and further that "I am wholly in agreement with the present policy of the government—to pursue peace, but to have a clear line beyond which we cannot go, and to be prepared to the last decimal of war."

A quotation from a letter of last Aug. 26, a few days before the outbreak of the war, "I have given up speculation as to the future and am content to live by the day under the hand of the Almighty. Canada is prepared to the last decimal."

Col. Drew said the first letter referred to the British government's policy and the second referred to the spiritual, and not material, preparedness of Canada. He declared Lord Tweedmuir's memory "should be protected" from such "misrepresentations," and that "the man who would misrepresent the words of one whose memory will for all time be revered by the British people should hide his face forever from the sight of decent people."

Rogers Defends Equipment.

In personal equipment for the soldiers, in hospital and dental equipment and in rations, Canada's active service force is i nthe forefront, Defence Minister Rogers said at Brantford. Opposition charges are designed to create disquiet solely to put the Opposition in power, said Mr. Rogers.

"When Parliament was dissolved, it was generally understood the government's war record was to be the issue, but Hon. Dr. Manion has moved further and further away from it until he now has criticism for the record, but nothing constructive.

"We cannot overestimate the garvity of the question which has to be reached by the citizens of Canada." Such a decision was not made on the price of radio licenses, on the price of wheat, but on what the government has done, is doing and is prepared to do in Canada's war effort.

Dr. Manion and Col. George Drew, talked much of unpreparedness. Did they mean that Canada in peace should have had men and equipment ready for war? Even in peace—for three years—the King government had prepared a policy of supply for the Canadian forces. This policy had been justified by

Under the Liberal regime the Royal Canadian Air Force had been built up and the Trans-Canada Air Lines, a major achievement in civil aviation, created. By 1942—and Canada was prepared for a three-year war—there would be 80 air-training schools. When peace arrived, Canada would be in the forefront of aviation activities.

Mr. Rogers said Dr. Manion failed to show stable qualities in his leadership of the campaign. Did the Canadian people not think unity would be found with King and Lapointe rather than with Manion and Drew, with former Premier Duplessis of Quebec "lurking in the background." A Government by the latter group would be unable to be a National Government, even though it might adopt the name.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation believes in a "pay-as-you-go" policy in the prosecution of the war, J. S. Woodsworth, National Leader of the C.C.F., said at Winnipeg.

M. J. Coldwell, national chairman of the C.C.F., urged upon the meeting attention to the human side of the war.

Mr. Woodsworth said the present federal administration would lay the burden of war taxation upon the common people, whereas it should be placed upon those who could afford to bear it.

"Why shouldn't we tax wealth as they do in Great Britain" It would not be necessary to confiscate wealth.

When Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett was prime minister he termed Canada's bonded indebtedness "our sacred obligations," Mr. Woodsworth said.

All parties professed opposition to conscription but there was moral conscription in Canada. "It was put up to our unemployed men either to get into the army or starve."

Factories Free For War

These men were asked to risk their lives for Canada. "I want to know why we can't ask the men who own factories to lend their factories free to the country for duration of the war."

War settles nothing, Mr. Woodsworth said, suggesting an international organization for settling world problems—"the League of Nations if you wish."

"The Germans say 'Deutschland Ueber Alles' but I don't know that it is so different when we say 'Britannia rules the waves.' I don't think that in the world today any nation is big enough or good enough to do as it pleases. We must have some organization that applies to everyone, big and little."

Denying charges the C.C.F. was essentially communist, Mr. Woodsworth said he knew of no organization "that has made itself more of a nuisance to us than the communists."

But the communists had the right to express their opinions. A man had been arrested in Regina for distributing pamphlets. "Well if communists have the right to run for parliament I say they have the right to distribute their literature."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has shown his agreement with the policy of National Government by his selection of Conservatives for dollar-a-year jobs while Cabinet posts are retained by Liberals, Hon. M. A. MacPherson, National Government candidate in Regina, said at Manitou, Man.

Mr. MacPherson promised an aggressive and efficient war effort under the capable leadership of men selected for their ability to fill the important posts in the National Government proposed by Dr. Manion.

"Mr. King has taken this to mean Union Government which is a sort of marriage, and has already declared his intention to remain a political bachelor to the end of his political life."

He charged the Liberals with using the war issue as a smoke screen to conceal administrative inefficiency and failure to produce a wheat policy or cope with unemployment.

The government chose its war effort as the election issue and when "we take up the issue of war they say we are dangerous men."

At Somerset, N.S., Revenue Minister Ilsley said the government recognized the apple industry as a "war casualty" shortly after the outbreak of war and prompt action in providing financial assistance was all that saved it from certain disaster.

National Government came under fire again at Simcoe, Ont., where Trade Minister Euler said if Dr. Manion were elected he would have to summon Cabinet members from parties with conflicting views on the extent of the war effort and on conscription.

Denton Massey, National Government candidate in Toronto-Greenwood, charged at Fredericton that nobody in Canada was more prejudicing recruiting than Mr. King because of alleged failures by the government to clothe and equip properly the Canadian armed forces and to provide allowances for soldiers' dependents.

Ontario's Provincial Secretary Attends King Rally

Dr. Donald Munro of Warsaw pronounced death due to fracture of the skull as a result of striking the fence in the fall, or from being struck by a section of frozen straw. It is believed the young man had been on top of the stack throwing down feed and that he may have lost his balance or a section of the stack gave way while he was working. The stack is about 150 yards from the house and a shorter distance from the road.

The victim was well known throughout the entire district and was married for about three years. His young widow, formerly Mary Coveney of Hastings, was alone on the farm when the tragedy occurred. Surviving are, his wife; his mother, Mrs. Agnes Condon; five brothers, Joseph, Stanley and Patrick of Douro, Clair of Peterborough, and Fergus, a wireless operator with the R.C.A.F., C.A.S.F. in England; four sisters, Mrs. Fred Doris of Keene, Mrs. Jim McFarlane of Peterborough, Mrs. Allan Leahy of Douro and Caroline of Whitby.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, Douro likely that Mr. Chamberlain would retain in the war cabinet Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty; Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary.

They were suggestions he might invite the Labor and Liberal leaders, Clement Attlee and Sir Archibald Sinclair, to join the government, which they refused to do at the beginning of the war. Mr. Lloyd George was also mentioned in speculation.

In an outspoken demand for a more dynamic war policy, the Daily Mail declared:—

"Events seem to be always one jump ahead of the British Government. While the enemy acts (in reference to the Hitler-Mussolini meeting) the democracies hesitate.

"Today we still have the good old easy-come-easy-to-go system of muddling inefficiency. It may carry us through peace but it's not good enough for war.

"The government should face one fact. Their lack of boldness is losing them public confidence. The British people want to see Britain the master, not the servant of events."

Too Leisurely An Air

The Times asked for "more vigor and liveliness, both in the conduct of the war and in the conduct of diplomacy."

"Many people clearly find themselves in agreement with Mr. Herbert Morrison's remarks on Saturday that we need more vigor," the Times said. "There is thought to be a slightly leisurely air about our methods.

"Are we hitting as often as we can and wherever we can? The war leaders themselves alone have the facts and knowledge to decide how the ingredients of patience and daring can best be mixed, but it is certain that public opinion both in this country and in France, so far from relapsing into what is the fashion to call complacency, would like above all things to see a more dynamic current running through the Franco-British war effort."

First Civilian Casualties.

The raid in Saturday's twilight brought the war's first civilian air raid casualties and the announcement that an unidentified warship had been hit.

One cottager was killed and seven other civilians— including two women—were wounded. Seven naval men were listed as casualties also, but the Admiralty did not specify whether they were killed or wounded.

A Government statement on the raid is expected in the House of Commons which has been preparing for a debate this week on the whole conduct of the war.

Press criticism of what The Times called "the slightly leisurely air about our methods" was general. The Daily Mail asserted that public confidence is being undermined by the Government's "lack of boldness."

The fact only one German bomber was shot down prompted questions, the press blaming the Royal Air Force for not destroying more.

The 10 high explosive and incendiary bombs the German raiders showered on Scapa Flow off the North Coast of Scotland did only "minor damage" to the British man o'war, the Admiralty announced.

James Isbister, 27, an Orkney County Council employee, was the civilian killed. He was standing in the doorway of his Bridge-of-Waith cottage, near Stromness Airfield. Two neighbors, also watching the flash of anti-aircraft fire in the gathering darkness, were wounded.

The raid was the first on Scapa Flow since the dismantled Iron Duke, in use as a training ship, was hit and damaged by a German raider Oct. 17.

Soon after the enemy squadron roared in from the North Sea, heather on Pomona Island was blazing. The raiders appeared just after sunset at about 7.50 p.m. and were not driven off by planes and ship and shore batteries until 9.15. Five cottages were hit and farm buildings and haystacks were fired.

It was stated that few of the enemy dared to brave the Scapa Flow defences but "were content to kill and wound civilians in a small village (Bridge of Waith) five or six miles from the harbor."

(German announcements claimed three battleships and one cruiser were "severely damaged" and that two other naval vessels sustained "probable" damage.)

One Nazi Vessel Staggered

The Air Ministry reported a Saturday foray against German patrol vessels between the islands of Borkum and Heligoland. Royal Air Force planes staggered one empty craft with a salvo of bombs, the vessel being "partially lifted out of the water" by the force of the explosions. All British planes returned to their bases safely.

The Daily Telegraph said that downing of only one raider during the Nazi bombing attack showed that the base had not been adequately protected.

The Daily Mail said the governments "lack of boldness is losing them public confidence" and advocated "A Real War Cabinet, a compact body of men fired with initiative and imagination," like the war cabinet formed by David Lloyd George in the first great war.

Raiders' Small Loss Upsetting

The Daily Telegraph said: "What will cause disappointment in the public minds is the knowledge not so much that this raid on Scapa Flow could be achieved but that the raiders were able to return to their base with such small loss. The Germans as a matter of course boast that all their raiding machines returned safely.

"On that point Mr. Churchill will be expected to say a good deal. Meanwhile the first care of those in charge of our defensive organization must be to make sure any repetition of Saturday's raid will prove a perilous and costly venture."

Events seem to be always one jump ahead of the British government," the Daily Mail said editorially.

"Hitler and Mussolini meet today for the first time since the war broke out. They may agree to a joint Balkan plan or on a so-called basis for peace proposals.

"Are we with France prepared to face this new diplomatic situation?

"Already spring has opened with a deplorable diplomatic setback—Finland. Our prestige suffered. The reaction on the small neutral countries has been deplorable."

Too Much Hesitating

"While the enemy acts, the democracies hesitate.

"It is time that the government arrested the creeping paralysis which is dulling our movements, our voice and our resolution."

The Daily Herald said: "Are Britain and France doing all they can to keep the diplomatic initiative on their side? The ides of March have come and gone this year without any military eruption. We have diplomatic eruptions instead.

"What do they portend for the Allies? And what plans have we made to meet all the surprises that may come?

"Our diplomacy and our economic warfare must be resolute.

"We must plan, foresee, prepare and direct the progress of the war. We must force it into the mold of victory.

"Our vast resources and our just cause give us the power to take the initiative and to keep it."

Leading Aircraftsman J. Duguid, one of the two R.C.A.F. fliers who crashed in their plane on the United States side of the U.S.-Canadian border early last week, is shown with Nurse Smalling as he prepared to leave for Canada after the U.S. State Department had ordered his release and that of his companion, Pilot Officer A. E. Cannon. The State Department ruled that the Canadian plane was not on a hostile mission when it was forced to land. The damaged craft will be returned to Canada.

Drew Raps Star

At Preston, Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, criticized the Toronto Daily Star for "misrepresentation" in publishing editorially excerpts from two letters Lord Tweedsmuir, who died last month in Montreal, wrote to a friend in Scotland during 1929.

The excerpts appeared in a letter to the Edinburgh Scotsman from John Gordon Jameson who quoted the late Governor-General as saying last May, "We are undoubtedly witnessing the revival of anti-Christ," and further that "I am wholly in agreement with the present policy of the government—to pursue peace, but to have a clear line beyond which we cannot go, and to be prepared to the last decimal of war."

A quotation from a letter of last Aug. 26, a few days before the outbreak of the war, "I have given up speculation as to the future and am content to live by the day under the hand of the Almighty. Canada is prepared to the last decimal."

Col. Drew said the first letter referred to the British government's policy and the second referred to the spiritual, and not material, preparedness of Canada. He declared Lord Tweedmuir's memory "should be protected" from such "misrepresentations," and that "the man who would misrepresent the words of one whose memory will for all time be revered by the British people should hide his face forever from the sight of decent people."

Rogers Defends Equipment.

In personal equipment for the soldiers, in hospital and dental equipment and in rations, Canada's active service force is i nthe forefront, Defence Minister Rogers said at Brantford. Opposition charges are designed to create disquiet solely to put the Opposition in power, said Mr. Rogers.

"When Parliament was dissolved, it was generally understood the government's war record was to be the issue, but Hon. Dr. Manion has moved further and further away from it until he now has criticism for the record, but nothing constructive.

"We cannot overestimate the garvity of the question which has to be reached by the citizens of Canada." Such a decision was not made on the price of radio licenses, on the price of wheat, but on what the government has done, is doing and is prepared to do in Canada's war effort.

Dr. Manion and Col. George Drew, talked much of unpreparedness. Did they mean that Canada in peace should have had men and equipment ready for war? Even in peace—for three years—the King government had prepared a policy of supply for the Canadian forces. This policy had been justified by

Under the Liberal regime the Royal Canadian Air Force had been built up and the Trans-Canada Air Lines, a major achievement in civil aviation, created. By 1942—and Canada was prepared for a three-year war—there would be 80 air-training schools. When peace arrived, Canada would be in the forefront of aviation activities.

Mr. Rogers said Dr. Manion failed to show stable qualities in his leadership of the campaign. Did the Canadian people not think unity would be found with King and Lapointe rather than with Manion and Drew, with former Premier Duplessis of Quebec "lurking in the background." A Government by the latter group would be unable to be a National Government, even though it might adopt the name.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation believes in a "pay-as-you-go" policy in the prosecution of the war, J. S. Woodsworth, National Leader of the C.C.F., said at Winnipeg.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has shown his agreement with the policy of National Government by his selection of Conservatives for dollar-a-year jobs while Cabinet posts are retained by Liberals, Hon. M. A. MacPherson, National Government candidate in Regina, said at Manitou, Man.

Mr. MacPherson promised an aggressive and efficient war effort under the capable leadership of men selected for their ability to fill the important posts in the National Government proposed by Dr. Manion.

"The government should face one fact. Their lack of boldness is losing them public confidence. The British people want to see Britain the master, not the servant of events."

Too Leisurely An Air

The Times asked for "more vigor and liveliness, both in the conduct of the war and in the conduct of diplomacy."

"Many people clearly find themselves in agreement with Mr. Herbert Morrison's remarks on Saturday that we need more vigor," the Times said. "There is thought to be a slightly leisurely air about our methods.

"Are we hitting as often as we can and wherever we can? The war leaders themselves alone have the facts and knowledge to decide how the ingredients of patience and daring can best be mixed, but it is certain that public opinion both in this country and in France, so far from relapsing into what is the fashion to call complacency, would like above all things to see a more dynamic current running through the Franco-British war effort."

First Civilian Casualties.

The raid in Saturday's twilight brought the war's first civilian air raid casualties and the announcement that an unidentified warship had been hit.

One cottager was killed and seven other civilians— including two women—were wounded. Seven naval men were listed as casualties also, but the Admiralty did not specify whether they were killed or wounded.

A Government statement on the raid is expected in the House of Commons which has been preparing for a debate this week on the whole conduct of the war.

Press criticism of what The Times called "the slightly leisurely air about our methods" was general. The Daily Mail asserted that public confidence is being undermined by the Government's "lack of boldness."

The fact only one German bomber was shot down prompted questions, the press blaming the Royal Air Force for not destroying more.

The 10 high explosive and incendiary bombs the German raiders showered on Scapa Flow off the North Coast of Scotland did only "minor damage" to the British man o'war, the Admiralty announced.

James Isbister, 27, an Orkney County Council employee, was the civilian killed. He was standing in the doorway of his Bridge-of-Waith cottage, near Stromness Airfield. Two neighbors, also watching the flash of anti-aircraft fire in the gathering darkness, were wounded.

The raid was the first on Scapa Flow since the dismantled Iron Duke, in use as a training ship, was hit and damaged by a German raider Oct. 17.

Soon after the enemy squadron roared in from the North Sea, heather on Pomona Island was blazing. The raiders appeared just after sunset at about 7.50 p.m. and were not driven off by planes and ship and shore batteries until 9.15. Five cottages were hit and farm buildings and haystacks were fired.

It was stated that few of the enemy dared to brave the Scapa Flow defences but "were content to kill and wound civilians in a small village (Bridge of Waith) five or six miles from the harbor."

(German announcements claimed three battleships and one cruiser were "severely damaged" and that two other naval vessels sustained "probable" damage.)

One Nazi Vessel Staggered

The Air Ministry reported a Saturday foray against German patrol vessels between the islands of Borkum and Heligoland. Royal Air Force planes staggered one empty craft with a salvo of bombs, the vessel being "partially lifted out of the water" by the force of the explosions. All British planes returned to their bases safely.

The Daily Telegraph said that downing of only one raider during the Nazi bombing attack showed that the base had not been adequately protected.

The Daily Mail said the governments "lack of boldness is losing them public confidence" and advocated "A Real War Cabinet, a compact body of men fired with initiative and imagination," like the war cabinet formed by David Lloyd George in the first great war.

Raiders' Small Loss Upsetting

The Daily Telegraph said: "What will cause disappointment in the public minds is the knowledge not so much that this raid on Scapa Flow could be achieved but that the raiders were able to return to their base with such small loss. The Germans as a matter of course boast that all their raiding machines returned safely.

"On that point Mr. Churchill will be expected to say a good deal. Meanwhile the first care of those in charge of our defensive organization must be to make sure any repetition of Saturday's raid will prove a perilous and costly venture."

Events seem to be always one jump ahead of the British government," the Daily Mail said editorially.

"Hitler and Mussolini meet today for the first time since the war broke out. They may agree to a joint Balkan plan or on a so-called basis for peace proposals.

"Are we with France prepared to face this new diplomatic situation?

"Already spring has opened with a deplorable diplomatic setback—Finland. Our prestige suffered. The reaction on the small neutral countries has been deplorable."

Too Much Hesitating

"While the enemy acts, the democracies hesitate.

"It is time that the government arrested the creeping paralysis which is dulling our movements, our voice and our resolution."

The Daily Herald said: "Are Britain and France doing all they can to keep the diplomatic initiative on their side? The ides of March have come and gone this year without any military eruption. We have diplomatic eruptions instead.

"What do they portend for the Allies? And what plans have we made to meet all the surprises that may come?

"Our diplomacy and our economic warfare must be resolute.

"We must plan, foresee, prepare and direct the progress of the war. We must force it into the mold of victory.

"Our vast resources and our just cause give us the power to take the initiative and to keep it."

Ontario's Provincial Secretary Attends King Rally

Leading Aircraftsman J. Duguid, one of the two R.C.A.F. fliers who crashed in their plane on the United States side of the U.S.-Canadian border early last week, is shown with Nurse Smalling as he prepared to leave for Canada after the U.S. State Department had ordered his release and that of his companion, Pilot Officer A. E. Cannon. The State Department ruled that the Canadian plane was not on a hostile mission when it was forced to land. The damaged craft will be returned to Canada.

Irishmen Mark Anniversary Of St. Patrick

Over the week-end Irishmen in all parts of the world celebrated, and shamrocks sprouted on coat lapels from coast to coast as the light-hearted sons and daughters from old Erin prepared to honor their patron saint.

A double event of great rarity and significance occurred this year. It was not only that the day of Ireland's patron saint but for the first time since 1799 it also was Palm Sunday, turning attention to an ancient and disputed adage, one version of which reads:

'In the year when Palm and Shamrock meet,
Blood shall run in Dublin street."

Other versions of the last time are "Ireland shall be free" and "a great and lasting peace you'll see." As for the first, history tells that blood ran indeed in 1799 with the Irish rebellion in progress and if the peace prediction is to come to pass it had better be this year for the two events do not coincide again until the year 2105.

In New York, as always, the greatest St. Patrick's parade was held, upwards of 100,000 marchers paced by more than 300 bands taking part, while in all the churches there was an appropriate Irish touch, in many cases the closing hymn being one dealing with St. Patrick.

An extra celebration was scheduled at Washington where President and Mrs. Roosevelt observed their 35th wedding anniversary. They were married on March 17, 1905 in New York city.

Many gala observances have beclouded the fact that St. Patrick's Day originally was a day of mourning, commemorating the death of the great missionary in 493 A.D. Even regarding this there is some dispute, one group of historians holding that the saint died 32 years earlier in 461. Regardless of such points, it is established that St. Patrick was one of the outstanding Christian missionaries of all time.

Ancient writings tell of his vision in which he heard "The Voice of the Irish" and resolved to supplant Druidism with Christianity in Ireland. In 433 A.D. with his followers he scored a great victory over Druidism when they kept their Easter fire burning on the hill of Slane in defiance of commands from the Irish King Leoghaire and pagan priests. Thereafter Christianity became dominant in the country.

The popular belief that St. Patrick "drove the snakes out of Ireland" finds strange confirmation in the fact that snakes appear to encounter something deadly in the soil or climate of Eire, as Ireland is now called. Another though more vague explanation of the story's origin is that the symbols of the Druids he overthrew, closely resembled twined snakes.

The interest however in the day this year is higher because the palm and the shamrock entwine and will not meet again for 165 years.

Mexico produced twice as much coffee this season as its people can consume in a year.

The local Crop Improvement Association will contribute the balance of the cost and put up one-third of the prize money, the balance to be supplied by the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture. A total of $3 in prize money for each entry up to 20 members will be available.

Membership entries must be listed with Mr. Paterson by April 1, and at least ten boys must register by that time to make sure of this new organized effort. Six boys have already sent in their names, and it is thought that the district should be able to provide at least a score of young farmers who will undertake this growing of Erban oats as a club project.

THE GLOVES ARE OFF

Jamieson Bone, National candidate and W. A. Fraser, Liberal candidate for Northumberland do not pull their punches in a campaign and their battling makes the local affair seem like a tea-party. For instance a few catchwords from the ads of both men follow—"A bunch of skunks," Nitwitts, riff-raff . . Mr. Bone goes on to say, "Let us unite against graft, corruption and political parasites and who are sapping the life blood of the country" and in one ad he takes a rap at the High School Teachers Federation charging the Ontario Board was "so full of sawdust that if you stuck a pin in them, nothing would come out."

NOT SO BEFUDDLED.

A man must be pretty drunk when he can't open the door at the police station. Last night a transient tried in vain to push open the door, then slumped across the window sill close by to rest. A reporter came along and promptly pushed the door open so the transient wobbled along into the guard room ahead of him and it looked to the police as if the reporter was bringing in a docile prisoner. The transient was not so drunk that he had forgotten his law, for he explained to the police that on two previous occasions he had spent terms in the Johnston bastille for drunkenness, so on this the third occasion he came of his own accord to avoid a three months' penalty. The cops therefore had no alternative but to give the wanderer a bed for the night and turn him loose in the morning. A mere technicality but it saved the hobo a 90-day stretch.

Bone Rally Held At Gore's Landing

GORE'S LANDING, March 18. — Braving icy, snow-filled roads and a driving wind, electors of Hamilton township, interested in nationnal affairs, filled to capacity the Public Library, Gore's Landing, on Friday evening, to hear an address by Jamieson Bone, National Government candidate for Northumberland County.

The chairman, Mr. Karl Harris, welcomed the audience, and Miss Lena Gordon, a promising young singer, accompanied by Mrs. Ruby J. Meggs, sang "Angus MacDonald," which was very much enjoyed.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful nosegay of flowers to Mrs. Bone by little Miss Lola Thackeray. The three speakers of the evening, Mr. Bone, A. R. Willmott and Fred Richardson, were presented with boutannieres by Miss Joan Harris.

A. R. Willmott of Cobourg introduced the National Government candidate, Mr. Bone. Commenting on the non-appearance of William Fraser, the Liberal candidate for Northumberland, at the nomination meeting in Warkworth last Monday, Mr. Willmott asserted that Mr. Bone had the distinction of being the only man who caused Mr. Fraser to "scuttle" a nomination.

Magistrate Langley remanded the youth until Wednesday morning.

Farmer So Ill Unable To Feed Stock

After he had been found by Provincial Constable David Silvester in a weakened condition as the result of illness and lack of nourishment, Frank Fligg, 70, a well known farmer living on the 7th line of Smith, who lived alone, died in Nicholls Hospital Sunday morning.

Neighbors had seen Mr. Fligg's horses wandering around the place and noticed one animal dead and notified Constable Silvester who visited the Fligg farm on Saturday. He could see no foot prints in the snow around the barn and on going to the house found Mr. Fligg in bad shape. The farmer told him that he had been ill for a few days, suffering from asthma, and that he had been unable to eat, but argued that he was quite all right then.

His condition, however, was such as to cause the officer to report the case to Reeve Allan B. Mann of Smith, who had Mr. Fligg removed to hospital, where he died Sunday.

He was a son of the late Thomas Fligg and Mary Ann Heard, and was in his 71st year. Born and raised on the old homestead on the 7th Concession of Smith, where he passed all his life, he has lived alone since his mother's death about 23 years ago. He suffered from asthma for many years and about a month ago developed a heart condition which grew gradually worse.

He leaves to mourn his loss one sister, Mrs. James Bailey of Toronto and four neices, Mrs. Garfield Torrance of Peterborough, Mrs. Wilbert Yelland of Penetang, Mrs. Jack Wilson of Galt, and Mrs. Wilbert McIntosh of Toronto.

The remains are resting at the Funeral Home of Arthur W. Bellegham, 611 George street north, where service will be held on Tuesday, March 19, at 2 p.m., Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Bridgenorth United Church officiating. Interment will be at Lakefield cemetery.

ARTHUR KILLINGBECK.

Mr. Killingbeck was well-known in this city, particularly to older citizens. He was employed by the old Grand Trunk Railway for a number of years before coming to this city, then joined the staff of the Peterborough Street Railway Company as a motorman, continuing in that capacity for the next 30 years. For the next 20 years he was on the staff of the Canadian General Electric plant here.

Born in Millbrook, he was a son of the late John Killingbeck and Mary Armstrong. Leaving Millbrook, he lived in Cavan and then in Lindsay, before coming to this city. He was a member of the Salvation Army Temple here.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Charlotte Heard; one daughter, Mrs. Cecil Gertley, and one son, Percy Killingbeck, and two brothers, Alexander and Joseph Killingbeck. All reside in Peterborough.

On Way To Enlist When Picked Up

"I was on may way to Picton to enlist," John Carney, transient, told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. "I tried several other places," he said, "but they were not recruiting."

"It is a very peculiar thing," remarked Magistrate Langley, "that every man charged nowadays with vagrancy is always about to join the army."

Chief Constable Newhall asked that Carney be remanded for a day or two in order that the police might make some inquiries.

"I was in the rest room here yesterday," Carney said, "and the police came along and asked me what I had been doing in East City. I have never been in East City in my life."

Carney was remanded until Thursday for sentence.

WAR—25 YEARS AGO

Lumber Camp Destroyed Near Bancroft

BANCROFT, March 18.—(ENS)— Word came from the bush by messenger today of a fire that raged Sunday afternoon in the lumber camp of W. F. Hamlyn of Bessemer, 17 miles south east of Bancroft.

One of the worst blazes in the history of lumbering in this district in a number of years, and of unknown origin, the fire destroyed virtually the entire camp where 40 men were employed. The office, dam, sleeping quarters, kitchen and dining room all went up in flames. Saws and belting in one building were completely destroyed.

Meagre details of the fire were brought out by Sam Whitmore, who set out with a team for Bancroft to take back much needed supplies. The camp's telephone had been destroyed in the fire.

The camp has been operated by W. F. Hamlyn since 1915 and it is not believed that any insurance was carried. Mr. Hamlyn operated a limit of 26 square miles.

Young Man Suffers Injury To Finger

William Watson, 342 Charlotte street, had his fingers injured requiring two stitches early this morning when his car overturned on Highway 2 a mile west of the weigh scales, after a collision.

Watson, whose home is in Oshawa, but who is employed in the C.G.E. had with him G. R. Flintoff, another Oshawa man, who is also employed at the C.G.E. Their car came into collision with a tow truck owned by Rose and Jex of Port Hope and turned over after the impact. The accident was investigated by Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure who was on duty at the weigh scales.

Glover Ad Too Modest

Exception was taken Saturday night by ex-Mayor Geo. A. Macdonald to the page advertisement in The Examiner giving the record of Rollie Glover. Speaking in support of Mr. Glover with Mayor Hamilton at the Liberal Rally, ex-Mayor Macdonald said: "While reading advertisements we are apt to be prepared for a certain amount of exaggeration. Instead what do we find? As I read Mr. Glover's record I'm sure I felt the same as everyone else—it didn't tell the half of it!

Rollie Glover

"There are thousands in Peterborough," continued Mr. Macdonald, "who know that it would take much more than a page to tell the complete story of Rollie Glover's services to this community. His is a record that we all appreciate and must endorse."

Mr. Macdonald's tribute was a commendation to those who have become residents in more recent years and who may not be familiar with the Liberal candidate's many qualifications for representing West Peterborough at Ottawa.

W.M.S. Service At St. James'

The annual Woman's Missionary Society Sunday was observed yesterday at St. James' United Church with special service when the membership, well represented, attended in a body occupying the centre-front pews.

The pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, brought a missionary message to the W.M.S. women and members of the church.

Tracing the missionary endeavor from the time of the early church up to the present, the speaker commended this society for its share in the enterprise. He spoke of fine training provided by the leaders of the various branches from Baby Band Mission Band and Mission Circle emphasized their spiritual impetus to the church life. "Many women claim they cannot afford the time or money necessary for membership in the W.M.S. but it was pointed out that no woman could afford to miss the privileges of such Christian fellowship, which is broken by neither sickness or removal. The atmosphere of prayer and worship at all regular meetings is an inspiration and help in any life.

The work of some of the missionaries sent out by this Society was outlined as a further proof of how very worthwhile the work has been in many lands. Co-operative Christianity is the only remedy left for the troubled world and is the aim of the Woman's Missionary Society.

The musical program was arranged by the organist, Cecil Lapp, and included the anthem, "The Lord Is In His Holy Temple" and the beautiful solo, "The Lord Is My Rock," sung by Mrs. H. F. Doig. Mrs. Doig is also a valued member of St. James' Auxiliary, as are many other members of the choir.

Tag Day Results Largest In Years

Results from St. Vincent's Orphanage annual tag day on Saturday are the most gratifying in years, Mrs. F. J. Lynch, general outside convener, told The Examiner this morning. All those who have had a part in arrangements for this event are literally "walking on air," she said, due to the splendid response of Peterborough citizens. This response, she believes, is proof that citizens are realizing they must not become so carried away by war work zeal that they overlook their home duties.

Admiration and appreciation of the fine manner in which all Girl Guides of the city, young matrons representing Catholic churches, members of the Young People's clubs of St. Peter's Cathedral, and the Sacred Heart and Immaculate Conception churches, had assisted with tagging were also expressed by Mrs. Lynch.

Although the day was bright and sunny, there was a cold wind sweeping around many of the corners where smiling taggers were on duty from seven o'clock in the morning until late afternoon, and they were glad to drop in at the Knights of Columbus Hall for a few moments' rest, and the bowl of hot soup which was served throughout the day by a willing committee, of which Miss E. Deannard was convener, assisted by Mrs. P. J. Burke, Mrs. F. Eano, Mrs. Lynch, Mrs. J. Higgins, Mrs. S. J. Hickey.

Conveners representing churches were Miss L. Hurley, St. Peter's Cathedral; Mrs. E. Crowe, Immaculate Conception; Mrs. G. Conlin, Sacred Heart. Mrs. F. J. Overend, Mrs. A. Cauley, Mrs. Crowe and Miss M. Milloy were conveners of schools; Mrs. W. J. Young and Mrs. J. J. Lynch of factories.

DOROTHY DIX

There Are More Mothers Who Are Fools Than Are Bad. Intelligence Must Be Added to the Virtue of Motherhood in Rearing Children.

The Women's Congress has been trying to select America's most intelligent mother, which is a procedure that is startling in its novelty. The bright jewels in Mother's crown have always been love, patience, sacrifice, forgiveness and faithfulness. Nobody much has bothered much to consider whether there were any brains under which the diadem rested. In fact, it has been considered that any little fool female knew enough to be a mother, and that if she was lacking in intelligence that she would be miraculously provided with it by the mere act of having a baby. No one will deny that nowhere else in the world is the highest grade of good, hard horse sense so much needed as in motherhood. So far from being possessed of this we are continually forced to contemplate the sad spectacle of many women being so befuddled by motherhood they apparently take leave of whatever intelligence they have and become entirely incapable of dealing with their offspring.

Indeed, so bereft of reason are the great majority of women by motherhood that they cannot see their children as they are. Every duckling is a swan. Every dullard a genius. Every little hellion a strong, unfettered soul. Every little bandy-legged girl who recites through her adenoids a second Ethel Barrymore. And before Mother finds out that she hasn't hatched out a nest full of cinema stars and world-beaters, generally it is too late to do anything about it.

Speaking by and large, there are very few bad mothers in the world, but the premises are cluttered up with fool mothers. So it is encouraging to learn that intelligence is going to be added to the standard virtues of motherhood, and that women are to be urged to use some good, hard, horse sense.

Now opinions may differ as to what constitutes an intelligent mother. My own idea is that she is a woman who can look her own children over as dispassionately as she can her neighbor's and see them as they are instead of as she wishes they were. She can see that Sally is homely and possesses no feminine wiles, so she does not raise her to be a millionaire's bride. She fits her to earn her living at some interesting occupation.

She gives the brilliant boy a chance to spread his wings and fly as high as he can, but at the same time she sees to it that the lad who is just a plodder gets his feet well grounded on the solid earth. She doesn't make the mistake of the silly mothers who make failures of their children to gratify their own vain ambitions.

The intelligent mother fits her children for life. She knows that the world into which they must go when they leave her is not going to be padded with mother love and made soft and easy for them. She knows that nobody is going to excuse their faults and weaknesses because they are Sally's and John's little ways. And so from the time they are babies she teaches them how to take blows and come up smiling; how to play the game squarely and fairly; how to get along with other people; and the good manners that are a letter of credit the world over to their fortunate possessors.

The intelligent mother does not spoil her children. She does not pamper and indulge them in the things they cannot afford. She does not cultivate selfishness in them. On the contrary, she throws responsibility upon them. She breeds in them a sense of duty and obligation to others. She teaches them habits of thrift and industry and instills in them the kind of grit that carries on through adversity and hardships until it wins out in the end. Her sons and daughters are the kind of men and women who are the backbone of a weak and wobbly world.

The intelligent mother doesn't try to keep her children in perpetual babyhood. She teaches them to stand on their own feet, to use their own judgment, and if they make mistakes to learn from them. She knows that no one is really free who is not economically independent. And so she sees to it that both her sons and daughters are taught some trade or profession by which they can support themselves. She teaches them that honor and honesty and decency and self-respect are the foundation stones on which all happiness and success in life must be built. And, having taught them these things, she lets them go their own ways and work out their lives according to their own patterns.

TRY RINSO FOR DISHES—ECONOMICAL, EASY ON HANDS

With The Boy Scouts

"When a boy joins the boy scouts he takes a solemn pledge to do his best, to do his duty to God and the King, to help other people at all times. He subscribes to other conditions set forth in the scout laws. He is also taught the meaning and value of good health, good character, and good citizenship, and he develops the qualities of initiative, resourcefulness and self-sacrifice. Surely he must become a better citizen than he would otherwise be. For example, it is most unlikely that he would ever be unemployed or criminal."—President J. A. McLeod, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, at Toronto luncheon.

At St. John's

The Troop.—Instructor Ken. P. T. Brown put the troop through its weekly exercises after which Second Class first aid and tenderfoot instruction were carried out.

At camp fire A.S.M. Brown told of Polish scout refugees establishing themselves in an old castle. Bill Patterson and Glen Grierson won a song contest.

During the evening two new members were invested into the world brotherhood of scouts, and made their scout promise before their scouter. We wish the new scouts, Jack Brown and Allen Nisbett, good scouting.

All friends of the group are notified that a paper collection will be held on Saturday, March 30, and the scouts would appreciate your continued support. Please phone any member of the group, and the paper will be picked up.

The Pack.—Owing to next Friday being Good Friday, the meeting will be postponed until Saturday. The cubs are asked to meet in the Sunday school at 10 o'clock a.m. next Saturday.

Games of Blowout and Drawing were included in last week's gathering in the jungle. Instructions on Somersault, Skipping, Ball Throwing and First Aid were taken, several cubs passing tests.

Cub Bob Stuart received his first star.

St. James'

With the Cubs.—Royal blue and grey neckerchiefs have replaced the Red and White of St. George's on the cubs who were transferred from that group to St. James'.

Some of the boys received tenderpad badges. Ross Cutmore passed his skipping tests, and many other boys are working hard today earning badges with M. Bolter aiming at swimmer's badge, and S. Allen working on artist badge. Mr. Allen of the group committee and Mesadmes Blaby and Allen of the Mother's Auxiliary were present; Cub Adrian Langhorne reading the log at Redflower.

The Troop.—Some real pep is being shown in the meetings these days and we are looking forward to more progress.

Two full uniforms were conspicuous, yet the meeting went along in a real snappy fashion; the scouter was assisted by A. Thorne and Bill Anderson; each patrol giving its call when leaving the patrol corners. The game were connected with test work. Scouter read the list of hobby show articles.

District Scoutcraft Show

Attention all scouts and cubs.—The date has been fixed for the scoutcraft show to allow everyone lots of time to prepare his work. The second week in May was the unanimous choice of the scouters' club, and will be recommended to the local association at their next meetings.

It is requested that every boy will do his best to make this affair a success. The committee is prepared to assist in every way possible and the chairman will give a personal visit to every pack and troop after the Easter holiday are over.

Remember: This is your chance to show just how much you are interested in scouting and to exhibit your abilities to your friends and the citizens of Peterborough.

Sacred Heart.

Scout Master Resigns.—It is with regret that we learn of the resignation of Jerry Grady as scoutmaster of the Sacred Heart Troop and wish him every success in his new adventure as commercial traveller for a flour company in the Maritime Provinces.

Jerry Corbett has been appointed scouter in place of Scouter Grady.

Owing to Holy Week there will be no meetings until after Easter. The troop is reorganizing, Frank McCarthy and Bob Cook being appointed patrol leaders. It is expected that the annual variety show will be put on shortly after Easter.

At St. Andrew's

Owing to examinations many boys were absent from the troop meeting. Signalling and Compass work were studied by those present, Group Chaplain Rev. Dr. Young visiting the troop. The scouter announced the coming scoutcraft show.

The Scouters' Club

A good turnout was on hand to hear the talk by Mr. Kay on birds of Canada, and felt that much had been learned.

Mr. Kay told of Bird Life in an able and descriptive manner, making those present feel that they were with him on hikes, and seeing the birds he talked of.

Executive Committee.

Wednesday night is the date of the monthly executive meeting and we would urge all committees to hold that date open.

Scouters' Club Social

Scouters, assistants, rovers and their sweethearts are cordially invited to support our annual social evening of fun, games and dance in the Paragon Hall on the evening of Thursday, April 18, at 8 p.m. All executive committees, commissioners, their wives and friends are invited. Phone Pete Dominik at 7756 for tickets.

Murray Street

The Troop.—The patrol under Bill Peltz has chosen the Raven as their emblem.

Bob Clark and Bill Johnson have completed their tenderfoot tests and are ready for investiture. Scouter Watkins instructed the boys in signalling.

The Pack. — Miss M. McCarthy with a number of the Sacred Heart Pack were visitors to the Murray Street jungle and were entertained by floor hockey.

Bagheera Turned instructed the pack in compass work. At Redflower the members of each pack entertained the others with songs. Baloo McNabb told a story of "Wolf, Wolf, Wolf." Next week the Green six will enact the story.

Canada's Soldiers Vote

Private G. F. Brush, 48th Highlanders, is shown handing his ballot, in a sealed envelope, to Voting Officer Lt. D. F. B. Corbett, as voting in the Federal election started for the men of the C.A.S.F. who are stationed at Exhibition Park, Toronto. The polls are open for the soldiers for at least three hours a day from March 16 to March 23. The soldiers vote differently than ordinary civilians. They write the name of their choice on the ballot and seal it in two envelopes to be mailed to Ottawa.

J. S. WOODSWORTH

The road James S. Woodsworth has followed to his present post of leader of Canada's C.C.F. party, has taken him from the college campuses of Winnipeg, Toronto and Oxford, the Methodist pulpit, welfare and social work among Canada's new citizens, and finally down the long trail of political life.

Frequently he has been called a radical, yet this thin, wiry Van Dyked, gentleman from the west, who bears a real resemblance to the prime minister of one of the empire's greatest dominion, comes of a United Empire Loyalist stock, who have made an imprint upon Canadian life for three generations.

This fiery leader was born not far from Ancaster in 1874 but moved to Manitoba eight years later when his father, the Rev. Richard Woodsworth became a Methodist missionary.

Young Woodsworth's feet were on the road that lead to the ministry when he graduated in arts from Wesley college in Winnipeg, then in theology from Victoria college, Toronto, and finally at Oxford university.

Within six years he was a popular assistant pastor of one of Winnipeg's most prominent churches. He decided to leave the ministry one night when he was in Palestine, but the church authorities were loth to lose his services and for six years he ran the All Peoples missionary.

So successful was he at this work, that in 1914 the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta appointed him director of social work. In 1916, he objected to Canadian youth being conscripted for war and shortly afterwards his social service department was dissolved.

Then followed the ministry in a small northern Pacific coast church, a year and a half as a longshoreman, unloaded cargoes in Vancouver while his wife taught a rural school to keep their six children, then a lecture tour across the west, and then as editor of a Liberal paper for a few days which landed him in jail one morning about 4 o'clock.

In 1921 he was elected a member of parliament. He did much to force the Beauharnois inquiry, was terminated in the establishment of a standing committee of industrial and international relations and worked hard for old age pensions.

In 1933 when the newly launched Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation was in its infancy, Mr. Woodsworth was chosen its leader, the position he has held ever since. He has the reputation of being an astute politician and has lived up to this reputation on many, many occasions.

St. Catharines' Lady Says Buckley's Mixture Acts Promptly on

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT

Everyone who suffers from frequent coughs, colds and sore throat should follow the example of Mrs. C. Burrell, St. Catharines, Ont. She writes: "For many years I have used Buckley's Mixture for colds to which I am very susceptible. These colds are always accompanied by sore throat. I find Buckley's Mixture acts promptly and thoroughly on both." At the first sign of a cough or cold, take this grand medicine. It brings almost instant relief by softening the phlegm that clogs your air passages; eases breathing, soothes and heals your throat, clears your head. Don't experiment. Buy Buckley's.

herself to speak. To think that Mary and her brother had been discussing her was rather overwhelming. Had they severely criticized her? Oh, she deserved it—no one knew better than she how much she deserved it.

Offered New Position

"My secretary is getting married," Mary went on, "and if you'd like it, the position is yours. You'd be living in my home, have no expense to bother about. You could save your salary—feel independent when the time comes to—to——"

"Oh, how marvellous of you to think of me!" burst out Janis. "It's so much more than I deserve. Oh, thank you, Miss Black! I'd like the position very much. I'm sure I could do the work. I used to be a stenographer, you know. But now I——" She hesitated, flushed.

"You think you might not feel up to it? Stephen says you'll be all right in a few weeks—really feel splendid for a long time. Anyway, when the fan mail gets too heavy I get in an extra girl. But if you were around to manage her, even if you did nothing but that, I could shed the mail responsibility—and it's really terrific sometimes. Details, too, annoy me—and you could attend to many of them. I'm away on location for weeks at a stretch, but you wouldn't need to go along—we could keep in touch with each other by phone.

Janis brightened, smiled with some of her old spirit. "I would take care of everything just as if you were home," she declared. "You're like a fairy godmother, Miss Black. I can't tell you what this means to me. Only a few minutes ago I didn't know where to turn—what to do. Now you've cleared up everything."

"Fine! It's all settled then. I think I have a new tenant for the house, too. That will give you back some of the rent. Gloria Chester the woman who does character parts so well, would be glad to move in, I know—if it's agreeable to you."

"Agreeable?" Janis laughed softly, "Why, Miss Black, it's simply wonderful! You've thought of everything—I'll never be able to thank you—and Dr. Black."

"My dear, it's nothing. And Stephen—he's so interested in your plans."

Mary Black acted confused and Janis wondered at it. It was not until long afterward that she discovered the reason. She was to live through many weary hours until then, even be obliged to untangle many kinks in her thread of life. But now, surrounded by Mary Black's loving kindness, everything else was mercifully concealed.

help with the housework. On the days when I come home too tired to cook a decent meal, he very sweetly tells me that he isn't a bit tired and will get dinner. This burns my mother-in-law up and I am never with her for five minutes that she does not tell me that it is the woman's place to do the cooking, wash the dishes, mop the floors and do the laundry. She looks him over with an eagle eye and woe is me if one of John's buttons is missing. Naturally all of this has got on my nerves and while I have so far managed to keep my tongue and just pass it up as one of those things, I don't know how much longer I am going to be able to stand it. What am I to do?

PERPLEXED.

ANSWER:

It is so hard for people, and especially for women, to discuss any point about which they disagree without getting into each other's hair and snarling things up worse than they were before, that I am a great advocate for settling difficulties by mail. So if I were you, I should write my mother-in-law a very nice, kind, affectionate letter in which I would tell her that I was sure that she had never stopped to consider that the wife who worked outside of the home had an entirely different status from the one who worked solely in the home.

Tell her that you agree with her that the woman who has nothing to do but keep house should not expect her husband to do any of the cooking or dish-washing. That as soon as you get your house paid for and give up your job that you are never going to let John so much as put a salt-cellar on the table. But that if she will stop to think, she will realize that you are doing as hard a day's work in the office as he is, and that it is nothing but fair for him to help you get the dinner.

I think that sort of letter will make her see how right you are in your position, and that you are not imposing on her darling little boy.

DOROTHY DIX.

Great Variety In Lipstick

Judging by the number on the market, lipsticks are apparently the biggest selling item in the cosmetic business. Every week a new one is brought out and women snap them up with the zeal of true collectors.

Among the current batch of new ones is a soft lipstick which should be a find for conservatives. It is very pale, even when applied in gobs, but nevertheless a true, natural red—no orange or tan cast.

Another "new" color lipstick is a clear sharp red about the color of a danger sign. This one comes in a smart "gold" case, shaped like a small hour-glass and perfectly plain. There is a flat loose-powder compact to match, with the hour-glass motif repeated in miniature on the lid.

Women who like a professionally perfect outline for the lips might try using a brush lipstick. This is a small pencil-shaped implement with a camel's-hair brush on the end. Lip salve of a creamy consistency is contained in the shaft and squeezed on to the brush by turning the end. These brushes are a little hard to use at first, but after a little practice better results are achieved than with a blunt lipstick. The color goes on smoother and stay on longer too.

New Costume Jewelry You Can Make Quickly

Jingle Bracelet and Belt Set

The latest thing in sports accessories—tinkling little bells on your bracelet and belt. And it's so easy to make such smart costume jewelry right at home—for yourself!

To make a gay jingle bell bracelet you need 4 yards of red wool yarn, 30 small bells. Begin by cutting nine 14-inch pieces of yarn. Using each 3 pieces as a strand, start braiding.

At the end of 4 inches, string on 3 bells as our diagram shows—one through a single strand of each trio. Now braid again, adding 3 bells every ¼-inch until all are used. Then, about ¾-inch from each end, secure the braid with a few stitches with needle and yarn, cover with buttonhole stitches.

Get the complete directions for these and other smart pieces of costume jewelry from our 32-page booklet. Shows how to make clever new necklaces, bracelets, boutonnieres, clips—from inexpensive, everyday materials.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

FINDING A SAFE MAJOR

ONE OF THE prime objectives of skillful bidding is to locate a safe major suit for trumps, if your side has one. Usually that means a suit in which your side holds a total of eight cards, or, conversely, one in which the opponents hold no more than five cards. When they have six, they will be divided with four or more in one hand oftener than they will be evenly split, so that you are then in danger from one opponent's trump length. But five trumps will generally find neither opponent holding more than three. So your bidding tries to unearth such a suit, if possible.

A—♠4 2 ♥4 3 2 ♦A J 10 2 ♣K Q J 3
B—♠4 3 2 ♥4 2 ♦A J 10 2 ♣K Q J 3

1. North	1♠	2♥		3 NT
South	2♦	3♣		?
2. North	1♠	2♥		3 ♥
South	2♦	3♣		?
3. North	1♥	2♠		3 NT
South	2♦	3♣		?
4. North	1♠	2♥		3 ♠
South	2♦	3♣		?
5. North	1♠	2♠		3 ♥
South	2♦	3♣		?
6. North	1♥	2♥		3 ♠
South	2♦	3♣		?

Your final bid, holding in the South hand A or B, under the various bidding sequences given, your opponents not bidding, is dependent on an eight-card trump major suit being located, as preferable to a No Trump contract.

Sequence No. 1 indicates only two four-card suits by your partner, hence no more than seven cards for your side in either major. So with either A or B you pass 3-No Trumps. No. 2 indicates two five-card suits by your partner. Hence you bid 4-Hearts with A and 4-Spades with B.

Sequence 3 reveals five hearts and four spades, so with A you bid 4-Hearts and with B you pass 3-No Trumps. In fact, with A, you may bid 4-Hearts as soon as you hear the 2-Spade bid indicating hearts are five cards long. No. 4 shows five spades and four hearts, so with A you bid 3-No Trumps and with B 4-Spades. No. 5 shows six spades and four hearts, so you bid 4-Spades with either A or B. No. 6 shows six hearts and four spades, so you bid 4-Hearts with either A or B.

Dramatic Club Of Douro Presents Play

DOURO, Mar. 18 (ENS).—A capacity audience jammed Harmony Hall at Douro on Thursday evening when the Douro Dramatic Club presented the four-act comedy-drama, "Moonlight and Roses."

Delightful character acting by the different members of the cast, coupled with lovely Irish music, made the program most interesting. The theme song of the play, "Moonlight and Roses," was sung by the cast before the curtain rose, with music by Dr. Donald Munro's orchestra from Warsaw. The orchestra consisted of Dr. Munro, his son Hector, Ray Clement, Olan and Clare Leahy, and Mrs. Lymburner at the piano.

Musical numbers which were thoroughly enjoyed were as follows:

Solo, "Barney, Take Me Home," by Mary Walsh, and a lively rendition of "The Galway Piper" by the Leahy sisters, Marcelle, Carmel and Marie. Marie and Mary O'Brien sang "Did Your Mother Come From Ireland." Mrs. Victor Kennedy was accompanist, and Carmel Leahy was the prompter during the play.

Location for all four acts of the play is the park-like grounds of the old Callahan home in New York. Three young people down on their luck and seeking shelter in the grounds, take leading parts in the play, and are Joe, a budding author from Iowa, played by Robert Leahy, Topeka, an unemployed actress, played by Madeline Sullivan ,and Berta, whose part is ably portrayed by Marcelle Leahy.

The role of Mr. Callahan, dignified, hard-headed business man, is taken by Francis Towns, and Isobel Towns is Mrs. Callahan. James Walsh, cast in the role of Jack Martin, and Richard Sheehan as Desmond O'Hara, both do some fine acting. Wilfred Kennedy takes the comic but difficult part of Paddy O'Brien, an Irish caretaker, and his wife, played by Mary Walsh, is as witty and Irish as himself. Gerald Walsh is an Irish cop, Tim Muldoon, and another who played an effective if minor role was Jack Sheehan, as Alphonse, the waiter in a night club.

The entire play was featured by clever acting, lovely singing, and the plot itself held the attention of the audience with its true to life incidents.

HASTINGS

Missionary Work In Arctic Described

Many pictures of interest were shown and Mrs. J. Dainard gave a description of All Saints' Hospital at Aklavik and Mrs. McGrayne read about St. Luke's Hospital at Pangnistung. A picture of the beautiful alter piece, "The Epiphany in the Snows" painted by an artist in Australia and now in the Aklavik Cathedral was shown and explained by Miss Plant. Rev. Wm. Stocks read from "The Sentinels of the North" giving an account of the Primate's visit to the Arctic.

During the afternoon plans were made to hold an Easter afternoon tea at the home of Miss D. Plant on Wednesday, March 27.

Hormone Treatment Eases Skin Disorder

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 18. (AP)—A new hormone treatment for posoriasis, one of the commonest of skin disorders, was announced today.

It offers new hope for clearing up many cases of disfiguring ailment which mars the beauty of many girls and interferes with the careers of young men, Dr. Lester Dragstedt of the University of Chicago told the Federated Biological Societies.

The disease causes scaly red patches on the face and sometimes the entire body. The new treatment consists merely of giving persons lipocaic, a hormone isolated from the pancreas gland in 1936, by mouth, and it has cleared up cases which have failed over a period of years to respond to other treatments, the scientist said.

The lipocaic treatment has proven successful on more than half of the patients treated and the others were greatly improved. Experiments now under way show it also prevents the development of fatty livers in overweight persons by helping to burn up the fat and it may prove useful in the prevention of hardening of the arteries in persons with diabetes, he said.

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 18—(ENS).—Reminiscent of the days of singing school and of the era when the ladies' dresses were measured in yards instead of inches, was the "Old-Fashioned Concert" in the basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lakefield, on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Association. Rev. J. M. Young was chairman and opened the meeting with the National Anthem.

The first item was an old-fashioned singing school, conducted by Mrs. J. M. Simpson, with Mrs. Alice Kennedy at the piano. Mrs. Simpson had attended a singing school at Almonte nearly fifty years ago and brought to the audience the old method of teaching singing. Of particular interest was the song, "Where the Sugar Maple Grows," When attending Normal at the time Lord Aberdeen was Governor-General of Canada, Lady Aberdeen paid a visit to the Normal and expressed the wish that the teachers teach the pupils this song:

"Others may sing of the memories that cling
To the land of the Thistle, of the Shamrock, and the Rose;
But the land I love best
Is the Garden of the West.
Where the wild flowers blossom and the sugar maple grows.
"Hip, hip, hurrah, for my native
Canada,
For the Queen of the Summers and the Lady of the Snows;
'Tis the land I love best,
IIs the garden of the West,
Where the wild flowers blossom and
and the sugar maple grows."

Mrs. A. H. Clark, dressed as a lady of the late nineties, gave a humorous reading, "Pat's Love Letter."

"The Voice of the Old Church Choir," with Mrs. T. W. Chaplin taking the solo part and Hazel and Evelyn Moore and Pauline Blewett the echoes of the choir, recalled to memory the singing of the choir in the country church of many years ago.

Reg. Hopkins and Hastings Wong contributed old-time music with the guitar and harmonica, respectively.

A much-enjoyed duet "Where the Morning Glories Grow" was contributed by Miss Jean and Bill Clark

"That Old Sweetheart of Mine," was Carl Skelcher's reading.

J. M. Simpson's reading "The Painter of Seville" was a recall to memory for it was fifty years since he first recited this poem.

"Not a Man in the House," the one-act comedy play was the story of a lady who through passing a rule never to have a man enter her house, was finally forced to send for a policeman to get rid of a persistent reporter.

Parts were taken by Mrs. T. W. Chaplin as Mrs. Bings, owner of the new home. Miss Molly Thompson as Lucy, her sister, Miss Mary Davis as Jessie, the visiting niece, the Irish maid, Miss Mary Blewett, and Miss Ethel Blakely as Belinda.

A candle-light scene when the song, "Love's Old Sweet Song," was rendered by Miss Jean Clark, brought this part of the program to a close.

A delicious lunch of old-time cakes and cookies, sandwiches, twisters, tarts, and luscious layer cakes was then served, and a pleasant social hour spent.

Sleigh Drive Held By Cottesloe Y.P.U.

COTTESLOE, March 18 (ENS).—A jolly sleigh ride party provided by Joseph Gallagher, took the members of the Y.P.U. to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Moore, on Tuesday evening. Over 30 were present and a pleasant evening enjoyed.

The president had charge of the worship service. The topic "The Life of St. Patrick" was pleasingly given by Miss Jones. Readings were given by Walter Gallagher, Laura Nelson and Roy Patterson. The business included preparations for the basket social next Tuesday evening. After the singing of a hymn and the benediction, games and contests were enjoyed.

More Czechs Jailed

KOMARNO, Hungary, March 18.—(CP-Havas).—A new wave of arrests by German authorities is in progress in Bohemia and Moravia, with 100 former Czech-Slovak officers jailed in the past week, it was reported here today.

Work Of The "A.R.P. Marines"

A "casualty" is shown being taken ashore from a British trawler by members of the "Air raid precautions marines," the facetious title given the squad of British civil defence volunteers which does coastal duty in England. Part of the squad's job is to go to the aid of trawlers attacked by German aircraft and to take off the wounded. The work takes the volunteers to the edge of the mine fields.

Market Firmer, Eggs 20-25, Butter 28 to 30

Farmers on the market Saturday reported that crows are heralding the approach of spring in the country, and for objective evidence M. Pimmett of the sixth line of Otonabee brought along with him sprigs of pussy willows. And for that bit of sentiment Mr. Pimmett deserves special mention.

The market seemed a trifle firmer all along the line. Butter was 28 to 30 cents, and leaned most of the morning toward the higher figure. Eggs held around 22 and 23 cents. One woman reported 25 cents for her extra large ones, and there were others who dropped down to 21 and 20 cents.

Chickens were notably scarce. Mrs. R. Perrins quoted 35 cents a pound for the first broilers. early January arrivals; roosters were about 23 cents and several quotations declined to 18 and 20 cents around noon. The poultry offering was decidedly light.

Woodmen on the outdoor market were numerous. R. Trotter of Young's Point was asking $5.50 for mixed wood, white birch, elm and black ash. George Stephens quoted hardwood, partly green, at $7 a cord, and also dry black ash at $6 a cord.

Potatoes were unchanged in price according to J. Healey of Westwood. His prices were $1.10 for Cobblers and $1.25 for White Stars.

Harry Gill reported brisk business in fresh meats, at 13 and 15 cents for pork, 12 and 14 cents for beef and 20 and 22 cents for lamb. George Mullen's pork was 13 and 15 cents.

Thos. McCamus of Cavan asked $1 for Carmen potatoes.

Arthur Stenson's vegetable prices were carrots, parsnips and beets 25 cent sthe six-quart basket; onions 30 cents a peck, and turnips three for ten cents.

J. Johnston tagged his Spies at 50 cents, Snows and Talmans 25 cents a six-quart basket; Starks $1 a bushel.

Norman Moncrief's prices were: Northern Spies 40 and 50 cents; Ontarios and Starks 30c a peck or $1.10 a bushel; Talmans and Russets 30 cents or $1 a bushel.

Well-Known Peterborough Man Tells About Syntona Results

Describes How It Gave Him Grand Relief From Acid, Upset Stomach, Gastritis, Biliousness and Constipation. Felt Fatigued, Listless and Rundown.

Painful gas and bloat—indigestion after meals—sleeplessness—nervousness—burning sensation and pains in the chest—sharp pains in the side—palpitation and stuffy feeling due to gas—weak, worn-out feelings, dizzy spells and headaches—these are some of the penalties of an Upset Stomach. Many Peterborough people have suffered that way for YEARS. But now, Syntona Herbal Compound is relieving them by the hundreds. Every day, local people tell their friends and neighbors how it helped them and many have given public statements, so others might learn about this remarkable remedy. Here, for example, is the experience of Mr. Timothy Garvey, well-known employee of the Quaker Oats Company, who resides at 132 Halzett St., Peterborough.

"I used to suffer after every meal with a sour, upset stomach; gas and heartburn. Scalding fluids would rise from my stomach and cause nausea and discomfort. There was a burning feeling in my chest and throat and I had gas pains in my side. My bowels were inactive and I was subject to dizzy, bilious spells. I felt constantly tired out and my whole system felt weakened and rundown.

"From the first bottle of Syntona I could tell it was helping my stomach, my appetite picked up and my food began to digest better. Now, after a few weeks on this medicine, I can eat what I like and enjoy my meals without all that stomach misery after eating. I am free of constipation and biliousness and I have more energy. I had always thought that some herbal medicine was what I needed for my stomach and Syntona turned out to be exactly what I was looking for."

If you who read this, suffer from ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels, or any of their long train of distressing symptoms, make up your mind to begin taking Syntona today. Come to Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out how it can help you, too. (Advt.)

ALLIES READY FOR AXIS BLOW

• Hepburn Offers Ontario Aid To 100,000 Finn Farmers

Rich Clay Belt Available For Refugees

Room In Hearst Area For 25,000 Families Says Premier Hepburn

TORONTO, Mar. 19 — (CP). — Kingsley Graham, the Finnish Consul in Toronto, said to-day that an offer by Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario to aid in settling 100,000 Finnish refugees on the arable clay belt in Northern Ontario has been communicated to the Finnish Consul-General at Montreal.

"I know that he will be very interested and will relay the message to the Finnish Government," said the Consul. "It is a matter for the Governments to decide. It is a very cordial offer on Premier Hepburn's part and one which must be carefully worked out."

The suggestions came from Premier Hepburn in a letter to the Finnish Consul yesterday. The Premier's letter pointed out that the admission of immigrants is purely a Federal matter, and that the Dominion Government would have to take the initiative.

Mr. Hepburn stated in his letter that Ontario at present is working on a new highway from Hearst and Geraldton which will open up "great new areas of agricultural land which could be made available to industrious, thrifty people like the Finns."

From Lost Finn Area.

Premier Hepburn wrote to the Finnish Consul that he was prepared to carry out a previous announcement that the province has sufficient unsettled land in the clay belt of Northern Ontario to accommodate if necessary at least 100,000 persons ,or about 25,000 families, "to be brought from the Finnish territory which Russia has ruthlessly taken from the little republic which you represent."

Submarine Survivors Are Recalled

LONDON, March 19 — (CP). — The Admiralty announced today that nine British and neutral ships were lost by enemy action in the week ended Sunday at midnight. Tonnage totalled 23,992.

Most of the casualties were listed as due to 'illegal' mines, with only four ships sunk by German submarines since February 24. The opinion was expressed that submarines which have escaped destruction have been recalled temporarily.

The week's losses were described as three British ships, totalling 5,449 tons; two French, 3,172 tons; and four neutrals, 15,321 tons, none in convoy.

One source said the Admiralty's weekly list of Allied and neutral merchant shipping losses "is the British answer to fantastic and untrue statements of British losses constantly being made by the enemy, very often in order to obtain information."

An Admiralty source said the weekly average for 28 weeks of the war was 12 ships totalling 42,000 tons.

Losses listed for the past week were: British—Melrose and Gardenia and the trawler Halifax; French—Capitaine Augustin and the 35-ton fishing boat Rose Effeuillee; The Netherlands—Amor, Euloto and Sint Annaland; and Yugoslavia—Slava.

Out For Moral Peace Says Prime Minister Chamberlain

LONDON, March 19 (CP) — Vowing to fight on for a "moral peace," Prime Minister Chamberlain today proclaimed the Allies' readiness for anything the axis powers are preparing, defended his government's course in the Finnish war and warned Norway and Sweden they are in grave danger.

A packed House of Commons heard the prime minister make these statements in a sweeping resume of policy. He termed the German air raid on Scapa Flow Saturday a failure and declared "the time and place for us to strike" must be decided by experts.

Mr. Chamberlain compared Britain's aims with the "moral peace" outlined Saturday by President Roosevelt.

"We intend to fight until it has been secured," he said.

His speech, one of the longest war reviews he has made, contained these salient points:—

I. The Allies are ready and watchful for anything which might evolve from the Hitler-Mussolini meeting at Brenner Pass.

2. Sumner Welles, gathering information for President Roosevelt, had a chance to see the Allies' "unity of purpose."

3. The Finnish-Russian peace terms brought danger to the very doorstep of Sweden and Norway.

4. Before the northern war ended the Allies were preparing 100,000 men to help the Finns as well as their Scandinavian neighbors who were threatened with German attack if they allowed passage of foreign troops.

5. Only one warship was damaged in the Scapa Flow raid Saturday; all battleships and battle cruisers came through unscathed.

Lack of Initiative.

The Government's policy was attacked, after Mr. Chamberlain spoke, by the two Opposition leaders, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, and Clement Attlee, Labor, and by Leslie Hore-Belshima, who was dropped as war secretary in a cabinet shake-up Jan. 5. All three scored the government for

Stalin Is Writing His Kampf

NEW YORK, March 19 — (CP)—"To choose one's victim, to prepare one's plans minutely, to slake an implacable vengeance and then go to bed . . . there is nothing sweeter in the world."

So writes Joseph Stalin in "Stalin's Kampf," a collection of excerpts from his writings from the time he helped organize the Russian revolution to his final statements concerning Poland and Finland. The book was published today.

Howell, Soskin and Company, the publishers, announced today royalties from sale of the book in the United States would be mailed to the Soviet political leader at the Kremlin in Moscow.

No royalties so far have been paid Adolf Hitler for the unauthorized publication in the United States of his "Mein Kampf," of which two unabridged editions have been published here. The issue now is before the Federal courts with little prospect of an early settlement.

'Scrutator' Dies

LONDON, March 19 (CP)—Herbert Sidebottom, known to readers of the Sunday Times editorial page as "Scrutator," died today at the age of 67 after a long illness. He served on the editorial staff of the Manchester Guardian from 1895 to 1918 and later contributed to the Sunday Times and the Daily Sketch.

Declare Duce Stood Pat On Neutrality

Ciano's Editor Says No Peace Talked With Hitler

ROME, March 19—(AP).—A declaration that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini had worked out no peace plan to submit to Sumner Welles or anyone else was made today by Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano's Leghorn newspaper, Il Telegrafo.

Ansaldo, who usually speaks for Count Ciano, said the Hitler-Mussolini conference yesterday at the Brenner Pass was "not linked with any inter-continental mission or any peace plans elaborated by the Ministries of the 'two Romes'—Fascist Italy and the Vatican.

"Furthermore the meeting was not brought about through Italy's desire to change her attitude which rests, and will rest, as is well-known, first of all, upon the scrupulous observance of undertakings of honor and then on care of Italian interests and ideals."

Press Goes Easy.

Italian newspapers refrained, as if by government suggestion, from writing of a possible "peace offensive," war offensive or any contemplated change in Italy's non-belligerency.

In diplomatic circles speculation on what transpired at the Brenner meeting centred on the possibility that Hitler and Mussolini are considering ways of "neutralizing" Germany's Balkan flank so as to free her for an offensive on the Western front.

There was talk, too, of a possible rapprochement between Italy and Soviet Russia before any three-way

Four Persons Narrowly Escape Death

Passengers In Bus Are Found Almost Unconscious

BANCROFT, March 19—(ENS).—Three men and a woman narrowly missed death by suffocation last night when the Peterborough-Bancroft bus stalled in a snowdrift and the occupants left the heater running to keep warm while help was being brought.

The bus, driven by Arnold Farthing, failed to make a steep grade known as Kidd's Hill at ten o'clock, and backed into a deep drift from which it could not be moved under its own power. In the bus with the driver was Lorne Webster of Peterborough, Miss Loretto Fitzgerald of Monteagle Valley, who has been employed in a Peterborough store, and one other man whose name could not be obtained.

Lorne Webster went to Walter Kidd's farm for a team but the latter had but one horse so Kidd went to another farmer named Evans to get the second horse. In the meantime Webster returned to the bus and all four waited with

Peace Headlines Just Empty Hopefulness Stephen Early Says Of European Tips

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) —Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said today that on the basis of authoritative reports received by the United States government, "peace headlines would appear to be very empty."

Early asserted that no information had been transmitted to the United States government to support published stories that 11 points had been suggested as a basis for peace at yesterday's conference between Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

Asked whether he could say anything about reports from Rome, Early replied:—

"Nothing more than that I think you can say, on the basis of all authorized reports received by this government, which have been made available to the president and have been carefully read and analyzed by him, there seems to be no basis in fact for reports published in London, Paris, Rome, Berlin, or other capitals that give an authoritative basis for peace; that the publication of those reports should not change the opinions of newspaper readers of this country and others by giving them hope for peace or cause for despair of peace."

Nazis Boost Russia For The Axis

Berlin Press Claims British Navy Almost Wiped Out

BERLIN, March 19 (AP)—Germans hope for the forging of a Rome-Berlin-Moscow axis.

A commentary on the Brenner conference of Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini which spoke of "far-going unanimity" among Italy, Germany and Russia shared the attention of the German public today with an official Nazi claim that the British navy has been practically eliminated.

The German news agency, Nazi propaganda outlet, declared in a resume of sea warfare that battleships representing "the kernel of English marine power" have been sunk or disabled by submarines, bombing planes and mines."

Rumors were general that Foreign Minster Joachim von Ribbentrop will confer soon with Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff as an intermediary for Italo-Russian rapprochement. These were accompanied by the hope that a three-power axis might be established before the week is over.

Hungarian Chief Seeks Safety Duce's Backing

Hungary, her foreign policy linked more closely to Italy's than to that of any other power, was reported planning to seek clarification from Mussolini on the following points:—

1. Germany's intentions in southeastern Europe, with particular emphasis on the fact that if the rich decided to invade Rumania her best route of march would be across the Hungarian plains.

2. Russia's concentration of armed forces on the frontier of the Carpatho-Ukraine, which Hungary acquired from Czecho-Slovakia, and Italy's plans in the event Soviet

O'Dwyer Murder Drive To Open Crime Of 1928

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—District attorney William F. O'Dwyer said today he was reopening the murder case of Frankie Yale, Brooklyn gangster and friend of "Scarface" Al Capone, who was blamed by Chicago police for the slaying of "Big Jim" Colosino in 1920 and the killing of Dion O'Banion in 1924.

O'Dwyer's unamplified announcement came as the Brooklyn prosecutor spurred his investigation of at least 30 gangland assassinations attributed to a "murder-for-cash" syndicate uncovered in Brooklyn.

O'Dwyer was reticent about the Frankie Yale case, but it was disclosed that he has also reopened the 1931 slaying of "Joe the Boss" Massaria and that his investigators have obtained information linking at least two alleged members of "Murder, Inc." with the Yale and Massaria killings.

Import Licences Affect Foods

LONDON, March 19—(CP Cable). —Practically all food imports from Canada are affected by the new import licensing order requiring open general licences or special licences for imports, it was explained here today.

However, it was stressed that this should not be regarded as cutting down the trade. It merely gives the Ministry of Food iron-clad control of imports.

The order affects Canadian agricultural and vegetable products valued at $107,000,000 in 1938 and animals and animal products valued at $73,000,000.

Last Minute News Flashes

LONDON (CP) — Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax tonight exonerated German airmen who bombed the Scapa Flow naval base Saturday of a deliberate attack on noncombatants, although one civilian was killed and seven civilians were wounded in the raid.

MOSCOW—A Finnish delegation bringing Finland's ratification of the Finnish-Russian peace treaty arrived by plane today from Stockholm. Headed by Juho Paasikivi, Finland's negotiator, it was believed they would confer at the Kremlin tonight. Russia has not yet ratified the treaty giving important territorial and economic concessions to the Soviet Union.

TIENTSIN, CHINA—The Japanese army's blockade of the British and French concessions at Tientsin will continue until they cease to be foreign controlled, a Japanese military spokesman said today.

BOMBAY—Twenty-three parading Khaksars and two policemen were killed and 39 persons injured in a clash at Lahore today. Among the injured were the senior and deputy superintendents of the Lahore police.

French Deputies Quiz Daladier In Secret Meet

PARIS, March 19 (CP-Havas) — The Chamber of Deputies decided today to go into secret session to debate questions concerning the conduct of the war against Germany and the Finnish-Soviet war.

Premier Daladier will answer formal questions by 11 delegated members in a closed session similar to that held last Friday by the senate, which gave the government a unanimous vote of confidence.

Concerning Adolf Hitler's Brenner pass conference with Benito Mussolini yesterday, the French press insisted in the absence of official interpretations by the German and Italian governments a lasting peace could not be negotiated under existing conditions. The government's position has been that not "peace with security" can be concluded safely with the Nazi regime.

The chamber session is expected to close with a vote late tonight and to be followed in the next day or so by formation of a compact and more energetic cabinet.

The motion to go into secret session, put by Edouard Herriot,

War Duty Hinted In Activity On 2 Huge Liners

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP).—The 80,000-ton liner Queen Mary may be sent to Boston for dry-docking and overhauling, a British spokesman hinted to-day.

Although Cunard Line officials refused comment on future plans for the Queen Mary and the 35,000-ton Mauretania, which were believed being prepared for war-time duties —possibly to transport Australian troops — the spokesman said it "would not be unreasonable to assume" the Queen Mary would be sent to Boston, where the largest drydock in the United States is situated.

The waterfrom near 50th Street buzzed with activity to-day as new crews swarmed over the British ships. A small army of workmen began loading the Mauretania with sand ballast, indicating that she was preparing to sail.

Arriving in New York with 770 extra officers and men yesterday, the Cunard-White Star liner Antonia docked beside the Mauretania and soon 300 of the new men went aboard her. A short time later the balance of the new complement

Fight To Block Russell Looms

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP).—A court fight to block the $8,000 a year appointment of Bertrand Russell as professor of philosophy at New York College was foreshadowed today after the board of higher education overrode protests against the appointment by a vote of 11 to 7.

The court action was signalled when Joseph Goldstein, acting for critics of Russell's views on morals, served papers in a certiorari proceeding on Ordway Tead, chairman of the board, who championed Russell's cause.

The certiorari writ, scheduled for a hearing March 27 in Supreme Court, seeks to annul the appointment on the ground that Russell lacks the necessary qualifications for a teacher as set forth in the state education law.

Blockade Barred In Black Sea

LONDON, March 19—(CP).—The government informed the House of Commons today it is unable to prevent shipments of oil through the Black Sea to Germany.

Ronald Cross, Minister of Economic Warfare, in reply to a question said under the Montreuk convention belligerent warships are unable to pass through the Straits of Bosphorus to the Black Sea to establish contraband control.

This pact, signed in 1936, provided that the entrances to the Black Sea be closed to warships of belligerent nations unless they are serving under League of Nations mandate or helping a victim of aggression under a mutual assistance pact concluded within the framework of the League and to which Turkey is a party.

Japs Black Eyes, Manhandle Diet Speaker As He Rules Silence In Asama Maru Case

TOKYO, March 19 (AP)—Fist fights produced a crop of black eyes in the lower house of the Japanese diet today in a new quarrel over the Asama Maru case.

A member of the social mass party questioned Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita about the incident in which a British warship removed 21 German passengers from the Japanese steamship Asama Maru Jan. 21.

Speaker Shoju Koyama ruled that the foreign minister need not reply. The questioner rushed to the rostrum and demanded an answer, but Koyama still refused. Social mass members surrounded and began to manhandle the speaker, whose minseito (political party) colleagues sprang to his defense, and the melee ensued.

Odlum Swings Big Merger

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — Floyd Odlum, the 46-year-old financier who is the husband of the leading woman flier of the United States, Jacqueline Cochran, emerged today as one of the most powerful figures in aviation, directing a $165,000,000 merger.

Plans for combination of his investment trust, Atlas Corp with Curtiss-Wright Corp. pioneer aviation manufacturing company, was announced jointly by Odlum and by George Armsby, chairman, and Guy Gaushan, president, of Curtiss-Wright.

The current market value of Atlas stock was estimated at $60,000,000 and that of Curtiss-Wright at $105,000,000. Through an interchange of stock—to be voted upon within three weeks by the shareholders of both companies—the investing firm will make available to the airplane, engine and propeller manufacturing company a "liquid capital" of $36,500,000.

OTTAWA, Mar. 19 — (CP). — Net operating revenues of the Canadian National Railways increased $14,788,007 in 1939 as compared to 1938, according to the annual report received to-day by Transport Minister Howe from S. J. Hungerford, president of the system. The figure for 1939 was $20,854,416.

"After payment of fixed and other charges (excepting charges to proprietor's equity under the provisions of the Canadian National Railways Capital Revision Act, 1937) the deficit for the year was $40,095,519, an improvement of $14,218,676 compared with 1938," the report said.

Gross operating revenues for the calendar year 1939 reached the highest figure since 1930, a total of $203,820,186 and a gain of $21,578,463 or 11.84 per cent. over 1938. Operating expenses amounted to $182,965,768, an increase of 3.85 per cent. The report said this was a moderate increase in relation to operative revenues and the operating ratio, 89.77 per cent. was the best since 1929.

Net revenue available for interest was $10,635,023.33, an increase over

Predict 500,000 More Votes Than Back In '35

OTTAWA, March 19—(CP). — In the Dominion election a week from today probably 500,000 more persons will cast ballots than in 1935. Preliminary returns of names on voters' lists, made public here by the chief electoral officer, Jules Castonguay, show a total of 6,487,010 voters and it is estimated that this will be increased by 50,000 in revisions. In 1935 the total was 5,918,207 persons and 4,452,675 voted.

With the increase in the voters' list, this election bids fair to establish a record number of voters for any Canadian election. In 1930, there were 3,992,481 ballots cast.

The active service vote overseas and in Canada could mean a change after the civilian vote is known only if the civilian vote shows a close result, it was indicated here. With about 90,000 members of the fighting forces entitled to vote, this would mean an averag of a little under 400 for each of the 243 constituencies. Result of the active service vote will be known a week after civilian balloting on March 26.

In the 1917 wartime election, 237,000 valid ballots were cast by men in the fighting forces and there were 14 turnovers from the city vote.

Cromwell Sees Future Of Democracy At Stake In Struggle With Hitler

TORONTO, March 19 (CP)—Hon. James H. R. Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada, in an address here today said that if the Allies win the war he could see "no threat to the well being, to the peace, or to the social and economic order of the neutral democracies, be they large or small."

As to the outlook should Germany triumph, he asked what kind of rule was being applied in countries which had been victims of the Nazi Lebensraum (living room) plan of extension. "Did the Austrians, Czecho-Slovakians or the Poles have a voice in the determination of their present form of government?"

Speaking before a joint meeting of the Canadian Club and the Empire Club, Mr. Cromwell said he was at a loss to understand how any intelligent citizen of any neutral democracy could state with conviction that he has no interest in the outcome of the war, or that there are no issues at stake which can affect him.

"To me it is only too apparent that the life, the liberty, the livelihood and the very safety of this same neutral citizen may be dependent upon the outcome of the present war. Whether he recognizes the fact or not, his future and the future of his children are in all probability now at stake."

Mr. Cromwell said considerable comment seemed to have been evoked by a statement he made in Val d'Or, Quebec, recently, that the Allies were fighting for the perpet-

Latest In Calendars Has But Single Yearly Holiday—"Year's End Day"

BOSTON, March 19 (AP)—A proposal that would include a couple of world-wide holidays is "in the lead for nomination" among scientists working toward a revision of the present calendar, a Boston astronomer said today.

Only one would come yearly—Year's End Day. The other one—"Leap Year Day"—would come only in leap years.

Committees in practically every country of the world, said Dr. Loring B. Andrews, are considering, among others, a plan whereby each quarter of the year would look exactly like every other quarter—with each made up of a month of 31 days, and two months of 30 days each.

"There is a demand," said Dr. Andrews' former executive secretary of the Harvard observatory, "for a revision of the calendar to make it more useful, more systematic."

Under the plan, a new calendar would go into effect in a year that starts Jan. 1 as a Sunday.

Then, with the year divided into quarters each totalling 91 days, or exactly 13 weeks, each quarter would start on a Monday and end on a Saturday.

Now—about those holidays....

"The total of four quarters of 91 days would be 364 days," explained Dr. Andrews. "To bring up the total to 365 days for the ordinary year, there would be a 'year's end day' inserted between December 30 and January 1. And it would be a holiday, probably extremely useful to businesses whose fiscal year ends

Reds Assure Sweden She Is Safe

Have No Further Land Aims In Scandinavia

STOCKHOLM, March 19—(AP).—Concerned over the terms of the Russian-Finnish peace which provide for a Russian railway link with the Swedish border, Sweden has been given Moscow's assurances that the U.S.S.R. has no further territorial ambitions in Scandinavia.

Official Swedish sources, disclosing the assurance last night, failed to specify whether they had been extended at Sweden's request or voluntarily.

Moscow was said to have promised that a present narrow gauge section of the trans-Finland line would not be altered and the road would be employed only for commercial purposes.

Another aspect of the peace treaty regarded as a demonstration of Moscow's peaceful intentions was its omission of any objection to joint Swedish and Finnish fortifications in the Aaland Islands.

The islands dot the centre of the Gulf of Bothnia and, before invading Finland last November, Russia had objected vigorously to plans for extensive armaments there.

allowing Germany to keep up the initiative in the war.

Mr. Hore Belisha, chief critics of the government's policy in last week's brief commons debate, declared to-day that events have shown it was "unfortunate that the allies allowed their intended initiative to be wrested from them."

Asserting that the blockade was the "sole defensive weapon they have employed to bring about the defeat of Germany," Mr. Hore-Belisha asked: "Is it enough or must we intensify our pressure in other directions?"

He declared that those who visited the Finnish front were uniformly of the opinion that "a powerful reinforcement in the air could have broken the Russian onslaught."

"Britain and France hesitated, the enemy acted and Finland was lost," Mr. Hore Belisha said.

The Prime Minister spoke in a sarcastic vein of the Hitler-Mussolini meeting.

"For all I know these gentlemen may have spent their time discussing the conditions under which an Italian ship was destroyed yesterday by a German mine."

Scapa Flow Raid a Failure

Addressing a packed House of Commons with a statement on the conduct of the war, Mr. Chamberlain called the German Air Raid on Scapa Flow Saturday a failure.

He said that 121 high explosive bombs and 500 incendiary bombs were dropped on land in the Orkney Islands over an area of 100 square miles.

Whatever the outcome of the Hitler-Mussolini meeting, Mr. Chamberlain said, Britain is ready to meet it.

He said the government had been happy to welcome Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's emissary, and to inform him frankly of its views.

Asserting the Allies had been prepared to send at least 100,000 men to Finland's aid before the end of April and also to aid Sweden against German intervention, the prime minister described the Allies' readiness to enter the northern conflict.

The prime minister declared Britain took up arms to obtain a moral peace as defined Saturday by President Roosevelt and added that "we intend to fight until it has been secured."

He said Sumner Welles, the president's emissary, had been able "to see for himself the unity of purpose with which we are all inspired."

Taking Experts' Advice.

Answering critics who have been demanding a more vigorous government policy in the conduct of the war, Mr Chamberlain said:

"When the responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the government we cannot be hustled into adventures which appear to us to present small chance of success, much chance of danger and perhaps disaster.

"The time and place for us to strike must be decided upon with the most expert advice that we can command.

"Nothing will or can save neutral countries," said Mr. Chamberlain, "but a determination to defend themselves and to join with others who are ready to aid them in their defence."

Answering his own question whether the security of Norway and Sweden had been preserved by the Russo-Finnish settlement, Mr. Chamberlain said: "On the contrary, the danger has been brought closer tha never to those two countries; to-day it stands upon their doorstep."

Of Mr. Welles, the Prime Minister said:

"I am confident he was able to get the actual views and sentiments of all sections of the community and see for himself the unity of purpose with which we are all inspired."

As to claims of the Germans that they were bombing military objectives and not civilians at Scapa Flow, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"Whatever their intentions may have been, the House will know the facts and the responsibility for the consequences must rest upon the authors."

The Government previously had announced that one civilian was killed and several injured in the raid.

Attlee Takes Up Attack.

As soon as Mr. Chamberlain sat down after one of the longest war reports he has ever made, Clement Attlee, leader of the Opposition, rose and demanded more drive in the prosecution of the war.

"The initiative must not be left with Hitler," said Mr. Atlee. "We cannot have a policy of wait and see."

He demanded a strengthening of the home front and declared "the Prime Minister must in war be ruthless with inefficiency."

Mr. Attlee declared: "I want to see a war cabinet that lays down war principles, that makes decisions."

"A policy of sitting quiet would be suicidal," he said. "No one wants the area of this conquest enlarged, but we cannot see German influence extended, converting a friendly neutrality into enforced cooperation. We have to show skill and initiative to prevent the slipping away of our friends."

The Labor leader said the lesson to be learned from Finland was that "if you want to defeat aggression you must stand together."

Mr. Chamberlain had declared that the doctrine of neutrality under which Norway and Sweden had acted in the Finnish war was based on the assumption that anything was better for a small neutral than to be involved in a war between Germany and the Allies, and that it was a matter of indifference to small neutral states whether German or the Allies won. Of this Mr. Attlee said:

"Unless these assumptions are abandoned and the necessary deductions drawn from that abandonment, the policy of neutral states will neither correspond to realities nor be adequate to safeguard their interests."

Of Sumner Welles Mr. Attlee said: "I think he realizes the determination of the people of this country. I think he will know we all want peace and I think he will know too that we want a real peace, a peace of principle."

The Rescue Expedition.

Speaking to a packed and often cheering House, the Prime Minister said the expedition had been approved by the Allied Supreme War Council February 5 and was ready to leave at the beginning of March—two months before Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim, the Finnish commander, had asked for it to arrive.

Mr. Chamberlain said Baron Mannerheim in mid-January informed the British Government he did not require men then, as his resources were sufficient to last until the spring thaw. Making a vigorous defence of the help Britain and France had offered and given Finland, Mr. Chamberlain declared:

"We felt we must be ready also to provide a force to come to the assistance of Sweden if she were attacked by Germany." He declared Germany had threatened Norway and Sweden with intervention if they gave assent to the passage of an Allied expeditionary force.

"We decided to provide the largest force which would be permitted by the physical conditions we had to encounter," Mr. Chamberlain said, and added that Finland was informed "we were prepared to increase the original force to any extent and as rapidly as possible in the light of experience and military developments."

"We did not hesitate even at risk to ourselves to meet the Finnish needs as far as possible and without delay," the Prime Minister continued.

All There Before End Of April.

The force ready to go, he said, would have begun to arrive in Scandinavia in March and all would have been there before the end of April.

Mr. Chamberlain said the Russo-Finnish peace was "a great tragedy" which had compromised Finland's "independence and integrity."

He declared that suggestions the Allies had failed in their obligations should come "least of all" from "individuals in countries far away from the seat of war."

Citing figures on what had been promised and sent Finland, he reminded the House that Britain herself was at war with "an unscrupulous and very powerful foe" and that "all requests received from neutrals must be continually weighed against our own needs."

"That applies to Finland," he said, but in another passage asserted "perhaps our power to help Finland is not yet at an end."

In making public the list of military supplies promised and given Finland Mr. Chamberlain said:

"When charges are being bandied about that the aid which this Government promised was out of proportion to what we were asked for, I think it right to give the list."

The Prime Minister said Finland was informed in February of the British-French plans with a suggestion that a public appeal for help be made not later than March 5. After that Britain proposed also to make a formal appeal to Norway and Sweden to allow passage of troops, he said.

Finns Try First.

"Finland replied that she would prefer to make an informal approach to the Swedish Government," Mr. Chamberlain continued. "The Swedish Government replied that they would permit and facilitate the passage of munitions and volunteers in small groups, but that they could not grant passage for any regular armed forces because that would enlarge the area of war and turn Sweden into a battlefield."

Despite this, he said, "we did not discontinue preparations for despatch of a force," but he declared, "we could not possibly have forced help upon Finland."

Mr. Chamberlain went on to explain the negotiations for an expedition and finally Finland's failure to make a formal appeal and then her acceptance of the peace terms.

The House was so crowded that some members had to sit in the galleries.

A Great Tragedy.

Making his first statement on the progress of the war since he announced the Russo-Finnish peace on March 8, Mr. Chamberlain said, "I wish I could say that further reflection since then had in any way modified our first impression that a great tragedy had occurred."

"But unhappily," he added, "closer examination and consideration of the peace terms only confirm us in the view that they were in fact such as only could have been accepted by a proud people like the Finns under dire compulsion."

He declared that "in spite of all we did we were unable to save Finland from her fate, but perhaps our power to help Finland is not yet at an end."

This brought loud cheers.

Mr. Chamberlain spoke in a House so crowded that some members were compelled to sit in the galleries.

"If further aid is required I know this country will gladly take its share in contributing to the regeneration of Finland," he said.

"It was a bitter thought for all lovers of freedom that the prolonged and heroic defence of the Finns was in the end unable to withstand the overwhelming superiority in numbers and in equipment of their foes.

"If the Finns did in the end suffer defeat their stand was not in vain. They have preserved their honor. They have won the respect of all the world. Their government which fought the war still holds office. Their army is intact. The spirit of their people is unbroken.

"The collapse of Finnish resistance was a profound shock throughout the world. Once again we were compelled to see a small state the victim of that policy of aggression we have taken up arms to resist."

WHERE SHOULD A LAXATIVE WORK FIRST?

Most constipation occurs low in the intestinal tract, in the big bowel. Yet many people still take calomel, salts and oils—which all start action at some entirely different place in the bowels—then wonder why they feel "upset!" It's better to use CHOCOLATE FLAVOR CASCARETS. Made with cascara, which is said to give "nearest to natural action" of any cathartic. CHOCOLATE FLAVOR CASCARETS work right in the big bowel—cleansing and giving relief in 10 to 12 hours. Each foil-wrapped tablet a dose. Twelve tablets, only 25c. Taste like fine milk chocolate. For free sample, write "Cascarets", Dept. C-5, Windsor, Ont. (Advt.)

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Stores or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost —(Advt.)

Paris, March 19 (CP-Havas).

NICHOLSON TAYLOR, American Red Cross representative, found 30 per cent of the population of Warsaw undernourished when he arrived there recently, the Polish news agency said to-night.

The Red Cross is distributing 100,000 meals a day from 100 kitchens in the Polish capital, the agency reported. Half the meals are given away and half are sold at low prices. Warsaw's population was said to have grown to more than 1,800,000—a rise of 500,000 above the pre-war figure.

Leaders Charges Pepping up Election Drive

(By the Canadian Press.)

New emphasis by the Liberals on the question of Canada's participation in the war and charges by Conservative Leader Manion that the government is linked with "the big interests" are high lights of the Dominion election campaign with the vote just one week from today.

The welfare of Canada's mining and apples industries also was discussed by speakers last night and several campaigners re-opened the conscription and soldier ballot issues.

At a Toronto rally, Dr. Manion declared that the choice before the electorate is government by the people and for the people or government "by the King government for the big interests."

The present government, he said, was linked with a small clique of "big interests" while the Conservative party as it was had been the party of the masses and it would so prove itself again.

At Ottawa Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in a prepared statement that "there is no official censorship whatever of broadcasts in the present political campaign."

Political speakers and managers of privately-owned radio stations were put on what has been termed an "honor system," the prime minister said, to guard against broadcast of any statements infringing the defence of Canada regulations.

Mr. King said he had "grounds for believing" some speakers had inserted in their broadcasts statements which they knew in advance violated the Defence of Canada regulations and which would be deleted by the station manager.

Rome, March 19 (CP-Havas).

ITALY is speeding improvement of her air force and can dominate the Mediterranean from the air, General Francesco Pricolo, under-secretary for air said in a speech before the chamber of asces and corporations today.

Although the German air force had not been so successful against warships as against merchant vessels it nevertheless had limited the naval activity of its enemy, he said.

"This observation has a radical importance for Italians, for the Mediterranean is for us a line both of communications and of life, and I assure you that it will remain so, thanks to our air force."

Berlin, Vatican Dicker On Catholics

VATICAN CITY, Mar. 19 — (AP) —Germany and the Vatican are negotiating an arrangement to safeguard the interests of Catholics in territories annexed by Germany, a reliable Vatican source said to-day.

The informant said the negotiations were being conducted in Berlin by Monsignor Cesare Orsenigo, Papal Nuncio to the German government.

Pope Pius was believed to have discussed the matter with Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop when he was received in audience here on March 11.

The conversations are expected to result in a "modus vivendi," or temporary working agreement, regulating freedom of worship, religious teaching in schools, the status of ecclesiastical seminaries and theological faculties in universities, and state financial support of parochial institutions.

The agreement would apply to Austria, the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, and German Poland.

Fire Destroyed Cooperage Plant

LINDSAY, Ont., Mar. 19 —(CP). — Loss was estimated to-day at more than $30,000 in the fire which destroyed the plant of the International Cooperage Company near Eagle Lake, north of Haliburton. The blaze was discovered in darkness last night by the watchmen, and by the time help arrived it was beyond control.

The plant was the chief source of employment for many residents of Haliburton County. It had been operating for little more than ten years, and was destroyed by fire and rebuilt four years ago. Cause of the latest blaze has not been determined.

"Perhaps comment was occasioned because the diplomatic representative of a neutral nation expressed an opinion concerning the war aims of a belligerent power. Perhaps some people were surprised because they feel that the utterances of a diplomat should be confined to platitudinous pleasantries.

"Certainly that is the feeling of many of my countrymen—indeed some of my very distinguished countrymen who, it would seem, believe the fulfillment of the handwriting on the wall can be avoided by pretending the handwriting is not there.

"Well, that is not my idea of the functions of a diplomat. To me a diplomat is still a citizen. The duty of every citizen is to uphold and defend institutions and the social and economic order upon which the government of his nation is founded."

When a diplomat-citizen sees approaching a force which frankly seeks to destroy institutions and the social and economic order upon which the government of his nation is founded, it is his duty "to tell his fellow citizens what he sees."

Risks Position On Stand

Upon this interpretation of my duties as a diplomat I am content to risk my official head."

The reason his Val d'Or statement of opinion was considered so significant was because "certain shortsighted and cynically-minded groups in the United States" declare there is in actual fact little to choose between one belligerent and another.

"How easy it is for unthinking people to proclaim that what happens in Europe is no concern of theirs and to pretend the dangers that threaten their future safety do not exist. How easy it is to shut one's eyes and thus seek to avoid the horrid sight of the bloody and seething world revolution which threatens to overwhelm us all."

As an economist, Mr. Cromwell said the present conflict appeared to him "not only as a clash between rival political concepts but also as a clash between rival and totally different economic systems of which the forms of government are but the outward manifestations."

"Do not let yourselves be deceived by the frequently preferred description of the democratic-capitalistic system as one which is old and outworn, ready for the scrap heap, and to be superseded by some autocratic ideology. For it is the latter which has misruled and misgoverned the world from time immemorial.

"It was not until the industrial revolution took place early in the 19th century that true democracy on a broad basis of universal suffrage and individual freedom, as we conceive it on this continent, became possible. To me, capitalism and democracy are as closely united as Siamese twins—one cannot live without the other."

Do You Know?

One housekeeper writes to tell us that one of the most helpful articles in her kitchen is a strong, medium-sized tray for setting and clearing the table.

Another idea which she finds helpful is an alarm clock in the kitchen—she can then go to other parts of the house and not have to keep thinking of things that may be needing attention in the kitchen.

Another discovery of which this Business and Professional Women's use of safety pins to close a fowl after the dressing is in—they are sterilized first, of course.

We Noticed

....A new women's uniform, one of the smartest yet seen, is beginning to appear in the streets of London. It is worn by members of the Women's Voluntary Services, 574,000 of whom drive cars, wash dishes, cook canteen meals, and look after evacuees without receiving any pay.

....The great success of the Women's Voluntary Services has confounded the gloomy prophets who did not believe that so many women would work satisfactorily without pay. No doubt the transport work that women are doing so effectively will give the men less excuse than ever to shake their fists at "women drivers" when peace comes again to Britain.

In And Out Of the Shops

with FLORA

An alluringly feminine you, dressed simply and quietly in soft, becoming clothes and beautiful colors suggestive of perfume—that's your future if you let Alice T. Williams help you with your Easter shopping. She knows all about the big fashion news that gives you a younger, more lissome look, the new feminine feeling for softer, prettier fashions in dressmaker suits, suavely cut coats and dreamy dresses—her salon features all these gay new fashions in a thrilling collection that is bound to speed up your heart action. The address is 147 Hunter West, and the 'phone number, 5324.

Before you buy so much as a new petticoat for Spring, you will, if you are even moderately wise, decide on what you mean to do with your silhouette. It's not as difficult as it sounds, however, because there is an experienced corsetiere at Robert Fair and Company, Ltd., who will be very glad to help you with your figure problems. The 1940 silhouette means a long-bodied, moulded line with a gently curved, naturally placed waistline, and clothes are especially designed with that figure style in view—so you see how wise it is to have your figure under clever control before you even think about that new Spring frock or suit. Lady Mac, the aristocrat of corsets, is the excellent line this Company carries—they keep the figure firm without giving a sense of restriction or of weight.

In spite of all we've said about suits and coats and hats, etc., it just isn't possible to look your most delightful "best" for Easter unless your hair carries out the picture of feminine loveliness by providing a becoming frame for your face and an equally becoming background for your new Spring hat. That's why we're advising you to make your appointment at the Colin H. Althouse Hairdressing Salon, 406 George street. Completely re-decorated and enlarged just a few weeks ago, it is here that you will be advised of the 1940 influence in hair styles. The war, they tell us at this salon, has brought shorter hair, more waves—big, soft waves—fewer curls, much more femininity in hair styling, and they demonstrate their knowledge by giving patrons a coiffure which is definitely becoming to type, and surprisingly easy to keep in place. The 'phone number is 8475—we warn you to make appointments early.

Are you all in a pre-Easter dither about what to do for a languishing wardrobe? Your worries will disappear as if they had never existed if you shop for accessories at Muriel's Specialty Shoppe—here you'll find an exciting new collection of skirts and jackets, blouses, handbags, scarves, gloves, costume jewelry—all telling a fashion story which will make it fun to be frivolous. Whether you're pastel minded, and many bright girls are this season, or whether you like your outfit darkly tweedy as a Scottish moor, you'll have scope to look for it at the Muriel Shoppe. Tie up your tweeds or flannels with a choice array of companion colors. And here's an idea—if you happen to possess an unassuming dark suit which looks as if its future is negligible, march it into this smart shoppe at 202 Charlotte street and let your imagination get busy on the newest color contrasts.

To the big-hearted and generous, Easter is a time for giving — not quite such abandoned giving as the Christmas brand—but a time to surprise your nearest and dearest with some fresh and pretty trifle. It may be anything—a glamor pin—they're flowery and sweet, but designed to pin on the sternest lapel where they'll be right in fashion—necklets and bracelets (and there are such enchanting ones this Spring), to add that smart touch of brightness to her costume—or a dashing leather handbag, if you want to run into dollars. Giving at Easter is a charming custom and you'll find all sorts of charming inspirations for it at the Elsie Bennett Gift Shop, 354 George Street, 'phone 7345.

Flowers run rampant on the new Easter hats—an ecstatic few minutes spent in Olga Haskill's millinery shop, 312 George street, will convince you of that—her hats are such delightful flatterers that we're sure even the men will adore them. There are sailors in exciting versions—head-hugging charmers—quaint little open-crown hats with flowers to bloom on your brow—all pliable and exciting and, to repeat, decidedly flattering. If you are planning that romantic event, a Spring wedding, Miss Haskill will order your own or your bridesmaids' hats to match the gowns. We saw a number she had designed for a recent fashion show—heart-shaped discs of net edged with tiny velvet blossoms, enormous filmy bows soaring high at the back—the most captivating little affairs imaginable. 3177 is the 'phone number if you'd like to inquire.

DOROTHY DIX

It's Better to Ignore Habits Than to Quarrel Over Them. Husbands —and Wives Should Learn How to Deal With Each Other's Little Ways.

Dear Miss Dix—From childhood I was trained to have a place for everything and have everything in its place. Now at the age of 40 I have married a man of 45 whose practice seems to have been to leave everything that he used just where he had it last. At first I started in to correct this fault of his but I have begun to see that this gives him a mingled hurt and resentful attitude and greatly affects the comradely good will that existed between us. He has many characteristics which are most admirable, but no matter how fond of him I am, it is still no fun coming into a room to turn on the light and stumble over a chair, or his shoes, or hitting my shins on open drawers. I do not want to hurt my husband's feelings. Neither do I desire to be a nagging wife. Yet his disorder is getting on my nerves. What would you do?

ALICE.

ANSWER:

It's lots easier to pick up after a good husband than it is to pick him up in the first place, especially when you are 40 years old. So I would just shut the closet doors that he leaves open, screw the top back on the tooth-paste tube, gather up the newspapers he has spread all over the floor and say nothing about it.

When you think of the women who have husbands who are drunkards, or philanderers, or tightwads, or grouches for one to be a scatterer seems a minor fault, doesn't it, when you come to look at it in its true proportion?

I don't say it isn't aggravating, because it is. It is enough to rile a saint's temper to come into the bathroom that you left spic and span, with the towels all neatly folded on the rack, every bottle and jar and dish in its proper place, and find it looking as if a cyclone had passed through it after hubby has had a bath and a shave. But it won't take you half as long to straighten it up again as it would to bawl him out about it. Nor will it so exhaust you as getting in a rage over his carelessness. There is nothing that leaves you so flat as anger.

The most important thing in all marriage is the way husbands and wives deal with each other's little ways. It is really the pivot on which the whole marriage turns and it decides whether they will be happy or miserable together; whether they will have a peaceful home or one that is a storm centre; mostly whether the husband will be a philanderer or domestic as the house cat, and whether they will go on jogging contentedly to their golden wedding day or fly off to Reno within five years.

It is not crimes that disrupt marriage, as a general thing. It is the little habits of husbands and wives that get on each other's nerves and that they fight over instead of accepting philosophically, and that pave the way to the divorce courts. It is only when a wife can shut her ears when her husband turns on the loud-speaker of the radio when he gets home and smile when he drops cigarette ashes on the floor, or when a husband can wait fifteen minutes for his wife to put on her hat without telling her to hurry up, that a marriage is safe.

Dear Miss Dix—Is it outmoded for a girl to be decent? I am a good-looking young girl, well placed socially and attractive to men. When I meet a young man he nearly always asks for a date, but when he finds out that I refuse to pet and neck and permit the familiarities that boys demand nowadays, that is the last time I see him. They tell me that I am old-fashioned and that I will never be popular. They say that boys expect girls to allow them to take liberties with them and that they think nothing of it, nor have less respect for the girl. Tell me, what is a girl supposed to be like in these days? What do men expect of her? Most important of all, how can a girl travel the strait and narrow path when every man she meets is trying to pull her off of it? Does it pay for a girl to be good in this modern age?

SALLY.

ANSWER:

Yes, Sally, it pays for a girl always to be good It pays in health and happiness. It pays for a girl to be pure, just as it pays for a man to be honest, notwithstanding the fact that the loose-living girls have the most beaux and the thieves seem to make the most money But that is for the short haul. For the long pull of life virtue wins out.

The right sort of men don't pick out play girls for wives Such girls usually marry men who have as little principle as they have themselves, and as neither trusts the other they almost always land in the divorce courts. And if the girl who has been many men's girl does fall in love with a decent man she has either to endure the shame of confessing her past to him and risk losing him, or else go through life in fear of his finding out about her.

I admit that life is very difficult for the girls of today who have high ideals that they are trying to live up to. They have all the craving for pleasure, the desire for the admiration of men. They want to love and be loved just as women have always done from the beginning of time. Now they are in a measure debarred from gratifying these instincts by the breaking down of the moral code that so long has been the protection of the young girl. No longer does man's chivalry make the girl whose skirts are clean an object for veneration. His bestiality makes her muddying them the price of his attentions.

But do not be tempted to follow in the footsteps of the girls who are throwing their caps over the windmill for the sake of having good times and being popular. And console yourself with the thought that the man who demands that you sacrifice your honor for him is a cad who is not worth having. Sooner or later you will have your reward, for there are still honorable men left who want wives, like Caesar's, who are above reproach.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, March 20.

The most advanced ideals and ambitious objectives are under excellent promise of fulfillment and attainment, according to strong lunar influences. It is a time for reaching toward high goals with assurrance and initiative, although there may be disturbances, disruption and lack of support from expected sources. Elders or some tricky circumstances in connection with old associations may prove the testing factor.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of eventual success in attaining some very ambitious purpose and high aim in spite of stubborn opposition, sudden upsets and the want of co-operation from desired individuals. Others just as powerful and more willing may step into the gap, if efficiency, important objectives and sincerity, together with personal popularity and prestige, prove convincing.

A child born on this day may have splendid talents and ingenuity, with high aims as well as a good disposition and warm temperament, which will aid it in attracting powerful support in putting over its ambitions.

'Covered-up' For Evening

Long-sleeved frocks with demure high necks or sophisticated cowl treatments are among the newer Spring fashions for evening wear. Shown with simple sweater blouse tops over slinky skirts, they have a simplicity that makes them adaptable for any informal evening occasion.

Lovely sheer frocks, with long sleeves and tightly molded waistlines, have full dancing skirts. Simple "little girl" collars or sheer yokes on other models make them wearable and becoming. Shirtwaist fashions, too, will be worn this Spring for dinner and informal evening. Dainty white shirtwaists in exquisite sheer embroidery or lace are shown with wide sweeping or slim hanging dark skirts, looking very "gay ninety" with their full puffed or long sleeves. Wide belt add the tight-waisted look women want this Spring, and occasional sashes brighten these costumes.

FOR HANDBAGS

Specially devised for the handbag are some little glass capsules of sun-tan oil. The oil comes in two consistencies, for a dark or a light sunburn, and each globule holds enough for one application. One gets at the oil by snapping off the end of the container.

The Swing of Victory

The most reliable estimates received from the other Provinces indicate that the Liberals will have a minimum of 121 seats outside of Ontario. A majority over all other parties is assured by 123 seats.

There are in Ontario 82 seats. It will, therefore, be evident, that Dr. Manion has not the slightest chance of forming a Government even if he rallied to his support all the C.C.F., Social Credit and members of other parties elected.

It is now clear that in supporting Rollie Glover you are supporting the candidate of a Leader who will form a Government to be in power for the next four or five years.

By all means, therefore, give Rollie a rousing majority in Peterborough West. The people of this constituency want a representative in the Government, not in the Opposition.

Mr. Hepburn's Influence

The Ottawa Journal says it has heard the claim advanced that the "antics of Mr. Hepburn must hurt Dr. Manion." Who made the claim is not stated, but the Journal turns its energies to proving that no such thing could take place. There will be no lumps raised on the skin of Dr. Manion, and the Ottawa paper considers it as evidence that Mr. King cannot maintain unity in the Liberal party, and by inference leaves the feeling that Mr. King may suffer by the actions of the Ontario Premier.

Of course there is room for retrospect if one has the inclination to mentally wander back to the days when Mr. Hepburn was stumping the country telling what a happy time there was going to be when all the governments of the Dominion, Federal and Provincial, would be Liberal. Something slipped and it is hardly worth while at the moment bothering what it was, but it was sufficient to cause Mr. Hepburn to differ widely with Prime Minister King. For a time he was closely in touch with the Premier of Quebec to see if provincial strength could be made greater in that way.

Since the beginning of the present campaign Mr. Hepburn has not been on the platform, but he has been very much to the front. His vote of censure against the King Government will go down in history and the result of the election on the 26th will have something to do with the size of the place given to the incident.

Mr. Hepburn has been more opposed to the King government than he has been favorable to Dr. Manion. But the question is: What does it all amount to? He is not as effective in the campaign as Col. Drew is and has been for the Conservatives. All Mr. Hepburn has done is to make it abundantly certain that he is opposed to Mr. King, and that was quite well-known months ago.

We believe that the influence of Mr. Hepburn will be hard to trace or identify one way or the other in this election. He has not been able to split the Liberal party in the Dominion, but he has been able to store up a session for the future where Ontario Liberals will have to have an accounting. Certain it is he has not, as the Ottawa Journal seeks to suggest, done any damage to Dr. Manion. Mr. Hepburn has not produced clarity in his own cabinet position, where members are apparently loyal to him, and they can also be loyal to Mr. King if they so desire. The Ontario Premier has been seeking only one thing, and that is the turning of Liberal support in Ontario away from Prime Minister King. Our belief is that he has failed and failed so much that he has actually strengthened the position of the Federal Prime Minister in the province.

They're On The Voters' List

At least three enemy aliens are on the voters' list at Woodstock, according to a report in the Sentinel-Review. They are among the 50 in Woodstock and district who have to report at intervals to the police. The returning officer of the riding said he would apply immediately for a ruling regarding the steps to be taken.

Such an individual has no right to be on the voters' list, and not having that right, would not have the right to vote. If he did apply for a ballot the deputy returning officer could refuse to give him one; he could also be challenged by any agent present in the polling booth. If the individual were not stopped by any such process and went ahead and voted, then he would be liable to action afterward.

The regulations as to who can vote in the election are quite direct and easy to understand:

Of the full age of 21 years.

A British subject by birth or naturalization.

Ordinarily resident in the country for 12 months before polling day.

Resident in the electoral district since the date of the issuance of the writ for the election, which in this case was January 27.

The individual who cannot comply with those requirements is not entitled to vote, nor is it advisable that an attempt should be made to do so.

No Chance For Them

Reports have come for two days from St. Clairsville, Ohio, telling of a disaster in the Willow Grove coal mine. There were at first count 71 miners listed as being unaccounted for. They were close to three miles from the shaft, and reports indicated that officials had high hopes of being able to reach them. At this writing there has been no more word, but the final announcement will be that the 71 men are dead.

And they were dead shortly after the explosion took place. That can be accepted as a fact because reference is made to "after-damp" being in the mine, and that is air from which all the oxygen has been burned. It is deadly poison and there is nothing else for the men to breathe.

There is also reference to men working with gas masks and oxygen tanks attached in an effort to repair the brattice work, and brattice work is the system of ventilation in the mine. It had been destroyed in the explosion, and therefore there was no ventilation in operation. Not a thing except that deadly "after-damp."

Why it is that mine officials, following an explosion, persist in sending out reports that rescue workers hope to reach some of the imprisoned men—in a mine where "after-damp" has been created—is difficult to explain. We have seen miners being brought out of workings after such an explosion, and they were always dead, and often enough there was not a mark on them. Their safety lamps will not burn after the oxygen has been taken from the air, and there they are, thousands of feet from safety, groping in darkness the like of which cannot be described or understood. And nothing to breathe except the rankest of poison—"after-damp." They are all dead while those reports are being sent out about hope being entertained for their rescue.

In British Papers

There is undoubtedly censorship in Britain regarding news dealing with the movement or disposition of troops, but it does not apply to the newspapers when they think there is something which needs to be said about the progress of the war.

German raiders appeared at Scapa Flow and undoubtedly inflicted damage, and the newspaper writers want to know why. They were assured some time ago that Scapa Flow had been abandoned as a naval base and the plain statement is now that there has not been sufficient protection there otherwise German air raiders would not have been able to make their attack and return in safety.

The Daily Mail says it is time the "government arrested the creeping paralysis which is dulling our movements, our voice and our resolution." The Daily Herald remarks: "We must not seem to appear to be merely waiting on events and watching the gyrations of Ribbentrop. We must plan, foresee, prepare and direct the progress of the war. We must force it into the mold of victory."

There is never a word like that raised in Germany, Italy or Russia because the papers are saying only what the governments desire to have said, and self-criticism is not in their line. British people for years have said what they desired to say, and they are not departing from that course even in war time.

Hard Winter Weather

Reports coming from the Western section of the province bring with them the conviction that Central Ontario does not know it has passed through a winter.

A farmer and his wife wanted to take their daughter of 15 years home. She had been in Guelph hospital for an operation and was ready to leave. Then it was found that two miles of the road after it left the highway was not open. Township authorities brought a snowplow into action, but two axles in the machine were broken before a mile had been cleared. Several teams of horses and a number of shovellers were engaged and the last mile was made passable.

In Goderich township there was worry enough when it was found snowplows could not open the road to a home where a funeral was due to be held. It was necessary to get the snowplow in action and a new road was opened through fields, and several fences had to be taken down before it was possible to reach an open highway. In that way Central Ontario has been particularly fortunate this winter.

He Would Try a Fine

Ald. Donald Fleming of Toronto is bringing a new resolution before City Council dealing with the locking of cars when parked on streets. He desires to have machinery set up by which the car owner who does not lock his car shall be subject to a fine. All other efforts have proved no good and that is why the fine is mentioned.

Possibly drivers of cars will protest, but the plan has its points, and they are sound as can be. If the driver does not lock his car and it is stolen—what then? The owner notifies the police and expects to have the whole machinery set in operation to go and search for his car. If some officer spots it and there is one of those 70-miles-an-hour chasing scenes across the city, then it is the careless driver who left his car unlocked who is actually responsible.

In the old days of horse and buggy a man going into town tied his horse to a hitching post to make certain it would stay there. In this age of modern cars there are keys and it is no trick at all to take the key from the ignition and also lock the car door. If that were always done the number of cars stolen would be brought down to next to nothing at all. If a man were fined for leaving his car unlocked that decidedly careless habit would soon vanish.

Makes No Difference

There was the unusual case of the transient who while drunk went to the local police station and asked for a night's lodging. He apparently was under the impression (or delusion) that if he did that he could not be arrested and sent down for being drunk. He had twice served time on that charge and a third offence would have meant 90 days in jail, and with spring not far off that was not attractive.

It may be the police were not keen on holding him and they may have been hoping he would leave Peterborough in the morning. But the fact that he went to the station and asked for a night's lodging would actually have no bearing on the case. If the man was drunk, he had been drunk on the street and that is a public place, and he would have been subject to arrest.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There have been 2,000 cases of mumps reported in Toronto since the first of the year and what a swell time all those little folk have been having.

A newspaper heading reads: "Nickel Heads Silent." It might be well to explain the meaning was that officials of the International Nickel Co. had nothing to say.

Peterborough was bombed the other day by an airplane, but it was dropping nothing more harmful than political pamphlets. The local alarm was not sounded, and when the plane had left there was no "all-clear" warning.

At Natick, Mass., it has been decided to make the road going past the schoolhouse bumpy in order to prevent speeding by motor cars. Another simple plan would be for the officers to make the going bumpy for them in the nearest court.

Toronto civic employees since 1910 have been receiving a retiring allowance, $12 per week for men and $9 for women, and now that is to be discontinued. If the scheme was wrong in the first place it should never have been started, and if it was right it should not now be discontinued.

Saskatchewan Legislature has asked that the Dominion Government secure an audit of organizations which are making appeals for funds for war purposes. The nationally known organizations have nothing to conceal, and the lesser ones should be pleased to reveal everything.

The cost of milk is not growing greater for the consumer, but the cost of producing it is becoming greater for the farmer because the price of feed stuff is higher. Truth is any unswing in prices has not yet reached the pockets of the dairy farmer.

Discussing the lateness of this season, a farmer told the Examiner he had several times had oats in by the 10th of April. Mention was made by another farmer of the year when planting was taking place on the 26th of March, and he believed that was about the year 1910. We have not been able to fix that date exactly but undoubtedly there was a season around that time which set something like an all-time record.

CONFESSION

¶ I have my spade, and rake and hoe, just longing for a chance to go, I yearn to touch the soil; I long to work for all I'm worth, and operate in mother earth, be tired from honest toil.

¶ I know exactly what I'll grow, I close my eyes and see each row, my planning's all been done; I fairly yearn to get out there, and sniff again the balmy air, I'd think of it as fun.

¶ I have some seeds all laid away, I'd love to put them in today, they'll range around my shack; I've got the feeling sure enough, and really it seems rather tough, the weather holds me back.

¶ If we just had a spell of rain, and if three days of thawing came, why then we'd lose our snow; and then of work there'd be a sound, I'd gouge deep holes within the ground, just itching now to go

¶ It always comes this time of year, it strikes me as uncommon queer, no reason can be found; it's when the snow is piled out there, I long to sniff the balmy air, and dig holes in the ground.

¶ And I admit it plain enough, when weather is no longer rough, and I can work all day; enthusiasm seems to wane, I fear my back will spring a pain—and plans fade clean away.

Much Is Needed To Live Through Trying Times

The work of destruction begins before the nineteenth century, continues through it and is enormously accelerated in the twentieth; the last forty years have been an age of demolition. Think of the popular writers of this period, its 'sophists' as a Greek would have called them, the men who were interested in life and society and human nature and wrote about them, and whose works were read in every educated home—writers like Shaw, Wells, Arnold Bennett, Galsworthy, Lytton Strachey, and somewhat later Aldous Huxley, who in their generation took the place and filled the role played in the Victorian Age by Mill, Carlyle, Ruskin and Matthew Arnold. The contrast is immense, not least in the fact that the moderns are wholly destructive, if not in intention at least in effect. Most of them perhaps had no wish to be anything else; but even Wells, inapite of his constructive instinct, has in fact constructed nothing. They did their work well, so well indeed, that the younger generation, brought up to see the Victorian Age through their eyes, has a curiously inaccurate idea of it. Its foibles and weaknesses and inconsistencies were ruthlessly exposed; its deep and fruitful beliefs were either misrepresented or ignored; but in any case nothing was substituted for them.

In some sense the process was necessary. Each generation, so long as there is life in the human spirit, must and will criticise its predecessor, in order to live its own life. The ground must be ever anew ploughed over and broken up, to give strength and fertility to the new crop. And the nineteenth century was a time for deep ploughing. The world had to reconcile its life with the new forces of scientific thought which after transforming our views of the material universe, was bound to turn from nature to human life, and there to deeply affect traditional views in religion, morals and politics. The results in many respects are good. We have got rid of the Victorian drawing-room and Victorian prudery and Victorian feudalism. Some ridiculous and some unclean spirits have gone out of us. But with them went better spirits.

When the work was done, what was left? Among educated persons, an important minority firmly held Christian beliefs, and a majority in various stages of intellectual dissolution, many of them vaguely theistic, most perhaps believing that Christian dogma was untenable but that the teaching of Christ should be accepted, others simply agnostic.

The kings of modern thought are dumb
Silent they sit and not content
And wait to see the future come.

Of all moral (and perhaps of all intellectual) positions, the agnostic's is the weakest. It is a position for fine weather, a house built on the sand; but when the rains descend and the floods come and the winds blow and beat on it, the lack of foundation in the house is revealed. There has been nothing more disappointing in recent times than the failure of the intellectuals as a class to stand up to the dictators. They have denounced, protested, complained, collapsed.

OUTSIDE the educated world, thought does not work directly; its influence is through the traditions, habits, conventions, taboos which it creates or destroys. In this world too, we find dissolution. The form and order and rule of life which grew up under Christian influences have been so weakened that any strong economic or other force can make a breach in it. No clear rule of life has taken its place. For centuries Church-going was the great agent in imposing some unity of outlook, if not a universal philosophy of life. It was much to hear week by week, even with unheeding ears, the word of the sacred books of the greatest of religions. Today cinema-going has replaced church-going for the masses of the population. It is no equivalent. And so we get our modern civilisation—a civilisation of means without ends, with an ample body but with a meagre soul, with a rich inheritance but without clear values or a ruling principle—a world of which the characteristics figure is Plato's 'democratic man', or Peer Gynt, or the man in the parable from whom the unclean spirit went out, who went through dry places seeking rest and finding none.

All this may seem too pessimistic, too apprehensive. There is so much goodness in England. Yes, but is there a philosophy behind it? 'No dogma, no Dean' said Disraeli to Dean Stanley, and it is even truer to say 'No metaphysic, nor morals' —at least in a world which admits the rights of reason. There is a phrase in Plato which exactly describes our condition—'habit without an intellectual principle'. There is nothing bad about habit; all people live chiefly by it and no one can live without it, and the English 'habit' the national outlook and tradition, is perhaps our greatest national asset. Yet Plato recurs to the danger of living 'by habit without an intellectual principle'. His point is that mere habit is very well in settled times, but that it does not stand up to severe stresses; and, as a man who lived in a world almost as difficult as our own, he had reason to know. Recent events in Europe confirm his belief. In 1930 Germany was a highly educated nation, living in the traditions of European religion, morals and civilisation; in 1940 it is a country where truth, liberty, justice and mercy are forgotten words. In the past these virtues had been created, guaranteed and reinforced by the metaphysic of Christian belief: that had imperceptibly worn away, and the house that seemed so stable proved to be without foundations and, struck by the storm, collapsed. It was a mere 'habit without an intellectual principle'. What happens, in the experience of all of us, to individuals, happened to a people, and for the same reason. Let us not be too confident of our own immunity from a like fate, incredible and remote as it seems. It is easy in a decent world to behave decently, because most people around are doing the same, but change their conditions, and men change with them. Chameleons cannot be confident of retaining their color, and in a difficult world something more enduring is needed than a habit of good conduct.

• If A Man Asks For His Appendix!

AN INTERESTING point was mentioned at a committee of the Saskatchewan Legislature when a member stated that a man complained that a surgeon refused to allow him to have some part of his "interior" which had been cut out. The surgeon had sent the part to a clinic for analysis, and the patient had a suspicion that there was nothing wrong with it. The man wanted to know why he couldn't have it; it was part of him; therefore he felt he had a right to it, good, bad or indifferent.

This is an issue we have not seen raised before and seems to be a question of professional ethics. Few people, we imagine, who have a sector of their anatomy enucleated, or a leg or an arm removed, want to see it; even fewer want to preserve it as a sort of family relic. At the same time we see no legal barrier to allowing a man to have "what is his'n." If he demands that the surgeon hand over his appendix, surely he is entitled to it to parade it to his friends or to gloat over having got rid of the pesky thing. Small boys sometimes take a pride in hoarding their extracted teeth. We have heard it said that a boy liked to look at it and think it was aching without being able to hurt him.

Perhaps it is an unhealthy desire to keep diseased or damaged parts of one's physical structure; but it would be interesting to have the legal position clarified on principle. Is your appendix yours, or the surgeon's? — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

• Men With Remarkable Memories

A WRITER in the Yorkshire Post compares the present day conditions in cattle markets of Northern England with the days of the old type of cattle dealer, "who knew every type of beast he had with him, its weight, its pen, and the price it ought to fetch, and who sold them all without making a single note.

"The late Mr. Sam Wright, known all over the North of England, was about the last of these legendary figures. Sometimes he would bring to Leeds markets as many as 400 beasts, from Ireland, Scotland and Yorkshire. They were penned in different places, but he could go straight to the pen of any one mentioned by a would-be buyer."

Possession of such a memory is rare, but far from unique. Several instances have been recorded of Canadians. Some forty years ago, or less, there was said to be a night station agent at North Bay, whose memory for figures was phenomenal.

It was said that he would watch a long freight train, perhaps forty cars, run through his yard, and then go into his office and write down every car number correctly. These car numbers were never less than five figures.

Also he could make a tou. of the yard at night with his lantern, note the numbers of all the cars standing on the sidings, never less than several score, and make out a correct list of these on his return to the station master's room. This remarkable man was know as Leo, and he was said to be of French-Canadian and Indian extraction.

About a century ago there was a merchant and public man in St. John, N.B., named John R. Partelow. He was treasurer of New Brunswick, a long while before that British possession became part of Canada. Captains of ships trading with the West Indies averred that when they landed their cargoes of barrels of rum and hogsheads of molasses on Partelow's wharf, the proprietor would stroll out from his counting room, casually inspect the rows of barrels and returning to his office write down accurately the marks on every one of the packages.

Partelow was said to have been of a physical make-up corresponding to his mental. On one occasion, it was declared, he had driven a team of horses from St. John to Fredericton, some 70 miles, with the thermometer considerably below zero, holding the reins in his bare hands.

• Say, What's The Fare To Lubbock?

THERE'S something about Lubbock—

Consider the news that this Texas town has won the title of "Cleanest Town in Texas" for the tenth year in a row. That could be explained by a sort of co-operative "all-for-one, one-for-all" enthusiasm so often found in communities of which citizens are proud. But there's something else about this town deep in the cow country of the South Plains.

There's not a millionaire in Lubbock, says a usually reliable source, yet prosperity is an accepted fact. One proof is that during the past three years Lubbock has erected 1,750 new homes. Evidently, notes Christian Science Monitor, the people who go there like to stay there. But why?

Possibly the fact that Lubbock enjoys the lowest tax rate of any Texas town over 20,000 has something to do with it. But perhaps that's an effect rather than a cause—like the other fact that Lubbock has the lowest electric lighting rate of any town over 1,000 in the State from its municipally-owned plant, which also pays dividends into the city treasury. This seems to be a lead in the direction of the City Hall—and there we find a Commission-Manager form of government. Can this be one of the underlying reasons for community civic-mindedness and loyalty, expressed in such ways as winning ten Clean-Up Campaign trophies?

What's the fare to Lubbock, anyhow?

SAVAGES AT HEART

(Letter in the Spectator, London)

THE GERMANS, considered from a Christian's rather than a scientist's standpoint, have never been properly civilized; their leaders are and have been savages at heart. They are at the stage of the British in the eighteenth century, when we made fortunes from slave-running and child labor, or of the French in 1789. They were never civilized by the Romans, had merely a veneer of Christianity in the Middle Ages, and are too akin in manners and outlook to their yet savage Slavonic neighors to the East to avoid being corrupted by Tartaric and Siberian barbarism.

SUNKEN TREASURE

We don't know that the hunt for the gold which went down with the Laurentic when that ship was sunk by a mine off the Irish coast in 1917 was carried on over a period of seven years and that the job is regarded by experts as one of the outstanding salvage achievements. Out of the 3,211 gold bars which went to the bottom with the White Star liner divers recovered the almost unbelievable number of 3,186.—New York Sun.

WHO CARES?

THE International Joint commission, made up of three Americans and three Canadians, will consider in April the conflicting claims of Canadian and North Dakota ranchers to water rights along the Souris river, which flows into North Dakota from Saskatchewan and loops back into Manitoba.

Nobody cares except the ranchers themselves, and they take calmly for granted that whatever solution the commission arrives at will be satisfactory to both sides.

The unimportance of this news is the only significant thing about it. Such a dispute could be whipped into a good size border war if it happened, say, on a German boundary or a Russian frontier. — Minneapolis Star-Journal.

THIS CHANGING WAR

THE PEOPLE'S WAR

LEST you have been led astray in your thinking by some of the speeches of recent days, we would have you remember:

This is not Prime Minister King's war.

It is not Hon. J. R. Manion's war.

It is not Hon. N. M. Roger's war.

Neither is the war a personal hobby of either Premier Hepburn or George A. Drew.

The war is not the private property of any politician.

This war is something the people of Canada have to see through to the bitter end. The people are anxious to do their part, if the politicians will only let them get ahead with the job of winning the war.—Windsor Star.

Dewart Tells Why Rangers Not Mobilized

Colonel John A. Dewart, M.C., supplemented at Lakefield last night the address he gave a week ago at S.S. No. 3, Otonabee, in his support of the Liberal candidate, R. M. Glover.

Colonel Dewart repeated the statement he made at the nomination of Mr. Glover that he considered everything possible had been done in the circumstances by the King Government "to vigorously push forward Canada's efforts in this war to date." Further on he declared that the Hon. Dr. Manion "has been telling you half truths that do not tell the full story, and I regret to say that we are getting the same thing in this constituency."

After the Liberal nomination convention at which Mr. Glover was chosen as the candidate, Colonel Dewart said he had left the city for a short holiday, and during that time an advertisement was published in the Examiner over the name of Gordon K. Fraser, which Colonel Dewart said was stamped with half truth.

He quoted as follows: "Colonel J. A. Dewart's enthusiasm for the war effort of the King Government will scarcely be shared by his fellow-officers in Peterborough. As a matter of fact this city seems to be entirely off the war map. Colonel Dewart's old regiment, the Prince of Wales Rangers, a keen and efficient unit, has been entirely neglected, and its rifles taken away and replaced by ancient Ross weapons."

"The point is this," Colonel Dewart said last night, "that statement contains half truths conveying the idea that something is not right. It says that my enthusiasm is not shared by other officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers. That is no responsibility of mine. Each officer has his own enthusiasm and his own mind to make up for himself. The officers know the circumstances as I have related them, and I don't think Mr. Fraser knows how they have made up their minds.

In regard to the regiment being neglected, I have stated that only one-third of the Militia units have been called up so far. The Prince of Wales Rangers is as keen to go as all the other units comprising the six divisions which were planned by the general staff before the war and to have the honor and glory to be first in the battle line."

Nine Units Not Called.

Colonel Dewart said that as only one-third of the Militia units in Canada had been called up for the first two divisions, the designation being on geographical lines, and the Prince of Wales Rangers were not included, the advertisement conveyed an innuendo that cast an aspersion on one of the finest regiments in Canada, giving to the public mind that something was wrong.

"Why not tell the whole truth?" Colonel Dewart suggested, and explained to his audience that there are two brigades of Militia in Eastern Ontario comprising eleven regiments, five in the Eighth Brigade and six in the Ninth. Only two of these units have been mobilized for active service, the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa and the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment.

Colonel Dewart repeated that these two regiments had been called up according to staff plans, and with regard to the other nine in the two brigades he quoted the line from Milton: "They also serve who only stand and wait." To publish a statement that Peterborough had been neglected in this arrangement was no more true than to say that all the nine regiments not yet mobilized had been neglected.

"Sabotaging Opinion."

"It ill behooves public men to make such aspersions as that, and it is a sorry condition when attempts of that kind are made to poison public opinion. I would call it sabotaging public opinion, exciting suspicion and creating an impression that all is not well.

"After the twenty-sixth of this month I hope that all these wild and irresponsible voices will be stilled and that we can get on with the job."

Colonel Dewart said that the difficulties under which the Canadian Militia tried to operate under successive governments went back to the period after the war when the soldiers returned from France believing that they had fought the war to end wars. They cast off their uniforms and never wanted to get into them again. The League of Nations had been entrusted with the maintaining of peace, but, lacking the support of military force, this instrument was gradually exposed as lacking authority and began to break up.

By the Statute of Westminster Canada was allotted the responsibility of developing its own defences. In the last year of the former administration led by Mackenzie King the Government expended $22,640,000 in 1930 on national defence. It was succeeded by the Bennett Government of which the Hon. Dr. Manion was a Cabinet minister.

Defence Funds Slashed.

In its first year in office the Bennet Government slashed $5,000,000 off th defence appropriation reducing it to $17,571,000. In the second year the depression was being severely felt, but the German menace was growing. In that year the Bennett Government set aside only $13,129,00 for defence.

"That was the year they almost wrecked the air force we had been building up. Seventy-six fliers in the Canadian Air Force were given a few weeks' pay and were told their services were no longer wanted. Did Dr. Manion stand up in the House of Commons and plead with his Leader that Canada should be better prepared for war? There is no record in Hansard that he did.

As soon the King Government came back, th appropriations for defence were immediately increased. In the year 1936-37 the amount was raised from $17,000,000 to $30,000,000."

In contrast with the criticisms made by Hon. Dr. Manion in this campaign, Colonel Dewart quoted the statement made some time ago by the Hon. Dr. Sutherland, Minister of National Defence in the Bennett Government, that the present Government had done all it could considering all the circumstances.

New Battle Uniforms.

"You hear the charge about the same old uniforms we had from the last war, and that is true. The Militia used them in training for the last twenty years. They were patched up and kept in as good condition as possible, and it was not until a few days before the war was declared that the Canadian Government got the patterns for the new battle uniforms. We had 50,000 of the old uniforms. To-day we have the men of our first two divisions equipped with the new battle uniforms, and other supplies are coming forward for the men of our new units."

W. W. Leonard was chairman of the meeting at Lakefield, and the speakers were Ralph Standish, introducing the candidate, Mr. Glover, Colonel Dewart, and R. I. Ferguson of Toronto.

Others on the platform were David Webster, N. A. Moore, Harry T. Hill, Mrs. Clifford Galvin and Miss Viva Shearer. Miss Jean Miller sang a new war song, "We Are Coming Over," concluding with a smart tap dance. She was accompanied by Miss Eva Hendren. Ed. Shortt entertained with a monologue, and William Edworthy played a series of piano numbers before the meeting opened.

Safe After Mine Disaster

A dazed, blanket-draped miner is shown being led from the mouth of the Willow Grove Mine, St. Clairsville, Ohio, where disaster struck, burying nearly 200 miners. Two rescuers were killed while attempting to reach the entombed miners and officials of the company stated that 69 men were trapped with no hope of their safe recovery.

Statesmen's Snapshots

He is better known to the people of the Dominion than is his party. Yet ten years ago he was still a political nonentity.

It was not until 1931 that he flashed over the political horizon. Never having been in public life before, he was nevertheless made Canadian Minister to Washington by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

In taking over his new post, Mr. Herridge replaced an old college chum in the form of Hon. Vincent Massey. The grandson and son of Presbyterian ministers, he took over one of the most important posts Canada has to offer when he was only 43.

Born in Ottawa, raised within the shadow of Parliament Hill, educated at the University of Toronto, he was well on the way towards making an important mark in law circles when the world war broke out.

Immediately he left for England, obtained a commission in the Fort Garry Horse and on promotion in the field. Later her was transferred to the 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade and during the latter part of the war served as a brigade major.

Mentioned many times in dispatches for bravery, he was awarded the military cross, bar to the military cross and the distinguished service order.

He was first married to a granddaughter of the late J. R. Booth, lumber king of the Ottawa Valley, but was left a widower in 1925.

His acquaintance with Mr. Bennett began in 1930 when they travelled from Ottawa to Montreal to attend a funeral.

He immediately impressed Mr. Bennett as having a great mind. When the federal election of 1930 took place, Mr. Herridge was Mr. Bennett's "chief of staff." After the victory, Mr. Bennett gave him much of the credit for the results, and shortly afterwards took him to imperial conference.

After the defeat of the Bennett regime in 1935, Mr. Herridge returned to Ottawa. A year later he was being mooted as a coming leader of the Conservative party. Again in 1938 his name was mentioned as a possible leader.

But just a year ago he formally launched his new party "to get rid of the old parties." He is 54.

MRS. CHARLOTTE M. WALSH

MILLBROOK, March 19 (ENS)—St. Andrew's United Church was well filled on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., for the funeral service of Mrs. Charlotte M. Walsh, a great-loved member of earlier years, whose death took place, with comparative suddenness on Thursday, March 14, in her ninetieth year, at the home of her youngest son, George Bradfield Walsh, K.C., 25 Old Forest Hill Road, Toronto.

Mrs. Walsh was born and brought up on the family homestead, just south of the village, and was a daughter of the late William Payne, and his wife, Mary Fair, and practically all of her life until recent years, had been spent in Millbrook or its immediate vicinity.

Previous to her marriage to the late James Wesley Walsh, well-known merchant of Millbrook several years ago, she had followed the profession of teaching, giving to this matter of instructing the young the same careful attention, and efficient service, which were characteristic of everything she undertook throughout her entire life. A devoted Christian wife and mother, Mrs. Walsh had a life-long membership in the Methodist and United churches, and was faithful in attendance and support; for many years she was a teacher in the local Sunday School, and members of her classes, both men and women, now widely scattered over the world, bear witness to changed lives because of her consecrated instruction.

A life member of the Women's Missionary Society, she was instrumental in having the local Auxiliary organized in St. Andrew's church, the monthly meetings being held in her home over a long period of years; she was also vitally interested in the W.C.T.U., and any other recognized undertakings in the work of God's Kingdom. Since the death of her husband, about twenty-three years ago, Mrs Walsh had travelled extensively from Montreal to Vancouver, making her home with her sons, and visiting other relatives.

Mrs Walsh was the last of a family of eight children, four sons and four daughters, the immediate surviving relatives including three sons, Dr. C. W. Walsh, of Vancouver, B.C.; Alfred H., Manager of the St. Catherine St. branch of the Bank of Toronto, Montreal, and George Bradfield, prominent lawyer in Toronto; a daughter, Margaret, died in infancy; there are eight grandchildren, and a number of nieces and nephews. Two brothers, George and Albert Payne, and two half-brothers, Robert and William Harding; and three sisters, Mrs. (Rev.) David Winter. Mrs William Burton and Mrs. James Cochrane were the members of the family previously deceased.

A service at the home of Mr. T. B. Walsh, K.C., Toronto, on Friday, at 8.30 p.m., preceded the public funeral service in St. Andrew's church, Millbrook, on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., being assisted by Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson, B.A., rector of the parish of Cavan, and Rev. T. Anson Halpenny, D.D., of St. Paul's United church, a nephew of Mrs. Walsh (by marriage), who gave the address.

The hymns were all favorites of Mrs. Walsh's, "Unto the Hills," "Spirit of God, descend upon my heart," and "Abide with me," and in his remarks Dr. Halpenny compared Mrs. Walsh's life to that of a leaf, which, in falling, leaves a permanent record and enrichment behind; "When you knew her, you thought of her Saviour; her personality was a reminder of Him." The pall-bearers were all relatives and included Allie Payne, of Toronto; Joseph Porter, of Lakefield; W. E. Ball of Millbrook; Lynden Barclay, and Dr. Borden Marshal, of Toronto. Floral tributes, not all of which were brought here from Toronto, were many and beautiful, and interment was in the family plot, beside her husband, in Gardiner's cemetery.

Among those from outside points who were here for the funeral were: Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Walsh, of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Walsh, of Montreal; Mr. G. B. Walsh and two sons, George and Arthur, of Toronto; Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Halpenny, of Cornwall; Dr. G. O. Barclay, of Otawa; Mr. Wellington Pickup, of Toronto; Mr. William Payne, of Lindsay; Miss Florence Patterson and Mrs. Dawson, of Port Hope; Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Armstrong, of Bailleboro; Mr. and Mrs. J. Porter, of Lakefield, and Miss Helen Porter, B.A., of Toronto.

No Makeup Please

BALTIMORE, Mar. 19 — (AP). — Women were advised to-day not to "pretty up" for the dentist—if he's going to X-ray their teeth.

They risk facial "burns" by the Roentgen rays if they do, Dr. Walter S. Thompson of Los Angeles told the Roentgenology section of the American Dental Association.

Heavy elements such as lead, mercury, and other mineral salts in cosmetics, lotions, and ointments absorb more Roentgen rays than light elements, he explained.

In effect, they form "a layer of mineral substance on the skin which absorbs the rays to such an extent that they cause a burn much more quickly than if the skin were free of these heavy elements."

At 2 o'Clock

This will be the feature meeting of the whole campaign. Colonel Drew's hard-hitting attacks upon the record of the King Government, and his personal radio messages to Mr. King himself have made the fighting leader of the Ontario Conservatives one of the outstanding figures in the election.

He will tell you why King must go, and also why a nation at war NEEDS A NATIONAL GOVERMENT

—The Conservative Victory Committee.

Burnham Given King Support For Ten Years

"Liberals in this riding are circulating handbills quoting a former Conservative as advocating the return of the King Government," said Gordon K. Fraser, National Government candidate for West Peterborough, in addressing a meeting in the Keene Town Hall Monday night. "I do not want to say anything against Mr. Burnham, whose illness we regret," he continued, "but I think almost everyone knows that he has been supporting Mackenzie King for the last ten years and took the stump for him in the election of 1930."

Mr. Fraser had with him at the Keene meeting George S. White, National Government candidate in Hastings-Peterborough, T. P. Lancaster of Havelock, and E. A. Peck, K.C. Harry Reid was chairman and moving pictures formed part of the program.

"There is no reasonable excuse for the high-handed action Mr. King took in abruptly dismissing parliament," declared E. A. Peck, who was the first speaker. "I feel rather bitter about the way in which he on that occasion treated parliament and through parliament the electors of this country." Mr. Peck stressed the fact that this was no ordinary election in which such things as the tariff were the issue; this time Canadians were required to think internationally, to think imperially and he urged his hearers to take the opportunity Mr. King had given them of voting for a National Government. Only a government so constituted was capable of giving Canada the necessary vigorous leadership in this time of national peril.

Of Mr. Fraser the speaker said that he was a capable business man with all the qualifications necessary for an able representative of West Peterborough at Ottawa.

Not The Man.

"I don't think Mr. King is the man to lead this country in war time. He's falling down and failing down badly," declared T. P. Lancaster, former member of the Legislature for Peterborough County. "He turned thumbs down on Britain's request to establish air training schools here because of a constitutional objection to infringing on the status of Canada as a nation. As a result the thousands of airplanes that should now be being built in Canadian factories and giving employment to Canadian workers are being manufactured in the United States. Mr. King should have been less concerned about our status and more concerned about giving aid to the Mother Country."

The speaker urged support for the National Government as the only possible way toward a more vigorous war effort and for Dr. Manion as a vigorous fighting Canadian, a man of action who had the faculty of being able to get things done. He quoted Hon. T. B. McQuesten's statement that the King Government had failed in its war effort.

Predicts 2,500 Majority.

Introduced by Mr. Lancaster who referred to his four-year war record as a buck private in the last war and predicted that he would have 2,500 majority over Rork Ferguson next week, George S. White, National Government candidate in Hastings-Peterborough, began by regretting the fact that while the fate of the Empire was at stake, Canada should take six or eight weeks off to fight a bitter general election.

He appealed for the spirit of unity that existed in 1867 and in 1917 when Canadians were big enough to put country ahead of party. Today the Liberal party was thinking in terms of party advantage first which meant that the only way to achieve real Canadian unity and a proper war effort was to elect the National Government party led by Dr. Manion. England, France, New Zealand, Australia all had national governments because the dire necessity of such a form of government had been recognized in those countries.

"I am only going to deal with facts seen with my own eyes and within my own personal knowledge," said Mr. White, in discussing the equipment of Canada's troops. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in which he said there were 500 men from his own riding had been short of uniforms and the old great coats with which they had been furnished were moth-eaten. "The webb equipment they had," he said, "was what we had brought home from overseas in 1914 and had been stored in Madoc, Picton and Trenton."

The Soldiers' Vote.

"Practically every enlisted soldier," Mr. White declared, "will vote against the King government because of the lack of clothing and equipment and the manner in which dependent allowances were held up."

The Government, he said, knew what was coming and that perhaps explained why the granting of leave at this time was making it difficult for the soldiers to get in their votes. "I think this is one of the meanest, cheapest tricks that could have been played on Canada's soldiers," Mr. White said.

"I am glad to be here tonight to say a word for Mr. Fraser, whom I have known for some time. I don't know anyone better qualified to represent this riding and I hope he and I will be going down to Ottawa together," the speaker concluded.

Candidate Speaks.

Gordon K. Fraser was the final speaker. "I have heard it said," he declared, "that I have been spending money like a drunken sailor to get elected. There is just this that a drunken sailor spends his own money, whereas the money that Mr. King's government has been squandering is yours and mine."

Mr. Fraser reiterated his declaration at previous meetings that Dr. Manion was opposed to conscription and that he himself had the same view. "Considering the small number of troops that were secured through conscription in the last war it would not be worth while splitting the country in half. The film "Canada at War," Mr. Fraser charged was being used for propaganda purposes and he gave Premier Hepburn credit for having the nerve to stop its showing in Ontario. To illustrate what he called the political nature of the attempt to show the film, the speaker quoted from an advertisement published in Vancouver in which it was claimed that everything the picture showed was the achievement of one man, Ian Mackenzie.

The King Government, he charged, had done absolutely nothing for the farmer nor had it done anything to solve unemployment or for youth. If there were no war in the offing this question of doing something to give the youth of Canada a new deal would have been a main issue. In that connection he reminded them that Dr. Manion's platform included a forward youth policy under the direction of a Minister of Youth Welfare.

Making It Look Like The Real Thing

Mining Neglected

At Geraldton, Ont., Charles McCrea, former Ontario Conservative Minister of Mines, charged that the Dominion administration of Prime Minister Mackenzie King had neglected the mining industry and that the Excess Profits Tax was a "death blow" to new mines.

"It is time we had someone down in Ottawa with knowledge of the mining industry to safeguard it throughout Canada," Mr. McCrea said.

Canada was a "prize" at stake in the war and the King government had made inadequate preparations for the conflict. Mr. King had stopped completion of national arsenals which would have provided needed armaments and equipment for Canadian troops.

At St. Lambert, Que., Hon. Sam Gobeil, former Conservative Postmaster-General, said that to obtain victory in the war "we must accept all the sacrifices, including conscription, if that be necessary."

"Conscription is the logical conclusion of participation," Mr. Gobeil said. "The Prime Minister, the Leader of the Opposition, the Liberal and Conservative Leaders are all against conscription. That is their right. But it is not logical.

"But, when they go to the point of saying that there will be no conscription, they go much too far, and I fear they are letting themselves be carried away by the desire to gild the pill for the electors."

Favors Aiding In War.

Participation in the war—up to the limit of conscription—is "a sacred duty," Works Minister Cardin said at Rigaud, Que. Mr. Cardin said, "I am in favor of Canada's participation and I know this is no popular thing to preach here in the Province of Quebec.

"Answering the call of duty is not always the thing that draws plaudits. But I am convinced that our participation is a sacred duty—participation, that is, up to the limit of conscription."

The Liberal Government had urged participation in the war not because Britain had requested assistance, but because Canada was alert to her responsibilities as a free nation.

Mr. Cardin asked if it were not true that under British Dominion French-Canadians—and all Canadians for that matter—had reached the highest pinnacle of liberty. If religious principles and the unalienable right of language had remained inviolate in Canada it was due primarily to the protection of the British flag.

No Partial Solutions

The commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland had this to say of yesterday's Hitler-Mussolini conference:

"In no way is German-Italian co-operation limited to partial solutions and to warding off English attempts at befuddling the issues. It is evidently to serve as a focus for a more far-reaching combination through which the European order is to be placed on new national and social foundations.

"In the German view, Russia too belongs in such a system of order. Russia has shown a remarkable understanding for Italy's attitude and for Italian awareness of manoeuvres by British-French diplomacy in the Balkans and the Near East.

"It may therefore be concluded that a far-going unanimity exists among the three great powers, Germany, Italy and Russia, not only in a defensive sense but also in the constructive sense of desiring to rear a new European order."

Russo-Italian Hookup?

There is talk in Berlin of a Russo-Italian non-aggression pact.

As a new development in Germany's conservation of material for war, orders were issued for immediate registration of all bells made of bronze. The orders did not specify church bells but it was assumed they too would be sacrificed—provided the need arises. Church bells were forged into cannon in the First Great War.

Plans for confiscation of the bells and guarantees of substitute metals to cast new ones were to be announced later. The decree promised full indemnities at the end of the war, and called for registration of all copper being used in house construction. It said the measures were "to create a metal reserve necessary to the conduct of the war for an indefinite period."

While the German high command account of the week-end bombing raid on Scapa Flow claimed three battleships and one cruiser had been bombed and damaged, the German news agency's review conceded some of the four may have been among those previously claimed to have been disabled.

(The Admiralty in London announced "minor damage" to one unidentified warship as a result of the raid on Scapa Flow.)

division of Balkan spheres of influence.

Diplomatic observers saw "neutralization" of the Balkans not only as a flank protection for Germany, but also as a means of assuring her an unbroken flow of supplies overland to counter the Allied naval blockade.

These sources believe that Hitler in his 2½-hour railway car conference yesterday with Il Duce sought assurance that Italy stands ready to consider throwing her active military support to Germany if the Reich should suffer too heavy losses in a smash on the Western front.

Conjecture was the only available answer to the question of whether Hitler went back to Germany with such assurance.

Bigger "Nerve" Offensive

(In London it was thought unlikely that Hitler attempted to persuade Mussolini to enter the war. Diplomatic circles there looked for a new phase of the "war of nerves," followed by a peace offensive, as the outcome of the Brennero talk. The idea of extending the Axis to Moscow was regarded as an opening shot in the expected diplomatic campaign).

One foreigner may receive inside information on the talk—the United States under-secretary of state, Sumner Welles, who sails for the United States tomorrow to lay before President Roosevelt an extensive, detailed report on the European situation after nearly a month of inquiry in Rome and belligerent capitals.

Mussolini is expected to inform Mr. Welles of last minute developments before the diplomat leaves today for Genoa to board the liner Conte di Savoia.

Whatever happened in the premier's parlor car yesterday on the siding at the frontier station of Brennero it seemed to have pleased Mussolini for when he stepped from his train at Rome last night he wore a smile and at one point on the return trip, Bologna, joined a welcoming throng in the singing of Fascist songs.

Just Imagination

If Popolo Di Roma said "revelations" published in the foreign press were "only the fruit of imagination."

"It can be said that Mussolini and Hitler must have examined all those questions which characterize the present moment in European politics," the newspaper went on, adding:—

"It would be useless and perhaps harmful to draw a hasty conclusion, especially concerning Italy, which from the beginning, on last Sept. 2, clearly fixed her line of conduct toward the prime events in the war.

"Nothing today can authorize anybody to anticipate. What took place yesterday between Il Duce and the Fuehrer certainly cannot be a matter of easy comment."

U-BOAT CAMPAIGN NO PUZZLE TO KRUSCHEN

Despite loss of 50,000 packages

The recent loss of 50,000 Giant Packages of Kruschen Salts at sea has interfered only slightly with Canadian supplies. Other shipments have been landed and distributed thinly but evenly among drug stores across Canada.

Those who suffer from rheumatic pains, headaches, blotchy skin, indigestion and other troubles usually caused by constipation—and those who know and like to enjoy "that Kruschen feeling" are urged, under the circumstances, to get their Gaint Packages at once while they last. It is not known when they will again be made available to the Canadian public.

The Kruschen Giant Package is a bargain. It contains a regular bottle plus a free trial size bottle. You may use the trial size bottle first and if not satisfied return the regular bottle unopened and get your money back. But act quickly. Your druggist has a limited supply.

1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran — 2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat until creamy. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. For the delicate texture and delicious taste of these muffins use Kellogg's All-Bran and no other kind. All-Bran supplies "bulk" so many diets need, and also the intestinal tonic Vitamin B_1.

Chest Wheezing Means Bronchitis

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a dry, harsh, hacking cough accompanied with a rapid wheezing and feeling of tightness across the chest.

There is a rising of phlegm, especially in the morning. This phlegm is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses becomes yellowish or greenish, and is sometimes streaked with blood.

You will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucus, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Movie Director Farrow Joins Canadian Navy

OTTAWA, March 19 (Special). — Leaving a lucrative career as motion picture director; a wife, Maureen O'Sullivan of the films, and a small son, Michael, in Hollywood, 35-year-old John Farrow Monday was sworn into the Royal Canadian Navy, Rear Admiral Percy W. Nelles, Chief of Naval Staff, revealed last night.

Farrow came to Ottawa six weeks ago for a medical examination, which he passed with ease. Monday he officially became Lieut. John Farrow, R.C.N.

Still a British subject (he has a home in London, England, besides his permanent residence in the motion picture metropolis), Farrow ended his affiliation with R.K.O. studios because both he and his actress wife felt he must get into the Empire's war.

Successfully avoiding publicity, Farrow sold his house in the film capital in preparation for his departure for Ottawa. He will find seamanship no novelty, since for years he has sailed his own ships, rounding Cape Horn on one occasion. He is a keen student of navigation, and a profound admirer of British naval tradition generally, and the Royal Canadian Navy in particular.

Will Move to B.C.

Following the war, he and his wife plan to establish a residence in British Columbia, which they have long favored as a vacation base. The yacht he built in Canada and sold only about a year ago, was docked at Vancouver.

Farrow's enlistment means the former Miss O'Sullivan has given a husband as well as a brother to the Empire's cause, for the duration of the war.

Lieut. Jack O'Sullivan, Mrs. Farrow's brother, is on active service with the King's Own Royal Regiment in the British Expeditionary Force. Her father was a Major in the regular army. Farrow himself is scion of a service family. Although he is an expert flier, the navy came first with him when enlistment was considered at the outbreak of the war. He volunteered at that time, and during the past few months has completed arrangements for his service with the Canadians afloat.

Historian and student of theology, Farrow has been honored by the Pope on more than one occasion. He is at present engaged on a history of the Pontiffs through the centuries. Like the picture, "A Bill of Divorcement," that work was interrupted by his departure from Hollywood for active service. His wife could not come with him; she is at present making the film "Pride and Prejudice." Should he be stationed here for more than a few weeks, she will visit him in Ottawa, however.

Farrow has connections in Great Britain, which could have assured him a post in the British Navy had he sought one. His enlistment in the Royal Canadian Navy arose from the desire to get to sea as soon as possible. He begins his duties Tuesday morning at naval headquarters here.

Colombia will aid its farmers to make their land more productive.

A LOGICAL WAY

There is a health science that has proved beneficial to many persons and has helped them to gain that degree of strength and energy so necessary for the attainment of success. That science is Chiropractic and it devotes special attention to the human spine. The spinal column in its natural formation serves to protect the spinal cord and nerves but if a vertebra becomes slightly deranged (and this may occur because of some jar, twist or strain) some nerve fibres will be constricted. The result is impaired function and finally disease in the tissues supplied by these constricted nerves.

ALBERT CARPENTER.

The death of Albert Carpenter, for 65 years a resident of this district, occurred this morning after several months' illness, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Bray, at Birdsall. He was in his 83rd year.

Mr. Carpenter came to Peterborough from his native England, where he was born in Warminster, Wilts., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Carpenter, 65 years ago. He worked for a time in the brick-making trade, then farmed for many years in Otonabee and Douro townships. He came to this city in 1922 and lived here until 1933, when his wife, formerly Ellen Dunning, died. Afterwards he moved to Birdsall and made his home with his daughter.

Mr. Carpenter was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters and of St. Luke's Anglican Church. He was highly thought of in this community.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Bray of Birdsall and Miss Mary Carpenter, and four sons: Albert of Peterborough, Frederick of Keene, Samuel of Peterborough, and Arthur of Peterborough; and one sister, Mrs. Selina Batten of Portsmouth, England.

The remains are resting at the Nisbitt Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte Street, until Wednesday, when they will be moved to the home of his son, Arthur Carpenter, 431 Mark Street. The funeral service will be on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Luke's Anglican Church, Rev. G. J. Bousfield officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. ARTHUR H. SIMMONDS.

Death came suddenly and unexpectedly this morning to Mrs. Arthur H. Simmonds at her home at 91 Park Hill Road. She was in her 52nd year.

Born in London, England, she was Henrietta Sadler, daughter of the late John Sadler and Henrietta Ewald, and she came to Peterborough 31 years ago.

Surviving besides her husband are six daughters: Mrs. V. Mills of Peterborough, Mrs. W. J. Barrett of Toronto, and Misses May, Winnifred, Gladys, and Doris Simmons, all of Peterborough; and two sons, Henry and Edwin Simmonds, both of this city; also three sisters; Mrs. F. James of Peterborough, Mrs. A. Helson of Paris, Ontario, and Mrs. G. Helson of Sarnia; and one brother, Frank Sadler of Vancouver.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Nisbett Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte Street, Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's Anglican Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

ARTHUR KILLINGBECK.

The funeral of Arthur Killingback, widely known resident of this city, who died on Sunday in his 80th year, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence at 401 Wolfe street. Adjutant Norman Buckley of the Salvation Army, conducted the service, which was widely attended by many friends. An unusually large number of flowers bore testimony to the high esteem in which Mr. Killingbeck had been held in this community. Interment was at Little Lake cemetery.

Pallbearers were six nephews, Walter Killingbeck, George Killingbeck, Herman Killingbeck, Melville Killingbeck and Jack Killingbeck.

Mr. Killingbeck, who was born in Millborok, came to Peterborough half a century ago, after residing in Cavan and later in Lindsay. Three Wolves Reported Near Buckhorn

Another wolf hunt is under way in Peterborough county, and this one offers more than even chance that three of the animals will fall victims to the dead-eye shooting of veteran hunters.

It's a wolf hunt requested by residents of the village of Buckhorn. Bring us aid, they asked, in ridding this district of three wolves that are frightened children so badly some parents in the country have to accompany them to school.

Charlie Kingan and Herb Mason will probably start to polish their gun barrels tonight, ready to answer the urgent appeal for experienced wolf hunters.

Ready To Go

To call wolf to Charlie or Herb is like waving a red flag before a bull. Charlie, told of the appeal, reached for his gun with one hand and his bronze-covered medals with the other. For it has irked Charlie considerably that he wasn't able to pin one of those medals either on himself or on Herb last wolf hunt.

"We'll help them out," said Charlie like a shot. "What days do you think would be best?" That not been planned yet, but it's going to be soon. Buckhorn hunters may as well start polishing their guns right now.

"I'm all for it," said Wolfer Herb Mason. "Just so long as the days are right. This is our busy week, you know." In the next breath he was making plans for the hunt, work forgotten for the moment. "You know, we have some good shots in the Rangers. I'll bet we could get some of the boys up there to join us," he said.

Plenty of Tracks

Here's something the two doughty hunters can sink their teeth into. These are no nebulous wolves like those that Charlie and Herb pursued this winter at Apsley, but three animals so bold they walked down the highway from Scott's Mills to within a few hundred yards of Buckhorn village itself. They have been seen by only a few men, but their tracks have been seen by scores. One of the wolves, it is said, is of tremendous size. There's no doubt about their existence — even a clergyman in the village has seen the three animals.

Appeal for the assistance of Peterborough's veteran wolf hunters was made today by a Buckhorn group who said that they wanted an organized hunt to be conducted. They pointed out that there are rural schools in the vicinity the wolves are frequenting and that they constitute a grave danger to the children.

If Peterborough hunters will start the hunt going Charles Herkimer of Buckhorn has pledged that Buckhorn hunters will join in force. Billie Long and Charlie Jones will lead the Buckhorn contingent in all probability. "But let's have Charlie and Herb," declared Mr. Herkimer. "They're the veterans at this game. We need their leadership."

Buckhorn hunters are confident that an organized hunt will result in the bagging of the three wolves and will put $45 in someone's pocket. The territory in which the animals are roaming is known and they are easy to track. Roly Montgomery of Buckhorn recently followed their tracks down the highway right to the outskirts of Buckhorn.

Minister Says French-Canadians Will Number 25 Million By 1990

CAMPBELLFORD, March 19 — (ENS)—Rev. Dr. M. E. R. Boudreau, pastor of Burnbrae church and a graduate of Queen's University, where he majored in political economy, told Rotarians here that each of the three principal races in this country had made its own contribution to Canada. He was guest speaker at the club's noonday luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday.

Taking as his subject "Canada and Its Component Races," Dr. Boudreau quoted the late Lord Tweedsmuir, who in one of his last addresses admonished Canadians to remember that their first loyalty was to Canada regardless of their racial extraction. Each race has made its own contribution, said the speaker, recalling from history how in 1846 Disraeli prophesied that Canada's destiny did not lie in annexation to the United States but rather in her development as a separate nation.

Of the ten million people in Canada three million are French-Canadian descendants of the 65,000 who were settled along the shores of the St. Lawrence at the time Lower Canada was taken by the British under Wolfe. The province of Ontario contains an additional 300,000 French-Canadians living principally in the four eastern counties which are 54 per cent. French.

Religion is the very essence of Quebec and to the native the ringing of many church bells is the voice of that province. From the lowest grades education is entirely under the church and coupled to this is their language, which is destined to make the French-Canadian continue as a separate race. The third factor which the speaker maintained destined the French to continue as a potential factor in Canada was their high birth-rate. At the present time the population is increasing at the rate of 50,000 per year and the speaker estimated by the end of five decades there would be 25 million French-Canadians. The French-Canadian is primarily a country rather than a city man. He has always been closely identified with the soil either as a lumberman or a farmer and is fundamentally opposed to Americanism. Dr. Boudreau contrasted the French and the American saying that the latter was impatient of delay and anxious to make money fast while the former regarded his home as his greatest security, and was thrifty, with but slight needs. "In prosperous times the farmers of other races make more money than he does but when times are poor the French-Canadian is better off because he has probably inherited his land."

Of the five million people of English extraction here, the speaker classified them as being mainly civil servants, soldiers, sons of soldiers, and wealthy farmers who live principally in the Maritimes, Ontario, Victoria and Vancouver. The Scotch form a solid backbone to the economic life of the country, said Mr. Boudreau, declaring there were six pages of "Macs" in the Montreal telephone directory, which if removed would "leave nothing but a French village and an English garrison."

At the time of Confederation there were more Irish than Scots in Canada but since that time the former have tended to decrease in ratio. They have provided many leaders such as Baldwin, D'Arcy, McGee and Blake, said the speaker, who also drew attention to Thomas Moore, who wrote "The Canadian Boat Song," and to Dr. Drummond, "who bubbled over with Irish wit" in Little Batiste, whose "sincerity of humor and pathos will live forever."

A vote of thanks was moved to the speaker by Rotarian A. D. Bennett.

Gandhi's Rival Threatens To Upset Plans For Disobedience—10,000 Back Him

RAMGARH, India, March 19.—(CP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi's control of the All-India Nationalist Congress Party appeared threatened today by the arrival of Subhas Chandra Bose, former Congress president, who established a rival camp near the one where the Gandhi followers are preparing to open a plenary session. A crowd of 10,000 met Bose.

His followers, who want immediate independence for India, were told he was drafting an ultimatum to the regular Congress—that either the party set a specific date to start a civil disobedience campaign or meet an independent resistance movement by Bose's sympathizers.

In an effort to obtain Moslem supp rt in its drive for Indian independence, the Congress party through its new president, Maluna Abul Kalam Azad, later made known it is convening a small conference of Moslems at Delhi, April 14 and 15. Azad is a supporter of Gandhi.

The move to obtain Moslem support was regarded as highly significant. The powerful Moslem league has charged that the Congress party in seeking independence wants to dominate the Moslem minority by force of numbers.

Injuries Fatal To Aged Man; Farm Hand Held

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., March 19. —(CP).— William Hayes, 73-year-old bachelor farmer, died in hospital to-day allegedly from injuries received in a fight last Friday, and a charge of murder was laid against his hired man, Harold Eddy, 25. Eddy at present is in the Ontario hospital at Whitby, recovering from frozen feet.

Police said that Eddy wandered into the home of Melville Graham, two miles from Hayes' farm, last Friday, and told Graham there had been a "fight" in which he was attacked and beaten by Hayes.

Graham went to Hayes' house and found the aged man unconscious. He was unconscious until his death.

Coroner Dr. V. H. Storey of Bowmanville, 30 miles east of Toronto, said that an inquest would be held and there would also be a postmortem

Press Warns UK Of Peace Moves

LONDON, March 19 — (CP). — "Europe will not tremble at the fulminations which Dr. Goebbels is now hurling forth with the Brenner meeting as their text," The Daily Herald said to-day in commenting on yesterday's meeting between Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

"We merely know that the meeting was held on Italian soil and that it is generally the petitioner on these occasions who is to visit his neighbor's territory," the newspaper said. "We will believe in thunderbolts or doves of peace when we see them and not before."

The Daily Mail said Britain was "at the critical stage of the war."

"It lies with the Prime Minister's power to recover for Britain some of her lost prestige." The Daily Mail continued. "Let him be frank and speak his mind. Let him tell the world facts about the Finnish debacle and let us get from him an assurance that the period of fumbling hesitation is past. It may be that we are threatened not with a war offensive but with peace terms.

"Great Britain and France must be on guard against that too. Any peace plan sponsored by Mussolini, or Mr. Roosevelt, or the Pope would be carefully examined, but any proposal which does not satisfy the Allied war aims would be rejected.

"For Hitler a patched up peace would mean victory. The Allies understand it would mean defeat."

A man who has been ill in bed for four months remarked to a friend yesterday that he had tried to get a battery set radio, but could not manage to pay for one. Possibly some reader of the Examiner would like to contribute a radio of this type. A gift set for this man would be greatly appreciated by him because his illness prevents him from reading. Any person desiring to help him is requested to telephone the city editor.

CAMPBELLFORD

Y.P.U. Sponsors Amateur Night

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 19 (ENS) —An appreciative audience which filled St. John's to capacity attended the St. Patrick's amateur night staged as a special attraction by members of the Young People's Union in co-operation with other branches of the church. Nearly every organization in the church took some part in the lengthy program for which Harold Twigg acted as the chairman.

At the opening Rev. G. N. Maxwell briefly expressed his appreciation for the loyal support the affair had been given and this was followed by the opening number, a recitation by Barbara Fox. Representing the Beginners' Class in the Sunday School Gerald and Janet Sills also offered a recitation, and two members of the W.M.S., Mrs. C. S. Reddick and Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol, contributed a piano duet.

A group from the primary class, under the direction of Miss Gladys Stephen, did a folk dance which was followed by a song from the Mission Band. Next was a vocal solo by George Lucy, who represented the choir and a vocal solo by Mrs. Harold A. Twigg of the Ward III. Women's Association.

The Boys' Brigade rendered a chorus and Miss Pat Ironside contributed a piano solo, followed by another chorus, "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," by Mrs. J. Clarke's class. The intermission was followed by a short skit by the Young Men's Bible Class in charge of Rev. Mr. Maxwell, and the committee of Stewards headed by G. Mowatt and Ray Connor, contributed a further skit as the concluding number.

WomanCharged With Illegal Sale Of Liquor

As the result of a police raid early this morning on a house on Reid street a woman was charged in police court this morning with illegal sale of liquor and two youths found in the place found themselves facing charges of illegal consumption. The young men both pleaded guilty to the charge and told the court that they had nothing to say.

The woman, Mrs. Marjorie Richardson, entered a plea of not guilty and declared that she was ready to go ahead with the trial this morning.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that he was not able to proceed today. "We will have to have the liquor analyzed," he told the court.

The accused was remanded for a week with bail fixed at $200.

"That will be election day; will that make any difference?" asked the Magistrate.

However Chief Constable Newhall stated that he did not think there would be any special calls for the police on the day of balloting.

WINNIPEG MONARCHS RUBBED OUT IN JUNIOR HOCKEY SERIES

Kenora Wins 6-4 In Overtime From Ex-Champs

WINNIPEG, March 19—(CP).—Winnipeg Monarchs, Canadian junior hockey champions in 1935 and '37, were knocked out of the current title race last night when they lost 6-4 in overtime to Kenora Thistles, who took the Manitoba south division title in two straight games.

Thistles won the first game at Kenora Saturday night 4-1 and now they engage either Elmwood Maple Leafs or St. James' Canadians, north division finalists, for the Manitoba title.

Led Thistles.

Starry Dick Milford led Thistles to victory here, tying the score at 4-4 just 44 seconds from the end of regular time and taking Ed Dartnell's pass for the winning goal at 4:08 of the overtime. Bill Juzda fired the clincher just 13 seconds later.

Kenora led 2-1 at the end of the first period on goals by Vin Jorgerson and Red White. Bill Benson netted for Monarchs. Dartnell scored the only goal of the second period, but in the third Monarchs ran in three in a row, Bill Mosienko getting two and George Ballance one.

CURLING

By the small margin of two points C. Sootheran defeated C. Williamson in the finals of the vice-skips' bonspiel. The game was well played throughout and at no time was the game lost or won by either side For this late in the season the ice was in excellent condition.

To-night will see the final game for the club championship. It will be between R. Best and F. Green.

In last night's semi-finals F. Batten played R. Best and only bowed to the more experienced skip by 13-12 after twelve ends of close curling. This is Fred's first year as a skip and he has done well.

The Bobcaygeon-Peterboro games were called off last night. The boys did not care to risk motoring on the icy roads. It is expected that they will be played this evening.

If the ice holds until Good Friday, March 22nd, the committee intends to hold an all-day bonspiel. All proceeds, as we understand it, will go to the Red Cross Society. However, we will get more information later.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

What would be a good name for the local senior grid squad this year? With the monicker "Orfuns" inclined to breed an inferior feeling among the players—though 'twas fine when they were winning O.R.F.U. intermediate honors—it would be as well to shelve that name and use another in this year of senior competition. Like "Panthers" or "Trojans" or "Liftlockers" or "Eagles" or something catchy. Club ought to start a naming contest with the adopted handle earning the lucky guy or gal maybe a desk 'phone which dials "South of the Border" in a musical jingle. Or anyway a half-pound box of chocolate. The "Petes" is alright except that the puckists, lacrossers and ballsters use that term, so the colorful gridders—in their orangeade uniforms—should be different.

* * * * * *

A big gang of football fans, players and officers are expected to attend the banquet and meeting tomorrow eve at seven in the Empress. After the feed, Prexy Ott Cranfeld and the others will present reports of the club, outline plans for this year, and have the election of officers for the 1940 season. Whispers of a new deal in football here are heard around and about, and we look for a real contending club in senior O.R.F.U. ranks this year of grace and wars. This is the third of the locals' promised three-year plan, and with two years' experience behind 'em, the club should really click this time. And high time, too.

A Fair Showing

Now the Orfuns didn't do too badly last autumn, all things considered. They ended in the cellar, but big crowds here saw some fine football. Two of the three home games were plenty tight, and one of 'em on the road was a thriller. This with the loss of such aces as Mike Loucks, Bill Irwin and Herb Hendrie. And a late start in practices and a too late appointment of Coach Bamforth. Also several prospective star imports failed to come here at the last minute. So the squad was built up with a few intermediate imports and some local talent, former high school players.

* * * * * *

These lads did amazingly well, along with the other local gridders, and the club started clicking swell the last half of the season. In this period, other newspapers were calling the Orfuns "the most improved club the last part of the senior schedule." And two of the Peterborough players caught the all-star club, Curly Krug at quarterback and Leo Deadey at outside. Don Crowe should have been listed, too. The officers worked mighty hard and, with a few decent breaks, would have had a contending club last fall. Both Beaches and Sarnia openly worried about return tilts with the Orfuns, and both had to nearly bust out in a rash to win! An early start, some star imports and a complete new deal are expected to make the club a contending one this year—no fooling—and a big, enthusiastic meeting here tomorrow e'en will start the pigskin a-rollin' right.

A Hockey Playoff

What is liable to be the last hockey game seen here this year is billed for tonight (Tuesday) at eight in the Rue Brock, the second of the two-in-three Industrial Puck Loop finals. Quakers nosed out the Packers by one goal late in the third period last tussle, in a wide-open and exciting fray. Packers face elimination tonight and must win or the Oatmen cop the title. Should be a swelegant scrap, with no holds barred and no punches pulled, betwixt the classy and well-matched squads. Rates a big crowd of fans, prices being 10 and 15 cents. The game was first called for Wednesday but changed to this eve.

* * * * * *

Petes had a good workout last night at the Brock and plan a couple of more this week. Some of 'em even figure their amazing luck with ice all winter will hold out and that they'll get a final playoff here, bu. we doubt it. Eddie Starr practiced with the crew and may see action Friday night in Collingwood. Last p.m., the Greenshirts nearly cinched a playoff spot with an 8-3 round-robin win at home over Collingwood. The latter club goes to Owen Sound tomorrow, while Friday games call for the Petes in Collingwood and the Trappers at Kitchener. It ends Monday with the Greenshirts in Owen Sound. Right now, the Shipbuilders are almost out of it, but the Sound still has a fair chance.

Down Kitchener Way

Vic McKenty of the Kitchener Record says the Incos played a listless game for two periods 'gainst the Shirts but the third heat was streamlined and marked by a lively fight. Says he: "Greenshirts had too much on the ball, or puck, for the Incos, the loss eliminating the Ports as contenders for a playoff berth. Peterborough Petes ran true to form, trimming Collingwood in the East to stay two points ahead of the Greenshirts, who can match the Peterborough total by defeating Collingwood here Monday." Elsewhere he wonders in print: "We're told there will be a sawoff between the top two teams in the intermediate 'A' division, though we're unable to confirm that point." Jeepers, yes. Golly!

* * * * * *

No girls' exhibition cage contest last night at the "Y", the Port Hope Grads 'phoning Quaker Aces that 'twas raining heavily down the highway and freezing, hence it would be impossible to make the trip. The Grads may play here Wednesday, meantime the gals are sorry if the postponement caused fans any inconvenience. And the local hoop lasses resume their playoffs here shortly, and the men basketeers are now getting set for the finals. Guess St. Paul's are still in a state of hoop hibernation. P.C.I. juniors expect more action any time.

* * * * * *

Hither and Yawn: Wes Champ, Petes' vice-prexy, who has been laid up recently, expects to be okay for the locals' final playoff series.... Scrappy Oshawa Bees edged Brantford in a junior "B" tilt last eve 6-5, and the cocky Brantford bunch had wins over the "A" Guelph and Marlboro gangs and not a "B" loss all year; they brought 200 fans with 'em to Oshawa.... Fritz Fraser was out of the Motor City lineup, an accidental high stick recently in Waterloo busting his jaw, causing loss of six front teeth and cutting his face—whew!.... Oshawa Cokes copped a 10-9 exhibition win over the Lakefield gang on the latter's ice last e'en.... Port Perry rubbed out Kingston in an O.J.H.A. serial and now meets Campbellford; they're taking the ice out of the Kingston rink today.... Whitby and Sutton tied last night and will play if off in Port Perry.... We don't believe Pete King was nominated for an O.L.A. executive spot.... Fenelon Falls and a Toronto team are tied in the Falls' tourney and will settle it Wednesday; Campbellford fell before the Fenelon fellows.... Don't forget the Industrial Puck Loop playoff is tonight, not Wednesday.... Rev. Father Lynch, O.R.F.U. prexy, and Secretary Harold Bailey, have been invited to the grid dinner here tomorrow night; after five p.m. Wednesday, ducats are on sale only at the Empress.... Folks in Peter's borough saw the first robin of the year right early this spring, if a hockey round-robin counts!

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 19 (AP)—Although Bill Terry has been coaching New York Giants in base running a lot this spring, he evidently forgot to tell his rookie pitchers what to do when the other fellow starts to run.

One of the Boston Bees' tallies in their 7-4 victory at Bradenton yesterday came on a steal home by Carvell Rowell while rookie Jim Lynn was taking an elaborate windup. It was revealed afterwards that a couple of photographers were Boston's third-base "coaches" who suggested the steal.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla—If Sunday's all-star game didn't prove anything, it did provide a lot of fresh enthusiasm for Brooklyn's Dodgers as a result of Luke Hamlin's and Pete Coscarart's work. The team was so full of vigor yesterday that manager Leo Durocher forgot his lame arm and Peewee Reese his bad hand and both were tossing the ball around against doctor's orders.

LOS ANGELES — Philadelphia Athletics are looking more like themselves now that their long barnstorming trip is under way. Frankie Hayes, holdout catcher, finally is in the fold and played an inning at first base yesterday "to get the feel of things," and Bob Johnson, who tore a leg muscle March 7, is ready to play again.

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. — Don Padgett, holdout catcher-outfielder, has arrived in St. Louis Cardinals' camp and it is intimated his contract troubles may be over soon as a meeting with general manager Branch Rickey. It's reported here Rickey reached an agreement with Padgett before he left his Bostic, N.C. home.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Rookie Bob Bragan may open the season as shortstop for the Phillies. He played errorless ball against Cleveland yesterday and banged out three singles for six hits in two days against major league pitching. George Scharein, 1939 regular, is weak with the stick.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—If it becomes a case of staying with Cleveland Indians as a substitute outfielder or returning to the minors where he could play regularly, Clarence Campbell, rated "most likely to succeed" of the crop of rookie gardeners, would like to stay.

"I think well enough of myself to believe that once I get in the lineup, I'll be awfully hard to get out," he said.

ANAHEIM, Calif.—Benny McCoy is hitting only 267 for Philadelphia Athletics but Connie Mack is sure his $45,000 beauty will be meeting the ball solidly by the time the season opens. McCoy has been at 30 times in 14 games and collected eight hits, four singles and four doubles. He has driven in four runs and scored five himself.

Hornets Take Second Game Of Final Series

HAVELOCK, March 19.—(ENS)—Displaying the right kind of punch, the Norwood "Hornets" with playing coach Archie Weir at the helm, waltzed through the Campbellford "Sunocos" to the tune of 7-3, last evening at the Norwood arena. The homesters came through with a fairly easy win, to even up the final series at a game apiece, and therefore force at least a fourth game, which will give the local fandom an opportunity to witness one more game this season. The third match in this best-of-five round will be played in Campbellford on Wednesday eve, with the fourth in Norwood on Friday, and a fifth and deciding encounter if necessary back in the Milltown.

Minus the valuable services of both Blake and McIlraith, the Henry coached squad was badly handicapped. Six hundred cheering fans viewed this play-off tilt, which did not quite measure up to the expected standard.

"Dude" Brady opened the scoring for the locals after eight minutes in the initial stanza, on a pass from O'Leary. Both sides played short-handed after this, as Puffer and Robinson drew successive penalties. Brady on a solo carried right around the net, for a perfect pa sout to O'Leary, who clicked for Norwood's second goal. P. Rogers and Atkinson were gated for pushing, and while they were absent Hill flipped home the locals' third marker. With only a minute remaining, Hendy scored Campbellford's first goal, when he and Robinson broke in alone on McMaster.

A criss-cross passing play by Weir and O'Leary, early in the middle frame, resulted in another Norwood counter, with the latter doing the actual scoring. Halfway through the canto, Rod Webb accepted a pass from Hill directly in front of the visitors' cage, giving Turner practically no chance on the shot. Right after this Webb was sent to the Roosegow for tripping Kelly on a breakaway, and while the locals were at the disadvantage, Free combined with Robinson for the Sunocos' second goal. The Hornets were again short-handed as O'Leary got the gate for too much knee, and Hendy and Brady who endeavored to mix it up, followed him to the cooler. At the close of this period Don Couch, whose aggressiveness up till that time had featured the Sunocos' attack, crashed into the boards and was forced to retire from the game. Couch was spilled by McMaster as the latter flung himself headling out of the net to smother a loose puck, and received a severely bruised hip.

After seven minutes of rather ragged hockey, the Hornets increased their lead in the third when Richardson fought his way out from behind the Sunoco cage for a shot, and O'Leary slapped home the rebound. Hill and Hendy had barely returned from the cooler together, when a regular procession of penalties followed, Atkinson and Robinson both getting the nod. A brilliant play by Godin who netted a neat marker on a breakaway, gave Campbellford their third and last goal while playing two men short. O'Leary and Hendy went into the hoosegow together then, which called for a delayed penalty for the visitors who were already playing four-handed hockey. Forty-five seconds following Godin's counter, Richardson took a pass from Brady for the concluding Norwood goal.

Ike O'Leary was the Hornets' leading marksman with three goals and one assist, while Brady, Hill, Rod Webb and Richardson each collected one apiece. McMaster in the locals' cage came through with a nice effort as did most every member of the Norwood team.

Hendy, usually the most colorful member of the Sunoco crew, failed to show up on last night's performance. He did manage to notch a goal, however, and exhibited the occasional flash of his known ability. Most effective for the visitors were Free, Couch, Robinson and Godin.

The teams:

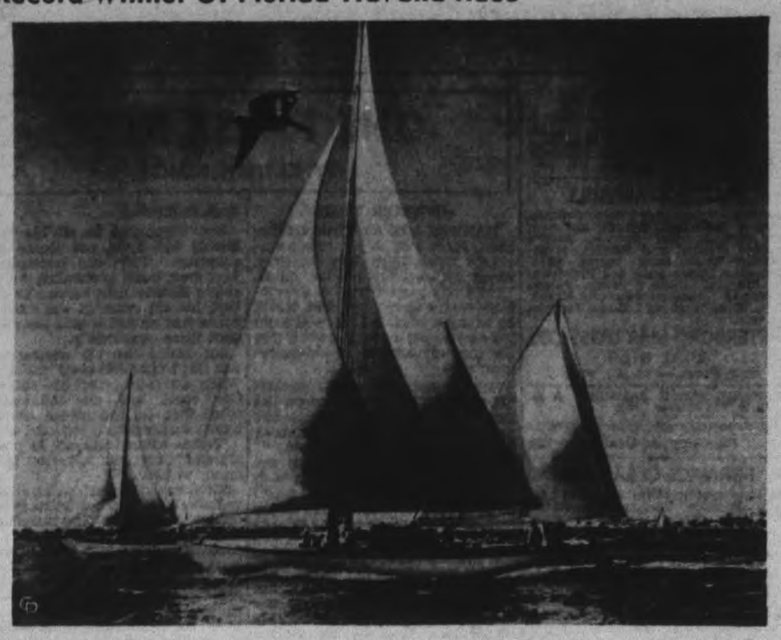
Referee—H. Hollaway, Belleville.

Record Winner Of Florida-Havana Race



A sight calculated to make the saltiest of marines wax lyrical, the racing yacht Good News, owned by Robert Johnson, is shown with snowy wings spread as she sailed out of St. Petersburg on the annual race to Havana. Good News won the classic in record time, making the 284 nautical mile run in 37 hours, 16 minutes and 43 seconds.

Remember When—

A light heavyweight boxing champion started on the down road 14 years ago tonight when Champion Paul Berlenbach was defeated by Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, in a 10-round nontitle bout at New York. Berlenbach, who had won the crown from Mike McTigue, lost it a few months after the Risko bout to the Canadian Jack Delaney.

Hawks And Leafs Meet Tonight In Cup Opener

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Hopes, jaded by a long season's play, rose anew today as six of the seven National Hockey League clubs prepared for tonight's opening of the Stanley Cup series for the world championship.

Only Montreal Canadiens, who finished the league schedule in last place, remain on the sidelines as the rest start on even terms for the playoff gold. The six managers have only to recall that Chicago Black Hawks won the cup in 1938, when rated sixth best, to know they all have a chance.

Boston Bruins, the league champions, open a best-of-seven round against the second-place Rangers at New York.

The Black Hawks, who finished fourth, start at Toronto in a best-of-three round against the third-place Maple Leafs, whom they defeated in the astonishing finals of 1938.

New York Americans, who ran sixth, are in Detroit for their meeting with the Red Wings in the opener of a best-of-three round.

The winner of the Chicago-Toronto set will meet the Americans-Detroit survivor for the right to play Boston or the Rangers in the finals, which are to be on a best-of-seven basis.

Bruins Favored

The Bruins, who won both the N.H.L. title and the Stanley Cup last year, have been installed favorites. They should be favored, too, after coming from behind to edge out the Rangers and after developing the highest-scoring forward line of the year, the Sauerkraut Kids from Kitchener, Ont.—Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart.

Anything can happen in the playoffs and each club is working on that idea. Last year Boston never would have got by the first round against the Rangers but for the sensational overtime play of Melvin (Sudden-Death) Hill, a rookie right wingman from Saskatoon, Sask.

Hill fired three goals in overtime to give the Bruins three of their four victories in the seven bruising contests with the Rangers. The youngster had been turned down by Manager Lester Patrick of the Rangers a few years earlier.

In the Rangers, Boston meets a club with one of the most remarkable records in sport. The team went 19 straight games without defeat this season before Chicago tripped it up.

Smythe Confident

Manager Conny Smythe admits the Leafs were out-fought when Chicago beat them in the finals two years ago, but he feels the present crop will out-fight the Hawks. Besides, Sylvanus Apps is back in shape to combine with Gordon Drillon in what was the hottest bit of team play in the N.H.L. in 1937-38 and 1939-40. Robert (Red) Heron has proved a find at centre-ice between Pep Kelly and Sweeney Schriner in Toronto's last four games.

Paul Thompson has done the coaching job of the year at Chicago. He has made regulars of two youngsters just out of junior hockey, Johnny Chad and Bill Carse, and he has made over almost his entire team.

The Americans have been crippled by the loss of Wil Field through injury, while Harvey Jackson's appendix may not let him play tonight. But Manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton has his club punching again and Eddie Shore, who has seen only part-time service this season, will be on the defence for all three games.

Shore, owner of Springfield Indians, plans to divide his time this week between the International-American League playoffs and the cup series. If Springfield goes the three-game limit in its round with Pittsburg, he will play six games in six nights.

Detroit's lineup has undergone frequent changes during the winter but always there has stood out the work of two veterans, Captain Ebbie Goodfellow on the defence and Tiny Thompson in goal. Their steadiness and the possibilities of three eager forward lines, of which Syd Howe is the star, make the Red Wings favorites to pull past the Americans.

On The Mend

EDDIE STARR

With his bruised shoulder healing rapidly, Eddie Starr (above), captain and fast-stepping forward of the Petes, should be ready for action in Collingwood on Friday—though he may be kept out of the lineup till next week.

TWEED, Mar. 19 (ENS). — In the second game of the two post series games, Tweed Terriers trounced Madoc 11-7 at the local arena on Monday night, winning the round 27 to 15.

Early in the first period Madoc tied the round on two quick goals, the first by Larone on a pass from Kellar and the second by Heyworth on a pass from Kellar. Arber took a pass from Long and Woodcock to put the Terriers one up on the round, while Courneyea took a three way pass from Wagar and Elsbury to tie the count of the game and two up on the series. G. Stewart worked his way through to make the score 3-1 for Madoc, but Wagar tallied twice before the period ended on passes from Long and Elsbury to make the score at the end of the first period 4-3.

The Terriers walked away with the game in the second period tallying five goals to one for Madoc. Kellar scored the lone Madoc counter of the period, while Wagar netted for the Terriers unassisted, and then Arbert took a pass from Tummon. Courneyea then took a three-way pass from Wagar and Elsbury to rap in the rubber behind Hawthorne, who played brilliant hockey for the Madoc team. Tummon weaved his way through to tally for the Terriers, and Long took a pass-out from Prout to make the count 9-4 for the Terriers. Courneyea and Moon went to the bench for the only penalties in the game, when they displayed a shadow boxing match on the ice.

Kellar netted for Madoc to open the scoring in the last period, and Woodcock drove a long shot from centre ice which slipped through Hawthorne's pads. Kellar took a pass from Stewart, only to have Elsbury tear through the Madoc lineup to drive in a hard shot from the side. Breaking away in the dying minutes of play, Moon drove a hard shot into the upper corner of the nets to end the scoring.

The lineups:

Tweed — Goal, McIlroy; defence, Tummon, Woodcock; centre, Wagar; wings, Elsbury, Courneyea; subs., Arber, Long, Prout.

Maki And Nurmi Homesick, Prefer Facing Reds To Name Hunters

Finland pulled Maki out of the trenches and sent him to the United States to pick up dollars for its late war chest. He's done quite well, too—about $5,000 in three meets.

Last night, before absorbing his first American defeat, Maki extended his warmup to outrun a horde of signature seekers. But the Helsinki liquor store clerk has found two American products to his liking. One is orange juice; the other pink ice cream.

Whenever possible Maki eats with Naylor Stone, his tour manager, who permits the frozen delicacy. It is taboo when Sgt. Paavo Nurmi, his companion and the former Flying Finn of the track, watches the menu.

Maki has another peeve. She's the American girl. His apple cheeks and curly, brown hair make him popular with feminine fans everywhere but they can't make Taisto understand. He speaks only four words of English. The one he uses when they approach is "goodbye."

Finishing Schedule

Both Maki and Nurmi are homesick, especially 29-year-old Taisto, who has a wife and daughter in the homeland. Both realize the importance of their mission, however, and will complete their month's schedule. Funds they raised will be used for rehabilitation instead of bullets.

Maki, holder of five middle distance records, took the lead at the start of his 24-lap, two-mile exhibition and held it until the final turn. Then Walter Mehl, the Wisconsin graduate, edged by to win by a step.

The time of 9:05.5 on municipal auditorium's new board track was eight seconds slower than Mehl's listed record, recently bettered by Notre Dame's Greg Rice. It was Maki's first American attempt at the distance and he made it under protest. Three nights before he galloped three miles, his favorite race, in world record breaking time of 14.01.9 on an indoor dirt track in Chicago.

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XXIII

MARY BLACK rose, held out her hand. Janis took it, her eyes suspiciously moist. Mary drew her close, kissed her warmly on the cheek. "You'll be a perfect jewel of a secretary—and if there's any debt, it will be on my side of the fence. It's not too easy to get a young woman who fits into my scheme of living, remember."

She crossed the room, saying: "Then I'll count on you coming out this week. If I send Jessup—he's my chauffeur—for you Thursday morning at 10, will you be ready?"

"Ready and eager to begin my new duties," promised Janis earnestly. She knew she never would be able to compensate Mary Black and her brother, Stephen, for arranging all this.

It made some of her lost faith in people come bouncing back. Her heart, of course, was broken, but little by little Rock had shown exactly what type of man he was. This should have prepared her for his present behavior.

She knew that never again could she recapture what she had once felt for him. He had deliberately killed all that within her. But she was still his wife and she would attempt to live up to it even now, if he would give any indication of being a devoted husband.

All this was running through her mind while she stood in the doorway watching Jessup assist Mary Black into her limousine and drive away.

She felt energetic now and decided to begin packing. She went upstairs slightly bothered. What should she do about Rock? She would have to tell him about her new position with Miss Black and he would scoff at it. From the first, he had taken a violent dislike to the Blacks. She often surmised that it was only a shield against belittling himself by contrast. At any rate, she must get in touch with him immediately.

Rock Is Missing

She telephoned to all his usual haunts but could not locate him anywhere. Then she remembered that even while pretending to live at her Beverly Hills address he had kept his old room in the rooming house, had several trunks there and slept there occasionally.

She dialed this old number and was told he had left town last night. When she asked for his address, she could get no information other than he had moved out his trunks and was not expected back.

"Gone—without so much as phoning me!" Janis said to herself in an angry whisper.

This was the last straw. She walked slowly into her bedroom and opened a window. She stared out at the fine rain, now beginning to cover all nature with its dull gray blanket, narrowing the vista to a small circle near the house. A tall gaunt palm stood there, its fan-top swaying gently, as if trying to brush away the surrounding thick atmosphere. This was almost as successful as Janis' own effort to sweep away her own harrowing thoughts.

She shivered, turned away from the sudden dreariness the day had caught, slammed shut the window.

Through With Him

She went restlessly back to her sitting room, switched on all the blue-and-gold-shaded lamps. She stood in the midst of this daintiness Mary Black had planned here and made a stout resolution. Never again would she cry over Rock Conover. She would wipe the slate clean, begin a new life.

From now on she would be positive that Rock had never loved her, that all he had ever wanted was what she could give him. It was a nasty pill to swallow, but she had much for which to be thankful. She had friends—she would try to become worthy of them. Mary Black had never had so painstaking a secretary as she would be.

By Thursday morning Janis had finished her packing. She had straightened up the house, had a man to polish the furniture and, luckily, he had been able to make everything look as good as new, even the piano.

Janis was feeling greatly relieved, glad she was not leaving this lovely home in a shabby condition, glad she had stopped having wild parties here before the guests ruined everything.

Gloria Chester would be moving in by the end of the week, and her check for the remainder of the year's rent was in Janis' handbag. She felt nearly complacent over this good fortune. So far as finances were concerned, she was on top of the world. And a full purse did help overcome disappointment, no matter what any one ever said to the contrary.

She was dressed in a hunter's green ensemble and stood expectantly in the front hall, her mink coat over her arm, when the knocker sounded.

Quickly she opened the door, expecting to see Jessup, and was startled to confront a messenger.

Disturbing Telegram

"Telegram for Mrs. Rock Conover," he said, offering her a yellow envelope.

She quickly signed the messenger's book. Her trembling fingers tore open the envelope. The only person she could think of who would wire her was Boardman West. He probably wanted her to come immediately to St. Louis.

But the message was from Chicago. She read, "Sorry honey on way to New York stop return soon as possible stop love you. ROCK.

Tense with indignation, she stood in the big, silent hall. She felt so alone and deserted, although she should have, she reminded herself, expected just this from Rock. Love? He sent her his—love! What did a quitter like Rock know about love? If he imagined he could deceive her any longer, he was mistaken. But it was so unfair, so downright cad. He gave her no address, he didn't want her to reach him—he had run away!

"Leaving me to face things—alone—the—the coward!" she stormed, her green suede shoes pacing angrily over the thick Oriental rug.

The noise of the knocker again reverberated through the house. For a long instant, Janis, bitterly facing a crisis, did not connect it with any concern of hers. Then, suddenly, she remembered where she was, remembered it was time for Jessup to arrive. She took a deep, lacerating breath, marched stoutly to the door and flung it open.

Stephen Black stood before her, tall, capable, hat in hand. The grave smile of assurance on his homely face made her feel a little like crying.

"Good morning! You look startled," he said, almost tenderly. "I had a free morning, so I decided to pick you up and see that you got properly settled."

This was not exactly the truth. A prominent doctor like himself never had a free morning, unless he absolutely stole it. In this case, he made himself think it was his duty to go out of his way. He knew he was following a hopeless road—Janis was married, plainly in love with her husband—but for once in his life he was impelled to act contrary to his best judgment. He surmised what motivated this, but so long as Janis didn't there could be no harm in it.

"Yes, you did startle me. I expected to see Jessup. But I'm glad you've come, doctor."

She stepped aside to allow him to enter and added: "It will be so much easier to leave the house—with you. You see, I've loved this home."

"If we'd known that, possibly we could have made different arrangements," he said, thoughtfully.

"Or, no—please don't misunderstand. I really wouldn't care to stay here with—with memories. I can't tell you how glad I am to be going to your sister."

She glanced down at the telegram still clutched in her hand. She crushed it into a ball, tossed it to a table. "Rock — my husband — was called to New York. I haven't had a chance to tell him about my new—position. But he's away so much—I'm sure he won't mind.

She hovered close to tears, but the face she lifted to Stephen Black now was bravely smiling.

He thought savagely: "The last time I saw her she said her marriage was a mistake. Now she's trying to excuse the man. Could anything but love do that?"

"At least you'll be kept busy while he's away," he told her, trying to sound matter-of-fact. He picked up her two bags. "We'll give Jessup the house keys—he'll have your trunks sent out later."

"Then I haven't a thing to worry about." Her voice wavered a little. She swallowed swiftly, added: "I know I'm going to love it in your new home."

"I'm sure you will—it's very pleasant at Bridgecliff," he said, avoiding her tear-brimmed eyes.

He wondered how long he would be able to resist saying all he wanted to say to this lovely, disturbing bit of womanhood, and suddenly concluded he was a fool. Any man was a fool when he pretended he could successfully tussle with anything as unpredictable as emotions. But now that he and Mary had decided to make it easier for this girl, he'd go through with it somehow.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

A GOOD THING OVERDONE

IN MAKING initial bids, some players are so deathly afraid of four-card major suits that they overdo what they call "the utility club." They open nearly a third of all hands with 1-Club, almost regardless of what suits they have. If they are going to have that habit, they would do well to have a corollary consisting of extreme liberality in showing four-card majors on later rounds. Otherwise they will find themselves in many bad spots when the bidding is over.

What a juicy morsel for West, a player who had sense enough to use the power of the pass! No fool was he. You didn't catch him bidding his diamonds the first time around or doubling the second time, to warn his opponents of their peril. All that he did was wait for them and then run his six diamond tricks, setting the contract two.

If North saw fit to start with his "utility club," he should have bid his hearts the second time, after his partner's 1-No Trump. South could have bid hearts on either his first or second turns, but sadly neglected to. Had either mentioned the heart suit at any time, the partner would have raised and the side would have played the hand at 4-Hearts, which could not be beaten under any circumstances. Three diamonds would be lost, but the rest of the tricks were solid.

High Birth Rate and Abundant Feed Set U.S. Hog Output At 5-Year Top

CHICAGO, March 18—(AP). — A flood of waddling, fat hogs, the result of above normal birth-rate and abundant feed in piglots the past three years, are pouring into United States livestock slaughtering centres, pushing meat packing operations and employment to a five-year high and accelerating numerous related industries and businesses.

Livestock experts said today the peak of what they called the "hog cycle" of production had brought an unusual influx of porkers, helping to drive prices to their lowest levels since 1934 but at the same time stepping up many activities associated with transforming the hog for kitchen use.

Market statistics indicate farm income from hogs has been maintained despite lower prices due to the increased volume. Livestock experts said the 5,355,000 head killed at federally inspected plants in January, the largest volume in six years, had a value based on Chicago average price of $5.32 per hundredweight and weight of 248 pounds of slightly more than $70,000,000.

This compared with a value of $41,200,000 in September, 1935, when a record low slaughter totalled only 1,483,000 head and the Chicago average price was $10.95. In August, 1937, when prices were at the peak of the past decade and the Chicago average was $11.77, only 1,590,000 hogs were killed, with an estimated value of slightly more than $51,000,000.

Havelock Enjoys Two Playlets

HAVELOCK, March 19—(ENS)—Two humorous one-act plays featured an interesting variety concert which was sponsored on Friday evening in the local town hall, by the centre group of the Havelock United Church, Womens' Association. Other numbers introduced by Rev. Andrew McLauchlin who officiated as chairman, included Irish and patriotic items, and selections by mouth organ band.

"A Family Flurry" was the title of the first play, which was directed by Mr. W. Platt. The cast was as follows: Clifford Kennedy as Marmaduke Meek, a henpecked husband; Miss Dorothy Davidson, as Mrs. Marmaduke Meek, his better half; Douglas Anderson as Harvey Rasper, a husband who will not be henpecked; Miss Margaret Johnston as Mrs. Harvey Rasper, his obedient wife; Gerald Whitney as Barney O'Neill, Rasper's porter; and Miss Vivian Gordon, as Pert, Mrs. Rasper's maid.

The second playlet under the direction of Mrs. A. McLauchlin, contained an all-feminine cast, and was entitled, "The Bigginsville Uplift Society". Dressed in a variety of costumes which in themselves were mirth-provoking, the members of the cast enacted a meeting of this society with much enthusiasm. Taking part in this play were: Mrs. G. Wiggins as Mrs. Snubbins, the self-elected president of the Bigginsville society; Mrs. R. Pollock as Mrs. Tattler the vice-president who never gossiped; Mrs. J. Diaper, as Miss Clubby, the secretary who was very popular; Mrs. V. Brisbin, as Mrs. Muddle the treasurer who could never get things right; Mrs. E. Chiles as Mrs. Doolittle, and Mrs. G. Denike as Mrs. Scrubbitt, both friendly enemies and members of the committee; and Mrs. B. Post as Mrs. Yellitt, a very deaf old lady.

A vocal solo, "Land of Hope and Glory" was sung by Miss Edith Roberts, with Mrs. R. Campney as piano accompanist, and Miss Lois Thompson sang "Good Luck to the Boys in the Allies". The Young twins, Wallace and Wayne, attired in Scotch kilts, contributed an intricate Scottish dance, with Miss K. Anderson as their piano accompanist.

Other numbers included: Vocal solo, "I wonder if the same moon shines in Ireland tonight", by Miss Ruth Peters; patriotic song by Miss Margaret Anderson, and enacted by Miss Jean Peters, Miss Eileen Iles, and Lloyd Brisbin; selections by the mouth organ band.

Home-made candy was also sold during intermissions.

A Presentation

Thirty young people were recently entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Quinn, when the presentation of a handsome electric coffee-maker was made to Miss Marguerite Roche, who is to be married here, this week to Sgt. C. W. Couch of the R.C.A. Cobourg. The bride-to-be in a few well chosen words, replied to the presentation which was made on behalf of her assembled friends by Mr. Bert Haryett.

Many of the guests including Miss Roche played badminton earlier in the evening, and then gathered later for the presentation which came as a complete surprise.

Community singing was much enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. R. F. Covert. Pouring tea, were Mrs. P. T. Greenley and Mrs. D. R. Brennan.

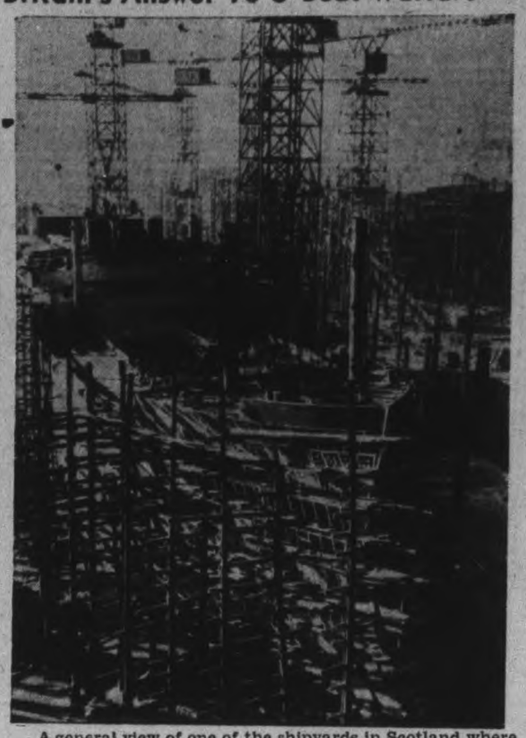
Britain's Answer To U-Boat Warfare



A general view of one of the shipyards in Scotland where work goes on night and day building ships and more ships to fill the gaps created by German U-boat warfare. A merchant ship is launched every few days from a British shipyard and Britons claim that "we can build ships faster than U-boats can sink them." One of the reasons given for the transfer of the giant liner Queen Elizabeth to the safety of New York was that the great ship was occupying space badly needed in England.

Seventy Hastings Fathers And Sons Enjoy Banquet At Trinity Church

HASTINGS, March 19—(ENS). — One of the most successful Father and Son banquets in the history of Trinity Church was held on Friday evening, in the church basement, when 70 were present.

The banquet was sponsored by Group I of the W.A., with Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe and Mrs. Willis Preston as conveners.

While the banquet was in progress over thirty ladies were entertained at a St. Patrick's supper at the home of Mrs. J. H. Hess, which was sponsored by Group II of the W.A.

At the Father and Son banquet the guests and elders were seated at the head table. The decorations were unique St. Patrick's design. The supper, in charge of the conveners was served by Mrs. C. Baker, Mrs. F. Crate, Misses Helen Collins, Rhea Preston, Ruby Preston, Pansy Runnels, Margery Scriver and Jessie Hay.

Fathers and sons sat side by side and three generations were represented by Mr. Fred Dodd, Mr. Pat Dodd and Wayne Dodd.

Words of welcome were given by Rev. J. E. Glover as toastmaster. The customary toast to "Our King" by Reeve L. E. Kelly was followed by the singing or the National Anthem, and the singing of "O Canada" followed the toast to Canada by Mr. A. V. German.

Mr. A. M. Brooks, treasurer of the church, proposed the toast to "Our Church." Mr. R. C. Doxsee, one of the elders, made a fitting reply.

Tribute to "Our Fathers" was expressed by Kitchener Smith and responded to by Mr. R. Collins.

Mr. Arthur Beamish proposed the toast to "The Sons," and Raymond Scriver replied.

Toast to the ladies and visitors by Mr. John Oliver was replied to by Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe and Mr. George Lucy of Campbellford.

Interspersing the numbers were solos by Mr. George Lucy, Mr. Learl Humphries and Earl Scriver. Carl Darling presided at the piano during the evening.

Rev. G. N. Maxwell of Campbellford, as guest speaker, gave an interesting address on "The Significance of the Little Things in Life."

The St. Patrick's supper at the home of Mrs. J. Hess was a delightful affair.

Mrs. Hess welcomed the guests. The table, set in the spacious dining room, was attractive with its St. Patrick's decorations, and the menu was all that could be desired.

A program followed, including community singing, with Miss Carrie Doxsee at the piano; reading, "Miss Moloney Goes to the Dentist" by Miss Flo. German; duet, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," by Mrs. J. E. Glover and daughter Helen; a talk on "Missions in Quebec," by the guest speaker, Mrs. G. N. Maxwell of Campbellford; a duet "For All Eternity," by Mrs. J. E. Glover and Helen.

The success of the evening was due Mrs. Hess, Mrs. A. V. German and Mrs. H. Edwards and their assitants, also to Mrs. Fred Scriver and Mrs. Alton Thompson who served the supper.

Has High Praise for Sytona As Nerves Are Relaxed and Sleep Is More Restful. Condition Followed Indigestion, Gas, Acidity and Heartburn.

MRS. FLORENCE HINCHCLIFFE

"The way Syntona has helped me is just grand and I will be glad to have others know about it," said Mrs. Florence Hinchcliffe in a recent report.

"I had been troubled with indigestion, stomach gas, acidity, and heartburn. Then, severe pains set into my hips and back. These pains became so bad I couldn't even walk at times. My nerves were bad, I slept poorly, and I suffered with frequent headaches and constipation.

"I wasn't taking Syntona long before my food began to digest better without all that indigestion, sourness and gas. Then the pains went away and my nerves felt relaxed, I sleep better now, and I arise mornings feeling rested and happy."

Surely, when Syntona has helped so many people right here in Cornwall and vicinity, it would be a mistake if others who suffer similarly did not give it a fair trial. You, too, may receive these priceless benefits.

Syntona contains no harmful drugs or depressors. It is made only from the pure extracts of herbs, roots and barks that aid in proper assimilation of food to build sound bodies and strong, healthy nerves. It rids the system of irritating acids and poisonous waste matter. Many who have used it say that even after the first few days, the whole system takes on a new feeling of energy and resistance.

Get yourself a bottle of Syntona to-day at Elliott's Drug Store, Peterboro and see how much better you too will be feeling in just a short time. Ask about the special introductor offer. (Advt.)

Finn Capitulation Hard Blow To Allies

HULL, England, March 19—(CP Cable)—Richard Law, member of the House of Commons, and son of the late Rt. Hon. Andrew Bonar Law, said yesterday the capitulation of Finland was a severe defeat for the Allies and that they required a superb moral effort to extricate themselves from its consequences.

He said the Russian threat to the eastern boundary of Germany had always been a restraining factor to the Nazi government, but the threat was now removed through exposure of the military incompetence of Russia. The blockade, he said, would be much less effective in the future because of the tremendous back door which has been opened to Germany.

Ready For Trial

Danish Coast Rocks To Attack

TONDER, Denmark, March 20 — (CP).—Shore observers today saw that one of the four anti-aircraft towers between the mainland and Sylt was missing after the British attack on the German base there was resumed with violence almost equal to the great seven-hour raid of last night and this morning.

Fog lifted at 4 p.m. (10 a.m., EST) to permit observers some idea of the damage caused by the terrific bombing. The missing anti-aircraft tower apparently was the victim of a direct bomb hit. The towers are manned by machine-gunners.

Indications from the Danish coast, only a few miles from Sylt, were that British bombers were sweeping back and forth over the narrow island in six attacking units.

The sound of exploding bombs rolled in over Denmark's coastal settlements, leading to belief that many planes were in action, although accurate determination was impossible.

Observers, unable to see clearly, judged the number of attacking units by the successive waves of bomb explosions accompanied by terrific anti-aircraft fire.

Watchers from the Danish shore said numerous observation planes flew over Sylt at 3 p.m. (9 a.m., EST). Machine guns barked, but no fire of heavier guns was noticed. It was suggested that the planes might be forerunners of a new attack.

Storm Ushers In Opening Day Of Spring

TORONTO, March 20.— CP). — While flowers bloomed in British Columbia, one of the heaviest snowfalls of the season struck parts of Ontario to-day—officially the first day of spring. Temperatures generally througaout Canada were below freezing, with thermometers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan ranging from zero to 10 above.

Between three and seven inches of snow fell in Western and Central Ontario overnight and the fall will reach Eastern Ontario and Quebec later to-day and to-night. Many side roads were blocked to all traffic except horse and cutter and huge ploughs and gangs of men worked throughout the night and to-day in an effort to keep main highways clear.

The driving snow made visibility poor and traffic proceeded slowly because of the treacherous ice be-

British Bombers Answer Scapa Flow Raid Set Hangars, Railway, Wharfs Ablaze Smashing Nazi North Sea Hornets' Nest

More Bombs Dropped Than Hit London In Whole Last War

LONDON, March 20 (CP)—More than 1,000 bombs were dropped on the Island of Sylt by the Royal Air Force planes which raided the German base last night and this morning, it was brought out in the House of Lords today.

The disclosure was made by Lord Strabolgi, Labor Peer, speaking on the basis of information from official sources.

Lord Strabolgi, praising the courage and skill of the R.A.F. remarked that during the raid on Sylt more bombs were dropped by the British fliers than fell on London during all the German raids of the last great war. Official statistics from the last war show that London was subjected to 130 raids, during which 922 bombs were dropped.

Lord Strabolgi said the raid on Sylt was particularly praiseworthy because it was carried out against an enemy area from which all civilians were long evacuated.

The Labor Peer spoke after Lord Chatfield, defence co-ordination minister, made a statement on Sylt action identical with that given in the House of Commons by air secretary Sir Kingsley Wood.

Heavy Damage Inflicted.

Sir Kingsley told the Commons that air raids on Sylt during the night set fire to hangars and oil storage tanks in the German base.

There were also "many hits on the jetty, light railway, and other parts of the base, he continued, and further reconnaissances this morning had confirmed the success of the operation.

All to-day's aircraft returned safely, the Air Minister said.

He declared the attack was concentrated for six hours on Hornum, from which German planes have been taking off to drop mines and attack shipping.

He concluded his brief statement with the declaration that "this action has once more demonstrated the fighting spirit and skill of our captains and crews, and their willingness and readiness to meet the call."

30 RAF Raiders In Greatest Attack Of War Use Relay System; Keep Sylt Guns Red Hot

LONDON, Mar. 20 — (CP). — Britain's history-making air raid on the German fortified Island of Sylt last night and to-day was said to have been carried out by a comparatively small number of bombers flying in relays over the distraught Nazi defenders.

Thirty of the latest types of Wellington and Whitley bombers were believed to have engaged in the raids, the British Press Association reported. There was no official word of the numbers.

A distinctive feature of the attack was that the bombers droned over one or two at a time, "flying at medium altitude," reliable sources said, in a continual stream.

They declared there was only one defending German pursuit plane, "which was beaten off by the rear gunner of the first bomber it attacked."

Hornum, the base attacked, was said to have been well protected with anti-aircraft guns, larger than Britain's 3.7-inch cannon which have an effective range of 25,000 feet, which presumably dictated the one-and-two-at-a-time assault tactics.

Only One Plane Lost In Inferno Of Nazi Defence Fire

LONDON, March 20—(CP).—The unleashed Royal Air Force, its appetite whetted by a booming seven-hour continuous raid on the German fortifications on Sylt Island, returned to the scene today with bomb, gun and camera to work more havoc and prove it with pictures.

Air Ministry sources said the main objective of the daylight flights over the 350-mile North Sea expanse was to make photographs, but reports from Tonder, Denmark, said Sylt apparently was being bombarded all over again.

Poor visibility, compared with the bright moonlight and drifting clouds that aided the British last night and early today, prevented the Danish coastal observers from estimating accurately the number of planes involved in the follow-up raid.

They said, however, that apparently there were six groups of bombers, with the reverberating explosions equal or nearly equal to those previously and German anti-aircraft batteries keeping up a terrific defence.

The Danes said they themselves fired warning shots at one unidentified plane which flew over Danish soil, and that several bombs were dropped on the coast of Denmark, on which they said one plane landed with spitting machine-guns.

Heavy Destruction.

Already, on the strength of glimpses caught by the crews of wheeling bombers in the glare of battle, the Air Ministry reported the gigantic raid had destroyed seaplane hangars, a railway, barracks, jetties and concrete ramps.

Moscow Taboos Scandinavian Defence Hookup

MOSCOW, Mar. 20 — (AP). — Soviet Russia has turned thumbs down on any defensive alliance among Scandinavian states and Finland on the ground that it would be "aimed at the U.S.S.R." and in conflict with the Russian-Finnish peace treaty.

The official Russian news agency, Tass, announced to-day that it was authorized to publish this as the Russian government's position.

"The foreign press alleges that negotiations are going on among Finland, Sweden and Norway on conclusion of a so-called 'defensive alliance' for the purpose of military protection of the frontiers of Finland," said the announcement.

"It is also alleged that the Soviet Union does not object to such a 'defensive alliance' among Finland, Sweden and Norway.

"Tass is authorized to state that these reports on the attitude of the Soviet Union do not correspond to the facts."

Tass added that statements in the Norwegian Parliament had made it clear that such a combination "would be aimed against the U.S.S.R. and would directly contradict the (Finnish - Russian) peace treaty."

Liner Queen Mary Ready To Sail With 15-Inchers

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP).—A medical officer aboard the British liner Queen Mary said today the ship was awaiting additional crew men before sailing, and that the Mauretania was due to leave at midnight.

Both ships, wearing war skirts of grey, have been provisioned for long voyages and apparently were ready for use as troopships.

The officer who asked that he not be named, said additional men to man the Queen Mary were en route to New York aboard the Lancastria which sailed from England recently and stopped at Halifax.

Only a few lights glowed in the 83,000-ton Queen Mary last night as hundreds of persons drove or walked past for a farewell glimpse of the vast grey boat which, before war duty called, was the fastest merchant ship afloat.

Squads of mounted and foot police, guarding against sabotage, kept passersby on the move.

London, March 20 (CP)

WAR SECRETARY Oliver Stanley replied to critics of Britain's war effort in the United States and other neutral countries by declaring to a luncheon audience today that "we intend to fight in our own way and not in their way."

He said the foreign press had criticized Britain for a lack of enterprise and initiative.

"This is a dangerous lesson for neutrals to teach," he said, adding that "we are now learning that persons who ignore the rights of neptrals" receive their admiration.

Adolf's Ex-Friend Thyssen Sees Him Madman

BUENOS AIRES, March 20—(CP-—Fritz Thyssen, self-exiled former backer of Adolf Hitler, today called the German dictator a madman who will lead Germany into the abyss if the workers do not overthrow him and end the war in time.

In a letter to the Argentinische Tageblatt, a German Republican newspaper, the Industrialist, who fled Germany soon after war was declared and is now living in Switzerland, said "Hitler is mentally sick."

"I know," he wrote, "that millions of good Germans are oppressed with a terrible feeling of shame and despair. There is not a word of truth in what Hitler would have us believe of the bloodthirstiness of the French, the criminal sentiments of the Poles, and the perfidy and desire to destroy us on the part of the English, nor in the grandeur and magnificence of the Russians, whose regime Hitler used to compare to that of Sodom.

"Hitler is mentally sick and must not be followed. All the lies about

France Loses Daladier; Cabinet Quits

Finance Head Reynaud Is Called In; Deputies Want Action

The President claled in Reynaud, who has been notably successful at his finance post, after Daladier's Radical-Socialist Party announced the retiring Premier's refusal to attempt a new combination.

Daladier declined in conformity with "parliamentary tradition," it was announced. That meant he interpreted as an expression of disapproval of his conduct of the war a minority vote of confidence which the Chamber of Deputies had given him earlier in the day.

Although the vote was 239 to 1 in his favor, there were more than 300 abstentions in the total Chamber membership of 551.

The cabinet met early this morning, six hours after the chamber's reluctant vote of confidence.

The session at the war ministry lasted half an hour and then Daladier and all his ministers, except one who is in London on government business, trooped out and went to Elysee Palace where Daladier presented the resignation to Lebrun.

Lebrun at once arranged for the customary consultation on a new government. Custom requires that he summon first Jules Jeanneney, aged president of the senate, and then Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies.

Hope Of Neutrals Visioned In Nazi Defeat

LONDON, March 20. — (CP).— Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the House of Commons yesterday was well received to-day by the British press, which applauded his firm stand against any compromise of allied war aims.

"What the House rightly valued most," the pro-Government Daily Telegraph and Morning Post said, "was proof of timely foresight and planning, of readiness to take grave decisions and act vigorously on a large scale.

"It is written in blood on the snows of Finland that the only hope of security for small neutral states is in the defeat of Germany. Not one of them can be sure of remaining unviolated unless they stand together to defend themselves. Those who would be safe must have courage."

The Daily Express (Independent) said: "There is not the slightest sign of the British government's accepting the 11 points which it is said Hitler has put forward. These proposals for a sham peace with bogus German disarmament would

Pair Of Canadian Liners To Be Armed Cruisers

OTTAWA, Mar. 20 — (CP). — War contracts worth more than $150,000,000 have been awarded by the War Supply Board and its predecessor, the Defence Purchasing Board, including a contract of more than $9,000,000 for motor vehicles and a $1,135,000 contract for converting two Canadian passenger vessels into armed merchant cruisers.

A few hours later it was announced that an order for 7,302 vehicles had been placed with General Motors of Canada at Oshawa, Ont., and with Ford Motor Company of Canada, Windsor, Ont.

The vehicles include general service trucks, lorries and tractors to be used by the First and Second Divisions of the Canadian Active Service Force and auxiliary forces. The contract will be divided about equally between the two motor companies.

U.S. Press Scored By Chamberlain

LONDON, March 20—(CP Cable). —Prime Minister Chamberlain on Tuesday criticized United States newspapers which blamed Britain and France for failing to go to the assistance of the Finns.

In his speech to the House of Commons, the Prime Minister denied that Britain and France failed to render all possible assistance to the Finns, claiming that proposition "is one that cannot for a moment be maintained."

Then he added these words: "And least of all should such suggestions come from individuals in countries far away from the seat of war who have never felt any anxiety for their friends or for themselves."

His words, although greeted with loud cheers, mystified many people because it was not clear whom he had in mind. Joseph Kennedy, the United States Ambassador, who sat in the diplomats' gallery, appeared to flush and gazed at the floor.

Last Minute News Flashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Cordell Hull directed James H. R. Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada, today to send him at once an official version of Cromwell's Toronto speech praising Anglo-French war aims and criticizing Germany. To make sure there is no delay, Hull also asked the American legation in Ottawa to forward a copy, since Cromwell is on a visit to his New Jersey home and might not have one with him.

BERLIN (AP)—Russian Ambassador Alexander Shkhartzeff departed by plane for Moscow today, a German spokesman disclosed, arousing conjecture that he was carrying an important message to Joseph Stalin. The departure was linked with rumors which have persisted in Berlin all week that tomorrow or Friday at the latest would mark another milestone in the relation of Russia to the Rome-Berlin axis.

MONTREAL, March 20.—(CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines reported today a net operating loss for 1939 of $236,269. Operating revenue totalled $2,350,473 and operating expenses aggregated $2,586,743.

The report, issued by President S. J. Hungerford, placed the deficit at $411,656. This is provided by Dominion subsidy and is $77,284 under the amont of $488,941, appropriated by parliament for the purpose.

Operating revenue was made up of $643,915 contributed by passenger fares, $1,632,873 from mails and $23,-613 from express. Operating expenses included $1,724,153 for aircraft operation and maintenance, $636,256 for ground operation and maintenance and $10,763 for general taxes.

The deficit was raised to $411,656 by addition to the operating loss of $175,904 interest on capital invested and subtracting $517 miscellaneous income. Operating expenses included, in addition to operation costs of revenue-producing services, all expenses incurred during the year in the development of new services and training of personnel.

The report says consideration has been given to increasing the transcontinental schedule to two trips daily each way on the Montreal-Toronto-Vancouver run. Sufficient trained personnel will be available shortly and it now appears "reasonably certain' that the additional service will begin on or about April 1.

The paid in capital of the company, raised by the issue of capital stock, is reported at $3,750,000, an increase of $550,000. Of the funds thus obtained, $3,699,889 has been invested in aircraft, buildings and ground equipment. No portion of the capital was used for organization, training or development expense.

Passengers carried during the year totalled 21,569. Air mails carried aggregated 452,000 pounds and air express 45,819 pounds.

Cat Bites Rat, Girl Drowns It, Dog Bites Girl All Get Rabies Test, Police Get Exhausted

BOSTON, Mar. 20 — (AP). — This is the story of a girl, her cat, her dog, her white rat and her aunt. Take a deep breath and begin:

Jean Scola, 13, visited her 10-year-old niece, Palvora Starr, last night. The stork visited Palvora's cat Puccini. Puccini, distraught at becoming a mother for the first time, attacked Snookie, Palvora's white rat.

Jean went to the rescue. The cat bit her finger, but Jean retrieved the rat and held it under a faucet in an effort to revive it. The rat drowned. This tumult in the kitchen brought Palmora on the run. She took after the cat.

King, Queen Take 1st Holiday Since War Began

LONDON, March 20 (CP)—The King and Queen today prepared to leave for an Easter holiday during which they expected to enjoy complete seclusion for a whole week.

The Royal offices at Buckingham Palace will be closed and the King, unless an unexpected crisis should develop, will be undisturbed by affairs of state during his absence.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, on the contrary, was expected to keep in close touch with Downing Street during his country weekend and be ready to hurry back to London if needed.

Only 'House' Hit Says Berlin Of R.A.F. Raids

BERLIN, March 20.—(AP)—The German high command announced today that only a "house" was hit in the British raid on Germany's Sylt Island base. One British plane was said to have been shot down.

The regular communique folows:

"In the west no special events. Yesterday about 6 p.m. British planes attacked the Island of Sylt. A number of planes continued this attack unil 2:40 a.m.

"One house was struck, otherwise, thanks to the German defences, no damage was done. Most of the bombs fell in the water. One British warplane was shot down by anti-aircraft artillery.

"In connection with this attack the British planes flew over Danish territory."

Italy's Isolationist Stand Keeps Balkans, Hitler Courting Duce

PARIS, March 20.—(CP-Havas)—An authoritative source said last night that Adolf Hitler failed during his meeting with Premier Mussolini to induce the Italian leader to scrap the Balkan policy which Rome has pursued since the war began.

This source said Hitler tried to get his axis partner to join Germany and Russia in a division of political influence in Southeastern Europe, but Il Duce, feeling free to continue the policy he adopted at the outbreak of the war, declined to commit himself.

Reports reaching here from competent sources in leading neutral capitals stated that the German plans called for complete exclusion of British and French influence in the Balkan zone. The gloomy appearance of Hitler after the meeting—in contrast with the smiling Il Duce—together with the optimistic attitude of high Fascist quarters in Rome were interpreted here as confirmation that Mussolini returned from the meeting with his freedom of action unimpaired.

During the second phase of the war—from the end of the Polish campaign up to the present—two powers, Italy and Turkey, have worked to organize Balkan and Danubian Europe, diplomatic circles pointed out. The February meeting of the Balkan Entente confirmed that their efforts and objectives were not in conflict, they added.

But in February Russia was bogged down in its campaign in Finland and constituted little or no

Britain Expects Report On Welles Without Request—U.S. Ties So Good

LONDON, March 20 (CP)—The British government is "so satisfied with relations with the United States" that it is directing no special questions concerning the significance of Sumner Welles' European tour but is "relying on their courtesy to keep us informed," foreign undersecretary Richard Butler told the House of Commons today.

Replying to a Conservative member's suggestion that British purchases of United States aircraft be discontinued, Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood told the House that negotiations for further purchases "are proceeding normally."

Mr. Butler reiterated the government's determination not to publish its projected White Paper on the pre-war negotiations with Soviet Russia which broke down when the Russo-German accord was reached. This decision, he said, holds in spite of the ending of the Russo-Finnish war.

He also informed the house that when Britain declined to pass Russia's peace terms to Finland—which later were transmitted through Sweden—the government considered Russia was not prepared to modify them.

"This judgment was confirmed by subsequent events," he said.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, assured the House that "very good arrangements exist" for the defence of Scapa Flow, the naval base in the Orkneys, which was raided by German aircraft on Saturday.

Mr. Churchill, who recently made an inspection of the base, characterized as significant and encouraging "the effort of the enemy to portray a petty, ill-directed raid as an important military affair."

Three Gunmen All Given Longer Terms

TORONTO, March 20.—Sitting at Osgoode Hall yesterday, Court of Appeal stiffened the sentences of three men convicted of armed robbery, reduced the penalty imposed on a Simcoe thief, and dismissed the appeals of a man convicted of stealing two bicycles, and a woman found guilty of keeping a common bawdy house.

Attorney-General Conant appealed against the sentences imposed on Lloyd McPherson, William Pascas and Fred MacDonald by Magistrate Campbell at Cobourg on Jan. 18. Convicted of armed robbery, they were sentenced to two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory They were also given ten-months terms each on charges of breaking and entering, to run concurrently with sentences previously imposed at Hamilton for car theft.

The court altered the sentences to three years each in the penitentiary, to be served concurrently with all the convictions. These sentences were dated back to the time of their imprisonment in the reformatory.

Sentence of fifteen months in the reformatory, imposed on Reginald Schram at Simcoe by Magistrate Livermore last Dec. 30 was reduced by the court to six months Schram, who was convicted of stealing nine tobacco-furnace grates, appealed in forma pauperis

John Douglas' appeal against a sentence of eighteen months in the Ontario Reformatory for theft of two bicycles was dismissed The sentence was passed on him by Judge Morley in Grey County Court last July 18 threat in the Balkans. Now the Finnish campaign is over and Germany apparently has decided to join with its Soviet partner in a new attempt to increase their political influence in Southeastern Europe, according to the Paris view.

The court also dismissed the appeal of Mary Kutchke from her conviction by Magistrate Forsyth on Jan. 15 on a charge of keeping a common bawdy house She had been fined $50 or 30 days.

While Russia's hands were more or less tied in Finland Germany's activities in the Balkans were confined exclusively to ecoonmic questions but Paris sees Berlin and Moscow now trying to undo the work done by Rome and Ankara.

In direct contrast to the methods employed by Italy and Turkey, German moves in the Balkans have been based on a policy of playing up the long standing grievances between the small powers. In an effort to win Rumania to the German viewpoint the Nazis have appeared to adopt an anti-Hungarian stand, it was said.

This has brought the Reich into conflict with Italy and with Italian objectives. It was recalled that Rome long has pledged its support to Hungary and that Mussolini himself coined the slogan "justice for Hungary," which never has been abandoned by Rome. Hungary demands return of territories ceded after the last war to Rumania.

An indication that both Rumania and Hungary were worried about Italy's attitude toward them was seen in almost simultaneous announcements that Premier Pal Teleky of Hungary and foreign minister Grigore Gafencu of Rumania were going to Rome to confer with Mussolini.

"If Germany is to be defeated, we must have a supreme, compact directorate, undisturbed by departmental duties, to devote all their energies to the struggle."

The News-Chronicle (Liberal) said: "There is not a man or woman in Britain who would not welcome peace with open arms. But what sort of peace. There can be no peace for the British people which means perpetuation of fear and uncertainty and indefinite prolongation of the huge burden of armament without actual fighting. Nor can there be any peace for them which fails to take account of their pledges to the Poles and Czechs.

Manion Bribery Charges Spark Campaign

(By the Canadian Press.)

A dispute over war contracts threatened today to dominate the last days of the Dominion election campaign following Conservative Leader Manion's accusation that the Liberal Government is trying to win the election by bribery.

A lagging campaign was sparked into new activity last night by Dr. Manion, who told a Montreal meeting he had received a telegram advising him the Government had awarded a $5,000,000 war contract in a Western Ontario town in what he described as an apparent attempt to buy the riding's support for the Government candidate. He did not name the town.

The Government is going "to try and buy up the country," he stated. "I'm going to warn them that they cannot attempt to win with bribery like that in the last week of the elections."

Meanwhile in Windsor, Ont., Labor Minister McLarty told a meeting in his constituency that he vistualized the end of unemployment in the district as a result of the

Y.P.U. Presbytery Officers Guests At Millbrook Group's Party

MILLBROOK, Mar. 20 (ENS). — St. Andrew's Sunday School Hall was the scene of a happy gathering on Friday at 8 p.m., when the Y. P. U. Presbytery officers held a St. Patrick's party, with over sixty in attendance.

In keeping with the season, streamers of green and white were twined overhead, lamps had green shades and a seach guest arrived a green shamrock was pinned on coat lapel or dress.

The officers of the Peterborough Presbytery who were in charge of the evening included Loretta McDougall, recreation convener of both the Presbytery and the Bay of Quinte Conference Y.P.U.; Robert Spence of Lakefield, Presbytery president; Lloyd Richards of Peterborough, dramatic convener for the Presbytery; and Gladys Girard of the Knox Church Y.P.U., Peterborough.

Games and contests, for which prizes were appropriately connected with St. Patrick's Day so far as the predominating green color was concerned, recreation and singing games, and a sing-song led by Miss McDougall, with Lois Windrim of Springville at the piano, made the time pass quickly and enjoyably. Phyllis Kidd was the other accompanist of the evening, and guests included members of the Y.P.U. from Bethany, Springville, Cavan, Lakefield, Peterborough, and the local society.

Following a dainty lunch, a short worship service in charge of the Presbytery president, with Lloyd Richards reading the lesson, brought the evening to a fitting close, this concluding feature being introduced with soft music played by Miss Windrim, the hymns "I would be true" and "We are climbing Jacob's ladder" and finally "Taps," with all standing and facing the west for this softly-sung prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Marsden and Fred Simpson of Akron, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Marsden of Lakefield, Mr. and Mrs. Merrit Taylor and Clarence Taylor of Curve Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson of Toronto attended funeral services on Saturday for the late Mrs. Olive Marsden.

Hastings

The engagement has been announced of Myrtle Adelaide, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pulfer to Wilfred Samuel, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Buck of Norwood. The marriage will take place the latter part of the month.

Miss Jessie Lamb spent the week-end with her parents in Omemee.

Promising Too Much

Election campaigns are often enough times for making promises. We have before us an advertisement from a Western Ontario paper in which the National Government candidate says:

"In order that Canada may use its resources and industry to the best advantage she must have skilled workmen. The National Government will therefore bring in a system of apprenticeship training in all trades. In this way if your boy comes out of school if he chooses he can be apprenticed to learn a trade insuring him gainful occupation."

Could a National Government, or any other kind of a government, carry out any such scheme? Could there be any guarantee that if a boy did go and learn a trade there would be an opening for him upon completion of his apprenticeship? And yet that is what is plainly promised—"insuring him gainful occupation."

It is a fact that the number of apprentices in many trades is regulated and controlled by the number of journeymen employed. It is not feasible to take on too many apprentices because they could not be properly trained, and if any factory were carrying too many of them it would be certain to bear down on the wage standard.

A government as such has no facilities for teaching trades. We are already attending to the foundation work of that in our vocational schools, but here again the problem is always present of trying to find places for graduates when they are through, and the government would not have the answer to that.

It would be much better for candidates to confine their appeals to the issues which are before the electors now rather than to hold out promises which no government could possibly carry to completion.

Nothing Settled There

Chancellor Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini met at Brenner Pass and there they were in conference for something better than two hours. There were no reporters present, and there was no direct statement issued dealing with the subjects under discussion.

Brenner Pass is historic ground, and not many years ago it was considered essential to the peace and safety of Italy that a lesser nation such as Austria should be at the other end of it. Now Germany is there. Whether Mussolini or Italy fully approves of that is open to question, and always will be.

In the absence of direct statement, it is necessary to fall back on reports published in Italian papers, particularly those which are known to speak with authority. There we learn that Italy has decided to retain her present position, that of a neutral. It is stated too that peace plans were not discussed.

From Berlin comes the report that Hitler and Mussolini are now in agreement regarding the ultimate participation of Italy in the war on the side of Germany. So the reports coming from Rome do not agree with those being published in Berlin.

It does seem difficult for some sections of the world to pass the stage where jitters attack when there is a meeting between Hitler and Mussolini or Hitler and any other individual. It's a mistake to get the idea that the future condition of the world rested in the balance when that two-hour meeting took place at Brenner Pass.

We do not under-estimate the strength of Hitler; not for a moment. Nor do we doubt he will do his worst. The world has already had evidence of that. But we do feel a growing sense of strength in the cause and resources of the Allied powers, and it is right there we look for direction and guidance, and not to Brenner Pass.

In a Class By Himself

If one wished to read papers closely enough he could find out about dozens of new thieves every week. They keep on turning up in nearly every community of any size and they provide a fair portion of the grist for the magistrate's mill.

It does seems that most of them are just plain stupid or mean, although occasionally one has a case which is different, and there seems to have been no other way of existence except by stealing something.

Now and then one appears who touches a new high, and we read of such a thief in Toronto. He had been going with a girl who had to work for a living, and who had been careful enough to save some money.

This girl gave the man to whom she was engaged $250, and he was to use $100 of that to buy some furniture; she also bought him a wrist watch and a new suit of clothes for the wedding, but the man never turned up on the day set for the wedding. In addition he stole a ring from her and a wrist watch for which she had paid $25. He never bought a stick of furniture and had no intention of marrying the girl.

In comparison to that sort of a thief we are moved to have some slight respect for the one who goes in to steal where he is liable to have a fight with the owner or some trouble with the police. Heartless and without a conscience, we doubt whether he will ever amount to anything because there is no good material in him on which to work. All thieves are mean, but that Toronto man has a special bin reserved for him. Pretty much in a class by himself.

Rules Apply To All

Prime Minister King has considered it advisable to make a reply to the criticism that radio censorship has been brought into existence to save the government from criticism. And of criticism there has been plenty. We have noticed several times where speakers said they had been gagged by the government; they had no chance to say what they desired and so on.

Mr. King's explanation seems reasonable. There are certain restrictions which have to be observed as a wartime necessity, and they apply to all on the same grounds. There is not one set of rules for members of the Government and another for those who are opposed to the Government. If the regulations make it impossible for speakers to go into certain facts in criticising the Government, then the same regulations make it impossible for members of the Government to disclose certain information which could be used in defence of their position. It is much the same as conducting a debate in the House of Commons. The same rules of debate apply to all the members.

This Sacred Week

During the week preceding Easter Sunday there are special services in many places, and that is right enough. Memories which are sacred crowd themselves into these days as Christians the world over follow once again the events leading toward the Cross.

There is something there which even a war-torn world cannot forget, and yet in the act of remembrance there is the danger that the tendency will be to allow all feeling and emotion and love to concentrate on something which is apt to be reviewed only as an historic event.

Danger too that the people of today may allow their devotion to find its expression only in regret that the Master should have met with such treatment in the days in which He lived upon earth.

It may be we slip rather easily into the error of taking it for granted that if we had the arranging of such matters things would have been different. We would not have been guilty of the indignities which were heaped upon the Son of God. It is so easy for us to drop into the easy habit of condemning those who lived at the time of the Crucifixion.

This should be an appropriate time for doing some honest thinking. Possibly we would not crucify the Master today, but what would we do? We have had before us for centuries His teachings, His commandments, His standards of life and of living. At any time with our open Bible we have access to the Sermon on the Mount, and if we read that carefully we must admit that we are not measuring up to the standard.

We can with truth say we would not place a crown of thorns on the head of the Master, but we could hurt Him by passing Him by, by giving assent to devotion and belief and yet by our lives from day to do indulging in an open or thinly veiled denial of our professions. We could hurt Him by callous indifference to His claims; we could leave Him alone to make His way as best He might.

So when passing through this sacred season it seems proper and honest that we might do some plain self-examination, and not be content with looking at Passion Week as something which belongs in history alone.

R. M. Glover's Position

The writer of a letter to the Examiner suggests that "R. M. Glover, once publisher of the Examiner, seems to find it easy enough to get his case well stated in the paper. Perhaps he is not as much out of it as the public has been given to believe."

The letter was signed by a name which we could not identify. As a rule it would not be noticed, but for the moment it will receive attention. R. M. Glover has no connection with the Examiner, and that statement is possible of easy verification. Even if he had we are certain he would be the last man to seek to make use of it in election times. His dealings with the public during his long years of residence in Peterborough is an open book for inspection.

As a matter of plain fact Mr. Glover is not even a frequent visitor in his old newspaper haunts; we might even express the wish he would come more often. He has not been in the office since he accepted nomination nor has he sent any messengers bearing word or tidings. He is conducting himself as he always has done, as a gentleman. The city and district knew him as a fair-minded publisher; the city has since known him as a clear-thinking public servant. And if the riding sees fit to elect him as member of parliament he will give all he has to the duties of that office. And that is what the Examiner thinks of R. M. Glover, the former publisher, who now has not even one dollar's worth of financial interest in this paper.

SPOILED

¶ When Monday's not a goodly day, Aunt Phoebe feels almost fit to slay, she's neither tame nor meek; the feeling seems to stay with her, and it will neither leave nor stir, it camps on her all week.

¶ For when it comes around to nine, her washing's not hung on the line, then everything looks black; the whole thing through will be the same, the week will totter poor and lame, no peace around the shack.

¶ And Tuesday's spoiled before it comes, of cheer there's not some broken crumbs, Aunt Phoebe's clean out of luck; the suds of Monday seems to stay, nor can she get them shoved away, she's rooted and she's stuck.

¶ Most times Aunt Phoebe just smiles at me, as gentle as a soul could be, and ne'er an angry word; but when her Monday wash goes wrong, the atmosphere is tense and strong, and she is deeply stirred.

¶ Aunt Phoebe will go and nurse the sick and night and day long hours she'll stick, she grieves for those in pain; on goodly deeds she'll walk a mile, and end up with a pleasant smile, and always seems the same.

¶ But when a Monday comes along, and rain and sleet are showing strong, and it's no washing day; I know too well just how she'll feel, all week she'll rock clean off her keel—and so I stay away.

Hitler Planned Every Move In European War

OXFORD Periodical History of the War has brought another valuable contribution, one in which proof is submitted that events in Europe have been like turning the pages in "Mein Kampf."

Prof. McInnis, by means of a concise presentation of factual evidence, of dates, names, places, of treaties and documents, tells the story of the rise of the Nazi party from the days when Stresemann found himself unable to maintain the German Republic on the basis of government aiming at a peaceful settlement of the conflicting elements in Europe. "Failure of Stresemann's policy failed to produce the expected results," writes Prof. McInnis, "and when in addition Germany was plunged into the depression of 1929, the way was paved for the overthrow of his policy of moderation and a return to hatred and violence. This was the spirit which brought Hitler into power."

Of that now over-worn argument as to the right or wrong of the peace treaties of 1919, the author is rather non-commital. He says: "It is not necessary here to discuss the wisdom or the justice of the treaties. It is enough to recognize that one of the motives behind them was the desire for security against any renewal of attack by the defeated powers. The victorious nations felt that they must remain strong enough to defeat any such attempt—or, still better, that their enemies must be rendered powerless to repeat their aggression of 1914. If a system of permanent peace could be established this attitude of distrust could perhaps be abandoned. But until they could be confident of the effectiveness of a system of collective security, in which a state endangered by its neighbor could count on other states to protect it, the nations felt that they must continue to rely upon their own superior strength."

As Prof. McInnis says, this war was the atmosphere that pervaded Europe after 1919, in fact up until the Presidency of Hindenburg and the coming of Hitler. It was justifiable so far as the Allies were concerned because they had learned their lesson in the bitter fires of war. They appreciated the fact that human nature being what it is, Germany would surely return some day to the field of war, seeking to compensate herself for her loss. The Treaty of Versailles had its obvious defects; the war guilt clause should possibly not have been enforced upon Germany. But the principle reason of the restrictions of the peace treaties was fear—fear that a resurgent and resentful Germany would some day launch another attack, and find the Allies unready. The tragedy is that this is exactly what happened. The Allies were unready.

THE PAST 20 YEARS has been actually a clash between the British doctrine of disarmament and the Hitlerian philosophy of the Master Race in Germany and its need for expansion. Prof. McInnis gives us apt quotations from Mein Kampf which illustrate the unalterable attitude of Hitler, one from which he has never wavered: "The people do not perish by lost wars, but by the loss of that force of resistance which is contained only in the pureblood...The state (the Third Reich) must assure for the race that it comprises an existence on this planet....The right to land and soil may be changed to duty if without an extension of soil a great nation seems doomed to ruin. Such a territorial policy cannot find its fulfilment in the Cameroons, for example, but almost exclusively in Europe....If we speak of land in Europe today we can only think in the first instance of Russia and the border states under her influence. Fate seems here to point the way for us....The reconquest of her (Germany's) lost territories cannot be achieved by solemn appeals to Almighty God or pious hopes in the League of Nations, but only by armed force."

In subsequent pages, the writer details step by step how Germany's present leader, now regarded as a divinely-appointed Germanic Moses, made his perfidious way down the years, tearing up one treaty after another, disregarding one promise after another, openly flouting every law of humanity and morality, in the purposeful performance of his philosophy as laid down in Mein Kampf. The wonder of it all is that two such nations as England and France, never short of business brains and acumen, failed to read the writing on the wall.

AS A MATTER OF FACT there was recognition of the danger as far back as 1935, when, Berlin having announced to the world her "sincere desire to promote the safeguarding of peace" suddenly disclosed on March 10 of that year, through Marshal Goering, that a military air force had been created. Simultaneously a German decree announced the restoration of conscription, and the creation of an army of 550,000 men. Britain protested but she refused to join France in considering punitive measures. Had Downing Street joined with Paris at that time, the present war might have been averted.

From that time on, until the rape of Poland, history is merely a recitation of Herr Hitler's encroachments, French suspicion, and British faith in a policy of appeasement. It is fortunate the French built their Maginot Line, still more unfortunate that Germany was not occupied when the Siegfried Line was begun. Prof. McInnis presents a chronological outline of the past decade. In Germany's bolt from the League of Nations, the invasion of the Rhineland — 90,000 men in less than a week—annexation of Austria, participation in the war in Spain in 1936, the subsequent invasions of Bohemia, Czecho-Slovakia, and the Polish war, we see the hand of Hitler, inexorable and resolute.

• Allies Did Not Sacrifice Finland

AT A TIME when, in the very natural sympathy there is for the Finns, there will be a tendency to blame all and sundry, even including Britain and France for their fate, it is worthwhile studying an interesting calendar of events in connection with the Finnish war compiled by Dorothy Thompson in the New York Herald-Tribune.

In the course of that list Miss Thompson points out that as early as Dec. 15 Britain and France commenced the shipment to Finland of war materials, which in the end reached a very substantial figure including a total of 400 planes from the two countries, while considerable Swedish aid, totalling in material and money some $60,000,000 or $70,000,000.

On Feb. 5 Britain and France decided at the Supreme Council of the Allied Powers to send regular troops to Finland. On Feb. 12 some 100,000 regular troops were standing by in British and French ports ready to be transferred and the Allied governments told Finland that if it would make a formal request for help they would bring pressure on Norway and Sweden to permit the passage of those troops. On February 17 Mr. Sumner Welles sailed for Europe. On Feb. 22 the Russian government asked Britain to pass along peace terms to Finland and the British government refused because of the severity of the terms. On March 1, the Nazi government, through Sweden intermediaries, begins pressure on Sweden to prevent the passage of troops. On March 13 an American correspondent broadcasting from Berlin revealed that the Nazi government had sent an ultimatum to Sweden. On March 13 Foreign Minister Tanner of Finland told the story of why Finland had to make peace.

"The Allies," says Miss Thompson, "despite the fact that they are already engaged in a serious struggle with Germany, offered to send a hundred thousand men and depleted their own war material stores to send substantial assistance to the Finns.

"Further assistance was impossible becaue the German threatened the whole Scandinavian peninsula with invasion if they allowed it.

"The peace treaty, which is disastrous for Finland, originated in Berlin and Moscow."

Miss Thompson makes some criticism of her own country for its slowness and disinclination to send real aid to the Finns but she says:

"The Allies' moral position is excellent."

PROUD OF HIS MEN

WING COMMANDER Reg. Collis doesn't want anyone in Canada to think that the boys of the Royal Canadian Air Force are not good fighting men. The commandant of the air training school at St. Thomas is anxious to stick up for his men. He does not like the way they have been criticized. Neither does he take kindly to the fact that a special court of inquiry was held in an effort to show that the boys of the Air Force aren't good soldiers.

The wing commander freely admits that there was a misunderstanding at the school on Saturday, February 10. He acknowledges that some of the lads went away without leave. He explains that conflicting orders were posted and that some of the chaps chose to obey the order they liked, instead of the one they didn't like.

But, in case anyone in Canada, in Germany, or in any other country might have got the idea that the Air Force boys are not good soldiers, who will make it uncomfortable for the Boche, the wing commander hastens to champion his men. The wing commander wants everyone to know that the men under his command are first class fighting airmen.—W. L. Clark, in Windsor Star.

Utilities' Electrical Department Shows Increased Profit In 1939

The financial statement of the Electrical Department of the Peterborough Utilities Commission for the year ending December 31, 1939, is shown elsewhere in this issue. It will be noted that, after all expenses are paid, a profit of $21,092.53 is shown. For the year 1938 the profit was $14,646.17.

Revenues from all consumers were greatly increased. The domestic consumers paid over $8,400.00 more than last year, although the average cost per kilowatt hour was reduced to $1.18 cents as compared with 1.2 cents in 1938. The average monthly use per consumer was 203 kilowatt hours, which is 10 per cent. higher than in 1938, and double that used ten years ago. No clearer demonstration of the fact that increased use means lower costs than the above figures point out.

It is interesting to note that, while the assessed population of the city has only increased by 25 from 1938, yet the number of domestic consumers increased by 149. There was considerable building of new homes last year, and it may be that certain families that have been doubling up with others have decided to occupy their own homes.

Lighting Revenue Increased.

Commercial lighting revenue increased $6,000.00 over last year, due in part to improved lighting undertaken by many of the merchants. The cost per kilowatt hour to the consumer has decreased slightly due to the additional use.

Power revenue increased $7,500, and this can be attributed to the greater activity in our industries. The average cost per kilowatt hour was 1 cent, a slight reduction from the previous year. These consumers used 6,940 horse-power in 1939, as compared with 6,200 in 1938.

The local Commission paid out $254,241.47 for power, and as the average monthly peak was 9,650 h.p., the cost was $26.40 per h.p. Usually the Commission has received a credit on account of the annual adjustment in the cost, but this year an extra charge was made.

A study of the statement submitted by the Ontario Commission, which accompanied the charge, shows that the provision for stabilization of rates was made $2.00 per h.p., instead of $1.00 per h.p. in 1938. If this had not been done, a substantial credit would have been received.

Monthly Peak 9,650 H.P.

As stated before, the average monthly peak on the local system was 9,650 h.p., as compared with 9,037 h.p. in 1938. In December, the peak for the month was 11,805 h.p., the highest ever recorded here. This is twice the load taken ten years ago.

No items of major construction were undertaken in 1939, and additions to capital account have been mainly on account of water heaters. These were increased from 1,513 at the beginning of the year to 1,709 at the end.

The Commission constructed 46 miles of rural line for the H.E.P.C. This work was done on the usual cost plus basis.

Colored lights were again installed on the city streets for the Christmas season, at the request of the Retail Merchants' Association.

There was only one general interruption to service in the city on April 23, for twelve minutes. This was due to a breakdown at the Auburn switching station of the H.E.P.C. On September 10 a small cyclone struck the city and blew down a large number of trees. Bolivar Street near Park was affected the most, and our lines were completely wrecked by ten or twelve large trees falling over them. Service was interrupted for three hours in the locality until a temporary line could be built.

On the declaration of war steps were taken to prevent sabotage at the Sub-Station. Wire glass was installed in all windows accessible from the ground, and the fence around the property repaired and strengthened. Floodlights were placed so that every part of the yard and street can be seen from inside the station, and an extra man was employed for the night time.

MARMORA

Mrs. U. Pinner 86 In Fine Health

MARMORA, March 20—(ENS)—Celebrating her 86th birthday in good health in her home here on Monday, Mrs. Urena Pinner recalls interesting developments of the village of Marmora, where she has spent 84 years of her life.

Born in Springbrook in 1854, she moved to Marmora with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Wellington McWilliams, at the age of two years. Having a keen memory she can discuss happenings in the village for the greater part of a century. Mrs. Pinner is one of a large family of twelve, six boys and six girls, of which the only other surviving member is Mrs. J. Atkinson of Winnipeg. In 1874 she married George Pinner at Stirling; the ceremony being performed by Rev. William Scales.

Mrs. Pinner's son Fred resides with her in the home, and a son, Will, resides at Fort William. She also has two daughters, Mrs. T. J. Butler, Toronto, and Mrs. George Hartley, Marmora. Her husband and three children, Percy, Jenny and Bruce passed away several years ago.

Alberta Votes One-Two-Three, Not By X-Mark

By LORNE BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

EDMONTON, March 20—(CP).—Two systems of balloting—proportional representation and single transferable ballot—will be used in the Alberta election tomorrow.

Proportional representation, in the five-member ridings of Calgary and Edmonton, and the single transferable ballot method of counting in the 47 single-seat ridings, differ in the distribution of votes.

Under proportional representation, candidates generally must reach a fixed quota, based on the number of seats at stake and the total valid vote, before being declared elected. In a single transferable vote the first candidate obtaining a majority over all others is elected.

In Edmonton and Calgary ridings using proportional representation, the first step will be to establish a quota. This is done by dividing the total number of valid ballots cast by the number of seats plus one, then adding one to the answer.

Thus if 42,000 vadid votes were cast in Edmonton, the quota would be obtained by dividing 42,000 by six—five seats plus one—which would give 7,000 to which one would be added, making 7,001. Addition of one to the 7,000 is to avoid the remote possibility of six candidates each getting exactly 7,000 resulting in six being elected for five seats.

After the first count is made, the candidate with the lowest number of first choices is dropped. The second choices on his ballots are distributed to the others along with the second choices of any ballots marked "1" for any candidate who has already reached his quota.

Distribution continues by dropping candidates and taking excess ballots for elected candidates until the slate is filled. Because some voters "plump"—marking only a first choice—it often happens that the last candidate elected does not receive the quota. Sometimes even the final two candidates elected do not receive the quota.

Single Member Ridings.

The single transferable vote used in the single-member ridings allows a candidate to be elected on the first count if he has a majority over all others. If a majority is not obtained on the first count, the candidates having the least number of first chances is eliminated and the ballots are allocated to others according to the second choice. This procedure continues until one candidate has a majority.

Alberta's system of voting in provincial elections, approved by the Legislature in 1924 and used for the first time in the 1926 provincial election, requires that voters indicate their choices by figures—1 for first, 2 for second, and so on. A voter is entitled to mark his ballot for all candidates in the order of his choice and the numbers often go beyond 20 in the multiple ridings with many candidates.

However, it is not necessary to mark any choices after the first and voters often "plump" so only their first choice candidate will obtain any benefit from their vote.

Use of an "X" rather than a number, the general method of indicating a choice, disqualifies the ballot in Alberta.

Persons who favor the proportional representation and single transferable ballot systems contend they give a better indication of the voters' choice than the more common "X" system of voting. In a four-cornered vote under the "X" system a candidate could be elected by slightly more than a quarter of the votes, but in the choice system, the distribution of second, third and fourth preferences always results in election of a candidate with a majority.

Alberta Remapped For March 21 Vote

EDMONTON, Mar. 20 — (CP).—The number of seats at stake in to-morrow's Alberta election is six less than in the 1935 election, redistribution having reduced seats from 63 to 57. Number of ridings was cut from 53 to 49.

Redistribution was passed at the 1939 session of the Legislature. It resulted in elimination of 11 rural ridings, formation of seven new ones and reduction of Calgary and Edmonton from six to five-member constituencies.

Shift of the population northward was given as the reason for the redistribution which eliminated or merged eight ridings in the southern half of the province and added four in the north. The shift had reduced total voters in some southern ridings to little more than 2,000 and increased those in some northern ridings to nearly 11,000.

The general realignment ended with only one riding—Olds—retaining its original boundaries.

The 10 southern ridings merged into six were: Bow Valley and Empress into Bow Valley-Empress; Acadia and Coronation into Acadia-Coronation; Rocky Mountain, Cochrane and Pincher Creek into Banff-Cochrane and Pincher Creek-Crowsnest; and Okotoks-High River, Nanton-Claresholm and Macleod into Okotoks-High River and Macleod.

Constituencies besides Nanton-Claresholm and Rocky Mountain disappearing were Inisfail, Ribstone, Victoria and Whitford.

New names added were Bruce, Spirit River, Willingdon and Rocky Mountain House.

Numerous changes, mostly additions, have been made in the number of members in the Provincial Legislature Assembly since it began its first session with 25 in 1905. The second Legislature, 1910-13, had 41; the third, 1913-17, 55; the fourth, 1918-21, 56; the firth, 1922-26, 61; the sixth, 1927-30, 60; and the seventh 1931-35 and eighth 1935-40, had 63.

DON'T DRENCH FOODS WITH WEAK SAUCES

Use just a few drops of concentrated relish

ADDING large quantities of weak-flavoured catsups or sauces soon uses up a bottle and runs up expense. From the viewpoint of economy and for your own enjoyment of fine flavours, you will be wise to use a concentrated relish such as H. P. Sauce. Many people claim this is the most savoury sauce in the world: It has such rich, fruity goodness.

Prove the value of H. P. Sauce yourself. Try it in soups, stews, meat pies, salads, macaroni and cheese dishes. Use it with steaks, chops, tenderloins, fish, fowl and other things. H. P. adds a piquant, relishable flavour to all foods. A little goes a long way.

Springbrook Ladies Conduct Supper

BONARLAW, March 10—(ENS)—The Springbrook Women's Institute held a pot-luck dinner and demonstration at the club rooms, Bonarlaw, on Wednesday, March 13, with twenty members present. Messrs. M. Fitzgerald, J. F. Baker, W. J. Barlow, and Brad Spry also joined the ladies and enjoyed the well-prepared dinner which took on the appearance of a banquet.

Mrs. Dave Wellman gave a demonstration on meat cookery. Five kinds of meat were demonstrated, ham mousse, beef loaf, crown roast of sausage, Swiss steak, and pot roast. An interesting talk was given on the different cuts of meat and a vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Eastwood, seconded by Mrs. Roy Brown.

Several present were busy with their knitting for the Red Cross. To date thirty pairs of sox and two scarfs have been given by this branch, and several pairs of pyjamas and other articles also have been made. It was decided to hold another pot-luck dinner in a few weeks, the proceeds for the Red Cross work.

QUAKERS WIN INDUSTRIAL HOCKEY LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP, 4-3

Defeat Packers In Hot Tilt To Grab Title

Quaker Oats won the Industrial Hockey League championship in its first year of operation last night at the Brock Street Rink, taking a 4-3 nod over Canada Packers to cop the second straight of the two-in-three final playoff series. A fair-sized crowd viewed a hot tussle on a fair sheet of ice. Both games were won by one-goal margins.

A three-goal splurge in the second period enabled the Oatmen to go in front and stay there. They were trailing 1-0 to end the first, but had a 3-1 margin going into the third. The Packers got another early to make it 3-2, but Quakers pulled up again with a 4-2 edge late in the frame. Shortly before the finish, C.P.C. again whittled it down to a one-goal difference.

Play was fast and exciting all the way between the well-matched squads. It got quite rough in the second and was rough enough through the ganging-up third canto. Reg. Edmunds of Packers had his head cut in a second-period exchange, getting a stick over the head. Frank Shine of Quakers was the bad man, with four penalties during the tilt. The Packers drew eight and the Quakers seven penalties in the hot fray.

Goth Go Good

Todd and Edmunds were probably the pick of the Packers, with the rest all turning in a good game, especially when they ganged up most of the third period. There were no particular stars for the Porridge Punchers, the scoring being spread around and all going good. Both goalies kicked out a flock of hot stabs in the speedy and hot contest.

Early in the first frame, Jopling counted for the Packers for the only goal of the period, neither side being able to dent the defence enough for another. Quakers had a 3-0 margin in the second. Kennedy, Shine and Hill all counting on neat efforts. Todd rapped one home early in the third for C.P.C., but Calladine got it back shortly. Late in the chukker, Todd rapped home Edmunds' rebound for the final score. Todd got another with a few seconds to go, but it was just after the referee's bell and was called back. It would have been the tying goal and one of the C.P.C. players argued bitterly and pushed the referee around a bit at the finish. The teams:

Packers.—Goal, Feeley; defence, Joplings and Edmunds; centre, Todd; wings, R. Courniyea and Csumrick; alternates, S. Courneya, Grosse, Wolff, Parr and White.

Referee—Cy Whatley.

Browns' Infield Improved Says Fred Haney

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 20 (AP)—Not exactly overloaded with flawless pitching, manager Fred Haney of the St. Louis Browns, a man of great logic, nevertheless believes he has a fair mound staff. He further contends that his pitching staff is just about what his infield makes it.

"Didn't I see our pitchers lose ball games last season, usually in the late innings after we had built up a lead, because maybe we were just a trifle slow on a double play, or could have stopped a hard one that got through?" he queried.

"Maybe that's going to change this summer. We have a more experienced infield now, one that can function just a little better — just enough to make a big difference in our pitching. We have good pitchers —Eldon Auker, Vernon Kennedy, Roxie Lawson, Howard Mills, Bob Harris, Jackie Kramer and some fine relief men in Nathan Andrews, big John Whitehead, Slick Coffman, Johnny Niggeling and Bill Trotter."

Quiet George McQuinn is a solid first baseman who can hit—better than his .316 of last season. On second base will be either Johnny Berardino, the rookie sensation of last year who had acquired polish, or Don Heffner, the veteran ex-Yankee.

If Alan Strange, voted the Pacific Coast's most valuable player of 1939, doesn't kick up a commotion around shortstop and hit somewhere in the vicinity of his .335 of last season, Haney is guessing wrong.

Old reliable Harlond Clift at third base is looking chirp again after last year's unexplainable slip to a .270 average.

"Now why shouldn't we get better with that bunch around?" asks Haney.

Port Hope Girls Win

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20.—(ENS)—Campbellford Girls' Hocey Club dropped a 6-1 decision to Port Hope girls in an exhibition contest staged in the latter town Monday. The locals were well supported by recruits from the Trent River district and with a little practise together would probably have given a better showing. The line-up included Mrs. E. VanVolkenburg, Misses Margaret Brown, Jerine Brown, Yvonne Brown, Marian Knobbs, Josephine Nesbitt and Daisy McGee.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

An impressive array of grid talent and football brains will be on parade tonight at seven in the Empress when the local senior rugby club holds its annual dinner meeting. Open to fans, players and officers—to anyone interested, ducats being on sale at the hotel. Following the feed, the managerial, secretarial and financial reports will be presented for the past season, besides the presidential address. Officers will be elected for 1940 and general plans outlined. Should be a right interesting huddle, with the president and the secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union invited for the affair.

* * * * * *

The torrid Thump Valley Loop puck playoffs resume tonight in Campbellford. The latter squad copped the first of the three-in-five serial on home ice handily, but the Hornets swarmed through to sew it up in Norwood the other eve. They're in Campbellford tonight, and fourth fray will be in Kemptville on Friday. Fifth, if necessary, will be in the Hydro Town. Hendy has been leading the Campbellford crowd in great style, while Manager Alex Kempt has Archie Weir now as playing coach. Other Peterborough puckists wearing the Hornets' livery are Dude Brady, Ike O'Leary and Finnegan Hill. And all going doggone good, too.

* * * * * *

About The Coach

And a word about Coach Frank Buckland of the high-flyin' Petes. The tall, slim puck pilot has been enjoying considerable coaching success since coming to Peterborough back about '32 to work in the C.G.E. office. Before that, in his younger days, he played O.H.A. hockey and later was president of the Toronto Victorias, the Livingston squad which later went under the name Lions in junior "A" competition. Buckland broke into the coaching end of it here in 1933 with our junior Colts. Had 'em in with St. Mike's in "B" finals the next winter and then in the redhot "B" semi-finals with Barrie the next year.

* * * * * *

Frank decided to drop out of the game in 1936, but he could not quite remain away from hockey and ran a puck school for minors at the Brock, discovering some future stars. He coached the intermediate Petes in 1937 and, when his nerves did a jangle the following winter, he quit again—Pick Hines taking the job that winter. Frank returned in 1939 (which was last winter) and piloted the Petes to another group title and into the senior "B" round-robin playoffs. And he has 'em in the O.H.A. round-robin playoffs—and on top of the heap—this year. It is a very good record, and Coach Buckland deserves plenty of credit.

* * * * * *

Keeps The Peace

This same skipper is quite a guy for keeping peace and harmony among the players. He won't stand for any arguing or criticizing among the gang. They can kid all they like and he'll join in—and the bunch like him—but no beefing. He'll do that and out loud, too! He spares no one when t's time for a bawling-out, and his language fairly sizzles. And Buckland is a hard-working gent with his team, getting on the skates at practices and never missing a drill. He thinks hockey the year round and has picked some fine prospects here among juniors as well as bringing in such classy players as Covert, Geddes, Barnes, Tompkins, Crowe, etc., and getting other local lads back in the fold—chaps like the Joplings, Ellis, Burton, and so on. Yes, he has done an okay job with the Petes all along, and he and his squad ought to win a championship this year.

* * * * * *

"Kitchener Greenshirts ran true to form against Collingwood here," says the scribe of that centre, "chalking up an 8-3 win over the team which held them to a 4-all tie previously. It's probably just as well Shipbuilders and not a team like Peterborough were opposing the 'Shirts because the locals were definitely unimpressive. They skated as if they had lead in their shoes and the game was draggy most of the way. The third period was the best and produced seven of the 11 goals, with Greenshirts scoring five of them. It's a pretty safe bet that Shipbuilders are one of the oldest hockey teams playing today. Nobes, Brophy and Cain are all over the 40 mark and Brodeur is 35. All four will hang up their skates at the end of this season. The club is to be rebuilt next year with the accent on youth."

Industrial Loop O'er

Congrats to Quakers upon winning the Industrial Puck Loop title last night at the Brock, nosing out Packers 4-3 for their second straight playoff. Both games were as hot as red flannels in July and as tight as gold lettering on a window, a nifty series to win and a fine showing by the losing outfit. Reg. Edmunds, our idea of the best puckist in the loop, got a bad bang on the head in a rather rough melee, but stayed in there for another four-star performance. Herb Ralph and his battlers did well in copping honors. It's been a good first-year loop, one which didn't make any money but gave many puck-chasers some organized competition, and the teams were all surprisingly well matched.

Port Hope Grads are here tonight to tackle Quaker Aces in an exhibition gals' basketball tilt at nine in the Y.M. It was first called for Monday but will be this evening. Aces are senior city champs from last season and are now in city finals again with the strong "Y" Gym dandies. Quaker lineup with numbers is: Forwards—D. Weese, (3), J. Fowler (12), M. Duncan (8), A. Grady (4); centre—E. Alexander (18), H. Rutter (20); guards—P. Lawless (5), E. Kirn (14), V. Wood (16), M. Hooton (10). It ought to be a nifty game to see. There will be no more girls' playoffs now till next week, because of Good Friday—the senior and junior finals resuming next Wednesday in the Y.W.

Picking 'em off the Grapevine: While P.C.I. junior cagers are out of further competiton, St. Paul's may stage an O.C.B.A. tilt this week-end in Toronto....Western Counties Ball Loop has pulled out of the O.B.A.; one of its towns is Chatham, which raised the dickens last fall re O.B.A. playoffs....Church Loop champs, Murray St., Seniors, Mark St. Juniors, All Saints Juveniles and All Saints Bantams, will be guests at the league banquet April 4th; more on it again....Collingwood is at Owen Sound tonight....Round-robin standing is in tonight and shows the Petes could still end in a three-way tie for top place, but it's highly unlikely....Locals had a good drill last p.m. and will workout again tonight in preparation for their joust in Collingwood on Friday....Rev. Father Lynch, O.R.F.U. prexy, and Secretary Harold Bailey, of Toronto, have sent word they'd attend the grid banquet here tonight....Main officers of the local rugby club are: President H. A. Cranfield, Manager W. J. Jackson, Coach H. L. Bamforth, Secretary V. Hamilton and Treasurer C. B. Neal .... 'Tis thought Oshawa will be used for Petes' home playoff game, if there's no ice here — but nothing definite has been done yet....It was a narrow squeak for Leafs o'er the Hawks last night in the first of their two-in-three serial....Spring arrives with the 21st tomorrow, but you'll have to shovel under a snow-bank to find it just yet.

Accidental Death

PORT ALFRED, Que., Mar. 20.—(CP). — Death of five children of one family when fire swept their three-storey apartment home here was declared accidental last night by a coroner's jury which sat at nearby Bagotville.

The bodies of the five, trapped in their sleep when the fire started about 10 p.m. on Sunday, were recovered from the charred ruins last night.

Pet Saves Master

PITTSBURG, Mar. 20 — (AP).—Harold Widner heard his two-year-old son Roy crying and found him on the sidewalk beside his dog.

"Please wake Ginger," pleaded the boy. Roy had been playing with the eight-months-old pup on a second-storey porch when he slipped off a railing and fell 12 feet. He landed on the dog and killed it, but Widner said there was no doubt the pet broke Roy's fall and saved his life.

Pageant At Y.W.

The Y.W.C.A. gymnasium is taking on the appearance of Fairy Land these days as gay characters from the story "Wizard of Oz" flit around the gym in fantastic costumes.

The pageant will be held in the Y Gymnasium on May 2 and 3. Sewing and cutting committees are busy each day in the Junior Club rooms making costumes. Some of the costumes already made are: Winkies, poppies, patchwork girl, buble fairies, munchkins.

Others include Emerald City, Magic Trees, Wizard of Oz, Cowardly Lion, Dorothy, Toto, Glinda, Tin Man, Straw Man, and Witch. The story has been adapted by Miss C. Littlefield, physical director, who has arranged so many beautiful pageants for each year's presentation.

Bowling At Duffus'

Jack Wade of the C.G.E. included a 333 single in his 848 total to head the league bowlers at Duffus Alleys last night. Mrs. Walter Firth and Miss M. Hawthorne turned in high class performances for the Brinton League when Mrs. Firth was the leading bowler for the ladies with a 317 single in 651 while Miss Hawthorne put 297 in 637.

Good scores included:

No Spending

MILLFIELD, N.H., March 20. — (AP)—This town isn't spending any money this year. The voters—all four of 'em—got together and decided no appropriation was necessary.

Series Standing Shows Petes Practically In

The worst that can happen to the Petes now in their round-robin O.H.A. intermediate "A" series is for the Buckland bunch to end in a three-way tie. Otherwise, they have a playoff berth clinched. Port Colborne has dropped out and, if games played so far against the Ports are thrown out, the locals will finish with at least seven points—even if they lost in Collingwood Friday.

Kitchener (if its wins over the Incos are disregarded) have five points and two games yet to play with Owen Sound. If they win both, Kitchener ends in top place but the Petes grab the second playoff spot. However, Owen Sound has three more games, counting one tonight with Collingwood. If the Trappers should win two games and lose once to Kitchener, the Sound would have seven points, Kitchener would have seven, and the Petes seven. If the Sound wins all three, they and the Petes will be in the playoffs.

Either Way

Practically the same setup appears if the O.H.A. calls all games with Port Colborne so far to stand, calling those not played as defaults by the Ports and wins for their would-be rivals. Following is the standing to date—with Port Colborne games not counted—each club being called on for six round-robin tilts.

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Kitchener	2	1	1	5
Owen Sound	1	1	1	3
Collingwood	0	3	1	1

Following is the five-club standing, counting the Incos' remaining games as defaults:

Petes	5	1	1	11
Kitchener	4	1	1	9
Owen Sound	3	1	1	7
Collingwood	2	3	1	5
Port Colborne	0	8	0	0

(Collingwood has but two more games and cannot make the playoffs).

In Custody Again

TORONTO, March 20 — (CP). — A shopbreaking suspect dived through two windows early to-day before being cornered by police in the basement of a Gerrard Street house.

After being taken into custody the man was identified by police as William Sawicki alias Harris, who, police said, was out on $5,000 bail in connection with five charges.

Remember When—

Boston Bruins' defensive trio—goaler Tiny Thompson and defencemen Eddie Shore and Babe Siebert—were placed on the sixth annual Canadian Press all-star National Hockey League team four years ago today, the only time any team's rearguard has received such unanimous acclaim. The same three were renamed two years later but Seibert then was with Montreal Canadiens.

Wives Trim Hubbies In Lakefield Rink

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 20 (ENS). — A big upset took place last night when the Wives trimmed their Husbands at the Curling Rink. Fred Wannamaker's unbeaten team was defeated by a ladies' rink skipped by Mrs. F. Wannamaker by the score 9-4. The two rinks were:

Ladies.	Men.
Mrs. H. Hamblin	George Graham
Mrs. R. J. Knox	H. Hamblin
Mrs. G. Graham	R. J. Knox
Mrs. Wannamaker	F. Wannamaker

Find 7 More Bodies

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., March 20 (AP)—Rescue crews removed seven more bodies from the Willow Grove coal mine today, raising to 15 the known dead from Saturday's explosion which entombed 71. Officials attempted to identify the bodies before bringing them from the mine to avoid asking relatives of the trapped miners to view all the victims.

One Way Out

Ray Best Wins Club Title And Foote Cup

With the passing of Mrs. R. M. Waddell the Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club has lost a most faithful and loyal member. The late Mrs. Waddell was a charatred member of the ladies' organization, and on many occasions she represented the club by skipping one of the Tankard rinks. She was a past president of the club, and in fact held every office in connection with the club. The sympathy of the entire club is extended to her two sons, Hugh and Arthur.

Yesterday and last evening saw the completion of a few more chapters of the 1939-40 activities— and from now on we are just curling on "extra" weather.

Club championship and Harry F. Foote Trophy:

Ray Best 16, F. Green 14.

Sturgeon Trophy Consolation:

Mrs. C. Westbrooke 14, Miss H. Fanning 1.

Bobcaygeon by a majority of 12 shots retains the Fitzgerald-Bottum Shield.

To-night we will hold the annual Irish and Scottish competition.

If there is ice on Good Friday, the committee is staging a bonspiel with all the proceeds to be donated to the Red Cross Society. The games will start at 9 a.m.—two ten-end games will be played. First and second prizes. All rinks must be of schedule calibre. The entry will be limited to 26 or 28 rinks.

Leafs Win By 3-2 On Apps' Goal; Bruins Lose 4-0

Stopping Boston Bruins' mighty Sauerkraut line is the toughest defensive assignment in hockey. A forward line that stops the Krauts and still scores an important goal is performing one of the National League's rarest feats.

Coach Frank Boucher of the Rangers assigned the task of checking Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart to his roughneck line last night in the first game of Stanley Cup playoffs at New York against Boston's league champions. The roughnecks—Phil Watson, Bryan Hextall and Dutch Hiller—asked for the job.

They halted the Krauts almost in their tracks and scored the first goal as the Rangers began the best-of-seven round with a rousing 4-0 victory before 14,421 customers in Madison Square Garden. Yet Schmidt, Bauer and Dumart have been the highest-scoring unit of the year and their breath-taking plays pulled the Bruins into the title in a dash that overtook the Rangers as the schedule ended.

The victory switched the odds on the round to favor the Rangers, who hadn't shown anything like the same kind of fight or cohesion when Boston edged them out of the championship. Play continues at Boston tomorrow.

Apps Gives Leafs Win.

Toronto and Detroit were hard-pressed to take overtime decisions as the other sets of the opening round began. The Maple Leafs defeated Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 at Toronto when Sylvanus Apps scored his second goal after six minutes and 35 seconds of extra play. The Red Wings downed New York Americans 2-1 at Detroit on Syd Howe's goal just 25 seconds after overtime began.

The Leafs will continue their best-of-three round at Chicago tomorrow and if a third game is necessary it will be played at Toronto on Saturday. The Americans and Red Wings meet at New York on Friday and, if necessary, at Detroit on Sunday. The survivors of these rounds will meet in a best-of-three round for the right to opose the Rangers or Boston for the Cup and world championship.

One big opportunity came to the Krauts in the first period and Goalie

Mac Colville

Dave Kerr stopped Bauer that time. The rest of the show belonged almost entirely to the Blueshirts and Watson finally started the scoring parade after ten minutes of the second, smashing the puck home after a relay from Hextall and Hiller.

Babe Pratt of the Rangers was serving a penalty when his team scored two minutes later, Alex Shibicky converting Neil Colville's pass. The same forward line accounted for the last two goals in the third, Mac Colville getting them both — one with the aid of brother Neil and the other from Shibicky.

Tough Battle for Leafs.

It was an uphill fight for the Maple Leafs, who were faced with the memory of the beating Chicago gave them two years ago in the Cup finals. This time, underdogs in the betting again, the Hawks sped into a 2-0 lead in the first period.

Art Wiebe, returning to the Chicago defence after a two-weeks' absence through injury, scored less than three minutes after the start, while Sweeney Schriner and Mush March of Chicago were serving penalties. Just before the first period ended March extended the advantage while his team was shorthanded, stealing the puck from Schriner and driving in from the Toronto blue-line.

The home team bore down through the second period, but couldn't crash Goalie Paul Goodman's armor until Jack Church rattled in a shot off Wiebe's legs in the third. Halfway through the period, Apps tied the score on a play, started by Bingo Kampman and carried along by Bob Davidson and Gordon Drillon.

Red Heron of Toronto had just returned to the ice, after serving a penalty for tripping March as the Hawk wingman headed goalwards, when Apps broke up the game. He took Davidson's pass at centre ice, rounded Wiebe and poked the puck past Goodman after feinting a rush around the net.

Detroit also had to come from behind. Johnny Gagnon sent the Americans ahead in the first period on a pass from Tommy Anderson, but Alex Motter tied the score in the second with the aid of Ebbie Goodfellow and Sid Abel.

Only the brilliant work of Goalie Earl Robertson kept the Americans in the game throughout the third. Then Howe took the puck from the faceoff as the overtime began, skirted the New York defence and flicked the rubber over Robertson while the customers were still getting settled for a protracted session.

Queensboro Lose Opener 10 to 7 In Tweed Rural League

TWEED, Mar. 20 (ENS). — In the first of a two-game series, goals to count, at the local arena on Tuesday night, the Farnsworth Bees, runners-up of the Tweed Rural League, scored a 10-7 victory over Queensboro, winners of the Northern League.

L. Meraw opened the scoring for the Bees, only to have McMurray tie the count in the first few minutes of play. However, the remainder of the period was mainly in favor of the Bees, who rapped in three more counters, with H. Meraw driving in a lone shot from the blue line, L. Meraw rapping in a close-in shot on Franklin and McCaw scoring on a back-hand from the side. Groves received the only penalty of the period for heavy body-checking.

The Bees tallied the only two counts of the second period, with L. Meraw taking a pass from N. Thompson for the first and H. Meraw tallying the next on a pass from N. Thompson. Vance and L. Meraw went to the box for tripping in this period.

In the last period, both teams opened up, and a total of nine goals were scored before the final bell. Groves and Rollins tallied two quick counters for the visitors, while H. Meraw rapped in a counter for the Bees. Allair then cut the lead when he rounded the defence to rap in the rubber behind Marsh. H. Meraw tallied two quick counters from face-offs to give the Bees a breather. Thompson then scored the final count for the Bees, while McMurray barged through the defence, to tally the seventh counter for the Queensboro lads.

The Bees now carry a three-goal lead into the next game of the series.

The line-ups:

Queensboro — Goal, Franklin; defence, Groves, V. Barry; centre, Thompson; wings, Sexsmith, Rollins; subs., Harris, McMurray, J. Barry, Allair, Sager, Cassidy, Gordon.

Perth Wallops Royals 7 to 2

OTTAWA, Mar. 20 — (CP). — Perth Blue Wings' rushing tactics, a feature of their play last year when they eliminated Charlottetown Royals in a Memorial Cup junior hockey playdown, continue to baffle this season's edition of the Royals.

Held in check for three-quarters of the game by Goalie Earl (Boots) Boates last night, Perth's attack suddenly clicked for five third-period goals which gave them a 7-2 victory in the opening game of a best-of-three Eastern Canada elimination series. Second game will be played here on Thursday.

A penalty to little Jack Coyle of Royals half-way in the third frame gave Perth a break and they made the most of it, scoring three goals in one minute and 27 seconds to clinch the verdict.

Jack Pumple, Stan Rooke, and Jack Egan shared scoring honors for Perth, each notching two goals. Bud Goodfellow got the other, Jimmy Roach and Coyle were the Royals' marksmen.

THE SPORTS ROUND-UP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy (who should know) puts an unhesitating O.K. on Hank Greenberg as an outfielder...You can't convince a lot of folks that Lee Savoldi's strenuous weight-reduction campaign didn't flatten him with the flu.

This may not be a screwy as it sounds..."Hot Potato" Luke Hamlin is learning to throw bad balls, the better to help the Dodgers win this season...Luke's "home run ball" is notorious...He has mastered this pitch as has no other National Baseball League elbower...In 270 innings last summer he served up no less than 27 round trip pitches—for an incredible average of one every 10 heats.

Correction: Sammy Angott and Davey Day will not fight in Louisville Derby Eve. Everything was set, but Day's manager balked at the terms...Florida thinks it should get the all-star baseball game as an annual feature, but the majors want to see a park down there seating 20,000 before they'll consider it...Pete Coscarart got his all-star game payoff hit with a bat given him a few minutes earlier by Mel Ott of the Giants.

This Is What They Say

Right Honorable Neville Chamberlain
Prime Minister of Great Britain

"The world admires the soldiers of Canada, the world admires her war efforts."

Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., F.D.C.
Chief Recruiting Officer for the R.C.A.F.

"When this present war broke out, Canada responded magnificently to the appeal of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Auxiliary Squadrons were brought up to strength and their personal establishment filled. I say without hesitation that it is the finest organization ever built up within such a short time. The keenness and the smartness of our men on parade and off parade prove not only that we have the very finest men in our Force, but there is a remarkable spirit of discipline and spirit of self-sacrifice permeating the entire Force. In other words the "esprit de corps" cannot be surpassed, and I desire you to realize what I know to be a fact—that it is indeed a privilege to serve with such a splendid Force."

Lt.-Col. the Hon. D. M. Sutherland, D.S.O., V.D.
Minister for Defence in the Bennett Cabinet

"I think the government has been doing everything that could possibly be done—I am convinced of that."

Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C.
Officer Commanding 9th Infantry Brigade

"It was astonishing how rapidly new uniforms were produced, and the result was that all the men of the First Division were equipped with the new battle uniform. We never had men so well taken care of as in our army of to-day, in regard to pay, dependents' allowances, food, clothing and shelter. I visited the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment shortly before they went overseas. It was in the early winter. They had comfortable beds in warm barracks and I heard no complaints of any character.

Commanding First Canadian Division in England

"Political or private patronage does not exist; it has been stamped out by our Minister (Mr. Rogers) himself, and merit as judged by the responsible officers each in their proper degree, is the sole criterion for selection and promotion. There is no need for undue haste either in the armed forces or in industry. What is wanted from us is thorough preparation, military forces and supply clearly developing at an increasing rate and gathering momentum; these, it is clear the people of Canada are determined to provide. We are now well started and so I hope the people overseas will take our will to help on faith and in due time we shall not disappoint them."

General J. W. Wilcox
Inspector General of British Infantry

"I am exceedingly pleased with the high standard and the progress in training displayed by the Canadians who come directly within the scope of my department. They are doing a splendid job and I take away a feeling that they have the most profound knowledge and solid grasp of the important work they have in hand."

Right Honorable Anthony Eden
Secretary for the Dominions

"I have to-day had the privilege of visiting Canadian active service forces and have spent the morning watching various units at their training. All ranks were in very good health and spirits. I hope you will allow me to congratulate Canada most warmly on quality, enthusiasm and efficiency which is being displayed by the Canadian troops here."

When men like these not only commend but warmly praise Canada's war effort I am proud to ask for your vote in support of a government doing such a splendid job.

MORE ABOUT—
Only One Plane

and whether the follow-up flights have dropped any more bombs must wait until "all planes have returned" from this latest mission, Ministry sources said.

Reports from Tonder, Denmark, said two planes returned to the scene at 9 a.m. (3 a.m. EST) and dropped six bombs, but more than 100 were dropped in the mass raid of last night and early today.

The bright, thunderous crash of bombs, earth-shaking roars that signified destroyed arsenals, and the leaping red flare of burning hangars and shops gave Britain's reply through the night to Saturday's German raid on the naval anchorage in Scapa Flow.

This was the picture fitted together from Air Ministry communiques and the accounts of waters in nearby Denmark.

From 8 p.m. (2 p.m. EST) until after 3 a.m., the smashing attack continued. The bark of anti-aircraft guns, the fretwork of tracer bullets and the blue-white glare of searchlights manned by Sylt's defenders contributed to the nether-world scene.

One Plane Missing.

Only one British plane was lost, the Air Ministry said.

"Direct hits on hangars housing seaplanes which have raided the British coast were claimed by crews of several aircraft," the Ministry reported in a graphic summation of the results.

"Railway lines and barrack blocks were reported hit. One bomber crew saw a line of four or five bombs dropped by an aircraft ahead of them burst just inland of a jetty.

"Another crew reported two hangars burning fiercely as they left the island. Other fires were also seen to break out following the explosion of a number of bombs near a sseaplane slipway.

"Though the weather was fine and visibility good, little opposition was encountered from enemy fighters. Ground defences, however, were continuously alive. Anti-aircraft batteries in many parts of the island set up a heavy barrage of fire.

"Shells exploded in multi-colored bursts of flame. Around the seaplane base itself a semi-circle of searchlights came into action as our aircraft approached.

"In the earlier phase of the attack, dropping of bombs was followed by intense light anti-aircraft fire from batteries within the target area.

"The last of the British raiders to leave the scene of attack landed back in England at 6.30 a.m."

82 Bombs Heard.

Residents of the nearby Danish coast, who had impromptu ringside seats, counted at least 82 bomb blasts and said four terrific explosions which made the earth quake beneath their feet undoubtedly were direct hits on great munitions stores.

Four Danish towns suffered from the bombing, the Exchange Telegraph Agency reported, but the only damage was to windows.

As the smashing raid got well under way, Prime Minister Chamberlain announced the action which was Britain's most spectacular use of her air armada in the 200 days of war.

A grim smile played about his face as he received the word in a wireless message from one of the raiders and made it public last night before a parliament which had been calling for more energetic prosecutions of the war.

A series of terse communiques from the air ministry related the progress and conclusion of the raid.

None said how many planes and men participated in the continuous wave of flights across 350 miles of the North Sea to the big German seaplane base on Sylt's southern tip.

"Tonight the Royal Air Force attacked and severely damaged the German air base at Hornum, on the island of Sylt," said the first communique.

The Hornets Nest

"This is one of the shore bases from which aircraft operate against our naval forces and merchant shipping. This action follows the attack upon our shore bases in the Orkneys."

At 8 o'clock this morning a communique stated:—

"Attacks made on Hornum last night were spread over a period of about seven hours. All our aircraft have returned safely with the exception of one which is overdue and must be presumed to have been lost.

"Information now available shows that damage reported earlier is very extensive and includes direct hits on slipways and hangars."

(The German news agency, DNB, said last night, after the attack had been in progress three hours, that three separate British raids had been beaten off, with one British plane shot down and the firing of a house the only damage. Early today German officials said they had no further information.)

Danish coast residents told more detailed stories.

The British bombers came in relays, they said, and dived headlong from low clouds. Releasing their bombs in power dives, the raiders zoomed upward and took cover in the clouds again.

There was an incessant chatter of anti-aircraft batteries.

One Observer's Report

A cafe keeper at Havenby, on the Danish island of Romoe relayed:—

"I saw two foreign planes come diving down through the clouds with crazy speed in the direction of Sylt. They dropped eight bombs. I saw great pillars of fire.

"Later I heard an explosion from a single bomb, and a few seconds afterward an explosion came which changed the sky over Sylt into a sea of fire. There was one explosion after another. A bomb undoubtedly hit an ammunition depot.

"All the anti-aircraft guns of Sylt then opened up; tracer bullets streaked across the heavens in all directions. A wall of fire sprang up along the whole of the long island."

Danish mainland city of Tonder, about 25 miles from Sylt, felt the concussion from one big blast, and it was a sleepless night for all the coastal region.

The British fliers who started coming back home early today said that they had done some "accurate bombing."

They said the fires started by the first bombs guided the remainder of the raiders accurately to the objective. Bright moonlight and the cloud-flecked skies were of great aid, they said.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, in his discussion of the war before the House of Commons, described the German raid on Scapa Flow as a "failure" and said only one British ship was damaged slightly in a rain of 121 high explosive bombs and 500 incendiary bombs over a 100-square-mile area.

No Brakes Now

Lord Stabolgi told the House of Lords that the German attacks "removed any obstacle to our bombing German supply and naval bases," and Lord Halifax, the Foreign Secretary, replied that he did not disagree "as to the very legitimate consequences" that might be drawn.

Then came a tight little drama in the House of Commons, when Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood walked in and handed Mr. Chamberlain a bit of paper.

Sir Kingsley wore a broad grin.

Mr. Chamberlain smiled tensely, arose and stated:—

"I should like to tell the House that it has been announced this evening that the R.A.F. attacked and severely damaged the German air base island of Sylt. I understand the attack is still continuing."

The members, some of whom shortly before had shown impatience stood and cheered loudly.

$5,000,000 war contracts for industries in Windsor, announced yesterday.

(The War Supply Board in Ottawa last night announced the placing of an order for more than $9,000,000 worth of motor vehicles, the orders to be about equally divided between motor plants in Windsor and Oshawa, Ont.).

Not Ottawa's Job

At Ottawa, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in a prepared statement, said the Government had no responsibility to see that party affiliations of candidates were made known to voters, and also denied statements by political opponents that the Active Service vote was not secret.

Of statements relating to failure of candidate lists to show party affiliations, the Prime Minister said opponents of the administration had tried to make it appear this was a government responsibility.

"The complete answer to this misrepresentation of the facts is contained in the Electoral Laws of Canada which, in the particulars mentioned, have been the same since Confederation," Mr. King said in a 1,000-word statement.

"Under these laws no political party is recognized as such. The printed ballots and the printed lists of names of candidates contain only the names of candidates, their addresses and occupations. The responsibility of ascertaining the party affiliations of candidates is that of the voter himself.

"Since political parties are not officially recognized by the constitution it would be improper for the officials who administer the Election Act to attempt to give party labels to the various candidates."

Converting Two Liners.

The two passenger ships being converted into armed merchant cruisers are the Prince Robert and the Prince David, purchased some years ago by the Canadian National Steamships, Limited, for the triangle service between Vancouver, Victoria, and Seattle.

The Prince Robert, which carried the King and Queen from Victoria to Vancouver last year during their visit to Canada, will be converted by the Burrard Drydock Company, Limited, of North Vancouver, B.C., and the Prince David by the Halifax Shipyards, Limited, of Halifax. The Prince Robert has been in the Alaskan service recently, while the Prince David has been laid up in Halifax for several years following an accident in the West Indies.

Other war contracts include practically every article needed by a modern fighting force, with the exception of weapons, and most of them were announced previously in the board's weekly lists.

The series of operations, all of which were said to have ended disastrously for the Nazis, took place yesterday. Air operations were kept to a minimum by bad weather.

This morning's communique merely reported there had been a "calm night on the whole along the front" and added, to the west of the Vosges our posts repulsed enemy patrols and inflicted losses on them."

A German reconnaissance unit was said to have suffered comparatively heavy losses after running into the French ambush west of the Saar at 7 a.m. yesterday. Other German patrols came to grips with French troops to the west of the Vosges. The enemy units were turned back and a number of soldiers were captured by the French, it was said.

Expensive furniture and fittings had been removed from both the Queen Mary and the Mauretania to provide space for as many soldiers as possible.

Across the street from the Queen Mary's midtown dock, British sailors held reunion in the Anchor Cafe.

The men, many of them employed in convoying Canadian soldiers across the Atlantic since war broke, didn't know their next port and said they didn't care so long as they got their $25-a-month war bonus.

"We're going pleasure-cruising," said one old tar, with a grin that showed as many wrinkles as the ocean. Just say that with compliments to Hitler, the Queen Mary is definitely sailing with two 15-inch guns and depth charges. Destination unknown."

Observers, however, assumed that Daladier—as did the British prime minister, Neville Chamberlain, yesterday—explained the Allied failure to get extensive aid to Finland before her peace with Russia, and gave a resume of the war effort against the Nazi regime.

The vote of confidence included this testimonial:—

"The Chamber expresses to the Finnish nation and army the homage of its admiration for their magnificent courage."

It was adopted by a unanimous show of hands, but the second section of the resolution, the one involving the government itself, found only 239 favoring it an Maurice Delauney, an Independent from the Department of Normandie, with his hand raised in position.

One development indicating a tighter grip on rearguard activities was military tribunal trial of 44 former deputies this morning. They were charged with attempting to recreate the outlawed Communist party.

Mrs. R. Waddell Ill 12 Weeks Dies In Toronto

This city lost one of its great and good women Tuesday in the death of Mrs. R. M. Waddell, mother of Hugh P. Waddell and Flying Officer R. C. A. Waddell of the 110th Squadron, R.C.A.F. Mrs. Waddell died in Western Hospital, Toronto, after an illness that had lasted since Christmas.

Member of noted families in this district, both by marriage and by birth, she held a very high place in the esteem and respect of Peterborough citizens. Mrs. Waddell was the widow of Roland M. Waddell, and was born Edna Ackerman, daughter of the late Benjamin Ackerman and Charlotte Lumsden, in Norwood.

Her death recalled the tragic story of her son's departure to England with the 110th Squadron—tragic because he knew he would never see his mother again. But Flying Officer R. C. A. Waddell was fighting Canada's cause and so urgent was it that his departure could not be postponed.

Mrs. Waddell was keenly interested in the welfare of St. Andrew's United Church here and her death leaves an entire congregation in mourning. There was scarcely a phase of the church's work in which she had not played a prominent part through the years she had been a member, and she was a faithful attendant at Sunday worship. She was a past president of the Women's Association of the church and continued her active work in that organization until the time of her illness, as she did in the Elizabeth Ball Auxiliary, another of her interests.

The church will long remember Mrs. Waddell for her work in connection with the redecorating of St. Andrew's Church last summer. Mrs. Waddell was chairman of the Decorating Committee and donated to the church its modern lighting system, perhaps the finest in the city.

She also for years was a member of the Board of Directors of the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. Waddell came to Peterborough 35 years ago from Port Perry and had resided in this city ever since. Her husband, Roland M. Waddell, died about 10 years ago.

Surviving besides her two sons are two brothers, Lt.-Col. Charles Ackerman and W. C. Ackerman, both of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from her late residence, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

THE FINAL MEETINGS.

The speaking campaign of Gordon K. Fraser, National Government candidate in West Peterborough will be wound up on Thursday with a meeting in Kinmount in the afternoon and an address at the variety show of the Young Conservatives in the Legion Hall on Thursday night. Mr. Fraser, with T. P. Lancaster, spoke at Warsaw on Tuesday night at a meeting in the interests of George S. White.

Two Hours Given Workers To Vote

All employees in local factories, stores or other places of business will have ample time in which to cast their votes according to rules set forth in Canadian Election Instructions taken from the Dominion Elections Act as amended in 1938.

Employers are to give employees two additional hours for voting other than the noon hour and the section reads as follows, page 258, section 47, paragraph 1—Every employer shall, on polling day, allow every elector in his employ at least two additional hours other than the noon hour for voting and no employer shall make any deduction from pay of any such elector nor impose upon or exact from him any penalty by reason of his absence during such hours.

Paragraph three dealing with penalties for violation of this rule says "Any employer who, directly or indirectly refuses, or by intimidation, undue influence, or in any other way interferes with the granting to any elector in his employ, of additional hours for voting as in the section provided, shall be guilty of an illegal practice and of an offence against this Act punishable on summary conviction as in this Act provided."

Often employers do not observe this ruling to the letter but find that many employees can conveniently vote on the way home and an hour is sufficient time along with the noon hour and the employees wish to have it this way, thus giving the employer no alternative in the matter.

MISS ANN SARAH FOLEY.

Death came yesterday to Miss Ann Sarah Foley at her residence at 276 Hunter Street West after a short illness. Born in Otonabee township, she lived there all her life until seven years ago, when she moved to Peterborough.

She was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral and of its Altar Society and the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving are three sisters: Miss Caroline A. Foley of Peterborough, Mrs. Mary C. Ryan of Peterborough, Rev. Sister St. Edmund, Congr. de Notre Dame, Kingston; and one brother, James Foley of Otonabee.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late residence, and interment will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Complaint Made On Lottery Car Using Streets

A complaint from Hon. G. N. Gordon to the effect that he had been unable to get any police action in having a woman chased off the street who was selling tickets on an automobile for the Southampton Rotary Club was read at the meeting of the police commission on Tuesday. Mr. Gordon declared that the woman had been breaking a city bylaw by parking the car on George street for five hours and although he had mentioned the incident to half a dozen police officers nothing was done about it.

Accordingly, the letter said, when Mr. Gordon found the car on George street again on Saturday morning he himself had ordered her to leave.

"There's nothing we can do about it," said Judge Smoke "but see that the traffic bylaw is carried out."

The other commissioners agreed that Peterborough service clubs sent their cars to other places and that the practice seemed to be general.

Later in the meeting Chief Constable Newhall was asked for an explanation in regard to the matter.

"I don't know what is wrong with Mr. Gordon," he said. "It must be the election. Just after he had ordered the woman to leave he wanted us to do something about the aviator who was distributing political propaganda from the air."

"Do you think you will need another constable now that Mr. Gordon is doing the work for you?" asked Magistrate Gee.

Chief Newhall stated that he had checked the matter with the traffic officer and the constable on the beat and had found there had been no violation of the parking bylaw. The automobile had been on the street for hours, it was true, but it had been moved a number of times.

Completing Plans For Y.M. Drive

Organization of the Y.M.C.A.'s financial campaign committee is being rapidly completed and response from workers asked to participate has been most gratifying, declared H. L. Garner, campaign committee chairman, at a meeting of the board of directors of Y.M.C.A. last night. He presented a report of progress of plans to date.

Several of the division chairmen reported their teams already completed and it is expected the balance of the organization will be completed before the end of this week.

Date of the opening meeting is April 11 when H. M. Long, an outstanding business man of Montreal and one of the chairmen of the National War Service Campaign of Canada, will be the speaker.

The latest report received from the National Council War Service committee of the Y.M.C.A. shows an impressive total of equivalent to 918,177 soldiers, sailors and airmen served in Canada alone since the outbreak of war. Services on transport and in England will bring this total to more than one million served on different occasions.

Attendance at Y.M.C.A. buildings by enlisted men totalled 462,419, representing more than 300,000 shower baths and swims. A fine new Centre recently opened at Barriefield has a unique feature in its beautiful chapel which is headquarters for the Chaplain and is in constant use by men themselves for private meditations and devotions.

At the two Centres in Exhibition Park in Toronto there has already been an aggregate attendance of 131,523.

Ballot Boxes Ready For Urban D.R.O's

Chief Electoral Officer Vincent Eastwood stated this morning that the ballot boxes for the deputy returning officers will be on duty in the urban polls in next Tuesday's election, are now available for the officials.

The advanced poll at which commercial travellers and others mentioned in the election act who will be out of Peterborough on Tuesday will open on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Mr. Eastwood's office, Room 15, in the Bank of Commerce Building. Voting will take place between the hours of 2 o'clock and 10 o'clock on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Twenty Prairie Chickens Are Received From Western Canada For Peterboro Area

Residents of the Buckhorn district who had hoped to obtain a shipment of elk through the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association will be disappointed to learn that no more are available this season. Today, Charles Kingan received a letter from D. J. Taylor, Deputy-Minister of the Game and Fisheries Department, saying the request had been received but a check had been made and if any more were shipped, Peterborough County would have more than they have in the Ottawa district.

Charles Kingan received a shipment of twenty prairie chickens or pintailed grouse from the Department yesterday and these will be placed in a location at once where they will have plenty of shelter and feed. These were obtained on exchange from Saskatchewan. The letter suggests that the birds be placed in scrub bush close to arable fields and it is hoped they will form the nucleus of another game bird for this section.

AT BUCKHORN MEETING

Col. John Dewart and F. D. Kerr, K.C., accompanied R. M. Glover to Buckhorn Tuesday night, both addressing the Liberal rally after Mr. Glover went on to Lakehurst.

FINED FOR SPEEDING

Carl Wilson, 709 Water street, was fined $5 and $2.50 in police court this morning for speeding on George street. A written plea of guilty was entered on his behalf.

GET ONE DAY MORE

Pupils at the city's separate schools will start their Easter vacation a day ahead of public school students. Tomorrow, Holy Thursday, marks the beginning of the vacation for the former group, and Friday for the latter.

MORE OPEN WATER.

Spring is delaying its arrival on main street, but merchants may be assured that the unmistakable signs are all flying. One of them is the widening and lengthening of the stretch of water off McDonald's Point.

CONSTABLE PROMOTED

Having served a year in the local police department Officer Gordon K. Hardy was promoted to the rank of second grade constable at Tuesday's meeting of the police commission. His salary will be increased to $1,350 a year.

CHARGED WITH SELLING

Jack Richardson, Reid street, whose wife was charged yesterday with the illegal sale of liquor appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. this morning on a similar charge. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded until next Tuesday, bail being fixed at $300.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

The young man who pleaded guilty in police court Monday to the theft of a watch was allowed to go on suspended sentence this morning. One of the conditions is that he must abstain from the use of intoxicating liquor during the period of probation. W. B. Gordon appeared in his behalf.

CLEAN UP STREET

When the city's huge scraper tackled the ice on Hunter street this morning it was faced with a job almost as hard as it would be in attempting to cut through granite. But it completed the job in thorough fashion and speedy work by trucks and workers who followed behind soon saw the roadway clear for traffic.

GETS TEN DAYS

James Rose, a transient, who said his home is in Toronto, was sentenced by Magistrate Langley in police court this morning to ten days in jail after he had pleaded to creating a disturbance near the C.N.R. station Tuesday night. He told the magistrate that he was a cook and that he had been down here looking for a job.

CRACKED STORE FRONT

A chunk of ice which had dropped from an automobile fender on George street was flipped by a passing car against front of the United Cigar store at seven o'clock, cracking the black vitrolite panel above the sidewalk level. The ice "boulder" probably weighed ten or twelve pounds and was tossed with such force that the crash against the vitrolite sounded inside as if the whole front had been caved in.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

A local barber has started a pool on the election, pay two bits and name your candidate and the majority he will have. So far four have named Fraser and four have picked Glover. One man who is a stranger to the city took two tickets giving Glover an 800 majority and Fraser an 1800 majority. In the Glover column another man named Glover with a majority of 1900. Alderman Herb McCannan inclines to the belief that the barber is attempting to learn how the boys are voting and is getting quite a kick out of the stunt.

SPEAKER AT WARKWORTH

Hon. G. N. Gordon was the main speaker at a Liberal rally Tuesday night at Warkworth assisting the candidate, W. A. Fraser.

ENDING CAMPAIGN.

R. M. Glover concluded his appeal to the rural electors with a trip to Young's Point to-night. He spoke at Buckhorn and Lakehurst on Tuesday night.

GOOD FRIDAY AT POST OFFICE

The public lobby on Good Friday at the Post Office will be open from 6.30 a.m. to 6 p.m. All wickets will be open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. The regular morning delivery will be given by the letter carriers. There will not be a delivery by the rural route couriers. The collections will be made from the street letter boxes as usual, and all mail posted will be despatched as usual.

"MANION'S MANNA."

George Fife of Otonabee, reputedly Conservative, now Nationalist, with township fame as a wisecracker, looked up on the Market on Saturday at the fluttering shower of pamphlets dropped from an airplane and loudly remarked: "Manion's Manna. That's a sign from heaven of how things will be when we get Manion and Fraser elected. There'll be manna for all of us."

UNPAID TRUCKERS.

City Engineer Parsons does not know that he has a rather numerous company of very young assistants, little boys with red shovels and foot and a half trucks who engage in shovelling snow off patches of sidewalk and carting long distances of forty or fifty feet before unloading and going back for more. These lads have been working all winter, except the coldest mornings, and recently they have been engaged on removal of slush and making bits of drains. One of these unpaid municipal officers is James Ridyard, Jr., and the Alparka staff is recommending that he should be on the payroll.

ASHBURNHAM BOYS' CLUB.

The following boys passed the swimming tests, numbers three, one and five, at the Y.M.: Vern Simpson, Vic Choate, Frank Blackburn, John Reed, Delahaye, Doug Hayton, Reg. McEwen, Lew Clark, Bob Prise, Angus Austin, Bill Coons, William Clark, Don Griffen, Teddy McKeown, Gerry Simpson, Haley Windsor, Fred Wynne, Alvin Kelly. Boys who will have another chance next Tuesday are: Billy Carr (passed 1 and 5), Don Smith, Ernie Donnelly, Herman White, Ralph Plumpston, John Vincent (passed 1 and 3). David Simpson, absent last week, passed all five tests, while Walter Delong made four of them. Forty-eight boys were at the Y.M. and forty of them took part in the swimming. For the next nine weeks there will be no new boys accepted for membership, and regular attendance will entitle a boy to a long week-end in camp on the 24th of May.

Stalled Truck Blocks Way To Drew Rally

When Col. George Drew spoke at Bancroft Tuesday night it was without benefit of the press. If he got anything of importance off during his address, it will not be known to Canada in general.

Reporters started out in good time for the meeting, but disaster overtook them a little way past Apsley. A truck owned by Stranos of Peterborough and loaded with fruit, became stuck in the snow and passage of cars was impossible for some time. Even the Bancroft bus couldn't get through. Half a dozen cars, at least, bound from Apsley to Bancroft for Col. Drew's speech, were unable to get by. All landed in the village about 11.30, just as the audience was singing the National Anthem and closing the meeting.

Reporters found that Col. Drew had no copy of his speech, that he had spoken without notes, and he told them he was unable to give them any resume of what he had said. And, worst luck of all, there was no Canadian Press writer travelling with him.

That's why there is no report in any paper today of Col. George Drew's address in Bancroft.

The truck load of fruit had to stay by the side of the road all night and was frozen so badly it was a total loss.

Ladies Aid Meets At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20. — (ENS).—Reports by group leaders featured this month's meeting of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid. President Mrs. J. C. Anderson presided for the opening devotional period, following which the secretary and treasurer gave their monthly report The numerous activities carried on by each of the four groups during the month were disclosed to members. Group 1 held an afternoon tea; Group II held three meetings: Group III had two meetings and two quiltings and Group IV had one meeting and three quiltings. The visiting committee reported 32 calls during the month.

St. Mary's W.A. Meets

BETHANY, March 20—(ENS).—The Women's Guild of St. Mary's Church held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Mason on Thursday. Owing to blocked roads the attendance was not as large as usual.

Work on the Red Cross quilt has been completed and another is in the making. Blocks were distributed to the members.

Miss Sisson invited the ladies to meet at her home in the village for next meeting. The meeting was closed with prayer by the rector, Rev. Mason, and the hostess served a delicious lunch.

Charge Is Withdrawn

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20 (ENS)—By consent of both the accused and the crown a charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm was withdrawn here on Wednesday. The case was the only one on the docket of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., of Peterborough who presided. The accused, David M. McGrath had as his counsel J. F. R. Douglas. Constable William Wellman laid the charge following a fracas in Hastings in which Mrs. Wm. Richardson was allegedly injured.

Plant For Orillia

COWANSVILLE, ue., March 20 (CP)—Officials of the W. P. Vilas Company here announce the enamelling division of the furniture-building plant will be transferred to Orilia, Ont. The division employs about 90 men.

The change is being made because most of the products of this division are absorbed in Ontario, the announcement said. The company will maintain its other divisions here, where a total of about 250 persons are employed.

Frankford Team Visits Peterboro

At a recent meeting in the Orange Hall, Brock Street, one of the largest held here in years, a class of candidates was advanced to the Second Degree by the Degree team of L.O.L. No. 40, Frankford, under the leadership of Cecil Palmer.

The Master's chair was filled by John Elliott, the Past Master's chair by G. Brown, the Deputy's by Harry Morrow, and the Chaplain's by George Striker.

The visiting team, composed of sixteen members, did fine work, and local Orangemen were glad to welcome them. J. M. Carl of South Hastings accompanied the team and also addressed the meeting, which was sponsored by L.O.L. No. 50.

The Pot o'Gold attendance prize was No. 39, the holder of which happened to be in London, Ont. The money accordingly went back into the pot until the next meeting on March 28, which will take the form of a social evening in honor of the 32nd birthday of L.O.L. No. 50. A debate between Nassau L.O.L. No. 457 and L.O.L. No. 50 has been arranged for the April meeting.

Social Evening Held By Peterboro Lodge

Members of Peterborough Lodge, A.F. and A.M. held a most successful social evening in the Masonic Hall on Tuesday night. More than seventy Masons were present to enjoy the games of cards and the interesting program which followed.

Winners at euchre were Lionel Pomeroy and H. Lamb, with the lucky draw going to William A. Anderson. Prize winners at bridge were James Baird and Frank Merrett, with the lucky draw being won by E. Rigby.

Several veterans of the lodge were heard in a very impromptu program. T. H. Hooper sang an old song his mother taught him in England many years ago, and not to be outdone John Comstock demonstrated his ability on the guitar. Bob Hendry was also heard in several numbers.

AN EXPLANATION

William Robertson, Keene, complains of an item in the police court news of Monday. He states that he did not appear before Magistrate Langley and was not in police court. The report did not say that he was. It merely stated that he had been fined on entering a written plea of guilty which meant of course that he did not make a personal appearance. However the item was in error in one respect. The pelt for the possession of which the fine was levied was a skunk and not a beaver skin.

BURIED BY MOONLIGHT

During a blackout made complete by an electricity failure in the northern part of the Isle of Man, Private D. F. McLinden, a Manxman, was buried by moonlight in Douglas cemetery.

Police Board To Appoint New Constable

Recommendations made by Chief Constable Samuel Newhall in his annual report for the appointment of another constable to the force and the purchase of a new motorcycle were acted upon by the Board of Police Commissioners at the regular meeting Tuesday, with the chairman, Judge Smoke, home from his sojourn in Florida.

The commission decided to advertise for applications for the position of police constable and to hold a special meeting to consider the applications so that the appointment may be made at the next regular meeting.

The Chief Constable was authorized to secure tenders for a new motorcycle.

It was also decided to advertise for tenders for the regular supply of new summer uniforms for the department. A report to the commission included thirteen summer serges, eleven pairs of trousers, four raincoats, thirteen caps, twelve black ties, two summer shirts for each officer, and new suits, coats and light coats for the plain clothes members of the force, in the clothing required.

Chairman Re-elected.

On motion of Magistrate Gee, seconded by Mayor James Hamilton, Judge Smoke was re-elected chairman for the year. This ceremony had been overlooked at the January meeting of the commission and the chairman was absent from the February session.

Applications for junk dealers' licenses from Harry Petersiel of Hastings, who proposes to locate in the old Low place on Bethune Street and Goldbach and Albert of Lindsay who also desired to set up business on Bethune Street were granted after favorable reports had been received from Chief Constable Newhall. Jacob Low addressed the commission in behalf of the first applicant.

A resolution was passed instructing the Chief Constable to purchase supplies wherever possible locally and to make greater use of the city's gas and oil supply in future.

John F. Thompson of Brown Street, North Monaghan, applied for a license as a junk collector with a push cart. The application was granted on motion of Mayor Hamilton.

Conservative Attends Theatre To See Show Only To Be Surrounded By Women At Rally

This is the strange story of a Conservative who may have been converted to the Liberal cause by accident.

Tuesday afternoon H. O. Eakins of Aberdeen avenue decided to see a show at the Centre theatre, the ticket office was closed so he walked in anyway, intending to sit in the loges and enjoy a smoke. The usher steered him in to a seat downstairs, explaining that they wished to fill the ground floor first. Women kept coming in and Mr. Eakins was forced to keep moving toward the centre of the row until he was jammed in solidly with at least ten stalwart Liberals on each side of him, all women.

Seeing a few people on the stage, Mr. Eakins thought perhaps it was a vaudeville program and had no knowledge of the fact that it was a Liberal rally, and that Mrs. Widdifield was the speaker. All was well until the news reels were over and the political speeches began. Here was the dyed in the wool Conservative jammed into a packed audience of women and he couldn't very well get up and squeeze past ten or eleven women, so he sat through the speech.

"It was a good speech," Mr. Eakins admitted afterward to his friends and it is just possible that Mrs. Widdifield won him over to the Liberal cause, but Mr. Eakins just won't commit himself that far.

NOW TRY SPAGHETTI THESE NEW AND DIFFERENT WAYS!

LEFTOVER VEAL GETS A WARM WELCOME SERVED THIS WAY

LEFTOVER VEAL WITH SPAGHETTI—Cut leftover veal into very small servings. Dip in flour and brown on one side in butter or Heinz Olive Oil. Turn and sprinkle with a bit of onion juice and 1 teaspoon Heinz Worcestershire Sauce. Brown other side and remove from pan. Pour 1 large (27½ oz.) tin Heinz Cooked Spaghetti into pan and heat thoroughly. Heap spaghetti in hot serving dish, place meat over top and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

TRANSFORM SUNDAY'S ROAST INTO A DELICIOUS MEAT PIE

SPAGHETTI AND MEAT PIE—Brown 2 cups cubed leftover meat in 2 tablespoons butter. Place 1 medium (16 oz.) tin Heinz Cooked Spaghetti in casserole. Then press up around sides of casserole to form a depression in centre. Fill depression thus made with browned meat. Combine ¼ cup fine bread crumbs and ¼ cup grated Canadian cheese, then sprinkle over top. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes. Serve very hot.

DELICIOUS by itself, Heinz Cooked Spaghetti can be served in dozens of appetizing ways—sure to appeal to the whole family. Heinz makes its own Spaghetti from choicest Durum wheat. Cooks it to perfect tenderness—drenches it in a sauce of prize tomatoes, nippy cheese and zesty spices. Ready to heat and eat. Better keep a few tins handy for quick, economical meals.

Rigorous Control Of Prices Has Protected Consumer From Exploitation Liberals Told

"Every Canadian woman is concerned in our war effort. Suggestion, innuendo, and political propaganda may have confused the issue in the minds of many. It is therefore our duty to learn the truth," declared Mrs. C. R. Widdifield of Stratford, daughter of ex-Mayor Harry Denne, and president of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association, when she spoke Tuesday afternoon at the Centre Theatre in support of R. M. Glover, Liberal candidate. "Knowing the truth," she continued, "we should endeavour to convince every adult entitled to vote that there is but one answer if you wish your government to continue with a vigorous war effort by a united Canada; continued and close co-operation with Great Britain and France as allies and equals; a maximum effort; a minimum of expense; no profiteering in munitions and supplies; prices controlled in your interest as consumers.

No Profiteering

"To those remembering the high cost of living during the last war, the profiteering in foods, and other necessaries of life, the outbreak of this war caused pretty high tension. Would prices again soar to such a high level that commodities would be practically beyond the reach of the ordinary individual

"Our answer to that question came very swiftly," Mrs. Widdifield said. "At the outbreak of war the government took prompt action to assure an adequate and continuous distribution of the necessaries of life at reasonable prices, to eliminate hoarding and profiteering, and to curb those who otherwise might endeavor to make unfair profit from the national need.

"The day Great Britain declared war on Germany, September 3rd, many of Canada's leading business men were asked by your government to loan to your country the brains and ability which had built up their particular business or profession to its present eminence in Canada. These brains were enlisted without salary and are working for you and for me. Experienced civil servants were drafted from various government departments and special war boards were set up under the supervison of these outstanding business and professional men—chosen with absolutely no regard for any political affiliation—their contribution in the opinion of the government being the speed, economical and successful prosecution of Canada's war effort."

Give Wide Powers

"A Trade and Price Control Board was endowed with wide powers permitting a rigorous control of production and distributon of the necessaries of life," continued Mrs. Widdifield. "Its chief duty is to protect the consumer—the householder—from exploitation, and how well they have succeeded can be judged from the fact that the cost of living has not advanced three per cent, and we have every assurance that it will not advance as in the last war.

"If the women had co-operated with the Government last September and bought their normal supply of sugar the Board might have been saved much needless work. Forty million pounds more than the normal supply was bought up. But despite the thoughtlessness in buying, through the efforts of this Board sufficient sugar was placed on the market to satisfy all needs at no extra cost. Sugar has advanced 50 cents a hundred pounds, barely enough to cover the increased war risk in shipment, while other necessities of everyday use—butter, bread, meats, bacon, potatoes, and vegetables, fruits and coal show an average increase of but 3 per cent. over the prices as of September, 1939.

Functioning Well

"The War Supply Board has been doing a most exacting task under terrific pressure. Naturally, because we are at war, there has not been much publicity about its activities, but it is functioning nevertheless just as effectively and just as ceaselessly as has the wartime Price and Trade Board. The cost of this war will be tremendous, therefore it is most important that we know who will be handling our finances, and that he be the best man obtainable in Canada. If we return Mr. King and his Government to power we know the Hon. Mr. Ralston will continue in this office of Minister of Finance.

"The women of Canada whose husbands and sons are enlisting in the new army," said Mrs. Widdifield, "are also deeply interested in the question of allowances paid to the dependents of our soldiers. An Independent Board to deal with the matter of allowances has been established. This board has on it representatives of all services—something new in the history of our country. In the Great War the Government undertook to pay only one dependent, at a rate which reached its maximum at $30.00 per month. Children and other dependents were taken care of by voluntary subscriptions administered through the Canadian Patriotic Fund. The present Government makes provision for more dependents on a more generous scale. Under the regulations as they are today, allowances may be paid to: Wives, $35.00 per month; children up to a limit of two, $12.00 per month; mothers and certain other dependents, $20.00 per month— in other words, $79.00 per month.

"In justice to the taxpayers of the country, it is necessary that each application be investigated, and rightly so, as each allowance means the expenditure of public money. To date no fewer than 44,000 applications for dependents' allowances have been filed. If they were for wife or children, the only proof required is proof of marriage and the age of the child. Thirty-seven thousand families are receiving monthly cheques covering well over 65,000 dependents of enlisted men.

First Overseas.

"The Opposition has alleged lack of equipment for our soldiers, and yet the Canadian Contingent was the first overseas force of the British Empire to reach the British Isles. A well-known British statesman, Sir Anthony Eden, has stated it was the finest equipped division ever to reach the British Isles. In Canada the pattern for the new battle dress to be used by the Canadian forces was not available in this country until the war broke out. But Canada was not alone in this deficiency," stated the speaker. "In England Lord Wootten of Bradford —the home of woollens—admitted to Hore-Belisha that they had been unable to provide the greatcoats for the troops until the end of November."

Mrs. C. M. Scott, former president of the Local Council of Women, and vice-president of the Provincial Conucil of Women, presented Mrs. Widdifield. Mrs. C. R. Banks, president of the Liberal Association, spoke a few words of welcome, and Mr. Glover, Liberal candidate, also spoke briefly.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, March 21.

A day of great success and the reaping of liberal rewards for industry, integrity, high purpose and fidelity is presaged from the mutual and lunar configurations. There is likely to be much stirring action, possibly drastic and strenuous, to the point of somewhat perilous performance in putting over major programs. Impetuosity, recklessness, over-aggressive measures and quarrels would prove detrimental.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves launched in a year of very active or drastic situations, in which much enduring success and recognition for worthy past performances may be reaped. Industry, integrity, and loyalty may achieve high rewards and much stability for the fortunes and personal well-being.

A child born on this day may be profound, studious, steadfast, and industrious, although having flashes of temperament or temper. Generally it may be generous, noble, and friendly, with strong inner urges to the humane and social betterment of its fellows, succeeding notably in co-operation with groups.

OBITUARY

FLEETWOOD, March 20—(ENS). —On Wednesday morning, March 6, at Fleetwood the death occurred of one of God's gentlewomen, in the person of Annie A. Kells, beloved wife of John Shea. Although she had been ailing for some time, her sudden passing came as a shock to her many friends.

The late Mrs. Shea was born at Mount Pleasant in 1863, the daughter of William Henry Kells and Theresa Davidson. In 1884 she became the bride of John Shea and has lived most of her married life in o raround Fleetwood, where her kind and loving disposition endeared her to all who knew her.

Mrs. Shea was a member of the Fleetwood United Church, where she attended services regularly, until, owing to ill health she was unable to attend; but kept an active interest in the Lord's work.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother are her husband, three sons: Edward of Peterborough, Garnet of Detroit, and Bruce of Conquest, Sask.; two daughters, Ilma (Mrs. Cairns Lee) of Fleetwood and Laura of Pontypool, and one sister, Mrs. Mark of Lindsay. Three daughters and two sons predeceased her some years ago.

The funeral service was conducted at the home by Rev. C. Ferguson, her pastor; assisted by Rev. Mason, Anglican minister at Bethany. As a special request from the family, the hymns were read; one of them, "Breathe On Me Breath of God," being a favorite of the deceased.

The beautiful floral tributes bore mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Eldridge, George and Harry Shea, Clarence Neals, Dalton Brown and Cairns Lee.

Interment took place at St. Mary's, the first in the new vault, a gift to St. Mary's from the late Joseph Preston, ex-M.P.

As Dictators Met In Brenner Pass

Ignoring Of The Safety Rules Often Results In Accidents

Too many people associate an accident with an injury and for that reason many accidents occur in industry of which no notice is taken, until an injury occurs and then focuses the attention of those immediately concerned, first on taking care of the injured party and then, sometimes on the correction of the conditions involved. So declared H. Mabson, chief inspector of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, speaking before a large crowd of workers and industrial leaders at the Peterborough Collegiate Tuesday night. The meeting followed an executive meeting at the Kawartha club.

"If you read through history you will find that one thing stands out: human nature, whether in the fourteenth century or the twentieth, is pretty much the same," said Mr. Mabson. "The mistakes men made hundreds of years ago are still being made. History does repeat." In similar fashion, accidents are repeated, despite the history of earlier similar accidents that are recorded historically in the Safety Rule Book.

Based on History

"Every rule in it is based on history, tragic history," he said. "After so many accidents of a certain kind have happened, in a certain way, the history of every one of those cases is wrapped up and condensed into one simple little safety rule. Violate it, and another accident of that particular kind is almost certain to follow, and so what I propose doing this evening is to take a copy of our Shop Safe Practices, which is in effect a Safety Rule Book, covering in fairly complete detail the rules that should be observed by all employees in the plant in order that accidents and injuries may be avoided."

Ignoring Rules

He cited instances of gruesome enough accidents that had resulted from workers ignoring the rules laid down for safety in plants, all recorded in the Safety Rule Book.

One of the rules warned against employees attempting to do work for which they were not qualified and he related an instances of violation as a result of which a man had lost his life by electrocution.

Work Not Qualified To Do

"How many of you here tonight are in the habit of attempting to do work for which you are not qualified, and which quite apart from rules and regulations common sense alone would indicate is work that should be done by others qualified and with the necessary equipment to do the job, not only with safety to themselves, but with safety to others?

"Do you expect me to believe that this was the first time that the proceedures in each of the cases cited, had been followed out, because frankly, I don't.

"It is simply a case of history repeating itself. AFTER these occurrences, which were judged by the severity of the injury associated with them, rather than by the occurrences themselves, I believe that, insofar as the plants in which they occurred are concerned, that proper safe methods of operation are now observed.

"The cases I have given you, while associated with only a few of the rules given in the booklet, does not mean, by any means, that the remaining rules have no history. Indeed they have, and if time permitted, I could quite readily give you a story in detail of accidents and injuries, providing conclusively the need for observing the rules given. Those I have given you should prove beyond a doubt that accidents are preventable.

Rigid Supervision

"Forethought proper planning of the job in hand, inspection of equipment to be used, and the discarding of dangerous tools; and above all, the most rigid supervision to ensure that all guards are in their proper place, and that tools are properly used, with the right tool for the right job and of course, this supervision absolutely will not tolerate horse-play, will go far in the prevention of accidents.

"When a new employee starts, start him right. Show him the way the job is to be done, that will always be the right way, the safe way. Then after having given him instructions—make sure that he knows—don't just take it for granted that he should know. Insist on First Aid for all injuries, including minor scratches and abrasions, and the reporting of all injuries. Remember that death has many times follow a minor scratch or cut."

Mr. Mabson was introduced by I. F. McRae chairman of the meeting. His address followed two short movies, one dealing with the most dangerous of all sport, a rodeo; the other with the safety of New York's tunnels and bridges.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Strike of Bowmanville, Conservative candidate in the Federal election, F. Bowen, ex-M.P., and M. Elliott of Newcastle attended. The former spoke a few words to the young people.

The annual pancake social held in the church near the St. Patrick date was a success, socially and financially. A good supper was served. The young people enjoyed crokinole and other games.

Statesmen's Snapshots

Two widely divergent avenues of activities, both followed through to success, have engaged the attention of Denton Massey, one of the youngest members of the House of Commons.

The scion of a wealthy family of Liberals, he became the campaign director of the Conservative party in Ontario in 1935 because he believed in their policy. In 1938 he became one of the youngest men ever to be seriously considered as party leader.

He believed that the church could play a bigger part in the lives of Canada's youth if it were presented to them in the proper manner. So he became head of a Bible class consisting of eight high-spirited boys which became the largest class of its kind in the world.

DENTON MASSEY

Denton Massey, who was born in Toronto in 1900, was the grandson of a Liberal, the son of a Liberal and a cousin of Hon. Vincent Massey, a lifelong Liberal and at present Canada's representative in London. His father was the late Walter E. H. Massey of the Massey Harris Company. Denton finished his education at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston. Here his activities followed three lanes—sport, he captained the hockey and golf teams, managed a baseball team and became director of the athletic association; mechanics, to qualify him for his future with the Massey Harris Company and "practical Christianity."

Upon his return to Toronto as a married man—he married two years before graduating—he went with his family's company but resigned in 1931.

In 1935 he offered himself as campaign director for the Conservative party in Ontario and a few months later was prevailed upon to contest the Toronto Greenwood riding as a Conservative, which he won. He is again running in the same constituency.

The York Bible class, which he heads, is known around the world. It began as an experiment, and its success now extends far beyond the bounds of Canada. It grew from 8 men to 18, then 101. A year later it had 434 members and by 1931 it was being attended by close to 3,000 young men every Sunday. In 1931 the class invited the public to attend its annual Christmas box and relief service in Maple Leaf Gardens. Seventeen thousand managed to get in, 20,000 were turned away. It was the largest indoor meeting of any kind in Canada's history.

Two days after war was declared in September, Denton Massey offered his services to the R.C.A.F. and was accepted What work he will be doing is not known to him.

Sally's Stepping Out Again!

"I was worried to see my girl so listless," says Sally's mother. "Her system was sluggish and it dragged her down like a ball and chain!"

This wretched feeling is not rare. Often it results from insufficient bulk in the diet.

Post's Bran Flakes help to prevent sluggish system. They provide natural bulk in the form of bran to keep the food wastes moving promptly.

"Sally's bright as a new penny now that she eats Post's Bran Flakes regularly," says her mother. "And they're simply delicious," adds Sally.

HELP keep your family free from the effects of faulty elimination by serving Post's Bran Flakes regularly. They are so appetizing, so wholesome and so convenient. If this does not readily relieve constipation due to insufficient bulk in the diet, it's time to consult a physician.

Ever Awake Class Has Irish Tea

A delightful and colorful St. Patrick's tea was an event of Monday evening at St. James' United Church when the "Ever Awake" class of girls were hostesses to a large number of their friends.

The gaily decorated primary department was the setting for the tea, with tables centred by spring flowers and further enhanced by streamers in St. Patrick's colors.

The waitresses wore pretty white aprons bound in green with green bandeaux in their hair.

Mrs. E. Beavis, class teacher, was seated with those taking part in the excellent Irish program, at the head table, where Mr. E. R. Frost, superintendent of the school presided.

The program opened with the National Anthem and followed by a group of Irish songs including "Mother O'Mine" and "Aloha" sung by Mrs. Henry Turner and Mrs. Roy Moynes with guitar accompaniment. The instrumental numbers were varried and brought out the artistic ability of several of the junior as well as senior members, in the piano solo by Audrey Sargent, "Danos La Pre" and concertina solo by Mrs. Newble, who played as his numbers "Killarney" and "Finlandia."

An Easter selection "Gethsemane" by Master Ernest Lee accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. E. Lee, was greatly enjoyed. Varying the program Mary Morrison gave two fine readings, "The Giant" and "I'm Going to Try."

Complimenting the "Ever Awake" class, as one whose name was well chosen, Mr. Frost spoke of their willingness to assist, not only in the work of the Sunday School, but in the work of the church as a whole.

Speaking on behalf of the class, Mrs. Noel Monks, the president, graciously thanked the guests for ther generous attendance in the interest of the Ever Awake girls and added their appreciation and thanks to all those who assisted on the program of this successful and entertaining Irish Spring affair.

An Irish song "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" with Ashton Fife at the piano was an appropriate closing selection.

Park Street Y.P.U. Entertain St. James'

Park Street Baptist Church Y.P.U. members were hosts to the young people of St. James' Church for an enjoyable social evening Tuesday. Guests were welcomed by Mr. Roy McCabe, president.

An excellent program was given by the visiting young people under the direction of their president, Mr. Ken. Meredith, with Mr. Earl Glover as chairman. Mr. Clare Connell was heard in two vocal solos, "The Stranger of Galilee" and "Londonderry Air," with Miss Arlie Connell at the piano; a piano solo was given by Miss Connell; a mouth organ selection by Mr. Harold Fife, and an interesting Bible quiz by Rev. F. W. Craik. Mr. Gordon Langton was entertaining in an amusing monologue.

Games were in charge of the Park Street group, led by Rev. C. C. Boyter, with Miss Edith Hodson assisting.

Miss Thelma Tedford was convener of the committee in charge of refreshments.

The attendants were Miss Amy Darling, sister of the bride, who wore a dress of airforce blue sheer crepe with black accessories, and Mr. Claude Puffer, Morganston.

Immediately following the ceremony the bridal couple left by motor for a two weeks' honeymoon in Toronto and Preston.

On their return they will reside at Havelock.

Mrs. R. C. Searles Mission Circle Hostess

Mrs. R. C. Searles, Lansdowne street, was hostess Tuesday night to girls of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle of St. James' United Church when about thirty members responded to the roll call.

Guests at this Easter meeting were the girls of the Frances Watt Mission Circle, Knox United Church, who were welcomed by the hostess as president of the entertaining circle.

Worship holds a large place on the program of all Circle meetings, but the Easter service is always special. Led by Jessie Martin, who emphasized the Easter spirit in the scripture readings, the hymns and prayers, it brought a reverent mood into the whole meeting.

Assisting in the service which had as its theme, "The Living Christ in the Living Church," were Mrs. Eleanor Fife, who read Te Deum Landamus, following the hymn, "Jesus Christ Is Risen Today." The solo, "The Christ of the Cross" was sung with much feeling by Mrs. Jennie Cuff and earnest prayers were led by Jessie Martin and Lottie Leggett.

The offertory, "We Give Thee But Thine Own" was sung after the reception of the Easter offering. Instead of the usual reports, department secretaries outlined the duties of their offices. Discussion followed, bringing out many helpful and encouraging suggestions as to methods of work. Mrs. Harold Murduff, the Presbyterial literature secretary, one of the guests was able to give much helpful information from her department.

"The School in a Grove," was the interesting theme of the month's study, and was taken by Connie Wagar, who brought India and her young people very near to this group of girls. Illustrating her story with many beautiful pictures. She told of the founding of the "Abode of Peace" by the great Indian poet, Rabindonath Tagore, in memory of his Christian father, who had used this site for meditation and prayer

In keeping with the study, the poem, "Freedom," composed by Tagore, was read by Jean Hammond who also offered prayer for our missionaries.

A beautiful duet, 'Alone" by Mrs Hazel McLaren and Gladys Langton, with Anne Deyell accompanying at the piano, was a fitting prelude to the coming Eastertide as were the readings "An Easter Prayer," by Jean Meeks and "The Easter Message" by Lottie Leggett.

The visiting Circle, contributed the closing feature of the evening, a vivid little playlet, "Waked Up" in which they presented the true conception of "Stewardship" as embracing all avenues of life. Taking part in the play were Mrs. Harold Murduff, Mrs. V. Smith and Misses Jean Hair, Helen Ward, Eunice Thexton and Irma Darling. Each one of the group took her part with ease and made the subject, Stewardship, a very real one to all who heard them.

After a contest of jumbled Easter names won by Gladys Langton, a happy social hour was enjoyed, when the hostess, Mrs. Searles, and her committee, Gladys Rutherford, Nancy Pooley and Jean Meeks served delicious refreshments.

Mother And Daughter Banquet Well Attended

A mother and daughter banquet held Tuesday night by the local Rebekah Lodge was a well attended and interesting affair in the dining hall of the Oddfellows' Lodge Rooms. The Women's Association of Knox United Church catered for the appetizing supper.

Mrs. H. Heckman, toast mistress, presided and proposed the toast to the King; a toast to the Lodge, proposed by Mrs. G. Londerville, was responded to by Mrs. E. Rowe, and a toast to the mothers and daughters, proposed by Mrs. E. Beatty, was replied to by Miss Rose Sexsmith. A delightful musical program included a piano solo by Miss Shirley Heckman; a vocal solo by Mrs. Gladys M. Todd; piano solo, Miss Elva Throop. Mrs. Cruikshanks was pianist. Arrangements for the banquet and program were in charge of Mrs. Flossie Hotson.

Following the program Lodge members convened for business and initiation. Two new members were initiated during an impressive service conducted by the degree staff.

In And Out Of the Shops

with FLORA

There is cause for rejoicing among you of the feminine sex who are charmingly petite, whether young matron or business girl—no longer need you sigh because your grown-up ideas just don't fit in with your collegiate figure—we've unearthed a group of size 11 to 15 frocks at the Lyda Telford Specialty Shoppe, 387A George street, that are the cream of the Easter style show. In sparkling prints and delightful pastels, they are a breath of Spring in themselves — you will find an exhilarating choice in such 1940 details as yokes, enormous pockets and waist sculpturing. Man-tailored suits, that perennial favorite of business women, have an interesting place in this smaller-size group, too. Overflowing with a variety in any size your figure demands, we've emphasized only one line carried by this smart shop.

According to our critical men-folk, Spring hats are saner—but it's a light-hearted sanity which brings gaiety and color to a war-time world. Hats to prettify feminine wearers and charm masculine escorts are those which bloom in profusion at the Phyllis Hall McCullough Hat Shop, 445 George Street, North. The pastels beloved of Paris; the tiny black or navy chapeau which brightens to Spring-time verve with those exquisite accessory colors, muted pinks and blues; the ultra-smartness of black and white; the newly fashionable all-white hat to contrast with dark coat or suit—at this delightful shop will be found in bewildering variety the charming headgear smart Peterborough women will don with style and confidence for the Easter parade.

Actively smart, and of considerable new interest to George Street is the Darling Specialty Shop—its windows hold a delightful surprise each time I pass—and inside, well, you'll feel just like Cinderella in her happiest moments after you've slipped on a one-of-a-style frock over your head in a charming pastel or print, or togged yourself out in a perfectly tailored suit or coat—just for fun, I tried on one of their suits, and was astonished at the perfect fit and expert tailoring. You haven't really been fair to yourself until you've explored this enchanting shop—even if it's only to get a line on what is "the thing" for a 1940 Spring. 384 George street is the address, and 9781 the 'phone number.

So colorful are men's Spring clothes that we're afraid the wife's not going to see one thin dime for her Easter outfit until you men have done yourself up, not brown, but green, blue or grey. You see, we've been poking about the smart new Men's Style Shop at 136 Hunter, West, and we know what we're talking about. Variety is the keynote in hats—nifty numbers with lower crowns and wider brims in shades that are not as decided in tone as, formerly—green-greys and blue-greys are among the Brock, Stetson and other popular-priced hats featured. You of the old trade will be glad to know that Art Bacon and Bob Sager still handle your favorite brand—Forsyth shirts, neckwear and pyjamas, Harvey-Woods hosiery and underwear, custom tailored suits and topcoats.

We Noticed

.....That swing dancing has had its day, according to Jack Soles, dancing teacher of Hollywood moving stars. "Swing dancing is no longer the vogue among movie stars and cafe society of California," he reports. "Most of the famous players are turning to rhumbas, waltzes, and even to polkas."

....Soles believes that music has changed and will continue to change — young people continue their jitterbug ways, but the older people have returned to the more quiet, sophisticated style."

....The best dancing pupils Soles has had were George Burns and Gracie Allen, the comedians — he claims that the matinee idol, Clark Gable, is no great shakes as a "hoofer." "It isn't that Gable can't do it," Soles elaborated, "but he just likes to clown around too much."

Motion Pictures Shown At Easter Meeting

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Moffat of Weston, parents of Dr. Agnes K. Moffat of this city, provided a special type of entertainment Tuesday evening at the annual Easter Thank-offering meeting of the W.M.S. of Trinity United Church, when they presented beautifully colored motion pictures of India and Palestine, showing the country, the people, how they live, and how they work.

Having spent eight months visiting the mission fields of the United Church, and also Palestine and Egypt, the moving picture sermons as shown by Mr. and Mrs. Moffat illustrated effectively the work and significance of the United Church missionaries in India, and gave an impressive portrayal of the Holy Land.

The speakers were introduced by Mr. R. Clayton. The introductory address was given by Mrs. Moffat, and the illustrated address by Mr. Moffat. A vote of thanks was made to the speakers by Mrs. A. B. Cunningham.

Mrs. G. S. Easton, first vice-president, presided for the meeting, held in Reid Street Hall. An Easter hymn opened the program; prayer was led by Miss H. Bannister, and the Bible reading given by Mrs. Friskin. Miss Isabel Duthie was heard in a vocal solo with Miss Mabel Clarry at the piano. The benediction was pronounced by Mr. Harold Rehill.

Tea was served after the meeting, with arrangements in charge of Miss Helen Bannister's group. Mrs. A. Fife and Mrs. F. Paterson presided at the tea table, which was lovely with Spring flowers.

Home and School Association News

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

Class work done by the children of King George Home and School drew much admiring comment from a large number of visiting mothers Tuesday afternoon, when an open school and tea was held.

Following a tour of the various classrooms, tea was served in the Kindergarten Room by the Home and School Association.

Mrs. T. L. Ashton, Association president, and Mrs. Wm. Beggs, vice-president, welcomed the mothers in the upper hall of the school, and in the tea room Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. E. Wand received. Mrs. Morgan Cullen was tea convenor.

Laid with a cloth of hand-crotcheted lace, the tea table was graced by an effective arrangement of early Spring flowers, and lit by tall green candles in crystal candelabra. Decorative arrangements were made by the school staff. Pouring tea were Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Miss M. Richardson, Mrs. R. Parnall and Mrs. H Dodds. Daffodils nodded a welcome from individual tea tables, and hostesses were Mrs. W. E. Thompson, Mrs F. Watson, Mrs. C. English, Mrs. I. McRae, Mrs. Denure, Mrs. W. Laing, Mrs. Colley, Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. F. Curtis, Mrs. A. McLeod, Mrs. D. Boorman, Mrs. H. Yelland, Mrs. G. Lathangue.

Delightful piano music was played throughout the tea hour by Mrs. George Nicholls.

Shamrock Tea Has Irish Air

A delightful Shamrock tea was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. K. Shadgett, 556 Charlotte street, by Caledonian Club members. Mrs. R. Hendry, club president, received with the hostess.

Spring flowers were used with charming effect throughout the rooms, and the tea table was given an Irish air by lighted green tapers and a silver vase of flowers on a linen centre embroidered with Shamrocks. Mrs. S. Pooley and Mrs. W. Petrie poured tea, and Mrs. O. Sugden and Mrs. J. Miller assisted to serve. Guests were shown to the tea room by Mrs. E. B. Julian and Mrs. A. Milne.

Irish songs and musical numbers were included in an enjoyable program given by Mrs. A. W. Radford and Miss Edna Borland. Tea cups were read by Mrs. R. Bugg and Mrs. A. McKinlay.

Do You Know?

Water color paint marks are easily removed from washable fabrics, but from materials like finished silk it is very difficult to get out all of the pigments. The Department of Agriculture recommends that the stain be sponged with glycerine until the watercolor is removed, and then sponged again with lukewarm water.

Says a woman who travels a good deal: "I think I have settled the pocketbook problem very simply when travelling on the train. I put my purse in one stocking, put the stocking with its contents in the bottom of one pillowslip, place that pillow on the inside of the berth, and go to sleep free from worry. The object of the stocking, of course, is to insure one against any chance of forgetting the pocketbook the next morning." We wonder, though, what she would do with one of this season's high-style handbags—would take more than an ordinary silk stocking to hold them.

Many Superstitions About Marriage Need Debunking. There is No Magic in the Marriage Ceremony and No Aladdin Later.

Did you ever think about how many of the popular beliefs about marriage are false? Here are a few of the common superstitions about the holy estate which lead innumerable credulous people to their doom:

That if boys and girls marry they will grow up with the same tastes, interests and desires and be truly two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one, as the poet says. That miracle doesn't happen once in a hundred times. Nature, not association, settles how a child develops, and the reason divorce courts are crowded with young men and women is because when the kid husbands and wives became adult they didn't have a single thing in common.

That two can live as cheaply as one. They can't. Besides, you can't count on there just being two to feed and clothe. Generally there are three or four or more. And you can't economize on a baby.

That just love is enough to marry on and that a couple can be perfectly happy billing and cooing and telling each other how they adore each other. After marriage people are just as hungry as they were before. They take the same interest in the new fashions. They enjoy the same amusements. And if they have to do without these the thrills soon peter out and romance goes into the discard.

That there is some magic in the marriage ceremony that changes the character of men and women; that turns a rounder into a pattern of domesticity; that quenches the thirst of a drunkard for liquor; that energizes a lazy, shiftless, ne'er-do-well into becoming a go-getter; that cures a virago of her temper; that makes a clothes-mad girl prefer basement bargains to French importations, and that converts Mama's spoiled darling into an unselfish and considerate wife. Millions of people still believe that bad actor will "settle down" after marriage into good ones, but few, if any, have ever seen it happen.

That either a husband or wife can make over the other to suit his or her taste after marriage. It can't be done. Heredity, environment and Mother's influence have made a man and woman what they are, and it is folly to try to change them. Nevertheless, the world is filled with the sound of crashing homes and the moans and groans of those whose mates are trying to cut them over to their own perforated paper pattern.

That because a man is a model son or a girl a devoted daughter is a sign that either will make a good husband or wife. Ninety - nine times out of a hundred it is the reverse, for the man never cuts his mother's apron string, and the girl always thinks that her husband should be perfectly delighted to work to support her family.

That children always draw a husband and wife closer together. Sometimes they do. Just as often the first baby marks the beginning of the alienation between a husband and wife. The woman becomes so much absorbed in her children that she has no interest in her husband, and he either takes refuge in his business or finds some other woman to hold his hand while his wife is holding the baby's.

That it is better to be an old man's darling than a young man's slave. No young man is as tyrannical as an old man, and any girl who marries an old man thinking that she is going to be pampered and indulged and able to do her own sweet way is sadly mistaken. She will find him selfish and exacting and domineering, for those are the traits of age. In addition to which he will add jealousy, so that the diamond bracelets on her wrists will rattle like fetters in her ears.

These are a few of the unfounded superstitions about mariage. There are others equally untrustworthy. Write your own.

Dear Dorothy Dix — Can anything be done to help middle-aged women who have lost the joy of living, who feel that their lives are much harder than the lives others, women who have immured themselves in their homes and refuse to leave them and yet feel that their homes are almost prisons? I am greatly concerned about my sister, who is like this. She is 55 years old—which is still young for these days—and in perfect health, yet she has simply dug herself into her own home and refuses to go out socially or even to do her own shopping. This is causing her to grow critical and fault-finding and tyrannical and unpleasant to live with. She supervises our every move and thinks that we should live as narrow a life as she does. When her own children were small her home life kept her busy and gave her something to think about. She is still trying to make her home sufficient for all her needs, and it is proving disastrous. What to do?

A READER

ANSWER:

The only person who can help your sister is herself. Unless she can see the folly of her conduct and break the shackles of habit she has forged on herself her case is hopeless. But it is pitiful to think of a woman deliberately shutting herself away from all the pleasures she might have for, in reality, the normal middle-aged woman who has done her task of rearing a fine family and seeing them launched in the world has come to the play-time of life.

But your sister's case shows how important it is for women never to lose sight of the fact that their children will be married and gone and that they must provide for themselves interests and occupations to fill their hands and hearts when their old occupations have been taken from them.

Enquiry Column

Question.—I noticed a request for recipe for Graham cracker fruit cake. Here is my recipe, which sometimes I make:

Graham Cracker Fruit Cake (uncooked).

One envelope gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup cold milk, ¾ square chocolate, ½ cup seeded raisins, ¼ cup currants, 2/3 cup dates, ¼ cup maraschino cherries, ¼ cup nuts chopped, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites. Put milk with chopped fruits in double boiler. When cooked slightly add chocolate, which has been melted, and mixed with part of the sugar and a little milk to make a smooth paste. Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatine on top of water. Add to hot chocolate mixture (after it soaks 5 minutes), then stir until dissolved. Add sugar and salt and stir thoroughly. Remove from fire, cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, add nuts and vanilla and 4 rolled Graham crackers and lastly fold in whites of eggs beaten very stiff. Turn into mould that has been rinsed in cold water and sprinkle with nut meats. Chill. When firm unmould.

Answer.—Thank you so much for this recipe. It has the ingredients our reader required, and I hope she sees it. Please write if we can help you.

"I always feel moo-ved to dash off a poem when Easter comes around!" says ELSIE, the Borden Cow. "So here is my 1940 offering!—

"The Easter Bunny cannot moo—
But knows like me what's good to eat!
The same thing's true of people, too—
They all enjoy an Ice Cream treat!"

And here's the grandest Ice Cream treat for your Easter weekend. A creamy, velvet-smooth brick of delicious Vanilla Ice Cream with a pert Easter chicken of Chocolate Ice Cream right through the centre.

It's Borden's Ice Cream and that means it's extra-nourishing and wholesome, made from the finest and purest of rich milk and cream.

The saucy little green hat held on her glistening curls by a green velvet ribbon, made her look more like a whimsical child than the woman she must be. His heart ached with the pity of it, the pity of her going down into the fathomless void—alone. He resolved once again to do all that lay in his power to see that she came out of it with a song of thanksgiving on her lips.

He settled her in the car, put her bags in the trunk compartment and got behind the wheel. They drove out the winding drive past a tall geranium hedge to the deodar-shaded street.

He manipulated the car well, drove as swiftly as traffic rules allowed. He made no effort at small talk with the strangely silent young woman beside him. From time to time she glanced up at his strong profile, and wondered why he always inspired a sort of faith in her, when she knew she shouldn't have faith in any man. Rock had taught her that.

But whenever she was with Dr. Black she felt bathed in a precious security, difficult to analyze. It must be that cultivated bedside manner of his, she thought again.

She wondered if some women didn't pretend illness and summon him to their sides, just to revel in the comfort of his presence. Certainly, from now on, she would see a great deal of him as well his sister, and their tranquility of manner she had needed to imitate for a very long time. The mere thought of it now filled her with pleasurable warmth.

In Her New Home

They soon came into Coldwater Canyon, now flanked by pink, lavender and white wild flowers on mountain sides, rolling mightily back for many long miles. The recent rains had cleaned and polished and encouraged all growing things, until the countryside was gayly alive in its new Spring dress. The very air seemed to palpitate with a contagious rhythm that caught Janis unawares.

How perfectly beautiful! I never knew any place could be so lovely!" There was a vein of awe in her tone.

Stephen Black gave her a searching look and was caught by starlike blue eyes that held him an instant in gripping fascination. But he managed casually: "Do you wonder Mary and I like living out here?

"No, I don't. It's perfect.'

They had arrived at the low white picket fence with its sign "Bridgecliff." Janis thought reminiscently: "What a lot of water has gone under the bridge since the last time I was here."

But presently, upon finding herself alone in a pretty maple-furnished bedroom, enlivened by rose chintz at the windows, and matching slipcovers on the chairs, the sense of declation fled.

After all, she was very lucky. Everywhere she turned here, was loveliness. Mirrors on all sides of the room reflected American Beauty roses in wedgwood, crystal, and silver containers, multiplying the blooms, until she seemed to be in a gay fairylike garden.

She hung her hat and coat in the spacious closet, pulled down her green silk blouse, straightened her short, narrow green skirt before the dressing table. She perched before it on the silver satin bench and began rearranging her hair. She hummed a merry little tune under her breath, her face lighted with keen anticipation.

A maid knocked and brought in a tray filled with delicious-looking food. She informed Janis that Miss Black would not return from shopping until late in the afternoon and that Dr. Black had gone back to his office.

But in spite of having to lunch alone, Janis was not too disappointed. It would give her a chance to get adjusted to her new surroundings. She was hungry, filled with a new sort of confidence in herself. Surely she had now buried the worst of her ogres. She was among friends. From now on she would make it her business to please them, to fit in here

Welcomed by Mary

Late that afternoon, after she awakened from a nap and was thinking about unpacking her trunks, which had just arrived, Mary Black came in and greeted her as if she were a guest. Janis knew it was an honor to be treated by the famous Mary like a friend instead of an employe, and became her gratitude.

"I'm sorry I wasn't here to welcome you to Bridgecliff, but I had to do some shopping for Stephen. If it weren't for me, the poor man would look disgraceful. He's not at all clothes conscious, you know.

"Really, I didn't mind. I've enjoyed relaxing in this charming room."

"I'll send in Doris to do your hair, if you like," offered Mary. "She's a clever maid— I wouldn't know what to do without her."

"Oh—thank you, no — I wouldn't know what to do with her," laughed Janis. "I'll manage beautifully alone."

"What a dear you are! Stephen said you'd freshen up the whole house—and he was right."

"I'm not so sure about that—but I'll try. Dr. Black is such a fine man—I wouldn't want to disappoint him."

"That brother of mine does have an unbelievabe number of good qualites. If more men were like him this pesky world would be a better place."

Janis sighed, began running a comb through her auburn curls. She knew that Rock Conover was in Mary's mind; that Mary was too tactful to mention him.

"Stephen is bringing Doe Sinclair and her brother Roul for dinner," Mary said then. "Roul is a broker and quite successful. Doe is a fluffy little society girl, but really sweet. You'll like them."

I'm sure I shall," Janis said simply.

Ready for Dinner

Mary soon hurried away, leaving Janis excited and close to happiness. She put on a shell-blue lamé dinner gown, one of Lucinda's last selections; but in spite of the memories it stirred it was her most becoming gown, and she felt impelled to wear it. Its long, voluminous skirt gathered tightly around her small waist, its short-sleeved bolero of silver cloth brought out the creaminess of her skin, gave her eyes an arresting sparkle.

Her simple hairdress was quaintly attractive. Clusters of auburn curls were caught by a silver band at the back of her head, curls nestled about her ears and forehead, making her the sort of woman a man instinctively protects and revers, and tries to prevent men from falling in love with excepting himself.

Feeling more carefree than she had in many days, Janis finally went down to the library. There was no one else about. She settled herself in a crimson leather chair by a massive mahogany table, holding neat piles of magazines and newspapers.

She admired the heavy crimson window drapes, the finely bound books on shelves reaching from floor to ceiling on three sides of the room, the great log burning cheerfully in the fireplace.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU HATE TO DO IT

HANDS THAT lack the slightest element of strength of any kind do not come to any of us often, thank Heaven. When we have such a holding, we certainly hate to hear our partner take action that obliges us to bid, such as an informative or take-out double, a forcing bid of some sort or perhaps what usually is figured as a forcing pass after a previous strong bid. If the intervening opponent will only bid something and relieve us of our obligation, we are eternally grateful to him.

South	West	North	East

2-NT

When this deal was over, West berated East for not doubling or else bidding one of his four-card suits. "I made a forcing pass," he exclaimed. "My vulnerable bid of 1-No Trump should have shown you they could not make 2-No Trumps."

As it was, the contract was set only one trick, and would not have been set at all if West had been about one queen weaker. And what a time East would have had trying to make 3-Clubs or 3-Spades. Even beating the contract at all was delicate business, because West could not get his partner into the lead.

With no good lead, West decided first to kill the heart suit, so led the J of it to the Q. A diamond was led to the 9 and 10, then West led the heart 10 to the K and took the heart A on the return. Next came the diamond 8 to the J, club J to the Q, club A, club 4 to the K, diamond A, diamond Q to the K, spade A, spade Q to the K and finally the spade J.

If West takes two spades and switches to the heart 3, how should South try to make 5-Diamonds, and how can his opponents defeat him?

WARSAW

Mrs. Payne Is Hostess To W.I.

WARSAW, March 20—(ENS). — Warsaw Women's Institute was well attended at the regular meeting held at Mrs. Uriah Payne's home on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. T. Cooper presiding.

After opening exercises Mrs. Digweed reported on the war knitting: Yarn received has been 39¾ pounds and given out 39¼ pounds. There has been sent to Red Cross 30 pairs of socks, 2 sweaters, 1 pair mitts and given to men who have enlisted: R. Keirley, one pair of socks, one pair mitts; to J. Carnahan, K. Bryant, M. McCarthy, each two pairs of socks. Socks on hand total 21 pairs, also one sweater and five pairs of socks knitted but not in, making a total of 3 sweaters, 2 pairs mittens, 63 pairs socks and 2 pairs of wristlets.

It was decided to send a contribution to the W.I. section of the Peterborough fair, with Miss Lois Clysdale as representative.

Mrs. Charlotte Clysdale gave an especially interesting list of current events.

There was a moment's silent standing in memory of Laura Stevens for many years a devoted W.I. worker.

A collection was taken to aid some Institutes whose members can knit but there is neither yarn nor money to purchase it. It was decided to send clothing, second-hand, but in good repair to a family who are in need.

Illinois Man Is Killed Near Bewdley

Car And Truck Meet Almost Head-on During Bad Storm

One man was killed and three others injured, when a passenger car and a truck met head-on in collision during a blinding snowstorm on Highway 28, 2 miles south of Bewdley, on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock.

The dead man is John B. Coy, 733 South Ridgeland Avenue, Oak Park, Illinois, employee of the International Harvester Company at Chicago.

The injured: Basil Parsonage, age 34, 540 King Street E., Hamilton, Ontario, employed by the International Harvester Company, at Hamilton.

Lester Childs, age 29, 38 Banff Road, Toronto, Ontario, an employee of the Canadian General Electric Co. at Toronto.

Raymond Young, 434 Park Street, Peterborough, Ontario.

Coy and Parsonage were travelling with Childs en route from Toronto to the C.G.E. plant in this city and Childs is believed to have been driving. The car had been following a large highway snowplow and it met in collision with a truck going in the opposite direction. The truck is owned by Norman Heard, R.R. 4, Port Hope, and Ray Young of Peterborough was a passenger.

Both truck and car were extensively damaged. The snow plow operator didn't even know there had been an accident because of the driving snow and the noise from his machine.

Coy died instantly and the others were taken to Port Hope hospital by

Bit Of String Seals Tragic Diary

MONTREAL, March 21—(CP).—A personal diary kept by G. H. Davidson, Montrealer, who died with two other men last fall in a lonely cabin on the Labrador coast, was brought today to his family here.

George Trim, a personal friend of Davidson whose body with those of J. C. Cote of Beaumont, Que., and Pilot Joseph Fecteau reached Rimouski yesterday, carried the diary believed to tell the story of a vigil the three men kept in the cabin until they died for want of food. Contents of the diary were not disclosed.

A train aboard which Trim made the trip from Rimouski also bore Davidson's body which will be buried here Friday. The bodies of Cote and Pilot Fecteau were taken by the same train to Levis.

Trim, as a representative of the Davidson family, made a 700-mile flight to Labrador with Pilot Bill Ressiguier to transport the bodies of the three men from the wilderness.

At Hopedale, Labrador outpost about 30 miles from English Harbor Bay, where Davidson, Cote and their pilot were forced down on a plane trip last September, Trim was given the diary left by the Montreal man

Wrapped in brown paper and tied with light string, the journal was under Trim's arm when he stepped from the plane yesterday at Rimouski.

Finns Continue Homeward Trek to Be Ready for Next War

TORONTO, March 21—(CP).—The trek of volunteers to Finland has been replaced by a peacetime pilgrimage, but purpose of the new group is similar to that of the old one.

To look for parents, brothers and sisters, sons and daughters and to see if they are living or dead is their main purpose. They also go because Finland needs builders.

"There is another reason," one of them said last night. "We are going for the next war." A chorus of approval in Finnish and in English greeted his words. All were convinced that the Finns will fight again. Some say in a month, some say in a year, but when it comes they want to be there.

The number of those leaving this week-end has rise nto 12. Four arrived from Fort Arthur yesterday.

All were entertained at the home of Rev. Kyosti Toppila. Mr. Toppila is padre of the Finnish War Veterans' Association of Toronto.

"I have a mother and father over there and two sons who have been fighting," said John Ronkko. "I do not know if they are living."

Matti Pakanen had three sons fighting and four daughters in the bombing zone.

HELSINKI, March 21—(CP).—Canadian and other foreign volunteer workers and soldiers are being urged to remain in Finland, the Finland Association said today, in appealing for continued contributions of supplies.

Volunteers, who continue to arrive, are being assigned to border patrol duty and reconstruction work.

British hospital units headed by Miss Mary Runciman, and including Lillian Krans of Calgary, arrived yesterday.

In Stockholm reports that Soviet Russia had made new territorial demands upon Finland in connection with the final delineation of her frontiers were published today without official confirmation.

Official circles in Helsinki disclaimed all knowledge of any additional demands. Responsible

Sylt Raid Hint Allies May Steal Thunder Of Hitler's Boasted Blitzkrieg; 10 Heinkels Bomb Convoy—Beaten Off

Attack Shows Bombers Can Get Through —With Right Weather

LONDON, March 21—(CP).—Britain's hammering of the German airbase on the Island of Sylt set the world wondering today if the Allies were about to steal the thunder of Adolf Hitler's boasted "blitzkrieg," or if both sides of the war of waiting might find mutual strafing cancelled out advantages to either side.

Initially, at least, the advantage appeared definitely on the side of the Allies, for Royal Air Force claims that its bombers had smashed and fired the Hornum airbase were supported by stories from neighboring Denmark, interviews with airmen, and, perhaps, will be supported further by publication of photographs.

On the other hand Germany's assertion that her planes sank or seriously damaged nine British naval and merchant ships in a reprisal North-Sea raid last night drew an Admiralty statement that three small neutral ships in convoy had been damaged, one so badly its crew abandoned it.

Stories Don't Fit.

German claims that the only damage in the Sylt raid was to an untenanted house did not fit with stories of Danes who heard huge detonations and saw sheets of flame leaping skyward. From Hornum, itself, came no eye-witness stories.

Doubly interesting to excited Britons was the fact they already knew what the Hornum base looked like, having seen pictures of it in their newspapers months ago. It was the first German air base shown in published photographs.

Publication of those pictures, some taken from such low altitude that they showed men working around the hangars, were a tonic at the time to Britons who were starting to complain that leaflet raids—confetti flights, they called them—would not win anybody's war.

Yesterday's raid, six hours long, came closer than anything since the scuttling of the German pocket battleship Graf Spee to blacked-out Britain's idea of how a war should be conducted. For months the man in the street had been urging: "Let's get on with it."

That raid did something else. It demonstrated that the hit-and-run technique of the British bombing

Germany Orders U.S. Consular Officials Out Of Poland—Protests Prove Futile

WASHINGTON, March 21, —(AP)—United States citizens in partitioned Poland were cut off from all direct diplomatic representation today as the United States, acting under German compulsion withdrew its consular officials.

The state department ordered the withdrawal reluctantly after unavailing protests to the Berlin government.

In yielding to the "request" that all consular establishments "must" be evacuated, the department informed Germany that it was reserving "all of its rights in the matter."

The German order, the state department said last night, applied to the diplomatic representatives of all foreign countries. This was confirmed by informed sources in Berlin, which said that for visa purposes the lack of consulates in the area was inconsequential because no one can visit the territory without a special permit from its governor general.

No official reason was advanced for the German order. One explanation offered was that Berlin believed some consulates engaged in undesirable activities, and decided to remove them all.

Scores Of German Bombers Ruined In Attack On Sylt

LONDON, March 21. — (CP). — Germany's gun-bristling submarine bases in the Baltic are the next probable targets of British bombers, it was reported to-day as belligerents reviewed results of their heavy exchange of blows across the North Sea.

The Admiralty denied a German contention that nine British warships and merchantmen had been sunk in an air attack on a convoy off the Scottish coast.

Actually, it said, only one Norwegian ship had to be abandoned and another Norwegian ship was hit. Two naval planes and anti-aircraft guns drove off 10 German bombers, it asserted.

However, it was announced later that 30 men were feared lost from two Danish ships, the 2,109-ton Bothal and the 1,530-ton Viking, sunk off the north-east coast of Scotland yesterday. The manner of their sinking was not disclosed. A lifeboat landed seven survivors early to-day.

D. N. B., German News News Agency, said nine ships sunk totalled 42,000 tons and two others of 11,000 tons were damaged badly. The agency acknowledged that one German plane failed to return.

The German raid was in reprisal for the British bombardment of Sylt Island Tuesday night and Wednesday morning—a raid that was itself in reprisal for Saturday's German bombing of the British naval base at Scapa Flow.

A Spring Tonic.

The Sylt raid, in which British official said great damage was done to the German seaplane station, was a spring tonic for the spirits of the whole British nation. The flyers themselves expressed relief at being permitted to "cut loose" at last after their long series of pamphlet raids and reconnaissance tours over German soil.

The fiercer fighting of the Springtime had been oft-predicted but long-delayed

North Shivering In 22 Below; Snow In South

TORONTO, March 21.—Today is the second day of Spring and Winter-weary Ontario either was digging out from under a heavy snowfall of shivering in below-zero weather.

In the southern section of the province clear, sunny weather was general in contrast with yesterday's blizzard that deposited the heaviest snowfall of winter in some sections. Snowplough crews toiled throughout the night and only a few communities remained snowbound this morning.

The weather was decidedly cold throughout Northern Ontario and at White River.

Parliament Recesses Amid Rumors Of New Cabinet After Easter

LONDON, March 21 (CP)—Parliament recessed for the Easter holidays today amid reports that Prime Minister Chamberlain will reconstruct his cabinet during the interval before sittings are resumed April 2.

The House of Commons session ended with outspoken criticism of two war cabinet members, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, Lord Privy Seal, voiced by Geoffrey Mander of the Liberal opposition.

"It is widely felt throughout the country that the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Lord Privy Seal are heavy liabilities both at home and abroad," he said.

Speculation outside the house mentioned Ar Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood and Supply Minister Leslie Burgin as ministers likely to be displaced by the prime minister in reshaping his cabinet for more vigorous prosecution of war tasks.

The political correspondent of the Daily Mail said today that after the Easter holiday both Great Britain and France probably will have small war cabinets able to make rapid policy decisions.

"In this as in other aspects of the war, Great Britain and France will be 'marching together'," he wrote.

"It is thought that the prime minister may invite Major Cle-

Papa-to-Be Turns Friends' Nosiness to Cash Starts Sweep On Date Of Heir's Arrival

MINNEAPOLIS, March21. —(AP).— George Bestrom got so tired having friends ask him when his first ride-and-joy was due that he started the "Bestrom baby sweepstakes."

Now when they ask he sells them a ticket at $1 a chance—29 have bought.

The sweepstake has a slogan: "You pays your money and you names the time."

It has a handicap: "The best medical authority indicated about April 6."

It is limited to "amateurs."

The race is: "Name the date and hour."

The rake-off: "A 10-cent administrative fee deducted from each $1 by the sponsor" (Bestrom.)

The expectant father said he wasn't sure whether "my wife is going to murder me for this," but since everyone seemed so interested in the event he decided to cash in "because it is going to cost me a lot of dough."

Mussolini's Bloc To Save Balkans?

ROME, March 21—(CP-Havas). — The newspaper Avvenire said today that all Southeastern Europe is being organized into a 'Mussolini bloc.'

The newspaper, reviewing what it termed the two-fold purpose of Monday's talk between Premier Mussolini and Adolf Hitler, said:

"Among so many blocs and counter-blocs, the most favorable to peace is the Mussolini bloc which is in the process of formation from the Pyrenees to the Black Sea in order to prevent the war extending into the Danubian basin."

According to the Avvenire, the Mussolini-Hitler talk revolved around two points —Italian non-belligerency and its anti-comintern policy.

"Non-belligerency," it said, "means production of the greatest efforts to circumscribe the war and the unshakable will to keep it far from the Balkans, where Italy has interests which cannot be compromised by anyone with impunity.

"The anti-comintern means that Russia, if others permit it, may exercise her mania for adventures in the Arctic Ocean and the Baltic Sea, but the Bolshevist colossus with feet of clay would soon again find herself facing her conquerors of the Spanish crusade if she intended to violate the Danube and spread her influence across the Mediterranean."

Paul Reynaud Takes Over French Reins

Broadened Coalition Cabinet Of 7 Includes Daladier

PARIS, March 21.—(CP).— Paul Reynaud to-day formally took the helm of the French government as Premier and Foreign Minister in a broadened "win the war" coalition cabinet.

Edouard Daladier, whom Reynaud succeeds as premier, stayed in the new ministry as Minister of National Defence. Reynaud's former portfolio in the Finance Ministry went to Lucien Lamoureux.

Reynaud and six other ministers constitute the inner war cabinet.

The six are: Daladier, Camille Chautemps, vice-premier, Cesar Campinchin, navy minister, Senator Luarent Eynac, air minister, Raoul Dautry ,armament ,and Lucien Lamoureux, finance.

Almost exactly 24 hours after President Lebrun asked him to form a ministry, Reynaud returned to the Elysee Palace accompanied by the ministers he had chosen.

The Reynaud cabinet has a broader basis than its predecessor, including six Socialists, three as ministers and three as under-secretaries. Like the Daladier Cabinet, it rests mainly on the Radical Socialists who, including their associates of the Democratic Left in the Senate, have 11 posts.

The other ministries have gone to members of Centre and Right wing of the Chamber and Senate. The Extreme Right group headed by Louis Marin, the Republican Federation, declined to participate because of its opposition to sharing power with the Socialists.

Jewish Refugee's Freighter Sinks At Dock

BALTIMORE, March 21.—(AP)—The 27,000-ton steamship Panamanian, with which Arnold Bernstein, German-Jewish shipping magnate and refugee from the Nazis, plans to inaugurate direct freight service to Great Britain, lay helpless and partially filled with water in Baltimore harbor today.

The Panamanian, here to take on cargo, shipped water in an unexplained manner last night while lying at Locust Point pier. Today she listed at a 10-degree angle, her keel touching bottom.

There were reports that the vessel took on water through side port while pumping oil, but agents here refused to confirm or deny this or to comment on possible sabotage. The engine room and the after cargo holds were filled with water.

The public was barred from the pier.

Harbor engineer Fred M. Kipp said the Panamanian appeared to be down by the stern and up by the bow. Firemen aboard the fireboard deluge said the water in the vessel's room was up to the cylinder heads.

The ship's fires were out and her dynamos decommissioned.

Bad Snowstorm Hinders Vote Across Alberta

EDMONTON, Mar. 21 — (CP). —Storm conditions and snowfalls of four to eight inches hampered voting in Northern and Central Alberta to-day as electors went to the polls to choose 57 members for the province's ninth Legislature.

Voting was light at Edmonton polls for the first half-hour after balloting began at 9 a.m. (11 a.m. EST), sharply contrasting with the early rush in the 1935 general election. After 9.30 the voters began to flock to the booths and lineups were reported from most of them.

Election officials expressed fear the rural vote would be reduced considerably if storm conditions continue. The Alberta Motor Association reported all main highways open but a "little heavy" and side roads "just about blocked" by snow. No drifting was reported.

The Social Credit party which Mr. Aberhart led to victory in the 1935 general election has 56 candidates, the leaderless Independents 57 and the C.C.F. under C. A. Ronning 36. Representatives of nine

Two Sea Queens Sail Under Sealed Orders

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—Two of the proudest liners of the British merchant fleet ploughed uncertain waters today in a gamble with wartime hazards of the high seas.

Slightly more than 12 hours after the 35,739-ton Maurentia slipped out through the misty rain from the pier where she had been tied up for three months, the giant Queen Mary nosed out into the sunlit-Hudson and passed down the bay.

The destination of the two liners was known only to their commanders, who sailed under sealed orders, not to be opened until they were well at sea, but presumably sending them on dangerous missions as troops ships.

Rain, wind and hail swept the Mauretania's decks last night, when she signalled her departure by two sharp blasts of her whistle, but this morning the 81,235-ton Queen Mary sailed under a clear, cloudless sky.

A spring breeze whipped up whitecaps on the bay contrasting to the flashes of lightning and sharp gusts

Showdown Near On Exporting 420 mph Planes

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP).—Keen allied interest in a seven-mile-a-minute United States warplane may accelerate a showdown in the government's policy of foreign purchases of aircraft.

The fighter is the Army Air Corps' P-38, a heavily-armed, two-motor Lockheed which the War Department has just released—in a modified version—for sale abroad. The catch in the release is that without a secret device, the plane cannot make top speed.

How far negotiations on the P-38 have progressed was not clear. Specific types were not mentioned when Arthur B. Purvis, Montreal head of the British-French purchasing mission, reported continuing discussions for the acquition of a potential $1,000,000,000 worth of American planes. Purvis said that the signed contract stage had not been reached, however.

Staid Times Finds Little Wrong In Cromwell's Fireworks Speech

NEW YORK, March 21.—(CP)—The influential New York Times today found itself at a loss to understand why certain members of the United States Congress are "so excited and angry about the Toronto incident."

The newspaper agreed editorially with the critics of James H. R. Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada, that his address in Toronto Tuesday, in which he said all neutral nations are vitally interested in the outcome of the war, was "indiscreet," but it added:

"Mr. Cromwell did not meddle in any way in the affairs of Canada. He did not attempt to commit the United States to any policy. He did not advocate the entrance of this country into the war. The essence of his remarks was that he "believed the Allies are fighting for the perpetuation of liberty and freedom.'

"A great majority of the American people agree with him and recognize a difference, highly important from our point of view, between democracy and dictatorship, between defence of national frontiers and aggression running wild."

The New York Daily News demanded that the "puzzling" situation which it said has been created as a result of the minister's speech be "cleared up, swiftly."

The minister said in his speech he could not understand how any intelligent citizen of any neutral country could state with conviction that he had no interest in the outcome of the war and declared: "To me it is only too apparent that the life, the liberty, the livelihood and the very safety of this same neu-

32 Million Gallons Of Synthetic Fuel Now Reducing British Imports

LONDON, Mar. 21 — (CP). — Steps taken by the Government since the outbreak of war have resulted in estimated annual production of 15,000,000 gallons of benzol and 32,000,000 gallons of synthetic motor fuel to replace imported fuels, Geoffrey Lloyd, Secretary for Mines, told the House of Commons yesterday.

Replying to a question from Clement Attlee, Leader of the (Labor) Opposition, the Mines Secretary said the question of synthetic motor fuel was one of the first problems tackled by the Government on the outbreak of war.

"I appointed Sir Harold Hartley as honorary adviser on the development of home-produced fuels and I asked a number of leading representatives of industry, finance and science under the presidency of Sir William Bragg, president of the Royal Society, to make a rapid survey of the subject in the light of war conditions," Mr. Lloyd said.

"Within a month this body completed its survey and on its recommendation the following six specific questions are being investigated simultaneously:

"Production of oil from coal by synthetic processes, under chairmanship of Sir William Jowitt;

"Products of low temperature carbonization under chairmanship of Lord Henley;

"Liquid products of high temperature carbonization under David Fratt;

Says Liberals Have Helped Veterans Most

Pensions to Canadian soldiers were first granted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and subsequent increases were granted by Liberal administrations, said Joseph Mackness, veteran of the South African and Great wars, and father of two sons in the new Canadian army, speaking in support of R. M. Glover at Young's Point last night.

Mr. Mackness was a Sergeant-major in the last war, serving under Colonel Ralston, minister of finance in the Mackenzie King government. He enlisted in 1898 and spent forty-two years in the Canadian army. One of his sons is now overseas with the first division, and the other is an instructor with the 48th Highlanders, expecting to go overseas with the second division.

His First Speech

Making his first political speech, Mr. Mackness recalled his early years in the army, saying that the first improvement in the food and clothing of the troops was made in 1899 by Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a result of his enquiry into camp conditions.

"At that time our rations were bread, meat and potatoes. We had one drill uniform, no service uniform and our pay was 40 cents a day. Sir Wilfrid ordered butter, bacon, cheese and beans to be added to our rations, and we thought we were sitting on top of the world, with an increase in pay that gave a private fifty cents a day on joining up."

Laurier Began Pensions

There were no pensions at that time. Laurier adopted a system based on the rate of pay during the last three years of a man's service. "Our pensions were in that position when Sir Robert Borden took office in 1911, and they remained that way until 1921."

Mr. Mackness said it was the King government which made permanent a 50 per cent pensions bonus at a time when there was a proposal to cut it off. Under the same administration the system of vocational training for ex-service men was expanded.

"During the period from 1930 to 1935 when R. B. Bennett and Dr. Manion were in office the soldiers never received one benefit. You see a lot of flag-waving by some people who claim to be great friends of the returned men, but it was the Liberals who said little, but actually provided benefits which the returned men enjoy today. Another example I'd like to point out was the Liberals who granted the "burnt out pension," that was the pension for soldiers who find that after years of civilian life following their war service that they are unable to earn a livelihood because of hardships and injuries received in the war which did not call for pensions on their return to civilian life."

Allowances To Dependents

Mr. Mackness spoke of the allowances paid to soldiers' dependents about which, he said, there had been a lot of unfair criticism. If a married man enlists he should present the certificate of his marriage and also birth certificates of his children. It is these documents which are sent on to Ottawa, and on which allowances are forwarded to the soldier's family. The government could not be expected to accept a man's word that he was married and the father of two children. He should also declare the amount of his pay which he wants assigned to his wife.

The government makes an allowance of $35 a month to the wife, and twelve dollars a month for each child, if there are two.

"Colonel Drew is one of those who have been saying that dependents of our new soldiers have had to wait six weeks and longer to get the allowance from the government. As an officer he must know that before the allowances are paid, the necessary proofs must be forwarded to Ottawa. There will be no delay if commanding officers instruct the men to provide the certificates which I have mentioned. I would say that in nine cases out of ten it is not the fault of the government. Colonel Drew and Dr. Manion both know the regulations, but why do they make statements which they know to be half truths?"

Tribute To Ralston

"One of the most pleasant experiences of my life was my service under Colonel J. L. Ralston, who is now minister of finance, and who was my commanding officer in active service in France," Mr. Mackness said. "I never met a braver or more efficient officer than Colonel Ralston, who should be wearing a V.C. Instead of being decorated for a certain deed on the Somme, he received a reprimand, but I won't go into that. He had absolutey no fear. The men who served under him had every confidence in him, and as a returned soldier it gives me great faith in the present government in this war to know that we have Colonel Ralston in the cabinet."

Fred Young was chairman at last night's meeting. Associated with Mr. Glover in presenting his appeal to the electors were Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A., T. J. Carley, K.C., W. B. Gordon and Mr. Mackness. George Coleman, Jr., sang several numbers, "The Road to Mandalay" and "Home on the Range." He was accompanied by Mrs. Coleman.

Industries Satisfied

One of Mr. Elliott's statements was to the effect that Canadian industries do not want a change of government because they have every confidence "in the set up of the War Supplies Board" which the King administration had promptly established. At the head of this board Mr. Elliott said, was Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Company, himself a Conservative, wh owas recruited for that high responsibility solely because of his great business experience. Mr. Campbell was giving his services to the people of Canada in this emergency.

This Board was entrusted by the government with the responsibility of dealing with war contracts, and had already let contracts amounting to large sums of money.

"This work has been running so efficiently that our industries don't want to see that arrangement interrupted," Mr. Elliott said. The Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Company had received a contract amounting to $1,000,000 and were guaranteed supplies for fourteen months to enable them to go ahead with the contract and also to take care of their regular orders.

Men of Ability

Mr. Elliott also referred to the qualifications of some of the members of the King government. Hon. Mr. Howe had already established the Trans-Canada Airways which was approaching a self-supporting basis when war was declared. Mr. Howe's department was now in charge of the building of the many airfields which were being planned or were in course of construction in connection with Canada's great air training scheme in conjunction with Great Britain and the rest of the Empire.

Colonel Ralston, minister of finance, had retired from the public service five years ago, but returned to the government, actuated by a sense of duty to his country, to take the ministry of finance, when illness forced the Hon. Mr. Dunning to resign.

"The basis of government is the men we send there," Mr. Elliott said. "If you want common sense in the government, you must send men of experience and common sense from the ridings. In West Peterborough you have in Rollie Glover whose life has not been one of idleness and easy living. You all know his record as general manager of the Peterborough Examiner. Those who know him best can also tell you that everything Mr. Glover has done, he has done well. Mr. Glover's record is one of performance, and that is why the people of Young's Point should vote for him, knowing that he is the kind of man they need to represent them in the government."

quarters here expressed belief that while some minor controversies might have arisen they would in no way involve extensive concessions by the Finns.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen, however, in a dispatch dated Moscow, said the Finns had been compelled to accept several alterations in the boundaries as originally delineated by their peace treaty with Russia.

"It is reported," the dispatch said, "that the Finns have been surprised anew by further Soviet demands in regard to territorial limits which would penetrate Finland farther than expected."

The location of the new limits was not mentioned in the dispatch.

This, the newspaper said, came on top of word from Soviet Premier-Foregin Commissar Molotoff that Moscow was opposed to Finland's entry into a Scandinavian defensive alliance.

Russia, it was stated, now considers Finland not as a Scandinavian country was as "the fourth Baltic state." Consequently, the paper said, Soviet policy aims to preevnt closer contractual relations between Finland and the Scandinavian countries, not only in the military but also in the diplomatic domain.

which attended the Maurentia's dramatic night sailing.

Both liners were drab in their camouflage gray, their windows blackened and all signs of identity blotted out.

Outward Bound

In a simple dramatic sentence the marine news ticker told of the Mauretania's departure on her dangerous mission thus:—

"8.52 p.m. A British ship, no signals, passing quarantine, bound out."

The Queen Mary had been at her berth here since Sept. 4—the day after war started. Workmen swarmed over her, blotting out her brilant plumage with Admiralty grey.

Where the two vessels were bound and for what purpose the Admiralty planned to employ them remained mysteries, although persistent waterfront rumors had it they had been assigned to troopship duty between Australia and the near east.

Another report was that one or both of the ships were bound for Halifax, with a possible stop at Boston on the way.

A series of strident blasts from the Queen Mary's whistle signalled her departure at 8.20 a.m., 12 hours and 20 minutes after the Mauretania moved out in New York's first Spring storm.

The Queen Mary, like the Mauretania, had been stripped of her rich furnishings and there were reports that cabin partitions had been removed to make "dormitory barracks."

Seamen to augment the skeleton crews arrived Monday on the Antonia and yesterday a large shipment of corned beef was taken aboard.

Staying behind at their New York piers were the giant Queen Elizabeth and Normandie, the world's first and second largest ships.

480 Passengers Arrive

As the Queen Mary was being pushed away from her pier by tugs, the steamship Lancastria, of the same line, appeared, inbound from Liverpool by way of Halifax. The vessels dipped their flags in salute, augmented by blasts from their whistles.

The Lancastria carried 480 passengers, including 12 sailors who said they were to have sailed on the Queen Mary, and 37 other seamen asigned to an unnamed freighter now in American waters.

Waterfront reports had it that the sailors designated for the Queen Mary might take a train to Boston and board her there, where it was reported she might stop long enough to have her hull scraped.

Cromwell last night received support from Representative John D. Dingell, Michigan Democrat, who telegraphed the minister to "stand your ground" and "pay no attention to putty heads and pot bellies."

"You are in harmony with American foreign policy," he wired, "and 95 per cent of our people are in agreement with you.

"Shed your kid gloves and do some boxing and don't pull your punches. Truth has a terrific wallop and there is nothing diplomatic about it.

"I, too, want a copy of your speech to insert in the Congressional Record as an inspiration to American posterity. Personal congratulations."

Earlier State Secretary Cordell Hull called for an official copy of the speech with a view to determining whether disciplinary measures should be applied.

Meantime Cromwell, husband of the former Doris Duke, was the target for sharp criticism from Capitol Hill. Introducing a resolution calling for a Congressional inquiry to determine whether Cromwell was correctly quoted in criticizing "American isolationists," Representative Martin Sweeney, Ohio Democrat, said yesterday:

"If our playboy minister to Canada wants to fight for the British Empire I respectfully suggest that he join the ranks of such distinguished American expatriates as Lady Astor and Kermit Roosevelt, so that he may 'carry on' for the Empire.

"We should have the courage to tell Cromwell and his lawfully-wedded fortune, Doris Duke, to get the hell out of this republic."

Under Sweeney's resolution, the House Foreign Affairs committee would be directed to recommend the recall of Cromwell, if reports of the speech were found to be true. Senator Champ Clark, Missouri Democrat, had previously said that Cromwell should be recalled because of his "outrageous" speech.

"But it is unlikely that Attlee will accept office. Labor's attitude is that while supporting the war the party should retain liberty of criticism.

"The same considerations would probably apply to the Liberals. War development may in both cases produce a change of mind."

"France demands what Great Britain must have—a real war cabinet," said a Daily Mail editorial.

"The French people, like the British people, are disquieted by recent events. They criticise their ministers for a lack of boldness and enterprise. They call for a reconstruction of the government.

"The Daily Mail has given the lead in urging the formation of a war cabinet. We shall continue to urge this vital step. Unless it is taken and directly, our war effort will be muddled and frittered away in the wastes of bureaucracy.

"Our present system of government is a rich field for mistakes and delays which prolong wars. Lloyd George learned that lesson 24 years ago. His first big measure as prime minister was to form a war cabinet of five.

"The British people want to see the war fought in a more aggressive spirit—subject to the grand strategy of the Allies. The raid on Sylt was an example of daring—and necessary—action."

"No one pretends," said the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post, "that this government is composed of supermen incapable of making mistakes, especially in a situation where mistakes are easy to make. The need and duty to challenge their decisions or indecisions may arise at any time but on this occasion they have come out of a searching interrogation with full credit.

"Our war effort should be conducted as the country demands. An example is furnished by the determined and successful raid of the Royal Air Force in great strength on the German air base of Sylt. As a measure of reprisal for the recent enemy raid on Scapa Flow nothing could have been better contrived or more efficiently carried out.

"It was a welcome and convincing demonstration of our readiness and capacity to take the offensive—to hit hard, to hit often, and to keep on hitting—and it eloquently translates into action the nation's mind and will.

"The Germans bombed Scapa Flow for an hour and a half," said the Daily Express. "We bombed Sylt for six hours.

"The Germans sent 14 planes, we sent 50.

"Six hundred and 40 bombs were dropped on Scapa Flow and the mainland. One thousand fell on Sylt.

"That is the way the public wants to see Great Britain fight the war. For every crack they give us we pay them back double."

Same Key Ministers.

Reynaud himself assumes the portfolio of Foreign Affairs. Key Ministers of the Daladier Cabinet are retained, including Navy Minister Cesar Campinch, Colonel Minister Georges Mandel, and Vice-Premier Camille Chautemps. Other holdovers are Lautry, Julien, Queuille, De Monzie, Rio, Champetier De Ribes and Ducos.

The only new post created is that of Under-Secretary for Alsace-Lorraine Evacuation, to handle problems of evacuees from those zones close to the German frontier.

Socialist participation in the Reynaud Cabinet was assured after conferences betwen the new Premier and Socialist Leaders Leon Blum and Paul Faure. When the latter two returned to report to the Socialist group in the Chamber, it voted 80 to 7 to endorse participation.

The Cabinet will hold its first meeting to-morrow morning at the Elysee Palace. It will be presented to both Houses of Parliament in the afternoon.

The War Committee, an inner War Cabinet, will meet three times a week under the chairmanship of the Premier.

There will also be a new Economic Committee including the Minister of Finance and all the ministers whose functions fall in the economic domain. This committee will meet at least once weekly under the chairmanship of Reynaud.

Attack

It was the most sustained raid of the war—the sort of thing that citizens of poorly-defended Valencia, Barcelona, or Bilbao suffered in the Spanish Civil War when two totalitarian nations, Germany and Italy, carried out bombing experiments — except of course that the British squadrons didn't strafe civilians.

One thing the raid did not show was how the bombers would fare in combat with numerous fast pursuit and attack planes. The attackers said they saw but one pursuit plane and that the tail-end gunner of one bomber drove it off with a burst of fire. Defenders must choose their weapons—must send up chaser aircraft or use anti-aircraft guns. They cannot do both for fear of knocking down their own machines. The R. A. F. apparently used about 40 bombers and worked in continuous relays, hitting and ducking away. Only one machine was missing when it was all over.

Another Claim Exploded.

Raids in this war so far have indicated something else—that those who claim bombers unaccompanied by fighter escorts are helpless in the face of counter-attack have been wrong.

German raids on England and Scotland have shown that given the right weather, good visibility and broken clouds, a bomber can frequently release its load and escape into the clouds. There it can be navigated blind, but pursuers cannot catch it because they cannot see it.

Few German planes have been downed on land in the United Kingdom, but few have been engaged. Usually their pilots have preferred to run out to sea before a counter-attack reached actual contact.

The war so far has indicated that with determined crews and right weather a lot of bombers can penetrate defences and a lot reach home again. So far also it has appeared a fighter-plane defence is more effective than fire from the ground.

Exactly how devastating the Hornum raid was has not been shown yet. Publication of photographs taken yesterday after the raid would show it.

But the point would remain that what one good air force could do another might do also and the question would still remain whether the value of a raid by one combatant might be neutralized by a counter-raid.

CCF Chief Urges Collective Security Stand

(By the Canadian Press.)

Foreign affairs were returned to the Dominion election campaign last night when J. S Woodsworth, national leader of the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, said in a brief address at Winnipeg that collective security remains the world's only hope for a permanent peace.

Meanwhile, leaders and lieutenants of the Liberal and National government groups continued their exposition on national affairs and Canada's war effort.

"Collective security must replace national sovereignty," said Mr. Woodsworth. Some kind of "supernational authority" — a revitalized League of Nations—must be established in conjunction with a growing tendency of nations towards integration financially and economically.

Mr. Woodsworth reiterated his view that war "realy settles nothing," and said that a majority decision of the party's national council favored only economic assistance to the allies.

JAMES VINCENT O'RIELLY.

HASTINGS, Mar. 21 — (ENS).— Following an illness of about six weeks' duration, James Vincent O'Rielly of Toronto died at his home on Ferrier Avenue on Wednesday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock. Well known in this district, the late Mr. O'Rielly was born in Percy Township, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James O'Rielly. For more than ten years, he taught school in Ennismore Township. As a young man, he went to Western Canada where he managed a farm implement agency. In Moose Jaw he married Elizabeth O'Hearn, and a year or two later moved to Toronto, where he spent the past 25 years. In late years, he travelled for Moir School Supplies.

The late Mr. O'Rielly had been active until six weeks ago. He contracted an illness and his death had been expected by relatives for some days.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of Hastings to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church for services at nine o'clock. Interment will be made at Mount Carmel Cemetery. The remains will be brought to Hastings by motor on Friday, arriving about noon, and will rest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan until the funeral on Saturday morning.

Surviving the late Mr. O'Rielly are his wife, the former Elizabeth O'Hearn, one son Emmett of Toronto, a brother Hugh of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. John Sullivan of Hastings.

War Supply Board Talks In Private Of Government's Incompetency Colonel George Drew Tells Rally

"The sooner some of the members of the War Supply Board say in public the things they have been saying in private about the incompetency of the King Government, the better it will be for themselves and the people of Canada," declared Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader, in addressing a National Government rally in the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday afternoon. Col. Drew added that no board could overcome the incapacity of the present administration.

The Ontario Leader spoke for 90 minutes and was given an attentive hearing by a large audience that included many women. Senator Iva C. Fallis presided and the only other speakers were Gordon K. Fraser, the National Government candidate in West Peterborough, and J. Ford. Strickland, K.C., who introduced Col. Drew.

Declaring that this was one of the strangest elections in Canadian history, Col. Drew pointed out that the electors of West Peterborough had to choose between two candidates, Rollie Glover and Gordon Fraser, who commanded the respect of the people of the riding.

"You have to remember, however," he said, "that Mr. Glover has chosen of his own free will to associate himself with Mackenzie King, and no matter how estimable he may be he becomes the representative of Mackenzie King. It is not a choice between these two candidates, but a choice between a party government led by Mr. King or a National Government in which citizens of all parties will co-operate."

"No personal friendship, no personal regard for the Liberal candidate, should move you to forget that the face behind that of Mr. Glover is the face of Mackenzie King, and every vote for Mr. Glover is a vote to keep in power the King Government."

"Under this democratic system of ours," continued the speaker, "Mr. Glover has a number of things he should tell the people of this riding."

Not Mere Individual.

"When Mr. King dissolved Parliament in January and sent the members home like soldiers dismissed by the drill sergeant as his grandfather said, it should be remembered that they were not there as individuals, but as your representatives and mine with a right to find out the facts. There is no higher authority than Parliament, for Parliament represents the people. Mr. King, however, has unintentionally given away his own conviction that Parliament is only a body subservient to his will."

Mr. Drew here quoted the objection of a Canadian statesman when Parliament was similarly dissolved in 1854, ending with the remark: "As an old Reformer, I cry "Shame on the Government." Mr. King should have remembered those words because they were the words of his grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie. He had only been giving lip service to the memory of that grandfather who, no matter what his mistakes may have been, was a man of courage.

Using Norman Rogers.

Mr. King, Col. Drew said, used the same method employed on a favorite Sunday night broadcast of having a wooden dummy say the things he did not want to say himself; in his case he used Norman McLeod Rogers. "No Canadian," said the speaker, "should be misled by the honeyed words with which Mr. King scuttled Parliament. History," he said, "had the habit of repeating itself, and in that connection he read the words used by Cromwell when he abolished Parliament."

Col. Drew renewed his attack upon the radio censorship, charging that more than 1,000 words had been cut out of one of his addresses and that the method used was exactly the same as in Nazi Germany. When a newspaper the next day tried to publish the deleted portion press censorship stopped it, but Col. Drew gave the same address at a meeting the next night and it was published in full. "That shows the folly of the whole thing," he commented.

"Meanwhile a yellow rag like the Toronto Star," he continued, "can publish any fabrication it sees fit." In that connection he referred to recent pictures of Canada's Navy in the Star. "No man in Canada has a higher regard for the men of Canada's Navy than I have," he said. "They are doing wonderful work with the six destroyers they have. But we should be honest and admit that if it were not for the British Navy we could not have sent a ship or a man over."

Charges Misquotation.

The Star, he charged, had deliberately misquoted Lord Tweedsmuir, "misquoted the words of one of the greatest men who ever called himself a British subject." The late Governor-General, said the speaker, was referring to the spirit and courage of the Canadian people and to nothing else when he said that Canada was prepared to the last decimal for war.

Dealing with the equipment of Canada's forces, Col. Drew said that the Government should be prepared to tell the Canadian people exactly what the country had in the way of implements of war. "That would be the only answer worth anything at all," he said.

Then the speaker turned his attention to Liberal Handbill No. 6. "If you want a copy of this you may obtain it at the Liberal Committee Rooms," he said, as he read part of it to his audience. "Preparation, a Liberal Achievement"—read it and weep."

"I was in Winnipeg a short time ago," he said, "and I went out to see what the troops there had in the way of equipment. I found they had one machine of somewhat unsavory origin for use as a tank, and it was locally known as Tarzan. Then it was decided that they should have an anti-tank gun, and so they made one out of a piece of lead pipe set up on wheels. It wasn't much of a weapon, but it was adequate enough to take care of Tarzan."

The Question of Guns.

The claim that Canada's guns for use by the Field Artillery had been renovated and increased was ridiculed by the speaker. "You have an artillery unit here, a good one," said Col. Drew. "Ask the men in it about guns. There has not been one single gun added to the Field Artillery of Canada since Mr. King came into power. I defy any one to tell me any place in Canada where a new gun has been provided for the Militia.

"Putting rubber tires on old guns is not renovating them. The guns that the First Division took overseas were semi-obsolete before the end of the last war."

"This one takes first prize," Col. Drew went on as he read aloud a reference to the machine guns. "One of the essential features of the Bren gun is the tripod, the contract for the manufacture of which was not let until January and they won't be ready until late in the summer."

The speaker said that the Canadian General Electric Company was as well equipped and competent to building precision instruments as any plant in the country. It had tendered on a contract for the manufacture of practice bombs for the R.C.A.F., and yet the job was given to three insurance agents in Ottawa, who had no factory and who farmed the work out to a plant in Montreal. They got the contract because their tender was a cent a bomb cheaper than that of the C.G.E., Col. Drew said.

A Political Acrobat.

For a moment Col. Drew turned his guns on Ontario's Cabinet ministers. "Harry Nixon," he said, "is the greatest political acrobat in the history of Ontario. I sat across from that jumping jack in the House and watched him applaud Premier Hepburn as he censured the King Government for its feeble war effort. He had changed his mind three times in as many days, and now he is away taking a rest from his labors." The president of the Ontario Liberal Association, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, he said, had most vigorously attacked the King Government after Parliament had been scuttled.

Ian Mackenzie, who had been kicked out of his position as Federal Minister of Defence, but was still in the Cabinet as Minister of Pensions, was advertising in the Vancouver papers that he had secured for Vancouver "more than its fair share of war orders." That, he submitted, was a strange statement from a Cabinet minister after Mr. King had declared there was no such thing as patronage or influence in the allocation of war orders.

Col. Drew ridiculed the Liberal suggestion about changing horses in midstream. England, he said, had nearly lost the last war because of the wait-and-see policy of Asquith, who had to be replaced by Lloyd-George. Britain changed horses and got a better horse. "Today," said the speaker, "France has changed her government. If Mackenzie King thinks France is not fighting this war, let him go over to the Maginot Line."

As for voting for experience, Col. Drew said that Dr. Manion not only had the actual experience of fighting in France, but he had had also experience as a member of a war time administration.

"It is possible," said the speaker, "that Mr. King has been successful enough in keeping the facts away from the Canadian people that they will not realize the danger in time and return hi mto power. My slogan, should that event develop, would still be "King Must Go."

If there had been no war issue at all, Col. Drew argued, the King Government should be condemned for its failure to realize the necessity of doing something for youth, something to give youth faith in Canada as a land of opportunity.

In concluding his address, Col. Drew advised his audience to think of Canada and the Empire when they marked their ballots.

Senator Fallis in Chair.

Senator Fallis said the Liberal slogan "A Peterborough Boy for a Peterborough Job," would have meant a lot more if it read, "Peterborough Jobs for Peterborough Boys." The King Government, she charged, had done little or nothing to solve the unemployment problem. Referring to the fine qualities and the popularity of the Liberal candidate, the speaker said that there was no quarrel with Mr. Glover, but rather with the things for which he stood, the record of the present Government.

Mr. Fraser expressed thanks for the enthusiastic support and assistance he had been given in every part of the riding since the campaign began. People had been very kind to him, and he appreciated the opportunity he had had of making new friends.

In introducing the guest speaker, J. Ford. Strickland said that he wanted to mention some of the things that were not issues in the campaign. He particularly referred to what he said was the "ridiculous attempt" to blame the Bennett Government for Canada's inadequate war preparation. The truth was that the world was still thinking of disarmament when Mr. Bennett's term of office came to an end.

A vocal solo by Henry Batten was an appreciated feature of the program.

Allies Must Win Says U. S. Ambassador To Canada

The future of all democracies—belligerent or neutral—rests with an Allied victory over totalitarianism, James H. R. Cromwell, U.S. Minister to Ottawa, declared while addressing a luncheon meeting in Toronto. The U.S. Minister told the gathering that he was "content to risk my official head" upon his interpretation of his duty to tell his fellow citizens what he sees. He disagreed with the isolationist feeling of "some of my very distinguished countrymen, who, it would seem, believe the fulfillmen of the handwriting on the wall can be avoided by pretending the handwriting is not there." Mr. Cromwell is shown here with Mrs. Cromwell as they enjoyed tea during their visit to Toronto.

Y.P.U. To Present Religious Drama

The Young People's Union of George Street United Church will present a religious drama on Good Friday night, the fifth consecutive year they have launched such an ambitious program.

This year they have chosen "The Crown of Thorns," by Milton S. Agnew, a drama in three acts depicting the Easter story, which centres around Pontius Pilate and his wife, Claudia Procula, with Stephen, a disciple of Jesus, playing an important part in leading others, especially Claudia and Marah, a Jewish maid, to follow the Christ.

Other characters are Cornelius, a court Gaius, the young man of Pontius Pilate, Classius, a Roman soldier. The scene takes place in the reception, or outer, room of Pilate's palace at Jerusalem, just prior to the crucifixion. The drama will be preceded by an appropriate worship service. Suitable quiet music will be played between acts.

Miss Gwen Parnell has been directing the drama through several weeks and stage settings are by Herb Pick.

STATESMEN'S SNAPSHOTS

A man who loves fishing almost as well as he likes cooking and eating sea food is Joseph Enoil Michaud, federal minister of fisheries. He also likes public life.

Like many men who are ardent fishermen, he gives every indication of being a man with wide horizons.

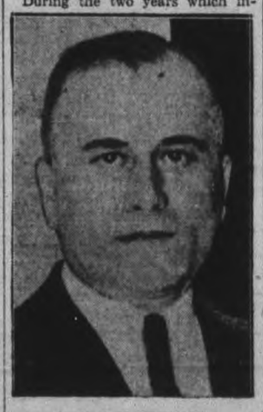
While his has been one of the less spectacular governmental departments, he has worked exceptionally hard at his task.

Although his home is in Edmundston, New Brunswick, he was not born born in the maritimes, but in Quebec. That was 52 years ago. Unlike the belief held by many, he is not of Arcadian French stock but rather French Canadian.

When he entered federal politics for the first time in 1933 he had behind him many years' successful experience in municipal and New Brunswick politics.

From 1921 to 1925 he was a minister without portfolio in the provincial cabinet. Then followed continuous years of public service until 1933 when he resigned from the legislature to contest a federal by-election in the riding of Restigouche-Madawaska. He was an easy winner. His victory foretold of the crushing Conservative defeat which came at the next general election, when again Mr. Michaud captured the seat for the Liberals.

During the two years which intervened from the time he first went to Ottawa until the general election Mr. Michaud was faithful in attendance and a ready speaker.



HON. J. E. MICHAUD

Most of the subjects upon which he spoke, however, were related to his home maritime provinces.

He is a lawyer, well set up physically, obviously keen and intelligent, ambitious and vigorous.

Of the many things that have pleased him since he entered public life, few have ranked higher than the action of the people of the Dominion in commencing to increase their fish diet by almost 10 pounds per capita, thereby enabling Canadian fishermen to make considerably more money.

Hastings Women Send Parcels To Aldershot

HASTINGS, Mar. 21 — (ENS).—At the monthly meeting of the Hastings branch of the Red Cross Society, it was revealed that seven parcels had been prepared and sent overseas to Hastings men of the C.A.S.F. at Aldershot. The parcels were made up in good time in order to ensure they reached their destination by Easter. They contained socks, wristlets, tobacco, cigarette papers, and home-made candy.

A motion picture showing the Royal visit of Their Majesties the King and Queen to Canada last summer will be shown in the Town Hall on the afternoon and evening of Friday, April 5, under the auspices of the Canadian Red Cross and the Hastings branch.

The Separate and Public School Boards of Hastings have offered grants of $5 and $10 respectively in return for which the pupils of these schools may attend the matinee free as guests of their Boards. Neighboring School Boards will be approached with a view to carrying out the same plan of admission for their children. Ten cents per child is the basis the grant would be governed by. Children would be charged 15 cents for the evening show and adults would pay 25 cents. A number of Red Cross members here have consented to sell advance tickets.

On a motion of J. V. Findly and seconded by Miss J. Lamb, a letter of sympathy will be sent the treasurer, W. H. Kumpf, at the death of his mother in Toronto this week.

"I'm Glad He Did"

Hon. James H. R. Cromwell was sent from United States to Ottawa as Minister to this country. He has not been here long but has already started to get about. He was in Toronto where he and his wife were cordially received, and there it was that Mr. Cromwell delivered an address.

The one thing which made his address somewhat different from some others which are being delivered just now was that Mr. Cromwell's address was a good one.

He comes from a country which is neutral in this war, and yet it was the war about which Mr. Cromwell spoke. He was certain it was vital to the freedom-loving world that the Allies should win. He couldn't see much worthwhile living left for the democracies of the world if there were any other outcome. He gave it to his audience straight, or it could be said he made his cookies plain and put them on a shelf within easy reach.

If there was any section of United States not fully aware that Mr. James H. R. Cromwell was their Minister to Canada they all know about it today. Members of Congress saw reports of the address and it seems to have got them by the ears. Both ears. They hasten to say that their country is neutral, and the Minister to Canada should reflect neutrality. They fear such an address is something which is going to pull their beloved country into the war. They know President Roosevelt has made some rather pointed addresses in which he could see no freedom and justice in the reign of the totalitarian leaders, but they could not close off their President. Therefore they would like to close off their Minister to Canada. They would have him recalled, but the trouble is the only person who can recall him is the President himself.

In the midst of all this noise there comes the voice of Senator Pepper to say:

"I doubt very much if he should have said it, but I'm glad he did. What everybody knows, even a diplomat might know."

But is this not the time for plain speaking and for telling the truth? Do all these United States Senators and Representatives believe that disaster would come upon them as penalty for plain speaking? Do they wish to become mutes in a world shaken with war because they might possibly tell Hitler and Stalin a couple of things they do not wish to hear?

James H. R. Cromwell said something which needed saying, and he gave it a forthright utterance unimpeded by lethary or apology. We don't know very much about Senator Pepper who up and said: "I doubt if he should have said it, but I'm glad he did," but we have the feeling he was voicing the feelings of some millions of people on both sides of the line.

No Change Made

There is a Japanese steamer named Asama Maru, and on January 21 a British war vessel stopped it and removed 21 German passengers. The British afterward graded them, and those who would not be useful for military service were allowed to go. The others were not.

Japan was indignant but the British decision was unchanged. And still is. It looks as though it were still a sore point in Tokyo because the Foreign Minister was questioned about it in Lower House of the Japanese Diet, and the Speaker gave his ruling that the Minister was not obliged to answer the question.

But they don't get away with that in Japan. Members of the Social Mass party went into action and proceeded to manhandle the Speaker. Then members of the party to which the Speaker belongs did the same thing, and the result was an excellent crop of blackened eyes.

Meantime the decision of the British to intern the able-bodied Germans taken from the Japanese liner remains just where it was—unchanged.

A Matter Of Business

The coming of the Bata Shoe Co. to Canada has been wheeled into the election campaign, and Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, had to deal with it in North Waterloo, where the claim had been made that the existing shoe factories would go out of business trying to compete with Bata.

Mr. Euler said there had been no assistance given to the Bata people to locate in Canada. His own belief had been there was enough shoe factories in the country, but if a man was ready to come to Canada and invest his own money and accept the risks there was no reason for trying to stop him.

We cannot see where this is a political matter at all. As far as the village of Frankford is concerned it has made quite a difference. Half that place used to be on relief, while now the people have something at which to work. If we cannot find employment for our people we should have no objection if others desire to come in and do what we have failed to accomplish.

Belonging To a Party

"We've had too much partyism in this country, and we will not progress until we are rid of it." There was much more of it of course but that was the general idea of something we were reading.

And with that general idea the Examiner cannot agree. There is a habit abroad which decries partyism, which would make it appear there was something wrong with it, and that all our troubles are rooted right there.

Being identified with a political party ought to be a good thing for an individual provided he belongs because he is convinced its policy is right, and not because he hopes to secure something for his own benefit.

Much better for a man to believe something than to believe nothing. In the same way it is better for the individual to be convinced that as far as he is concerned his own church is the right place for him, than to have that individual wandering about as though he had no place to go. A man belongs to a lodge and he does not apologize for his membership; he is convinced also that his own home is the best place in the community, and if he does not have such conviction there is something wrong with him or with his home.

The same thing holds true with an intelligent interest in politics. Politics in the last analysis should be regarded as the science of government, and we have no other way to apply that science apart from political action. An intelligent study of politics runs through such matters as: The scientific application of the principle of tariff or free trade; the best and fairest method of raising sufficient and necessary revenue without encountering such a definite and dangerous obstacle as the law of diminishing returns; the making of treaties with other nations of the world; the development of industry and the protection of consumers in the home market.

There is almost an endless chain of subjects allied to an intelligent study of political matters. No one needs to apologize because he or she has become interested and has decided to become identified with some particular party. We are far more in danger when people stand back and blast all politics and all politicians as being corrupt and self-servers and are content to let it go at that. In Britain a young man decides early in life on a political career and prepares for it, studies for it, and when he is ready for action he is fortified with an intelligent understanding. It is not merely a passing fancy, or something where he decides he "will take a crack at it." No—we cannot agree with those who spend their time denouncing political parties. If they're not good enough as they stand now, then the logical course is to go in and make them better.

She Is 95 And Blind

When a lady reaches the age of 95 it is not unusual to hear her referred to as "Grandma." That is the case with Mrs. "Grandma" Winger who lives near Glencoe, Ont.

Mrs. Winger is blind, and has been so for several years, but she goes places and does things. A photographer went out to get her picture for the paper, and was told to "make it snappy" because "Grandma" was just getting ready to go on her daily cutter ride. The horse knows the road well and it is a private one, so the daily trip is made and the horse returns to the starting point beside the house.

So far this winter she has completed seven pairs of socks, and she knows her politics. Yes, she is going to be up and around on Tuesday because she wants to go and mark her ballot paper. Some of our able-bodied people who find it too much to get out and vote might pay attention.

Too Much For a Night

There were advertisements in the Globe and Mail Wednesday morning telling of seven broadcasts on election matters that day. With one exception all were in the evening:

Senator Cairine Wilson, 10.15.
J. S. Woodsworth, 10.45.
H. R. Jackman, 9.45-55.
Hon. J. G. Gardiner, 4.15 p.m.
Major Bert Wemp, 10-10.15.
Syl Apps and Denton Massey, 8-8.30; 9.30-10.
Hon. Robert Manion, 9-9.30.

We have a feeling that some of those speakers would have been out of luck. There was too much of it. The "vast radio audience" of which much is heard in a general way, but of which so little is known as a positive fact, would have more than it could stand. In the evening hours there would be nine radio addresses and even for a pretty staunch party man that is too much.

Now and then one picks up a good address, and it is a pleasure to listen, but there is something about it which comes as a rather poor substitute for the good old political meeting or for the older form of the fast-disappearing political picnic. One cannot see the speaker shaking his fist or hear him whacking it upon the table. He cannot turn around and see who is attending the meeting, or turn around a couple of times and notice how the thing is going over.

There is a challenge in a good audience which makes a speaker do his best. He can tell by looking at the faces if he is starting to register or hold interest; he can judge by the extent to which they wiggle in their chairs if they are going to reach the point where he will have them spell-bound. Speaking into a mike is different. The speaker does not know how many are listening, although he can be well aware he will have to compete with all the other programs on the air at the same time, and he will also have to contend with all the interruptions at home when his speech is in progress. The radio isn't to be compared with the personal appearance, and speech reported in the press has more value than one spread out on the air.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Worry is nothing else than a form of fear.

Official in Washington says peace headlines just now are nothing but "empty hopefulness," and we believe he has correctly stated the case in few words.

British air bombers operated on a German air base for seven hours, and that is probably more to the point than the dropping of leaflets.

The belief is growing that Russia will join definitely with Germany. She might just as well do that as all her energies and resources have been already turned in that direction.

Canada geese returning from the South have started arriving at Jack Miner's sanctuary. He's a mighty good friend to them and in this weather they'll need one.

Hitler is irritated by reports that he is bent on starting a peace offensive. The trouble with that fellow is he seems able to pass on his irritation to the rest of the world.

Keeper of a store in Port Stanley has placed a sign in his premises reading "No Politics." Possibly his idea of business is that it is more profitable to take in money from Grits and Tories than to have talkative Grits driving the Tories away.

At a farm auction sale near St. Marys there was not one auto able to make the trip, the first time in 25 years such a thing has happened. But there was a fairly good crowd on hand. When there's a good auction sale going on in the country it takes more than snow banks to keep farmers away.

At 24 minutes after 1 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, March 20, Spring arrived. Right at that moment the sun crossed the Equator. You may need to urge your imagination a little to convince yourself it is actually Spring, but the Equator which the sun crossed is also an imaginary line.

HOPING

¶ There's so much warning going on now, it's hard to follow it somehow, I wish it were all through; each day brings yet a fresh supply, some little nation's doomed to die, and told what it must do.

¶ The Russians went and signed a pact, so little nations might be hacked, it seemed quite right to them; of course they knew they're big enough, to go ahead and do such stuff, it suited them just then.

¶ But when the little nations talk, of trying to join their soldier stock, defensive pact they say; the Russians holler they must quit, they won't stand for one speck of it, must put their pact away.

¶ And Berlin tells the Balkans too, of all the things they mustn't do, they threaten fairly straight; more warnings go out every day, how they will have to mend their way, a constant hymn of hate.

¶ I'm hoping how the day will come, when something better will be done. I'd see it in my time; when no one has to creep or crawl, when just because a nation's small, 'twon't constitute a crime.

Not Telling How Italy May Go In The Future

This is no time for "wishful thinking." No time for the comfortable delusion that Hitler went to the Brenner Pass to plead with Mussolini to get Germany a patched-up peace. Nothing on the surface indicates any such thing.

If we are clear-eyed and clear-headed, prepared to take our opinions from our facts, reasons the Ottawa Journal, our duty is to look boldly at the implications of a despatch which came over the cables from the American Associated Press. The A.P. correspondent in Berlin, Louis Lochner, has intimate connections with the Nazi heirachy, usually knows what he is writing about. Yesterday he cabled that an "excellently informed source" had informed him that Hitler and Mussolini had agreed—

"on the possible ultimate participation of Italy in the war on Germany's side if and when such a course should be deemed preferable to the present status of the Fascist Empire as 'not a neutral and yet not waging war'."

Meanwhile, Italy was—

1. To demonstrate to the Western Powers that she is Germany's ally economically, politically and ideologically.

2. To cease supplying munitions and implements of war to France.

3. To agree to take coal supplies from Germany by rail through the Brenner pass.

4. To consider an agreement under which Germany, Russia and Italy would weld themselves into a solid totalitarian bloc.

Now it may be that this, assuming it is true, represents nothing more than a gigantic piece of propaganda, with Mussolini aiding Hitler to compel Allied belief that the war can't be won, and that, consequently, they had better make peace. (The peace, of course, to leave Hitler in possession of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.)

But the world can't assume that. More vital, the Allies and the world cannot assume that Italy will remain neutral. There has been, many fear, too much of that sort of assumption on the Allied side. We had the assumption, for example, that Russia was in Poland because she feared Germany; that Stalin's hand-shake with Hitler over Poland's corpse was really help to the Allies. It was not until Stalin showed himself an out-and-out accomplice of Hitler, as monstrous towards the Baltic nations as Hitler had been towards Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, that we awoke from our foolish dream.

TODAY, no reason exists for belief that the Rome-Berlin axis exists no longer. No reason for confidence that Mussolini is not biding his time to march by the side of Hitler. It is pleasant, of course, to believe otherwise, permissible to hope otherwise. It isn't sensible to close our eyes to facts.

What are the facts?

First, Mussolini refuses to permit Italy's heavy industries to manufacture for Great Britain.

Second, Mussolini refuses offer of a coal supply from Great Britain.

Third, there have been constant comings and goings between Rome and Berlin.

Fourth, Mussolini, on the eve of expected tremendous events in the war, confers with Hitler for two and a half hours at the Brenner pass.

Do these things suggest that the Rome-Berlin axis has been broken? That Italy is veering towards the Allies? Or that there isn't likelihood of at least strong Italian economic assistance to Germany, if not outright war intervention?

It may be that Italy dislikes the possibility of any sort of a line-up that would bring her by the side of Russia. Yet, in the light of the history of the past six months, with ideologies being sunk without trace by the needs of dictators, with past professions giving way to practical bargaining for conquest and gain, what reason exists for believing that Mussolini, able and supreme optimist, would not be willing, if he thought it advantageous, to throw in his lot with Hitler and Stalin? To gamble dangerously?

About one thing, let there be no mistake. The fate of Finland has made a difference throughout Europe. It has terrified Scandinavia; has had its repercussions in the Balkans and the Near East; has heightened the confidence of Germany, Hitler, as reported, may well dream now of at least a loose, friendly alliance among Germany, Russia, Italy and Japan—a totalitarian front reaching round the world. He may reason that now is the moment to bring Mussolini by his side; to terrify the Balkans into helpful neutrality; if not into absolute aid; to have the spectre of a threatening Japan take care of possible intervention in Europe by the United States. Hitler, we must always remember, is gambling for desperate stakes, and, what is more, is of the megalomaniac character which gambles desperately.

What it all sums up to is this: That the situation in Europe has become graver than at any moment since this war began. Sir John Simon not long ago warned the British people to be prepared for sacrifices "more fearful than any we have ever faced." It may well be that the hour for those sacrifices is now near, with only a stupendous effort sufficient to endure and triumph over them.

One can but hope that we here in Canada realize the truth: that we get more deeply into our minds and souls that all we can give must be given, and quickly, if we are to play a right part in saving the freedom and civilization we enjoy and share.

THAT KINDLY FEELING

• Finland Cannot Eat Kind Words

THE FIGHTING in Finland is over and the spotlight shifts—perhaps to swing back soon, perhaps to light up some new scene of agony and heroism.

But the duty to her does not rest less lightly on American shoulders. If some of us feared a week ago that a too generous gesture might bring us too close to the fringe of war, we can be easy now.

There is no war in Finland. There are only cities and towns burned and shattered from the air, an experiment in destruction which is of interest to the German and Russian flight commands.

There are only women and children and old people, some driven from their homes by the advance of the Russian "proletariat," some bombed but some left in poverty because their men folk are wounded or dead.

There is only a shattered, impoverished nation, whose offense in the eyes of the great bullies of Europe was that it struggled to remain free.

Help has gone to Finland from many quarters. Sweden, herself perhaps next in the line of march, threatened by Russia and Germany alike, has aided magnificently.

We have helped a little. Now comes the opportunity to show that our sympathy was more than words, that our neutrality was not selfishness.

The Finns cannot eat words of praise, or clothe themselves in them or shelter themselves under them. They need what money will buy.

By responding generously to the appeals now being made for relief in Finland we can strengthen the confidence of a heroic people.

Perhaps we can even strengthen our confidence in ourselves as a nation which does not believe in war but does believe in the brotherhood of man.—New York Times.

R.A.F. SLANG

THE AIR FORCE vocabulary of slang evolved in the last war has gone into history. A new one is rapidly being invented and codified. No longer does the enterprising airman "win" a wanted article: he "organizes." When supplies have been arranged, those supplies have been "laid on." If an airman is "fed up" he is "browned off."

When something displeases, "a poor view" is taken of it. Something badly done is "a black." A job properly completed is "buttoned up," and the correct method of doing anything is "the right drill."

A few of the expressions from Royal Flying Corps days survive and have grown dignified with years. "Ace", "stick", "hedgehopping", "stall", "zoom", "ceiling", are no longer regarded as slang.

Some newer ones are "fan" for airscrew, formerly "the prop"; "station-master" for the commanding officer; and "spun-in" for a bad mistake. To "pancake" an aircraft is now to "crack down on the deck." This calls for "tearing of a strip", otherwise a reprimand.

Tell That to the Wife

"It's a funny thing," says a recruit, "but my razor gives me a better shave in the Army than it ever did in civilian life." Perhaps it's because the sergeant-major doesn't use it for cutting linoleum.

A Bit of Nonsense

Too Literal

"A cup of tea—weak," demanded the customer at the coffee stall. When served, he eyed the contents with such dismay that the stall keeper barked: "Well, what's up with it? You said weak, didn't you?"

"Weak, yes," said the customer, "but not helpless!"

No Hesitation

Retired Auctioneer: "And what can you give my daughter?"

Prospective Son-in-Law: "Five thousand dollars a year, a car and a house in the country."

Retired Auctioneer, enthusiastically: "Sold!"

Tact

Passenger in motor bus: "Is smoking permitted conductor?"

Conductor: "No."

Passenger: "Well, where did all these cigarette ends come from?"

Conductor: "From people who didn't ask questions!"

Slightly Deaf

"When I was introduced to your wife the other day, I was sorry to discover that she is rather deaf."

"Rather deaf? Do you know, old boy, we once lived close to a gasworks, and one night a huge gasometer exploded!"

"Good gracious! I'll bet your wife heard that!"

"Yes, she did. She turned over restlessly in bed and grunted anxiously: 'John, you'll have to get something for that cough!'"

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.—James 1, 2-4.

Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XXV

Indifferently, she scanned the headlines, read a few society notes about people strange to her, turned to her favorite motion-picture columnist's breezy notes. Famous stars getting married, divorced, signing new contracts, travelling— leading exciting lives.

A familiar name abruptly leaped out at her. The beautiful Jilly Morse," she read," has a new admirer. Rock Conover is trailing her everywhere, even to New York where she is vacationing. Rock is handsome enough to be an interesting foil for the capricious Jilly, and New York night spots will see a lot of them."

The page turned black before Janis' tortured gaze, the paper slid from her shaking hands to the floor. She was dizzy, ill. Her head dropped to the table and she sank into deep oblivion.

Stephen Black entered the house just then with his two dinner guests, Roul and Doe Smith. Mary was hurrying down the stairs to greet them. They all met in the lower hall and Mastin took their wraps.

Stephen's Discovery

"Excuse me, I'll go up and change," said Stephen, and began mounting the stairs, his eyes sweeping through the archway to the right leading into the drawing room where Janis might be waiting. But evidently she was not down yet. He tried to throw off the absurd wave of disappointment that shot through him. From the stair landing he glanced back into the library, pulled up short. An expanse of billowing blue skirt lay across the chair by the table. He took a backward step to drink in unobserved the loveliness of the girl wearing the skirt before he must meet it head on.

He exclaimed in alarm. "Good heaven! and took the steps down, two at a time.

Mary exclaimed: "What is it, Stephen?" but received no reply from her tight-lipped brother dashing past her into the library.

He gently lifted Janis' head, saw her closed eyes, her chalklike countenance and lost his habitual professional poise. "My dear—my poor dear," he whispered frantically, and gathered her up in his arms.

DR. BLACK shoved by Mary, Doe and Roul with his burden, saying: "She's fainted. Come, Mary."

"Yes, yes, Stephen," chopped out the concerned Mary. She turned to Mastin: "Bring up Dr. Black's bag." Then to her guests: "Will you please make yourselves comfortable in the drawing room?"

"Of course, darling. I'm awfully sorry," drawled Doe Smith.

She tugged at the sleeve of her stupefied brother. "Come along Roul. We can't do anything."

He blinked at his pretty blonde sister in black tulle, as if barely conscious of her presence, stared at the white orchid n her hair.

"That girl — she was actually beautiful," he got out, and followed Doe into the drawing room.

Doe shrugged, puckered her brow. "If you like that type—yes. Not such a good specimen for Stephen to have under foot, if you ask me."

New Man on Scene

Roul's thin black moustache curled, his small brown eyes snapped, as Doe slumped sullenly into a corner of a divan. He got out his cigarette case, stood before her contemplatively. Gad! You women are catty creatures, aren't you? But listen—I might give old Steve a race on that cute little trick—so be yourself."

Doe looked up at him quickly. "Oh, would you, Roul? You're a perfect peach!"

Up in Janis' bedroom a far different scene was being enacted. Janis lay on the bed with Stephen sitting on its edge, feeling her pulse.

Her eyelids suddenly lifted. "Where —where am I?" she asked half-frightened.

Stephen gave Mary a nod of dismissal and said: "Don't hold dinner for me—I'll come in for desert."

Mary understood. She quickly left the room, hearing through the swishing of her flowered silk gown, Stephen's murmured assurance to the pathetically lovely girl so near him. It started a grave train of thought in Mary's mind.

She had allowed Stephen to convince her that bringing Janis into their home was the decent, charitable thing to do. But were there breakers ahead? Already she could see that Stephen was seething with a happiness slashed with misery. Some love was like that, she knew. But a love that must go on and on without fulfilment was often the driving power for good or evil in a person's whole life, specially one far beyond the adolescent stage. Stephen was 31 now, and if this girl was what he had been waiting for, was it to be a calamity or a blessing?

"You're all right now, Mrs. Conover—we're taking care of you," he told her, trying to be casual.

With the return of memory came a glint of pain in her eyes. "Yes—I know. I must have fainted But now—with you here—I feel so—so safe."

In His Arms

His quick intake of breath was registered in a slight convulsive twitch of his hand on her wrist, but she was too absorbed in her own misery to notice. Jilly Morse and Rock together in New York! Rock entirely unconcerned about the wonderful news his wife had blurted out to him! Everything all mixed up and horrid. What a thorny path Uncle Charlie's inheritance had opened for his silly little inexperienced niece! What a mess she had made of things!

"You must rest—worry over nothing. Mary and I are looking after you."

Stephen Black's high-pitched, soothing voice did something unaccountable to Janis again, made her long to lay her head on his shoulder and bust out crying.

Her eyes, luminous and big and blue, lifted to him imploringly. She stammered: "Oh—I'm trying—trying to live down such a—a mistake. Even knowing I made it myself—doesn't make it—any easier. But it should, I suppose."

The ragged edge of desperation in her voice made him stiffen. He saw her quivering lips, the utter desolation registered on her white face, and could contain himself no longer. He caught her to him swiftly and her arms encircled his neck in an agony of despair.

She was sobbing now against his shoulder, as she had wanted to do so many times before.

"There, there, darling," he comforted, and allowed her grief for another man's dastardly conduct to spend itself close to the aching loneliness in his heart.

In a few minutes her sobs subsided and she drew away, a little ashamed, wiped her eyes on the clean piece of linen he took from his pocket.

"I—I don't know what made me act so—so foolish," she said, contritely.

"Foolish? You only relieved your pent-up tension. You'll feel better now."

He rose, said almost gruffly: "I'll ring for Dora. She'll get you into bed. You'll be better in the morning."

"Yes—thank you," came from her strangely weak.

She watched his tall straight figure go quickly from the room and was slightly perturbed.

Then she flung this aside, closed her eyes in heavenly abandon. She thought: "I wonder if he's ever been in love. He's the sort of a man any woman would instinctively trust —even I could."

Seaside Visit

After a few days of complete relaxation and of being solicitously waited upon by Mary's staff of well-trained servants, and even by Mary herself, Janis was up and around and feeling quite fit to begin her secretarial duties.

Compared to what she had been expected to do in Boardman West's office her work here at Bridgecliff seemed a sinecure. Janis felt that Mary and Dr. Black were unduly watchful of her, but no matter how earnestly she assured them that she was not overdoing, they insisted upon managing her diet, her exercise and her office hours. And when the first weekly batch of mail came from the studio, Mary sent for Grace Bowling, who had often assisted her former secretary.

Then she took Janis away from it all in the big limousine, with Jessup driving. They lunched at the Del Mar Club by the sea and spent the afternoon conversing quietly in the wide-windowed lounge and watching giant waves throw whitecaps into shore with the ease of mammoths shaking their manes. It was too early in the season for many club habitues to be about, and Mary and Janis nearly had the place to themselves.

Janis filled her lungs with the brisk salt air coming through the open window, her eyes shining with the romantic lure the place inspired. Boats flung white sails arrogantly into golden sunshine, chromium and brass glistened on palatial yachts, fishing schooners stood farther out against the horizon that might well be the world's enticing edge.

Late in the afternoon Janis and Mary reluctantly left all this and went on the porch to wait for Jes-

Shall I Vote for

KING OR MANION?

There is only one decision to be made by the Canadian people on March 26th. It is this:

Shall our country's war effort be handed over to unknown, unnamed politicians . . . to a makeshift cabinet with Dr. Manion as the self-appointed leader?

OR: Shall our country's war effort be continued vigorously and faithfully by the known and proven administration of Mackenzie King?

That is the question YOU must answer.

Up a Blind Alley?—or—Out in the Open!

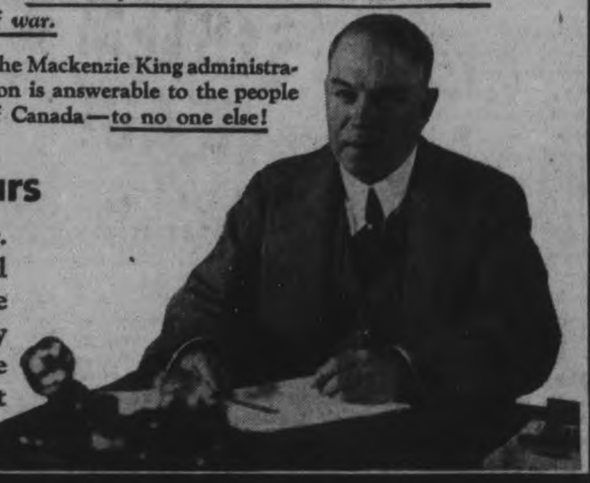
It is time for plain speaking. Dr. Manion's pretence of offering "national" government is sheer political deceit. Because: even if he were elected to office, Dr. Manion could not organize or lead a truly national government. The parliamentary group which might follow him would fail to represent all Canada. It would not represent the people of the national Liberal party. It would not represent the people of the C.C.F. party. It would not represent the people of the historic Conservative party which Dr. Manion has now scuttled.

Do not be deceived! Dr. Manion cannot give you National Government. The best he might give you would be government by unknown followers. He invites you to follow him up a blind alley—to vote for a government of his own imagination—answerable to some undisclosed political group.

Mackenzie King offers you something entirely in the open . . . the most truly National government Canada has ever known. His parliamentary followers represent the people of every province in Canada—every section of our country—every economic, social and racial group. There is not an area of this country . . . not a single classification of our people . . . without proper representation in the Mackenzie King following.

Mackenzie King's cabinet ministers are well-known to you. They are broadly experienced men—eager and able to continue the sort of administration which brought progress to Canada in times of peace and national pride to Canadians since the outbreak of war.

The Mackenzie King administration is answerable to the people of Canada—to no one else!



The Responsibility is Now Yours

Canada is facing the greatest crisis in her history. It is YOUR responsibility to say how she is to deal with this crisis. Therefore: when you go to the polls on March 26th you should consider only what is best for Canada—what is best for the Empire and our allies—what is the sure, direct road to Victory and Peace.

FORWARD WITH
MACKENZIE KING

It was too early in the season for many club habitues to be about, and Mary and Janis nearly had the place to themselves.

Janis filled her lungs with the brisk salt air coming through the open window, her eyes shining with the romantic lure the place inspired. Boats flung white sails arrogantly into golden sunshine, chromium and brass glistened on palatial yachts, fishing schooners stood farther out against the horizon that might well be the world's enticing edge.

Late in the afternoon Janis and Mary reluctantly left all this and went on the porch to wait for Jes-

Shall I Vote for

KING OR MANION?

There is only one decision to be made by the Canadian people on March 26th. It is this:

Shall our country's war effort be handed over to unknown, unnamed politicians . . . to a makeshift cabinet with Dr. Manion as the self-appointed leader?

OR: Shall our country's war effort be continued vigorously and faithfully by the known and proven administration of Mackenzie King?

That is the question YOU must answer.

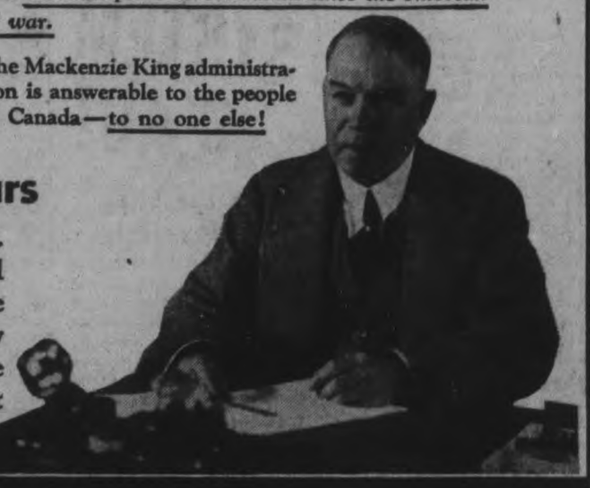
It is time for plain speaking. Dr. Manion's pretence of offering "national" government is sheer political deceit. Because: even if he were elected to office, Dr. Manion could not organize or lead a truly national government. The parliamentary group which might follow him would fail to represent all Canada. It would not represent the people of the national Liberal party. It would not represent the people of the C.C.F. party. It would not represent the people of the historic Conservative party which Dr. Manion has now scuttled.

Do not be deceived! Dr. Manion cannot give you National Government. The best he might give you would be government by unknown followers. He invites you to follow him up a blind alley—to vote for a government of his own imagination—answerable to some undisclosed political group.

Mackenzie King offers you something entirely in the open . . . the most truly National government Canada has ever known. His parliamentary followers represent the people of every province in Canada—every section of our country—every economic, social and racial group. There is not an area of this country . . . not a single classification of our people . . . without proper representation in the Mackenzie King following.

Mackenzie King's cabinet ministers are well-known to you. They are broadly experienced men—eager and able to continue the sort of administration which brought progress to Canada in times of peace and national pride to Canadians since the outbreak of war.

The Mackenzie King administration is answerable to the people of Canada—to no one else!



The Responsibility is Now Yours

Canada is facing the greatest crisis in her history. It is YOUR responsibility to say how she is to deal with this crisis. Therefore: when you go to the polls on March 26th you should consider only what is best for Canada—what is best for the Empire and our allies—what is the sure, direct road to Victory and Peace.

FORWARD WITH MACKENZIE KING

MILLBROOK

Young Couple Honored By Two Choirs

MILLBROOK, Mar. 21—(ENS).—The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thompson was the scene of a happy gathering on Friday evening, when over twenty-five members of the choirs of Grace Presbyterian church, Millbrook, and of Centreville Presbyterian church, met to do honor to a bride and groom of recent date, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Muspratt. Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Muspratt was Grace Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson, of Centreville, and organist of the two churches mentioned.

Joseph Burns acted as chairman for the program, which opened with community singing, after which a number of contests and games were enjoyed, the hostess having in mind the proximity of St. Patrick's Day in her choice of these items, and in the decorations of the home for the occasion.

Kitchen Shower

Midway in the evening, the guests of honor were centrally seated, and made the recipients of a kitchen shower, the daintily-trimmed wagon laden with the gifts, being drawn in by Master Donald Thompson, the young son of the home, and the address read by Colleen Blair. The opening of the parcels was a pleasant task, in which the groom assisted, the resulting array of articles of household use, particularly for the kitchen, with a predominating color scheme of cream and red, bringing warm words of thanks from both Mr. and Mrs. Muspratt.

Brief addresses were made by Rev. A. Raeburn-Gibson, S. E. Eakins, the chairman, and others, and dainty refreshments were served, the host and hostess being warmly thanked for their hospitality before the guests left for home.

Horticulturalists Meet

The officers and directors of the local Horticultural Society met on Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. G. F. Harrington for a business session, the president, Miss Josie Sutton, taking the chair.

Discussion centred round the visit of Dick the Gardner, who will be in Millbrook for a public meeting on Friday, March 29, when his talk will be illustrated with slides, and door and other prizes will be given. The matter of premiums for the current season also received attention, those decided upon being a Japanese Quince (Cydonia Japonica) and a yellow rose, named Souvenir de Cladius Pernet, these to be purchased from the John Common Nurseries at Waterford.

This year the annual district flower show is to be at Millbrook on August 7, and the following committee wa sappointed to see about all the necessary details: P. I. Bentley, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, H. A. Kerr, Miss Sutton and Miss M. E. Needham.

On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs Clifford Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Allen were hosts and hostesses for a progressive euchre party, at the former's home at Carmel, in aid of Red Cross funds.

The ladies' first prize went to Wilma Armstrong, and the gentlemen's to George Olan. The lucky chair prize was won by Miss Kathleen Olan, the pleasant evening, for which seven tables were in use for play, was brought to a close with the service of a dainty supper.

Institute Dance

The dance, held in the town hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of the local branch of the Women's Institute, was highly successful from every standpoint, except the financial, the unfavorable weather and roads lessening the attendance, as well as other intervening events in the village.

Music was supplied by Galloway's orchestra, of Bethany, and the president, Mrs. E. C. Richards, the district secretary, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong and other officers and members extended to all incoming guests a hearty welcome.

Lunch was served about midnight, and further dancing enjoyed before final dispersal, the proceeds amounting to $23. When expenses are paid the W.I. will have a small margin.

The president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, was hostess for the March meeting of the W.A. of St. Thomas' church, held at her home on Monday at 8 p.m., with interesting reports from the officers, including of the Dorcas secertary, Mrs H. J. Russell, who gave information showing articles for the annual bale almost completed; the bale is shipped early in April.

The president reported the allotment, included in the appeal for western funds, laid on the entire parish, as having been fully met, and in place of the usual chapter from the study book, a letter from Miss Lucas, Diocesan Dorcas secretary, covering her visit to the various Indian mission schools, and dealing with the needs of each, was read by Mrs. Westmacott. The appointment of a delegate to the annual W.A. convention in Toronto on April 29, was left over until the next meeting, and discussion centred around the general claims of the local work, before the National Anthem and the benediction.

Mrs. T. G. Harkness was the supper hostess during the pleasant social hour at the close.

Friends, locally, of Rev. Harold Anderson, B.A., of Smooth Rock Falls, Northern Ontario, and formerly of the Millbrook Continuation School Staff, whose marriage to Miss Dorothy Wood of New Hamburg, took place last summer, will regret to learn that his wife's only brother, Dr. William Clifford Wood, died suddenly in London, England, last week. Further details of Dr. Wood's death are not as yet available.

Miss Mary Burnham returned home on Sunday after spending last week in Toronto, the guest of her cousin, Miss Margaret McConnell, and attending the skating carnival and "Gone with the Wind." Miss Jean Burnham is spending the Easter vacation in Toronto.

Easter Matches Scarce In Motherland

LONDON, March 21.—(CP Cable).—United Kingdom soccer fans will miss the usual big Easter holiday program this year. Good Friday and Easter games have been practically eliminated except for London and Southern English clubs playing in South "C" and South "D" regional groups.

A full round of matches is scheduled for Saturday and the card in Scotland will prove especially attractive with third round contests for the Wartime Cup. Paisley will provide the venue for the big match of the round, St. Mirren meeting Rangers who reached the third round by edging out Falkirk after two hard games.

Heart of Midlothian travel to Airdie in another cup tilt and Motherwell clash with Clyde at Fir Park. In the remaining encounter, the second division Dundee United squad, supported by a home crowd, may spring a surprise on Kilmarnock.

London crowds will have plenty of entertainment with clubs playing three games in four days. Tottenham Hotspurs, pacemakers in South "C" are hosts to Millwall tomorrow and play a return match at Newcross East Monday. The Spurs are due at Fulham Saturday.

Arsenal has home games against Chelsea and Charlton Athletic Saturday and Monday. To-morrow, the Gunners, out of the contention, temporarily at least, are away to the Athletic.

With the exception of South "D", where Watford and Crystal Palace are battling on even terms, clear margins have been established by leading teams in all groups, but in several cases only a point or two separates contending clubs.

Stoke City, out in front with a scant one-point advantage in the West section, should have little difficulty at Chester, and Huddersfield Town, similarly placed in the North-east, meet Halifax Town, victorious in only two games so far in the campaign.

In the Northwest, Bury, with 23 points, has streached its lead over Preston North End to two points. The Lancashire leaders go north to Carlisle Saturday. Wolverhampton Wanderers, sparked by Douglas McMahon of Winnipeg, are likely winners of the Midland championship. The famous Wolves will have to fight hard to take maximum points from Northampton.

Sydney Trounces Volants 6-2,

Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, who may be about to turn in one of the major upsets of the amateur hockey season, loomed today as a barrier in the path leading to another meeting between Montreal Royals and Toronto Goodyears in the Eastern Canada finals.

Beaten in straight games by the Goodyears in the senior Allan Cup playdowns last spring, the Blue Devils were rated second best for this season's series but they stepped into the Toronto team last night and emerged from the first game of the all-Ontario final with a 4-3 victory.

It was only one game in a best-of-five series, but the Northern Ontario champions showed the stuff of which they are made, not only by beating the Goodyears on Toronto ice, but by rallying for three goals in the last period after trailing 3-1 at the end of the second.

Winner of the series will likely go up against Sydney Millionaires for the right to play Quebec's champions in the Eastern final.

Millionaires Win Again

The Millionaires, playing at home, drubbed Hull Volants 6-2 last night for their second straight victory in a best-of-five series. The remaining games will be played at Ottawa but Volants aren't given much of a chance of beating the high-powered Maritimers.

Meantime, the Royals took another step toward retaining their Eastern Canadian crown by beating Verdun Maple Leafs 4-1 in the second game of a best-of-five Quebec senior league final.

Royals took the first game 1-0 and another victory will send them into the Quebec final against Sherbrooke Red Raiders, Lachine Rapides or Joliette Cyclones. The Raiders, who can end their provincial senior league playoff with Lachine tonight, likely will be the Montreal team's opposition.

In the junior playdowns, leading to the Memorial Cup, the Maritimes' representatives, Charlottetown Royals, meet Perth Blue Wings at Ottawa tonight with a loss for the Royals ending their playoff chances. Perth won the first game of the best-of-three series 7-2.

Jimmy McKenna Suspects His Luck Fading

MONTREAL, March 21 (CP)—The fabled luck of the Irish has run out for trainer Jimmy McKenna, who has spent 16 of his 35 years in the business tending to the aches and pains of Montreal's National Hockey League Canadiens.

"I could feel it fading last year when we ended up sixth and then got put out of the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs," said the portly trainer today, as he packed away equipment in five black trunks. "This is the first season in all the years I've been with Canadiens that we've been out of the playoffs. It's the first time my luck has ever let me down. "55 bright red blankets, shoulder pads and sweaters tumbled into a trunk as McKenna declared..."up till now I've been lucky. I started with Canadiens when they were first organized in 1910. They've been out of the playoffs before this, of course, but never when I was with them I always missed the times that they were eliminated from the Stanley Cup round."

Fresh in McKenna's mind are storie sof Habitant great sof another era—like Didier Pitre, Jack Laviolette, Newsy Lalande and stars of recent times such as Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Sylvio Mantha and George Hainsworth.

Two Quiet Greats

"I'd say that Morenz and Hainsworth were about the two players who caused me the least trouble in all the time I've been with the club," said McKenna. "Of course a lot of the others were easy to handle but Howie and Hainsworth were the tops."

To McKenna's way of thinking Morenz "was the daddy of them all" as far as hockey playing greats are concerned. But Jimmy has a new angle on the greatness of the late Morenz.

"Naturally I look upon Howie as the greatest of all players," he said reverently. "But my opinion is based also on the fact that he never crabbed, and that he was easy for a trainer to handle. It's hard to believe just how little trouble he'd cause you."

As the oldest trainer in point of service in the league, Jimmy can afford a disdainful sniff at those "rookies" with the other clubs. Of all the tricks of the trade that he has learned he is the proudest of a "gadget" for fixing up players with a cartilage out of place.

"I'm the only trainer in the league who can fix up a player with a misplaced cartilage," McKenna declared proudly. "Generally, players have to let time be the healer or submit to an operation. I can get them out there fit as a fiddle."

"Y" Junior Swim Won By R. Rogow

For the third club night in a row, Ralph Rogow swam nicely to win the Y.M.C.A. junior swim club weekly handicap swim and to take the lead for the month of March in the point standing with a total of 13. Jim Brown and Donald Pinch, who were second and third in last night's race, are also following Rogow in points with 10 and 7 respectively.

In the 160-yard free style relay which followed, the team of Pinch, Campbell, A. Brown and Rogow won by a touch, while the decision was reversed in the medley relay with the race going to Wallace, Young, Marshall and J. Brown.

To finish the club workout under the direction of Gord Minty, the team led by Ralph Rogow edged out a slim margin to win a game of water mushball, by the score of 3 to 2.

Results of the handicap race follows:

1st heat—1 D. Pinch; 2 R. Rogow; 3 A. Brown.

2nd heat—1 J. Brown; 2 B. Campbell; 3 W. Marshal land G. Wallace.

Wages Go Up

LONDON, Mar. 21 — (CP), — British miners won an additional war wage increase of fourpence (about seven cents) per shift to-day in recognition of higher living costs. Their wages have been raised now one shilling and fivepence (about 29 cents) since the start of the war, and will be reviewed again in June.

CURLING
By HERB MARTIN

Now that winter has arrived we might be able to get in a little curling—just by way of a change.

It was the Irish by six points, but those Scotchman hung on and went down with the flag flying.

The president set off a good example for the "clan" but Billy Widdess was his only follower.

If any one can imagine Cyril Giroux playing for either Irish or Scotch, we can't, but he did just by way of identification. Bob Hendry had a little Scotch emblem pinned on his sweater.

Another humorous situation was Ray Bacon playing for the Scotch and Wallace Harvey playing for the Irish.

Big Tim did his best for the Scotch but Dr. Green had his Irish with him and finished hung on up.

No matter how you look at it, it was a grand evening and now, boys, be out on time tomorrow morning. Remember this 'spiel is all for the Red Cross Society. The first draw is at 9 a.m.

We have a real sheet of ice own here today. All newly flooded and pebbled. It should be a good day's curling.

Quaker Aces Win Over Grads By A 36-7 Score

Quaker Aces, currently engaged in Ladies' Senior City League playoffs, won a fast exhibition game from Port Hope Grads 36-7 at the Y.M.C.A. before a good crowd Wednesday night. The Aces played fine offensive basketball and took advantage of the visitors' miscues, to lead at all times and win handily. They led, 14-2 at the half and had little trouble keeping the visitors in check. Port Hope scoring but three field goals in the total 60 minutes. Aces passed well and took fair advantage of their scoring chances to keep well out in front. Port Hope tried hard at all times and had a fair percentage of the play but didn't shoot to advantage when in scoring position. P. Lawless, D. Weese and H. Rutter led the winners in scoring as well as defensively with N. Jamieson and M. Douglas outstanding for the visitors.

Acs missed their lone free throw with the Grads making but one of their seven chances from the free throw line. The teams:

Quaker Aces (36): P. Lawless 10, D. Weese 12, S. Alexander 4, H. Rutter 8, V. Wood, E. Kirn, M. Hooton, A Grady 2, M. Duncan, J. Fowler.

Port Hope Grads 7: L. Hosking 2, N. Jamieson 3, N. Robertson, D. Brooks 2, H. Ferguson, H. Watson, M Douglas, W Harford

CAMP BRIEFS
By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 21. —(AP).—To fortify their catching department since Joe Glenn has extended his holdout St. Louis Browns have signed George Susce, who was released unconditionally by Pittsburg Pirates.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — Pitching woes have beset Manager Gabby Hartnett of Chicago Cubs again. Clay Bryant, who pitched only 31 innings last year but was believed recovered from his lame arm, complained yesterday of a new soreness Vance Page also showed up with a sore arm and asked to be excused from to-day's assignment against Pittsburg

FORT MYERS, Fla—A sensational relief hurler in 1938 and a complete flop in 1939, Johnny Humphries to-day declared himself a candidate for regular mound assignments with Cleveland Indians this season

In seven innings of exhibition game twirling Humphries has allowed four hits, two bases on balls and has not been scored upon

SARASOTA, Fla—Dom DiMaggio is likely to be the only freshman wearing a Boston Red Sox uniform this season. Manager Joe Cronin, after looking over his rookies thoroughly, already has decided which ones will be included in the first squad cut this week for the Durham and Rocky Mount farms Most of the rookie survivors probably will wind up with Louisville or Little Rock next week.

Blue Devils Nab Opener 4-3 On Goodyears

TORONTO, March 21 — (CP). — Those very crowding tactics Toronto Goodyears used to good effect this season have been adopted by Kirkland Lake which is one reason why the Blue Devils beat the Rubbermen in the opening game of the best-of-five series for the Ontario Senior Hockey Championship. The score was 4-3.

Goodyears fore-checked without a let-up as they forged a 3-1 lead in the first two periods of last night's game before 5,996 fans. Blue Devils did the same with four forwards, and sometimes five, throughout the third period to score three goals and a victory.

The second game is scheduled for Saturday at Toronto.

Goodyears' goalie, Herbie Mortimer, suffered a cut eye in the third period and that apparently was the break that decided the game. The game was halted while Mortimer had his eye stitched and the time out gave the Blue Devils a chance to rest. Instead of cooling out they came back to rap in the tying and winning goals, John McCreedy scoring the deciding tally with 36 seconds left to play.

Eddie King punched in two Toronto tallies, while Bert Turney got the third. Dick Kowchiak with two and Blink Bellinger with one were Blue Devil's other scorers.

National Government Is The Only Way

"We owe a duty to ourselves. A duty to the cause of justice and liberty. A duty to the Empire which is their symbol. A duty to Britain which never failed us yet. We shall best perform that duty through the establishment of National Government. It is the only way–

—DR. HERBERT BRUCE

Former Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and National Government Candidate in Parkdale, Toronto.

Thus a great Canadian who is in politics for the first time in his life because he realizes the seriousness of the peril that confronts this country lifts high the torch to guide his fellow Canadians in this all-important election. National Government IS the only way.

From the King administration there is nothing to hope for but a continuation of a party machine led by a Prime Minister who puts party considerations above everything else, even above a maximum war effort.

King has failed miserably, failed lamentably. Not only has he scuttled Parliament but he has scuttled his own promises of the last election, scuttled unemployment insurance, scuttled the best benefits of the Empire trade pacts, and, scuttled the original Empire air training scheme.

His whole career shows the folly of depending upon such a man as the leader of a nation at war. There is no place in Canada's war effort for the vacillation and sidestepping, the compromising and the trimming, the weighing of political consequences that have marked Mr. King's public life from start to finish. Canada wants action, not inertia; Canada wants a whole-hearted participation in the war against Hitlerism, not a slender, feeble effort. Canada wants a fighter, not a shadow boxer to lead her in this hour of national peril. National Government IS the only way.

Fighting Bob Manion, great soldier, great statesman, great Canadian who realizes the danger that confronts us and appreciates the need of throwing the whole resources of Canada into the struggle offers the electors that one way and Canadians everywhere, unless all signs fail, will next Tuesday pin their faith on Manion and National Government.

Here in West Peterborough the voters have long since decided that KING MUST GO and they are determined to ignore everything else on March 26 but the one clear fact that their choice lies between voting for Canada or for five more years of King party government. That is why their support is going to

Minute Silence

The retiring president—after calling for a one-minute silence in honor of the late John De Gruchy, former president of the O.R.F.U.—made the opening address. Mr. Cranfield thanked all who had contributed to the club's success last year and said he believed the team should enjoy a big season in 1940, with conditions much better here and early practices planned, as well as some new players likely for the club and the added experience of another year. He predicted early exhibition games and suggested the Petes try to get into the pre-season Toronto city grid series. The speaker wound up by saying the club should not only be a contender this year but a possible champion. He stated he would retire from an active post but continue to help.

Following a report by Secretary Vic Hamilton, the managerial report—Walter Jackson was unable to attend—and the statement of Treasurer C. B. Neal (where the club was shown to have a small deficit) were read. Curly Krug took the chair for the election of officers. The suggestions of the nominating committee were followed, with the addition of two men.

President Speaks

Father Lynch then spoke briefly. He said he was struck by the anticipation of the local club, facing another season, and added that this was an excellent sign—that sports should not be forgotten in war time, since they were very necessary. And he strongly advised encouragement of the minor series in football, and felt that Peterborough might yet have a man on the O.R.F.U. executive. The president prophesied that the Ontario Union would double its club entries in 1940 and that it would be a great football year for this Union. After advising service clubs here to sponsor minor teams, he concluded by saying that sports were really a work of God, and also most patriotic, since wherever playgrounds are found in the city of Toronto, records prove that there juvenile delinquency is absent." He drew a big hand.

Football Head

HUGH CAMPBELL

Hugh Campbell (above) was elected last night as president of the local senior football club for the 1940 O.R.F.U. season.

Secretary H. Bailey commended the local club on its rapid progress in senior football. He said that the second of the Petes' three-year plan (last fall) showed a big improvement, and that the local squad should be a real contender in another year. He congratulated the coach and said the Orfuns "were a most picturesque club," but they needed several more star players to show their best. He added that the locals might get in the Toronto pre-season series if they applied early.

From The Coach

Coach Bamforth spoke for a few minutes, pointing out that the substitute players—who sit out a big part of the game on the bench—are just as valuable to the team on the field as those who are making spectacular plays and drawing the applause and publicity. Don Crowe, on behalf of the players, moved a vote of thanks to the retiring executive for its work during the past year.

Just before the conclusion, Secretary Bailey was asked if the O.R.F.U. anticipated any curtailment of activity in its senior series because of the Interprovincial Union's ambition to operate a six-club senior loop. He said positively that Peterborough had nothing to fear, that this club would be back in the senior O.R.F.U. this year and that the Union would again be a four-club series. He was backed on this definite statement by the O.R.F.U. president

By CEC. PERDUE

A new athletic club has been organized at the Y.M.C.A. for those interested in body-building apd weight-lifting. This group has been working out recently under the instruction and leadership of Ira Dundas, who has a fine record here as an all-around athlete. Class nights for workouts are Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and anyone interested may get in touch with Cliff McInroy, Jim Hardy or Stan McBride. Further details can be learned from these chaps. The organization meeting was held the other eve with officers elected as follows: President, Cliff McInroy; secretary, Stan McBride; treasurer, Jim Hardy.

A local gent—he might not want his name published yet—is thinking seriously of operating a junior baseball club in Peter's borough this year. Obtaining a complete outfit from a defunct Central Ontario centre and picking his playing material from the juvenile squads which competed in a lively young loop last summer in the Exhibition Grounds. The idea would be to get the junior Petes in a Lakeshore League with such places as Port Hope, Cobourg and Bowmanville. We hope it goes over as the senior Petes will certainly be in the market for fresh replacements within a few more ball seasons—as they are now, in fact.

Don't Forget Them

While the players, coach and managers of the Petes' puck crew have been getting most of the publicity, and rightly so, one should not forget that the executive officers do their share, too, in committee-room work. So it might be well once in awhile to recall the slate of officers this year. They are: Preisdent, R. M. Glover; first vice-prexy, Wes Champ; second vice-president, Bill Jackson; recording secretary, Tom Miller; financial secretary, Cliff Cadd; treasurer, Max Glover; executive committee, Fred Scates, Ken Kingston, Ed Riley, with two players, Eddie Starr and Bun Kingdon.

All Saints' parish hall will be the scene of the annual Church Hockey League banquet on Thursday, April 4th. Members of the four winning teams and managers of the four losing finalists will be on deck, with officers and guests. Crests will be presented the victors, and the Ministerial Assoc. Trophy goes to one of the players, there being 13 names submitted for decision by the C.H.L. executive and a committee of the Ministerial Association. Champion clubs were Murray St. Seniors, Mark St. Juniors, All Saints Juveniles and All Saints Bantams; the runners-up were All Saints Seniors, Park St. Juniors, Trinity Juveniles and Trinity Bantams. It was a fine season for this circuit.

The Grid Ossifers

Coming out of a grid huddle at the Empress Hotel last e'en, the good-sized gatherng at the annual Peterborough senior football club meeting named these officers for 1940: Hon. Pres., Mayor Hamilton, H. A. Cranfield, Lou Brooks; hon. vice-prexies, J. J. Duffus, Alex Elliott, Gordon Fraser, Rolle Glover; president, Hugh Campbell; first vice-president, Wes Champ; second vice-prexy, George A. Macdonald; secretary, Vic Hamilton; treasurer, Cliff Cadd; executive committee, Clarence Neal, Vern Dawson, Bill Kay, Gordon Matthews, Ross Dobbin, Robert MacMorran, Don Crowe, Haig Kelly, Harry Marsh and Leo Deadey. And that sounds like an okay setup.

* * * * * *

Ott Cranfield announced his retirement as president of the club after two years in that office—during which time he did much of the senior spadework and did it well. But he will continue to aid actively and hold down an honorary office. In Hugh Campbell, the club has obtained another real worker and a leader who will keep all his executive hustling. The gang already are planning on spring training, early practices in the fall, several exhibition games, possible entry in the pre-season Toronto series (with Argos, Beaches and Varsity), several starry imports, and a big year. They want a strong contender this year, and possibly a championship club to end the three-year period.

* * * * * *

A Real Nice Gesture

Despite poor driving conditions, the O.R.F.U. president and the secretary—Father Lynch and Harold Bailey—motored down last eve to attend the grid banquet here. A very nice gesture. The new Union president praised the spirit of the Peterborough club, boosted sports in wartime, advised sponsoring of minor teams and predicted the O.R.F.U. entries would double in a year. He seemed to think this should be the best year in the Union's history, various conditions contributing. Father Lynch wound up with a pointed observation stating that in the city hall in Toronto, two maps hung side by side—one showing regions of juvenile delinquency and the other marking the city playgrounds. "It is shown," said the speaker, "that where playgrounds are found there juvenile delinquency is absent."

* * * * * *

In answer to a direct question, Secretary Bailey—who made an interesting speech and praised the Petes for their up-hill struggle in senior ranks, now beginning to click—stated that this club need not fear being left out of senior company in 1940. "Peterborough definitely will be playing in a four-club senior O.R.F.U. series," he said, and the president nodded agreement. So this should take any worry off the local officers—who wonder at times about reports of the Big Four becoming a Big Six setup and maybe squeezing this town out—and permit early plans for reorganization. It shapes up like a fine grid year here.

Calls For Sacrifice

SYDNEY, Mar. 21—(CP-Reuters)—"Australians must be prepared to tighten their belts and make no smaller sacrifice than Britain herself," Prime Minister R. G. Menzies told his compatriots to-day at the opening of an exposition here.

He contrasted war suffering in Britain with the comparative immunity of Australia, and, replying to complaints about the prices paid for Australian wool and wheat, said amid loud applause:

"It must not be forgotten that the Royal Navy's mastery of the seas has made shipments possible. For this purpose Britain is providing ships and accepting all risks."

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 21—(CP-Reuters)— The Moscow correspondent of the newspaper Aftonbladet to-day reported that during her forthcoming trade negotiations with Finland, Russia will seek to acquire control of nickel mines and other ore deposits in the Petsamo region in Northern Finland.

Up to the outbreak of hostilities between Finland and Russia Nov. 30, the Petsamo nickel deposits were being developed by the International Nickel Company of Canada.

Canadian Press' All-Star Hockey Selection

Bruins And Rangers Hold Most Of The All-Star Spots

TORONTO, March 21.—(CP)—Four great team leaders stand out among the defencemen of the National Hockey League, as the lineups of the N.H.L. all-star teams selected for the Canadian Press will attest.

For the defence positions on the first and alternate teams made public last night, 28 hockey writers in N.H.L. cities selected the captains of four clubs, Aubrey (Dit) Clapper of Boston Bruins and Ebenezer (Ebbie) Goodfellow of Detroit were chosen for the first team and Art Coulter of New York Rangers and Earl Seibert of Chicago Black Hawks for the second.

The C.P. teams:

First Team	Position	Alternate
Kerr (Rangers)	Goal	Brimsek (Boston)
Clapper (Bos.)	Right Defence	Coulter (Rang.)
Goodfellow (Det.)	Left Defence	Seibert (Chic.)
Schmidt (Bos.)	Centre	N. Colville (Rang.)
Hextall (Rang.)	Right Wing	Bauer (Boston)
Blake (Can.	Lef Wing	Dumart (Boston)
Thompson (Chi.)	Coach	Boucher (Rang.)

Apart from the preponderance of Bruin and Ranger players, the most notable feature of the balloting was the tribute to the value of defencemen who can rush, act as ice generals and still play strong blocking games. These are the main attributed of Clapper, Goodfellow, Coulter and Seibert.

But the greatest defenceman of the last decade is absent from the C.P. teams for the second time in the 10 years they have been selected. Eddie Shore, traded by Boston to the Americans this season, chose to devote much of his time to his duties as owner of Springfield's International-American League team and he was mentioned only rarely in the balloting.

The nearest unanimous vote was accorded Dave Kerr as goaltender. Winner of the Vezina trophy as the N.H.L. net-minder with the fewest goals scored against him, he was named to the first team by 25 writers and to the second by two of the other three. Frank Brimsek who made the first team last year in his first season with the Bruins, was good enough to catch second squad this time.

The closest squeeze was at left wing, where Hector (Toe) Blake won the first-team nomination by a single vote over Woodrow (Woody) Dumart of Boston. Blake edged out the Bruins' 200-pound scoring star despite the fact he was with the last-place club and Dumart with the league champions.

Milt Schmidt, centre for Dumart on the Sauerkraut Line, led the league in point-making by nine points and stepped into the all-star team just as handily. Neil Colville, a head man in the Rangers' intricate passing plays, was made pivot on the alternates.

Hextall Edges Bauer

Bobby Bauer, third member of the Sauerkraut combination, had to yield the right wing spot on the first team to Bryan Hextall of the Rangers, who led the league in goal-getting. But the choice of the three members of one line to places on either team was a rare tribute to this hard-driving young unit from Kitchener, Ont., whose members are completing their third full season in the big league.

Paul Thompson of Chicago was made first-team coach for his job in making over the Black Hawks and getting them into fourth position, despite the fact more than half the lineup was new to the league. Frank Boucher's feat of piloting the Rangers through a streak of 19 games without defeat gained him the coaching job on the alternates.

Calgary Shades Oilers 1-0 To Win Round

WINNIPEG, Mar. 21 — (CP). — Six senior and five junior hockey teams remain in the Western playoff picture.

Calgary Stampeders, coached by Marty Burke, the National League veteran who guided Saskatoon Quakers to the Saskatchewan amateur title last year, outlasted Turner Valley Oilers in a gruelling series and won the Alberta senior championship last night at Calgary.

Stampeders beat Oilers 1-0 in the deciding game of the best-of-five round and qualified to meet the British Columbia representatives, Trail Smoke Eaters, in the Allan Cup playdowns. First game of the best-of-five Trail-Calgary series will be played at Trail on March 23, with the remainder at Calgary.

Regina Vic-Aces prolonged the Saskatchewan senior final by beating Moose Jaw Millers 4-2 last night at Regina in the third game of a best-of-five series. Millers won the first two games decisively.

Port Arthur Bear Cats, rolling down the long trail in defence of the Allan Cup they won at Montreal last year, open a best-of-three series with the Manitoba champions, Royal Winnipeg Rifles, in the Lakehead city to-night.

Elmwood Maple Leafs of Winnipeg and Kenora Thistles open a best-of-five series here to-night for the Manitoba junior title. The winner meets Port Arthur Juniors in the first round of Memorial Cup playdowns.

The Saskatchewan junior representatives, Regina Abbott-Generals, travel to Edmonton to open a best-of-five Western semi-final there on Saturday against Edmonton Athletic Club, who lost to Oshawa Generals in the Canadian final at Toronto last year.

Norwood Team Drops Close Contest

CAMPBELLFORD, March 21.—(ENS)—Campbellford took the third of the final T.V.L. series from the Norwood Hornets by a 2-1 score before a roaring crowd of one thousand fans at Davidson's Arena last night. It was one of the most keenly contested games of the season and gave the homesters a 2-1 lead on the three-out-of-five series in the round.

The play was fastt, both sides setting a dazzling pace which was continued nearly all the way. The locals shaded the Hornets on their back checking and jumped in the lead halfways through the opener and finished the period strong with a one-goal margin. The visitors got their solo tally in the second while Robinson was off and Sunocos eased out in front again during the same period to make the final score 2-1.

Three Men Missing

As the two teams skated on the ice for the initial stanza it looked as though the Hornets would easily repeat their triumph of Monday evening because the Hendy crew had only two spares which meant both their first and second lines were completely disorganized. Couch who received a back injury in the Norwood joust was still off and Free who plays a dominant part in the attacking unit was likewise unable to take part in the game while Blake, tricky centre player was at home convalescing from a throat operation.

Buster Whitton, Campbellford Maroons star a few seasons back came to the rescue and donned his skates. He gave the homesters the necesary punch to bring them out on top. It was just ten years ago that Buster slapped home the winning goal in the Belleville arena when the Maroons took the T.V.L. Series from Stirling, and the flashy little defense man still has plenty of his former speed and was given a big ovation from the supporters when he made his appearance. Norwood played minus the service of Weir and Webb. Owen Hendy, speedy playmaker for the Sunocos played a dominant part in the attacking unit and was a constant threat to McMaster. He paced the locals figuring on nearly every play, teaming up well with Robinson and McIlrath.

It was McIlrath who notched the opening counted on a lovely solo rush in which he stickhandled his way through the defense unassisted. There were eleven penalties handed out during the performance by Referee Holloway. Majority of trips to the cooler came in the second stanza and during the first ten minutes the box nearly always had a guest. The locals will now visit Norwood for the fourth game of the series on Friday evening when they expect to have Couch and Free back in the line up and if a fifth game is necessary it will be played back in Campbellford.

Summary:

First Period
Campbellford—McIlrath 10:20
Penalties—Rothwell, Hendy.

Second Period
Norwood—Richardson 5:25
Campbellford—Robinson (Hendy) 13.35
Penalties—Robinson, Hill, Hendy, Webb, Rothwell (2), Rodgers, Atkinson.

Third Period
No score.
Penalties—Robinson.
Norwood: Goal, McMaster; defense, R. Webb, Rothwell; centre, Puffer; wings, Hill, C. Rodgers; alternates, O'Leary, Brady, Richardson, W. Rodgers.
Campbellford: Goal, R. Turner; defense, Wilkes, Hendy; centre, Robinson; wings, McIlrath, Kelly; alternates, Atkinson, Godden, Whitton.

Leafs Out To Nip Hawks In Their Nest

Just one thing remains to be done and Toronto Maple Leafs will consider they have redeemed themselves for their defeat by Chicago Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup finals of 1938.

The Maple Leafs want to beat the Black Hawks right in Chicago to-night and progress to the semi-finals in the 1940 playoffs for the cup. They could still take the best-of-three round by winning at home Saturday, even if they lost to-night, but they want to take this one for the moral lift it would give.

The Leafs lived down some of the humiliation of 1938 by fighting from behind to beat the Hawks 3-2 in overtime at Toronto Tuesday in the first game of the round. That couldn't be compared, however, with the accomplishment of the Chicago team two years ago, which just squeezed into the playoffs and then knocked off Toronto's league champions for the world title.

This bid to take the round in two straight games brought the Toronto-Chicago engagement close in importance to New York Rangers' invasion of Boston to seek a second straight victory in their best-of-seven round with the league champion Bruins. By winning to-night, the Rangers would take an almost insurmountable lead.

Wings After 2nd Straight.

Detroit and the Americans will play the second game of thir best-of-three preliminary round at New York Friday, when the Red Wings will seek to wind up the matter in two straight games. The winner will oppose Toronto or Chicago for the right to play Boston or the Rangers.

Neither the Bruins nor the Rangers suffered ill-effects from Tuesday's opener; but the same may not apply after to-night's game. Boston stages its toughest exhibitions of checking at home.

Bird Dog Assoc. Field Trials On April 13-14

April 13th and 14th have been selected as the dates for the Annual Spring Field Trials of the Ontario Bird Dog Association, which will again be run at Niagara-on-the-Lake. George Herrington of Leamington and Don. Crawford of Kingsville, have been invited to officiate as judges.

Cards for the two-day meet will include trials for Pointers and Setters in all standard classes and, according to D. Taylor Barnes, Princeton, Secretary of the Association, some promising puppies will be run in the junior stakes.

The success attending the running of the untrained class for novice dogs and novice handlers, last Spring, has induced the executives to again include a class for these dogs on this year's card. The novice dogs will show their stuff on the morning of the second day, preceding the running of the All-Age Stake.

Tweed Juvenile Leafs Whip Wings 8 to 4

TWEED, March 21 (ENS)—In the first game of the Tweed Juvenile doubleheader at the local arena on Wednesday night the Leafs trounced the Red Wings 8-4.

The Leafs gained a 3-2 lead, with Sills tallying twice and Geban once for the Leafs, and Smith and Baldwin for the Wings. Donahue went to the box for tripping.

In the second period the Wings scored twice with Baldwin, tricky Wing defenceman netting both, while Donahue tallied on a pass from Sills.

The Leafs gained their four-goal lead in the last period, with Sills getting three and Leveck one. Sills received the lone penalty of the period.

Rangers Whip Bruins

In the second game of the series the Rangers trounced the Bruins 9-2, the Bruins being without subs, while the Rangers only had one sub and also played with a new goalie, who had no experience, but put up a good game for his team.

Four goals were tallied by the Rangers in the first period, with Austin getting the first, and Don Meraw, tricky Ranger centreman the other three.

Baker, hefty Bruin defenceman got the first Bruin goal in the second period, but the Rangers grabbed three more with Donahue taking a pass from Meraw for the first, and from Cornell for the next counter, while Meraw took a pass from Cornell for the third. Baker drilled a high shot to tally the second Bruin counter near the end of the period.

In the last period the Rangers scored three more, with Donahue getting the first unassisted, while Meraw took a pass from Donahue for the next counter, Donahue tallied the last goal unassisted.

Baker and Donahue and Meraw and Baker then went off for roughing.

Lneups—Bruins— goal, LaVallee; defence, Baker, Trudeau; centre, Rivers; wings, Fobert, Courtney.

Havelock Delays School Room Changes

HAVELOCK, Mar. 21—(ENS). — Plans to change the location of the science laboratory and rearrange the layout to provide an extra classroom in the High School were temporarily abandoned by Havelock's joint School Board as they assembled on Monday evening for their March meeting.

It had previously been planned to have the alterations made during the Easter holidays, but after discussing the matter, it was decided to postpone the change until the High School Inspector could be consulted again. Present at the meeting were Trustees Rigby, Roche, Greenley, Anderson, Whitney, Copp, and Covert, with Chairman Bernard Smith presiding.

Principal W. D. Duncan of the Public School reported that the average attendance for February had been 11.14, an increase of 7 over the previous month. Inspector M. H. Park, he said, had approved of a plan to rearrange the classes after Easter, so that the pupils in the Lower Room now attending only a half-day, would be able to attend a full day. It is planned to place ten pupils of Grade II. now in Miss Wing's class, into Miss McNeely's room, which will give the latter three grades to handle for the remaintain three month of the present school term. This will relieve the congestion in Miss Wing's classroom, leaving 45 pupils there, while Miss McNeely will have a total of 43.

Principal R. W. Goheen said that the music teacher, C. Renaud, would not be back on duty in the High School until after Easter. In the Public School, Mr. Duncan stated that Mr. Renaud had resumed his weekly music lesson on February 21. On motion of Trustees Rigby and Copp, the treasurer was instructed to adjust the music teacher's salary according to the number of weeks absent, past the one month leave of absence granted.

Among the correspondence was a communication from the Village Council, in which the Board's attention was drawn to the dangerous practise which some of the pupils are making a habit by walking to and from school on the highway, rather than using the sidewalk.

The chairman was authorized, on motion of Trustees Rigby and Copp, to purchase a new clock for the High School, to replace one which has worn out.

The accounts as read were ordered paid, on motion of Trustees Roche and Greenley.

The meeting adjourned until the third Monday in April.

Friends No Longer

Although Mohandas K. (Mahatma) Gandhi is laughing at the joke of Subhu Chandra Bose at the last all-India Nationalist Congress, he would hardly be in the same mood at the present congress, probably the most momentous of its kind in India's modern history. Now Bose is calling Gandhi "weak-kneed in the way he abandoned the struggle for independence because Britain is at war." Bose, former congress president and leader of the anti-compromise bloc, asks India's complete independence from England.

ing at Montreal, also looked beyond the borders of Canada, urging the Dominion's electors to support the Liberal government's conduct of the war "with a voice that will be heard overseas and that will make German commentators understand that Canada is an united country."

Hon. Adelard Godbout, Liberal premier of Quebec, spoke with Mr. Lapointe and said that the coming election is the gravest in the history of Canada.

Many Ready to Join

Conservative Leader Manion told an Ottawa audience that despite the denials of the Liberal Government, half of the present cabinet would "jump at the chance" to join the National Government he proposed to form if his National Government candidates obtained a majority in the election.

Dr. Manion said he had some of the finest men in the country in view for his proposed cabinet, though he said he had not yet spoken to any of them on the subject.

A National Government was necessary for efficient prosecution of the war and for the reconstruction period which would follow, he said.

In a radio broadcast preceding his public address, Dr. Manion attacked the "conspiracy of silence" attempted by the King Government in restricting the use of the radio in the present campaign, particularly in regard to the ban or broadcast of public meetings. He characterized the Government as a "weak, unimaginative group" which had "failed or bungled in whatever action they have taken."

Finds Quebec in Favor

Postmaster General Power spoke in Quebec, assuring electors of his native province that a recent tour of Western Canada had convinced him that Quebec had the admiration and support of its fellow-Canadians in contrast to the mistrust and discord of 1914.

The Liberal government has succeeded through "prudent methods and above all, exclusively by voluntary enlistment to enroll the same number of soldiers as was raised in 1914 with all the noises of bands and a series of parades," Mr. Power said.

"Those who wish to go and those who are fit to go, will go to the war," Mr. Power said, adding that the King government, "assures the Canadian public that in this war, no one will be enlisted for the pleasure of the thing."

At Kingston Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, charged that an "unwritten agreement" exists for manufacture of 25-pounder guns in Canada for the British War Office and challenged Defence Minister Rogers to outline the terms before voting takes place next Tuesday.

Wants Details Given

"Since parliament has been dissolved and since there has been no accounting to parliament, there should be an acounting to the public, and I challenge Mr. Rogers to disclose to the Canadian people the nature of the representations made by officials of the Department of National Defence to the British War Office in regard to the production of 25-pounder guns in this country," he said.

"No contract has been announced but I do hope that Mr. Rogers will not add to his other misstatements by denying that a very definite understanding now exists about a very profitable contract which he has been unwilling to disclose to the Canadian public."

Mr. Rogers was quoted as saying "the problem of equipping our soldiers is no longer a problem."

"If that is so, what arrangements have been made for rifles, heavy machine guns, infantry motors, anti-tank rifles, signal pistols, field, medium and heavy artillery weapons, anti-aircraft guns, tanks, armored cars and armored scout carriers, sound ranging and directional devices for anti-aircraft control?"

Troubles For Anyone.

At Gananoque Defence Minister Rogers said that any government called upon to adapt itself to war-time problems would encounter difficulties.

"Has any peace-loving country ever built up a war-time organization while peace yet remained?" he asked.

"We built up a peace-time organization in time of peace and provided the nucleus of a war machine to be put into operation as soon as it was needed," he said. "If we had stored a great number of uniforms, as our critics seem to think we should have done, we would have found them obsolete.

"Then those who condemn us for this would condemn us for waste and extravagance. Our Canadian equipment, if purchased and stored, would have had to be adapted to that of the British forces.

"Of course we had a problem. That is what governments are for. We overcame those problems as quickly and efficiently as we could."

Mr. Rogers accused Dr. Manion with failing to make specific charges when dealing with deficiencies in the war effort and compared his criticisms with the words of Premier Aberhart of Alberta.

Denial By McLarty.

At Windsor Labor Minister McLarty said he had nothing to do with the award of war contracts for mechanical transport equipment to Windsor firms.

Mr. McLarty said that his opponent in Essex West, City Controller Arthur J. Reaume, had taken on himself responsibility for bringing the contracts to Windsor "by bringing me to life."

"He misunderstands and misomprehends the whole function of the War Supply Board," Mr. McLarty said. "I had nothing to do with the contracts coming here and I haven't claimed credit for it. I don't stand before you and boast and brag. He suggests he forced the action. How silly.

detailed the Sylt exploit happily to the House of Commons yesterday, but did not reply when a member advised him:—

"Bear in mind that the country sincerely hopes this will be no isolated instance."

Nevertheless, reports persisted that Germany's submarine nests and shipyards in the land-locked Baltic Sea would be probable objects of attack.

"The snowball begins to roll," commented a newspaper columnist. "It will leave rather a bloody track."

The Baltic is sheltered from the North Sea by Denmark. Reports from Copenhagen said that 10 bombs were dropped on Danish soil during the British raid on Sylt and that the Danish Minister to London would protest.

Scores of Planes Wiped Out

"Scores of Germany's most valuable aircraft—seaplanes and bombers—were destroyed," declared the Daily Herald in reporting on the Sylt Raid.

"The attack had been delayed so that it should take place when the maximum number of German planes was concentrated on the island. For some time the Allied command had known that the Nazi authorities were feverishly building hangars on Sylt—and storing hundreds of planes there.

"Today a number of those hangars are in ruins—pilots returning told of wrecked barracks, blazing oil tanks, crippled railways."

The fliers also described a new German defence device—the "flaming onion"—an incendiary anti-aircraft projectile which bursts into fiery fragments in mid-air, like a rocket.

"They look pretty but they are not very effective," they said.

The Germans described the Sylt damage as negligible—destruction of a vacant house and injury of three persons.

On the political front, Parliament is to take an Easter recess to-night. During that interval, many persons believe Prime Minister Chamberlain will reshape his war cabient in response to widespread demands for a more vigorous policy—similar to the demand which brought a change in the French cabinet.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Leslie Burgin, and Lord Hankey, Minister without portfolio, have been mentioned among those who may lose their portfolios.

Berlin's Claims.

BERLIN, Mar. 21 — (AP). —The German high command's communique to-day was devoted largely to yesterday's raid against a British convoy off Scapa Flow. The communique follows:

"On the Western Front, between the Moselle River and the Palatinate Forest, local artillery and reconnaissance activity.

"German fighting planes late yesterday afternoon successfully attacked off Scapa Flow a British convoy heavily protected by cruisers, destroyers and airplanes. Another armed merchant ship was attacked in the English Channel.

"The convoy was dispersed. Nine Navy vessels and merchant ships, with a total tonnage of roughly 42,000 tons, were sunk.

(The Admiralty said three neutral ships were damaged.)

"In addition, two merchant ships with a total tonnage roughly of 11,000 tons were badly hit. One enemy plane was shot down in an air fight. One of our own planes is missing.

"Yesterday forenoon, British scouting planes were spotted near the East and North Frisian Islands and repulsed by the German defence.

"The losses of the British Air Force during its attempted attacks on Sylt Island during the night of March 20 after final investigations rose to three planes."

(The Air Ministry said one British plane was lost.)

Aberhart Out In Calgary

Premier Aberhart completed his personal campaign last night at a rally in Calgary, where he is candidate after transferring from Okotoks-High River. The 61-year-old premier was elected by acclamation in the latter constituency after the 1935 general election.

Mr. Running addressed a public meeting yesterday in Camrose where he is opposing Hon. D. B. Mullen, Minister of Agriculture.

Prominent figures in the leaderless Independent movement ended their individual campaigns.

E. L. Gray, Liberal leader running as an Independent in Bow Valley-Empress, spoke at Brooks.

D. M. Duggan of Edmonton, Conservative leader, and Mayor Andrew Davison of Calgary, made their final speeches Tuesday night. They are candidates of the Citizens' slate, the banner for Independents in Edmonton and Calgary.

In selecting members for the province's ninth Legislature, Albertans will use Canada's most complicated voting system—proportional representation in the five-member constituencies of Calgary and Edmonton, and single transferable vote in the single member ridings. Manitoba also uses the same voting system in its provincial elections.

A report from the Port Hope hospital today indicated that both men were resting nicely and thought to be out of danger. Parsonage has a broken nose, slight concussion, and superficial cuts, while Childs has a fracture of the pelvis and a few cuts.

Havelock Delays School Room Changes

HAVELOCK, Mar. 21—(ENS). — Plans to change the location of the science laboratory and rearrange the layout to provide an extra classroom in the High School were temporarily abandoned by Havelock's joint School Board as they assembled on Monday evening for their March meeting.

It had previously been planned to have the alterations made during the Easter holidays, but after discussing the matter, it was decided to postpone the change until the High School inspector could be consulted again. Present at the meeting were Trustees Rigby, Roche, Greenley, Anderson, Whitney, Copp, and Covert, with Chairman Bernard Smith presiding.

Principal W. D. Duncan of the Public School reported that the average attendance for February had been 11.14, an increase of 7 over the previous month. Inspector M. H. Park, he said, had approved of a plan to rearrange the classes after Easter, so that the pupils in the Lower Room now attending only a half-day, would be able to attend a full day. It is planned to place ten pupils of Grade II. now in Miss Wing's class, into Miss McNeely's room, which will give the latter three grades to handle for the remaintain three month of the present school term. This will relieve the congestion in Miss Wing's classroom, leaving 45 pupils there, while Miss McNeely will have a total of 43.

Principal R. W. Goheen said that the music teacher, C. Renaud, would not be back on duty in the High School until after Easter. In the Public School, Mr. Duncan stated that Mr. Renaud had resumed his weekly music lesson on February 21. On motion of Trustees Rigby and Copp, the treasurer was instructed to adjust the music teacher's salary according to the number of weeks absent, past the one month leave of absence granted.

Among the correspondence was a communication from the Village Council, in which the Board's attention was drawn to the dangerous practise which some of the pupils are making a habit by walking to and from school on the highway, rather than using the sidewalk.

The chairman was authorized, on motion of Trustees Rigby and Copp, to purchase a new clock for the High School, to replace one which has worn out.

The accounts as read were ordered paid, on motion of Trustees Roche and Greenley.

The meeting adjourned until the third Monday in April.

Friends No Longer

Although Mohandas K. (Mahatma) Gandhi is laughing at the joke of Subhu Chandra Bose at the last all-India Nationalist Congress, he would hardly be in the same mood at the present congress, probably the most momentous of its kind in India's modern history. Now Bose is calling Gandhi "weak-kneed in the way he abandoned the struggle for independence because Britain is at war." Bose, former congress president and leader of the anti-compromise bloc, asks India's complete independence from England.

ing at Montreal, also looked beyond the borders of Canada, urging the Dominion's electors to support the Liberal government's conduct of the war "with a voice that will be heard overseas and that will make German commentators understand that Canada is an united country."

Hon. Adelard Godbout, Liberal premier of Quebec, spoke with Mr. Lapointe and said that the coming election is the gravest in the history of Canada.

Many Ready to Join

Conservative Leader Manion told an Ottawa audience that despite the denials of the Liberal Government, half of the present cabinet would "jump at the chance" to join the National Government he proposed to form if his National Government candidates obtained a majority in the election.

Dr. Manion said he had some of the finest men in the country in view for his proposed cabinet, though he said he had not yet spoken to any of them on the subject.

A National Government was necessary for efficient prosecution of the war and for the reconstruction period which would follow, he said.

In a radio broadcast preceding his public address, Dr. Manion attacked the "conspiracy of silence" attempted by the King Government in restricting the use of the radio in the present campaign, particularly in regard to the ban or broadcast of public meetings. He characterized the Government as a "weak, unimaginative group" which had "failed or bungled in whatever action they have taken."

Finds Quebec in Favor

Postmaster General Power spoke in Quebec, assuring electors of his native province that a recent tour of Western Canada had convinced him that Quebec had the admiration and support of its fellow-Canadians in contrast to the mistrust and discord of 1914.

The Liberal government has succeeded through "prudent methods and above all, exclusively by voluntary enlistment to enroll the same number of soldiers as was raised in 1914 with all the noises of bands and a series of parades," Mr. Power said.

"Those who wish to go and those who are fit to go, will go to the war," Mr. Power said, adding that the King government, "assures the Canadian public that in this war, no one will be enlisted for the pleasure of the thing."

At Kingston Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, charged that an "unwritten agreement" exists for manufacture of 25-pounder guns in Canada for the British War Office and challenged Defence Minister Rogers to outline the terms before voting takes place next Tuesday.

Wants Details Given

"Since parliament has been dissolved and since there has been no accounting to parliament, there should be an acounting to the public, and I challenge Mr. Rogers to disclose to the Canadian people the nature of the representations made by officials of the Department of National Defence to the British War Office in regard to the production of 25-pounder guns in this country," he said.

"No contract has been announced but I do hope that Mr. Rogers will not add to his other misstatements by denying that a very definite understanding now exists about a very profitable contract which he has been unwilling to disclose to the Canadian public."

Mr. Rogers was quoted as saying "the problem of equipping our soldiers is no longer a problem."

"If that is so, what arrangements have been made for rifles, heavy machine guns, infantry motors, anti-tank rifles, signal pistols, field, medium and heavy artillery weapons, anti-aircraft guns, tanks, armored cars and armored scout carriers, sound ranging and directional devices for anti-aircraft control?"

Troubles For Anyone.

At Gananoque Defence Minister Rogers said that any government called upon to adapt itself to wartime problems would encounter difficulties.

"Has any peace-loving country ever built up a war-time organization while peace yet remained?" he asked.

"We built up a peace-time organization in time of peace and provided the nucleus of a war machine to be put into operation as soon as it was needed," he said. "If we had stored a great number of uniforms, as our critics seem to think we should have done, we would have found them obsolete.

"Then those who condemn us for this would condemn us for waste and extravagance. Our Canadian equipment, if purchased and stored, would have had to be adapted to that of the British forces.

"Of course we had a problem. That is what governments are for. We overcame those problems as quickly and efficiently as we could."

Mr. Rogers accused Dr. Manion with failing to make specific charges when dealing with deficiencies in the war effort and compared his criticisms with the words of Premier Aberhart of Alberta.

Denial By McLarty.

At Windsor Labor Minister McLarty said he had nothing to do with the award of war contracts for mechanical transport equipment to Windsor firms.

Mr. McLarty said that his opponent in Essex West, City Controller Arthur J. Reaume, had taken on himself responsibility for bringing the contracts to Windsor "by bringing me to life."

"He misunderstands and misconprehends the whole function of the War Supply Board," Mr. McLarty said. "I had nothing to do with the contracts coming here and I haven't claimed credit for it. I don't stand before you and boast and brag. He suggests he forced the action. How silly.

sincerely hopes this will be no isolated instance."

Nevertheless, reports persisted that Germany's submarine nests and shipyards in the land-locked Baltic Sea would be probable objects of attack.

"The snowball begins to roll," commented a newspaper columnist. "It will leave rather a bloody track."

The Baltic is sheltered from the North Sea by Denmark. Reports from Copenhagen said that 10 bombs were dropped on Danish soil during the British raid on Sylt and that the Danish Minister to London would protest.

Scores of Planes Wiped Out

"Scores of Germany's most valuable aircraft—seaplanes and bombers—were destroyed," declared the Daily Herald in reporting on the Sylt Raid.

"The attack had been delayed so that it should take place when the maximum number of German planes was concentrated on the island. For some time the Allied command had known that the Nazi authorities were feverishly building hangars on Sylt—and storing hundreds of planes there.

"Today a number of those hangars are in ruins—pilots returning told of wrecked barracks, blazing oil tanks, crippled railways."

The fliers also described a new German defence device—the "flaming onion"—an incendiary anti-aircraft projectile which bursts into fiery fragments in mid-air, like a rocket.

"They look pretty but they are not very effective," they said.

The Germans described the Sylt damage as negligible—destruction of a vacant house and injury of three persons.

On the political front, Parliament is to take an Easter recess to-night. During that interval, many persons believe Prime Minister Chamberlain will reshape his war cabient in response to widespread demands for a more vigorous policy—similar to the demand which brought a change in the French cabinet.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Leslie Burgin, and Lord Hankey, Minister without portfolio, have been mentioned among those who may lose their portfolios.

Berlin's Claims.

BERLIN, Mar. 21 — (AP). —The German high command's communique to-day was devoted largely to yesterday's raid against a British convoy off Scapa Flow. The communique follows:

"On the Western Front, between the Moselle River and the Palatinate Forest, local artillery and reconnaissance activity.

"German fighting planes late yesterday afternoon successfully attacked off Scapa Flow a British convoy heavily protected by cruisers, destroyers and airplanes. Another armed merchant ship was attacked in the English Channel.

"The convoy was dispersed. Nine Navy vessels and merchant ships, with a total tonnage of roughly 42,000 tons, were sunk.

(The Admiralty said three neutral ships were damaged.)

"In addition, two merchant ships with a total tonnage roughly of 11,000 tons were badly hit. One enemy plane was shot down in an air fight. One of our own planes is missing.

"Yesterday forenoon, British scouting planes were spotted near the East and North Fristan Islands and repulsed by the German defence.

"The losses of the British Air Force during its attempted attacks on Sylt Island during the night of March 20 after final investigations rose to three planes."

(The Air Ministry said one British plane was lost.)

Manitoba also uses the same voting system in its provincial elections.

Marmora Man Is Held By Police On Charge Of Having Illegal Possession Of Gold

Donald Newington, 32, of Marmora, a former employee of the Dordorva Gold Mines was arrested here Wednesday afternoon by Provincial Constable David Silvester and Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon E. Broughton on a charge of illegal possession of gold. Newington, said to have been on his way to Timmins, was accompanied by his wife and baby when his car was stopped by the police just at the eastern outskirts of the city.

This morning Newington was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court and without plea or election was remanded for a week, bail being fixed by the magistrate at $3,500 after Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. had suggested $5,000 as the proper amount.

The charge against the accused was that on March 20 he did unlawfully have in his possession, with his knowledge, partly smelted or partly treated or partly manufactured gold which there was reasonable grounds to suspect had been stolen and was unable or refused to account satisfactorily for or prove his lawful right to possession of the same, contrary to the provisions of Sections 424 (c) of the Criminal Code.

Ronald Standish who appeared for Newington asked if he might be allowed to inspect the evidence. "It is difficult to form a defence unless we can see what they claim was in the accused's possession. It might have been liver."

"In that event there would be no case," remarked Crown Attorney McElderry. "I refuse to produce anything at this stage of the proceedings."

Mr. Standish also complained against the size of the bail but Magistrate Langley reminded him that the charge was a very serious one.

Young Soldier Guilty Of Theft

As a sequel to an alleged drinking party last night a Toronto traveller was robbed of a sum of money said to have been at least $75, a private in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment pleaded guilty in police court this morning to the theft of part of the missing cash, and three other persons faced liquor charges.

The soldier, Frank McIntosh, wearing the battle uniform of the Canadian Active Service Force was charged with stealing more than $25 in cash from William Burns of Toronto and pleaded guilty, admitting taking $41.

Burns testified that he had gone to a house with the accused, his father and two other men and there had been drinking. Later a fight broke out during which he received a black eye and afterward he found that his money, at least $75 which he had had in his left trouser pocket had disappeared.

He had then complained to the police. McIntosh, who told the court that he had enlisted only last Monday, said that he had picked the money off the floor.

The accused was remanded until Saturday for sentence, bail being refused.

Thomas Reid, charged with illegal sale of liquor was remanded until next Thursday, bail being fixed at $500 and three other charged with illegal consumption, two of whom pleaded guilty, had their cases adjourned until the same day.

Hunt Is Planned For Wolves Near Buckhorn

The Peterborough Wolf Club had better start polishing all those brass covered medals right soon, Harry Shearer of Buckhorn declared today as final plans were made for the season's second organized wolf hunt to be held next Wednesday and Thursday.

Object of the hunt is to destroy three wolves that have been prowling the district during past weeks and whose presence has frightened children attending rural schools in the vicinity. One of the wolves is a giant in size and promises excitement for any sportsman.

Harry Shearer, Buckhorn merchant, has been named Master of Wolf Hunters. All proceedings are under his direction and to-day he promised that 15 Buckhorn hunters, all skilled shots and all familiar with the district, will attend the two-day hunt and will act as guides for the Peterborough contingent.

The hunt starts promptly at 8.00 a.m. on Wednesday next, and all hunters will congregate at Harry Shearer's store. Each is expected to bring along a noonday lunch, but meals and accommodation will be provided for the remainder of the hunt.

Behind the Hunt.

All Buckhorn is enthusiastic about the hunt, according to Mr. Shearer. It's not only a good outing, but its aim is the highest—to rid the country of three animals that are a menace to children in an outlying district, so that they may return to school with confidence in their safety, after the Easter vacation.

The hunt has many advantages over the Apsley affair. For one thing the weatherman is due to provide bright, sunny days that have a bit of spring in them. There is no need to go long distances by sleigh to reach the scene of the hunt, for the jumping-off point may be reached by car. Each hunter will meet at Shearer's store and then the group will continue to the scene of the hunt both mornings.

Harry Shearer, M.F.H., has arranged that two Buckhorn men will go through the district the afternoon before the hunt so that sportsmen will know the exact area in which the wolves are likely to be located.

"This isn't going to be a failure," prophesied Mr. Shearer. "This is going to be the most successful wolf hunt ever staged."

Charlie Kingan and Herb Mason, as veterans of the Peterborough Wolf Club, are sure others will join their ranks this time for the trip to Buckhorn.

A DANGEROUS VEHICLE

A large baby carriage is believed to be responsible for a broken window at Woolworths. One salesgirl heard the crash and saw a woman wheel a baby carriage into the crowd, and when the manager took a look he found a good sized piece of glass broken out of the large plate glass window.

A RAILWAY CHARGE

A local youth was charged in police court this morning with the theft of oil and waste from the journal boxes of C.N.R. box cars and the case was adjourned until a companion charged with the same offence can be tried. The charges were laid by C.N.R. Constable Ray Morden.

BALDY DAMAGED

When a car driven by Ed. Burley was entering Highway 28 from a side road a mile south of Bewdley Tuesday it met in collision with a truck owned by the Beatty Transport and was very badly damaged while he also suffered considerably from the impact. The drivers were not injured.

CAR TURNS A FLIP

Alfred Sproats of Peterborough had a close call from injury on his way home from Belleville Tuesday, when his car skidded off Highway 28 when he applied his brakes to prevent colliding with another vehicle. His automobile turned over and came up on its wheels again and he was able to drive away unhurt. He got home to find that his wife had fractured her ankle during his absence.

IT HAS ARRIVED

At 1:45 Wednesday afternoon when the city was being lashed by a snowstorm borne on the wings of a strong north wind, Spring was ushered in. The weather man was in a more kindly mood this morning and a warm sun gave promise of better weather soon, and a possible chance for the ladies to parade their Easter bonnets on Sunday. Spring arrives on March 20th this year because of the extra day in leap year.

Men Qualify To Attend Six Young Peterboro Aircraft Training School In Galt

Six young men from Peterborough City and County have qualified and passed their medical examinations to permit them to enter the Aircraft Training School at Galt early in April. There are two hundred in the class from the province. The curriculum is designed to conform to the requirements of the R.C.A.F., and it is reported to be the finest Aircraft Training School in Canada.

There are two hundred boys finishing a course on the 2nd of April of whom many will be entering the R.C.A.F. and some probably as instructors. Three of the boys graduating on April 2nd are from Peterborough City and County. The course embraces a complete training in airplane mechanics and ground maintenance.

Because of the war the Dominion-Provincial youth training program has been somewhat altered. The whole system is under revision as the courses of instruction are all being designed to assist to the utmost the various industries that are producing products essential to the successful carrying on the war.

A number of men coming from certain localities have been specially trained where industries there have assured the government that the boys will be placed at the end of the training period. Industry is being consulted and it is proposed to intensify the training in order to train a larger number of boys from various localities in the province in giving them specialized training in trades pertaining to war industry.

It is expected that important announcements regarding the revised extended program will be made in the near future.

War Bulletins

PARIS.—(AP).—Relative quiet on the western front was reported today by military sources which said the only noteworthy action was yesterday's patrol encounter, in which the British killed five Germans.

Rain weather hindered air forces of both sides, operations being limited to short flights over the lines.

The French communique this morning:

"Nothing to report."

COPENHAGEN.—(CP-Havas). — The Hindenburg dam, linking the Island of Sylt to the German mainland, was badly damaged in the British raids over the German base Tuesday night and Wednesday, according to a dispatch to-day to the Nationaltidende from Toender, in Danish Slesvig.

The report said the four towers of the dam housing anti-aircraft batteries were gone after the raids.

LONDON.—(CP).—"There is evidence of large purchases in the United States by Russia of war material, especially copper and this is receiving the attention of His Majesty's government," Ronald Cross, Minister of Economic Warfare told the House of Commons to-day.

In response to a question, he said Soviet Russia purchases of oil in the United States for the past 12 months were much above those of 1938 but not in excess of imports of some previous years.

AMSTERDAM—(AP)— Four German fliers, shot down in the North Sea, were rescued from a floating Heinkel plane 130 miles off shore today by a Netherlands fishing trawler which took them to Ijmuiden.

One of the fliers had a wound in the knee and another a broken leg. (DNB, German news agency, reported early today that one of the planes which raided a British convoy yesterday had failed to return.)

Victory For Germany

ROME—(AP)—The resignation of French Premier Daladier was described by the Bologna newspaper Resto Del Carlino today as a "Battle won by Germany."

"Daladier is an enemy of Italy, shortsighted and a provocateur," it said. "Daladier is one of those mainly responsible for the war and history will judge him severely."

LONDON—(CP)—Labor Minister Ernest Brown announced today in the House of Commons that men over 45 would be accepted for munitions making training if physically fit.

LONDON—(CP)—Sir John Gilmour, Minister of Shipping, today rejected a suggestion that the giant liners Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary be sold in the United States to provide funds for British purchases overseas.

Sir John said the government would not consider the proposal advanced in the House of Commons Tuesday by Oswald Lewis, Conservative.

HONG KONG—(AP)—A large number of Chinese refugees flocked to British territory today as a result of rumors that Japanese troops had made a surprise night landing at Namtau, a small port just beyond the Chinese-British mainland frontier. Japanese quarters here said they had no information about a landing.

LONDON.—(CP).— Home Secretary Sir John Anderson reported to-day that 74,000 Germans and Austrians, mostly refugees from Nazi rule, had been registered by police in Great Britain and that 1,969 enemy aliens had been interned.

Close watch is being kept on distribution of communist pamphlets, Sir John added, "and if there is any breach of law, suitable action will be taken."

Mr. Young is employed by the Lawrence Hotel in Erie as comptroller.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, March 23

A PARTICULARLY lively and exciting day, with many things moving under high pressure, is read from the interesting chain of planetary configurations. While there will be a fine display of initiative, courage and strenuous attack, especially in the direction of putting over major propositions or new and highly-constructive programs, in some instances the employment of subtle acumen, strategy or diplomacy might prove quite as effective as sledge hammer blows. A similar condition pervades the private life, where social activities, emotional urge and romance are under high stimuli.

Those whose birthday it is are under strenuous, creative and highly emotional urges during the year, with many things, business and personal, moving swiftly and under high tension. Much is to be gained in launching new projects of major importance, and while pressure, aggressiveness, audacity and ingenuity count for much, in some critical spots sagacity, compromise or policy may prove more lucrative.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity and skill, with highly - constructive and practical abilities, bold and resolute.

Rallies Are Wound Up In Picturesque Setting

The snow scene around St. Aidan's Church at Young's Point Wednesday night was typically Canadian winter, and midwinter at that—not what you expect of the first day of the calendar spring. It looked like a corner of England set in January snow and radiant in cold moonlight. Wednesday afternoon's snowstorm had built up new snowbanks. The walk into the parish hall of St. Aidan's Church had been shovelled out, a channel with walls three feet deep. For March 21 it looked like an exceedingly beautiful Christmas Eve.

That was the pictureque countryside surrounding the little Anglican Church and the parish hall in which the Liberal rally was held last night. Rev. E. C. Moore is rector of the church, and although prominent in the affairs of the Conservative party in this riding, he was present to greet R. M. Glover, and then retired while the meeting was getting under way.

The parish hall at St. Aidan's was the most comfortable meeting place in the political circuit outside the Lakefield community hall. It is dominated by a big fireplace with a remarkably large slab of red stone, nearly all of it one piece, and said to have been obtained from the neighboring district. The blow of snow must have filled in some of those north Smith side roads, for the attendance at the Glover meeting was drawn almost entirely from the Point. And it is unlikely that some of the roads will be dug out by election day.

The interior of the parish hall was very bright and attractive, and from all accounts everybody at Young's Point makes use of the hall as a community social centre.

Apsley To Get Hydro Power

Ratepayers in Burleigh and Anstruther will be pleased to learn that the rural hydro line will be extended to Apsley from Burleigh just as soon as weather conditions will permit the start of construction work.

This announcement came today and is a result of the persistent efforts of several residents who have finally obtained enough subscribers to warrant extension of the line.

Some ratepayers in the two townships were under the impression that the erection of a rural power line would increase the taxes. This is altogether wrong as rural hydro does not affect the general tax rate at all.

The ratepayers who are subscribers must pay the regular charge for the service. Ordinarily if a subscriber does not pay this service is cut off. However, sometimes people die or move away leaving Hydro charges owing, and in such cases the municipality adds the amount of the charges owing to the tax bill of the subscriber in default. It does not however affect the tax rate of any other person.

The system has been operating successfully in other municipalities for years.

Balloon Found In Field Near Warsaw

A weather balloon in a bright red parachute which had been set free at Buffalo airport at midnight on March 15th was found on the morning of March 15th by Goldie Drain, at his farm home near the head of Stoney Lake, 11 miles from Warsaw.

The balloon travelled approximately 125 miles as the crow flies, in a northeasterly direction across Lake Ontario. Instructions on a battery-like affair which was suspended from the balloon had instructions advising the finder to mail it to Baltimore, Maryland, weather bureau, and a reward would be paid.

Mr. Drain was attracted by the bright red parachute, four feet in height, lying near his barn, and found the battery, weighing 2¼ pounds, attached. Apparently a large balloon about three feet in diameter, kept the apparatus in the air and when the balloon burst the red silk parachute allowed the weight to drop slowly to the ground without damage.

The balloons are released regularly to obtain accurate data on wind and weather, and they may be mailed free of charge between points in the States. Postage, however, had to be paid on the package in Canada. Mr. Drain left the silk parachute at the post office in Warsaw when he brought the package in for mailing, yesterday.

A LONG WAIT.

Persons who have a birthday on Sunday, March 24, will hardly live until Easter Sunday falls on March 24 again. The last time this happened was in 1799, and Easter will not fall on the 24th of March again until the year 2391.

HE MERITS YOUR VOTE!

"There is only one vital issue in this campaign, and on it the Liberals and Conservatives are not seriously divided. Unable to decide between them, thousands of voters are in a quandary, evidently imaging that they must support one party or the other, or not vote at all. If they will realize they are voting for individual candidates, their responsibility ought to be clear. As this paper said last Monday: "It is the duty of voters to choose the candidates best qualified by patriotism, knowledge and experience to promote a wise, energetic war policy. This is a time for individual merit to be recognized."

—The Toronto Globe and Mail.

"Vote for the man who, in your opinion, is the best man offering himself in your division because you are convinced that he will do his utmost to help Canada win the war, regardless of any other consideration. Do not allow any question of political prejudice or argument to influence you one iota as against this all-important factor. Disregard all matters of party that might have a tendency to obscure the one outstanding, the one tremendous, issue—to win the war."

Do You Know?

Don't wash linens in hard water. If your local water is hard, be sure to use one of the many fine water-softeners on the market to-day.

Don't use soap with an alkali content. It will turn the linens yellow all too soon.

Wash thoroughly but not vigorously. A modern washing machine is the answer. If you don't have one, remember to squeeze—not rub.

Rinse linens at least twice and put a little powdered borax and, for white linens, a bit of bluing in the third rinsing water. Linen should not be starched.

We Noticed

. . . For the first morning in a dismal week—from a weather standpoint—the sun is actually shining in a way that means it intends to keep right on doing so throughout the day—pleasant assurance of a bright and cheerful Easter week-end after all.

. . . After looking at shop windows filled with delightful concoctions labelled Easter hats through sheets of soft, wet snow that blew coldly into ears and floated down protesting necks, we of the feminine variety are apt to renew our interest in those gay windows today.

. . . It doesn't take a particularly vidi imagination to picture the mad rush millinery shops will experience thi smorning and during the lunch hour when some of us decide at the last moment we simply must have a blossom-laden bonnet to brighten up the Easter landscape—even tho' the background be one of winter snow.

Sturdy Shoes Being Worn

In Paris, all eyes are turned toward Spring. Present conditions, tactfully dubbed "unsettled," bring up many questions but provide few answers. What women will wear is one of the uncertainties involved with many others in the issues of the war.

That tailored clothes will fill the majority of wartime social needs for Paris women is a safe conclusion. Tailored suits and ensembles in ordinary years cut a wide swath in the French capital in Spring, and this trend is re-echoed in London and again on this side of the water.

Early editions of Spring shoes for town wear take good account of the tailored aspect. In outline, and often in leather, they are sturdy types, with thick soles, bulky and low heels and trimming details few and entirely removed from "fussy."

Leading colors for the "sturdy" types are box and reversed calf with color contrast the most unusual method of achieving trimming effect. Self-color patent is the decorative note for antelope. Platform soles of one or another are enormously important, with thick crepe soles for the more definitely sport models.

Clogs will be fashion-prominent for Spring, and new developments show them in the discreet tailored and afternoon styles, far removed from their early beachwear gender. More dressy, but never fussy, are the stepins adapted from the Louis Quinze period, with square toes and draped or big-buckled front. Typical evening slippers are quite out of the war picture, with suits worn in the evening, whether cocktail styles or long-skirted tailleurs.

Miss Violet E. Gilmour Is Wed In Gown Of Ice-Blue Satin

Early spring flowers and ferns decked Trinity United Church for the wedding at five-thirty on Wednesday afternoon of Miss Violet Elsie Gilmour, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Gilmour, 5 Kenneth Avenue, to Mr. Ormie Robert Henry, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. R. Henry of Lindsay. Rev. G. S. Easton officiated for the ceremony, and wedding music was played by Mrs. H. V. Dobson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely model of ice-blue slipper satin designed with a sweetheart neckline caught with brilliant clips. The long sleeves with full high shoulders were snugly fitted at the wrists with points falling over the hands, and the full skirt flowed from a moulded waistline to form a short train. Her veil of fine net, which fell softly to the floor, was held in place by a cluster of roses, and she carried a bridal bouquet of Briarcliff roses and sweet peas.

Miss Mary Thompson was the bridesmaid, wearing a pretty frock of peach taffeta, made with a tiny moulded waistline and very full skirt finished with a deep flounce. Velvet bows of pale green trimmed the skirt and neckline, and she wore elbow-length lace mittens to match her frock. The shoulder-length veil of peach net was caught with a cluster of blossoms, and her bouquet was of Talisman roses and sweet peas. Mr. Hugh Fallis was groomsman.

A reception for the bridal party was held at the Walkerfield House, where the bride's mother received in a gown of blue heaven crepe with small hat of navy straw, and shoulder corsage of sweet peas. The groom's mother wore a black crepe gown with touches of pink, a matching hat, and shoulder corsage of sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry left later for points East, the bride travelling in a smart frock of fuchsia wool, a black fur jacket, and black hat with fuchsia velvet trimmings. Her accessories were black. They will live on Vaughan Road, Toronto.

Getting Full Money's Worth Out Of $1.16 For Chicken

By MARY MOORE

If Friday's cleaning and Saturday morning's food preparation are organized, Saturday afternoon and Sunday can assume the holiday air that is your due.

Last Saturday morning I bought a 5½-lb. boiling fowl (as the negro said "Pust ketch de Chickenn")—for $1.16, and then took it to the kitchen to exploit its possibilities. If The Head has seen it first I would have had to make a Brunswick Stew, but this time I had my way.

Boiled Chicken (For Slicing).

Dress chicken and scrub the skin with warm water and baking soda. Rinse and immerse in cold water, add the cleaned giblets, cover and bring to boiling point and let simmer for 2½ hours. Let stand covered in boiling stock to cool off (this reduces cooking time by at least 20 minutes).

When cold slice off all the meat that will come off in good sized slices from the breast and thighs. (This is for Sunday's dinner). The remainder that has to be picked from the bones is for Chicken a la King or Hot Chicken Sandwich for Saturday's dinner.

Emem's Chicken a la King

Two tablespoons chicken fat or butter, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup chicken stock, ¼ cup scalded cream and ½ cup scalded milk mixed, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup cold boiled fowl cut in strips, ¼ cup thinly sliced mushrooms, 2 tablespoons each finely shredded green pepper, and chopped canned pimiento, yolk 1 egg. Melt fat, saute mushrooms and green pepper in it 3 minutes, then add cornstarch and salt and stir until blended, then pour on slowly the hot stock, and milk and cream and stir until thick. Add additional butter bit by bit and fowl and pimientoes. Let heat through, beat the yolk, pour a little of the mix over the yolk, and return all to double boiler, stirring for about 1 minute. Serve on toast strips or small patty shells or in nest of mashed potatoes.

Hot Chicken Sandwich

Use all white bread very fresh, with crusts removed. Place on hot plate, cover one slice with bits of chicken, pour over about 2 tablespoons rich chicken gravy (made from cooking broth), cover with second slice of white bread (crustless), top with mound of mashed potatoes, cover with generous serving of rich chicken gravy—serve with slice of apple jelly. This is a nice quick supper, and served with a generous salad is simple and good.

Sunday's Sliced Chicken Dinner.

On Saturday while the chicken was boiling I shredded a fresh pineapple, sprinkled it with a little honey and white sugar covered it and let it stand in ice box until I needed it for Sunday—this was our dessert.

Place the sliced chicken meat in strainer and heat through in steam over boiling water. Make gravy from some of the cooking liquor, and when serving pour over chicken on hot plates.

We served boiled rice with this—after the rice was cooked in plenty of boiling water we drained it, then poured about 1 cup of the chicken broth through it—saving the broth of course for tomorrow soup—then placed a mound of this broth flavored rice on each plate in place of the traditional mashed potatoes, and placed a generous piece of butter in centre of it. Serve cranberries with the chicken.

Emem's Chicken Soup

The broth could be diluted to make a quart of it. To this add 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 cup finely sliced onion, 2 tablespoons best rice, ½ teaspoon white pepper, a teaspoons salt (if cooking broth is unsalted), and if on hand ¼ cup peas or finely sliced green pepper or chopped parsley—boil just until the rice is tender, then serve—this soup is for Monday's lunch or supper.

Chicken Paste Sandwiches

You thought I was finished with the chicken, didn't you? But I did not forget there are still skin and giblets waiting for my attention. Keep them cold—they are to be ground together, mixed with mayonnaise and made into sandwiches for Tuesday's lunch. If there is not enough paste by doing this for your crowd, add a cup of chopped celery to the mix while grinding, or ½ cup almonds. Additional salt and pepper is quite necessary for the sandwiches.

(By Mary Moore)

SUNDAY
Cranberry Juice Cocktail
Roast Stuffed Shoulder of Pork
Brussels Sprouts Creamed Potatoes
Celery Hearts
Cheese Crust Apple Pie (Note)
Coffee

NOTE: You have heard of cheese pastry for apple pie before, but it seems to me this little stunt is being forgotten too soon. When pastry is at the stage where the lard and salt and flour have been mixed well with fingers, add about 1-3 to ½ cup finely grated old cheese, then add the ice water sparingly. Prepare apples and place in buttered pie dish (preferably pyrex), dot it with butter, sprinkle with white or brown sugar about 2-3 or ¾ cup, then cover with cheese pastry. Crimp edge and bake at 475 deg. Fahr. for first 10 minutes, reduce heat to 375 for about 25 minutes longer.

MONDAY (Hasty)
Cold Sliced Stuffed Shoulder of Pork
Hot Spiced Apple Sauce
Creamed Canned Green Beans and Kernel Corn
Celery Moulded in Tomato Jelly on Lettuce
Grapefruit Halves (sliced bananas between sections)
Toasted Crackers Coffee

TUESDAY (Vegetarian)
Baked Macaroni and Cheese in Individual Ramekins
Boiled Spanish Onions with Drawn Butter
Chopped Beets and Greens
Cabbage and Tomato Slaw
Chiffon Chocolate Pie (see note)
Coffee

NOTE: This pie can be made food for a queen. Follow the recipe precisely: Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes. Stir 2 squares chocolate or 6 tablespoons cocoa in ½ cup boiling water until melted and smooth. Dissolve the soaked gelatine in this mixture. Beat four egg yolks and add to the mixture, and ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat the four egg whites with another ½ cup sugar until all is still. When the gelatine mixture begins to thicken, cut and fold in the stiff egg whites and pour into the baked shell. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving garnish with whipped cream.

WEDNESDAY
Curry of Veal with Rice (note)
Chopped Buttered Spinach
Shredded Celery and Lettuce and Parsley Salad Mayonnaise
Custard Bread Pudding Coffee

NOTE: Order veal from leg or shoulder—1½ lbs. sliced and cut in pieces for serving. Slice 1 large onion and cook to light brown in 2 tablespoons butter, add 1¼ teaspoons curry and the meat, sprinkle with 2 tablespoons lemon juice and cover and cook 15 minutes over low heat, then add 2 cups tomato juice, season to taste, cover and simmer until meat is well done, adding water if required. Remove meat to platter bordered with hot fluffy rice, thicken gravy, pour over meat just before serving.

Husbands Cannot Be Rewon By Torturous Methods. Vinegar Is Poor Bait—Try Using Same Tactics That "Other Woman" Is Employing.

Dear Miss Dix—A very dear friend of mine has been married about eleven years. She has three children, a beautiful home, a car, pretty clothes, everything she wants except a faithful husband. About a year ago she found out that her husband had a girl friend and ever since she has made his home life a hell on earth. Fights with him from the time he comes home in the evening until he leaves for work the next morning. Says filthy things about the girl, which are not true and which makes him see red. Checks up on him every night when it is time for him to quit work until he gets home. Threatens to poison him if he doesn't break off with the girl, goes into hysterics, screams and all but throws a fit. I have told her repeatedly that she is going about breaking off this affair the wrong way, she insists that she is right. What do you think?

A FRIEND

ANSWER:

Your friend must have singularly little knowledge of human nature if she thinks she can win back her husband by torturing him. Vinegar never catches flies, and no man willingly seeks the society of a virago who spends her time berating him for his faults and making scenes that fill him with repulsion for her.

It would seem that any woman who wasn't an absolute idiot would know that by such conduct she was simply driving her husband farther away from her and handing him over, as a gift to the Other Woman. For she is forcing him to see her in the unlovely light of a shrew, a nagger and a villifier, while the Lady Love is all sweetness and flattery.

Also, it would seem that any woman with a grain of reason left would realize that if she wanted to keep a flighty man nailed to his own fireside she must make it comfortable, attractive and cheerful, and not a Judgment Bar where he is called upon to answer for all of his sins and weaknesses. There is mighty little inducement for a man to return home to a tear-sodden wife, who spends her time bawling him out, when there are so many places and gay ladies to go to.

I am not defending the philandering husband, nor am I minimizing the sorrows of the neglected wife. I am only trying to say that the wife who thinks that she can bludgeon her husband into loving her again, or make him see her again as his dream girl by lighting with him, is that she can float him back to his own hearthstone on her tears, makes the mistake of her life.

Men have a terror of scenes. They loathe being reproached for their faults. They hate weepy women who go about with a martyr look. And it is because so many wives use these methods in trying to bring back their wandering spouses, that they fail. For the way for a wife to deal with a philandering husband is not by making herself disagreeable, but by being more attractive than the Other Woman and making home the pleasantest place he can go to. Or else——

Dear Dorothy Dix—My fiance and I have been engaged for two years and we are very much in love with each other. At first we agreed that we would not marry until we could have a nice home, good furniture and a car, but now we feel that all we want is to be together If we marry it will mean making a home in one or two rooms, pinching pennies and doing without many things we want. Do you think we dare risk marriage on such a shoestring?

MARY

ANSWER:

Our parents did. Haven't you as much intestinal fortitude as they had? They didn't wait until they could have horses and buggies and fine furniture and pianos and were able to give cocktail parties before they set up homes of their own. And they managed to be happy and bring up families without even hearing of radios and automobiles, electric stoves, ice-boxes and beauty shops.

I don't see why it can't be done again, nor why any young couple who are healthy and strong and have jobs that will keep the wolf away from the door, should hesitate to marry and start life on the same plane that their parents did.

There can be a lot of happiness in a two-room flat, where a man and woman are working and hoping and planning together. I know a woman, whose husband is a multi-millionaire and one of the most famous men in this country, who says that the happiest time of her life was when she cooked and scrubbed in a little shack of a cottage and washed and ironed at night the shirt he wore the next day.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been a good wife to my husband and have done everything I knew how to make him happy and comfortable, and he has been kind to me except for one thing. He never gives me a present on my birthday or our anniversary or Christmas. I don't ask for much. I would be satisfied if he would just give me a 5-cent card, or something from the 5 and 10 cent store. I just want some little token of remembrance from him. He says I am acting like a child when I attach any importance to the fact that he never makes me a present. Should he do so, or am I really silly?

SAD WIFE.

ANSWER:

I supose it is foolish not to be able to take a sentimental so nc is, and to recognize that if he hasn't any sentiment or romance in his nature he is just built that way and can't help it, and that when he provides his wife with beefsteaks it is just as much an expression of love as if he sent her orchids.

But however true this may be, it is also true that women are emotional creatures who can never be satisfied with the dry husks of things. It is never enough for them that their husbands prove their affection for them by working their fingers to the bones to support them. They want some outward expression of love, some sign that they are still remembered, still desired. And

DOROTHY DIX.

Outstanding progress and unusual adventure of a thrilling or even sensational nature may be expected on this day, according to the strong Uranian complexion of the astral influences. There are likely to be sudden, surprising and dramatic events of far-reaching or radical effect on the life and its destiny, probably operating with whirlwind precipitancy. It is possible that the personal, emotional, or romantic relationships of life may feel the most throbbing responses to this swift and surprising visitation.

Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a year of thrilling experiences, both in their private and business life. There may be adventure, dramatic and romantic affairs of sudden and surprising force, which may prove revolutionary, devastating and breath-taking. In creative lines there may be much urge to original and extraordinary perhaps modernistic, expression.

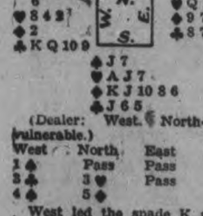
PREVENTING A SQUEEZE

STATISTICS on the squeeze plays made by clever declarers could not very well be compiled, because such plays occur too seldom to justify anybody being on hand to record them regularly. But if they could be, it probably would be found that a sizeable number could have been prevented. The partner of the squeezed player could stop some of them by holding his best card of one of the suits in which the squeeze operates. That would enable the man across the table to discard safely in that suit while holding his high cards in the other one.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
3 ♣	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♠
4 ♠	5 ♦

West led the spade K and Q and switched to the heart 8 when he should have led the club K. North played the heart 9, East the Q and South the A. Followed three high diamonds, the heart J, K and 5 for a club discard, then two more diamonds. When the last one was played, South also had two clubs, the dummy two clubs and the spade 9. West had two clubs and the spade A, and had to discard before dummy.

Tossing a club would enable South to play to the A, dropping the K and making the J good. Throwing the spade A would make dummy's 9 good, since East had discarded his spade 10 on one of the diamond leads.

Had East held on to the spade 10, West could have thrown away his A on the eleventh trick and retained his clubs. Who would ever think that a mere 10 would decide the fate of the contract, when held by the partner of a man who had rebid the suit at the level of four without ever hearing from his partner?

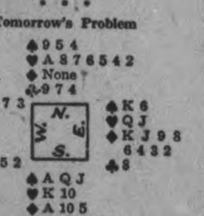
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Club and North 1-Heart on this deal, what should East then do?

STOP COMMUNICATION

WHEN YOU jump into the auction with a high call of your own very long suit, you build a spite fence which is difficult for your stronger opponents to climb. In effect, you shut off communication between them and compel them to guess at each other's holdings. It is pretty likely to force them into some compromise spot which is not nearly as good a contract as they could reach if they were not molested. They may finish too high, too low, in the wrong declaration or perhaps doubling you when they could make out better playing the hand themselves.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	1♥	5♦
Dbl

There could hardly be a more striking example of the difficulty into which a holder of a strong hand may be thrown by a high barrier bid. South, of course, could be reasonably sure of giving East a fairly bad beating, but he wondered whether it would produce more points than his side could make playing the hand.

Plenty of study could not make South confident even of what was the safest declaration for his side. North might not have very many hearts, and West might have the rest bunched against the side, so he was afraid of that suit. No Trump at as high a level as five was risky. The diamond ace might get knocked out in the first trick or so, and South might have to lose the lead once after that, in spades or hearts, before he had eleven tricks, in which event he would be slaughtered.

Actually, the grand slam was a laydown at hearts, clubs or No Trump, in view of the way the cards were distributed, but North and South could not find it out. They had to be satisfied with setting East four tricks at his 5-Diamonds doubled.

Tomorrow's Problem

If East takes two spades and shifts to the club J, how should South play for 4-Hearts?

Submarine Onslaughts Seek To Divert Trade To Germany

LONDON, March 23—(CP).—New German submarine onslaughts in vital shipping lanes brought increased British efforts today to persuade neutral vessels to join convoys and thus keep on the job of furnishing the food that means as much as munitions in Britain's war effort.

Typical of British reaction to the announcement that seven neutral ships have been sunk by submarines in two days was a News Chronical editorial that "neutrals know where safety lies—(in British convoys)—but they are slow to apply their knowledge."

Try To Divert Trade.

The fact six of the latest victims were Danish was seen by some circles as an indication Germany is trying to make Denmark divert her dairy products to German markets. Danish butter, bacon and eggs help supply the breakfast table of British soldier and civilian alike.

In 1938, British imports of Danish food included 128,000 tons of butter and 86,776,000 dozen eggs, about one-fourth and one-third, respectively, of total British consumption.

The latest Danish sinkings raised that country's losses to 28 ships totalling 59,309 tons, about four per cent. of her merchant fleet.

Suggesting the probability of stormier days ahead were reports of a large concentration of German submarines just outside Norwegian waters and the statement of a German commander to a Norwegian fishing captain that submarines soon

Reynaud Cabinet Survives Crisis

PARIS, March 23—(CP-Havas)—France's new inner "war cabinet" met today with the French Land and Naval Commanders-in-Chief, beginning its task of fighting the "total war" to final victory.

General Gamelin, Allied Commander-in-Chief, and Admiral Jean Darlan, French Naval Commander, sat in at the first meeting of the nine-man war committee.

Cabinet members attending were Premier Paul Raynaud, who presided; Vice-Premier Camille Chautemps; War Minister Edouard Daladier; Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi; Air Minister Laurent Eynac; Blockade Minister Georges Monnet; Finance Minister Lucien Lamoureux; Colonial Minister George Mandel, and Armament Minister Raoul Dautry.

At first the War Committee was planned to consist of eight men, but it was learned today that Blockade Minister Monnet, who is one of the three Socialists in the Cabinet, also will attend the thrice-weekly consultations.

Before the meeting of the War Committee, Daladier had a long talk with General Gamelin.

The new government started its work with the Paris press, Conservative and Left-wing alike, applauding the decision to retain office despite its slim majority in the vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

Five Deputies listed among those who abstained in the vote, announced today they are favorable to the Government, and one announced himself against. These change applied on the basis of yesterday's vote give the Government a majority now of 11, or 273 for, 157 against the 105 still listed as abstainers.

The meeting of the War Committee at the premier's office lasted 2½ hours. Immediately after it was announced a "Higher Committee of Information and Propaganda" is to be established, attached to the new Information Ministry headed by Ludovic-Oscar Frossard.

Chief of the Committee will be Jean Giraudoux, who has been

Give Leaders As Hostage In Peace Move

Co-operative Party Warns Against Moves To Stop War

LONDON, Mar. 23 — (CP). — A Co-operative Party resolution defining the peace aims of the movement and warning against influences seeking to stop the war with a patched-up peace was adopted by a card vote of 3,935,000 to 1,690,000 at the party's annual conference here to-day.

By 3,235,000 votes to 1,323,000 the delegates rejected an amendment condemning the war as Imperialistic and demanding an immediate armistice. The vote was preceded by a lively debate.

A satisfactory and lasting peace, the resolution said, could be negotiated with a German government prepared to substitute deeds for words, to restore independence to the Austrians, Czechs, and Poles, and to co-operate in building up a League or Federation of Nations to guarantee security to the peoples of the world.

Practical Idealism.

Alfred Barnes, M.P., who presided, said the statement represented practical idealism, which was consistent with co-operative success.

"Give this policy your overwhelming approval," he added, "so that we can become a determining party in British and international affairs."

Seconding the motion to approve the statement, Delegate White said if this war were not fought to a successful end there would be no liberty, either individual or collective, left in this country.

Clash Of Imperialism

Delegate Longden of Birmingham, moving the amendment, maintained that the war was merely a clash between Nazi Imperialism and British Imperialism. "Must blood be shed and millions go through misery for generations for that?"

Delegate Pugh of Brighton, seconding the amendment, claimed that if the labor and co-operative movements were to become dominant they must fight Fascist elements within the country itself.

J. Allison said: "We have no more right to claim that Poland should be free than Germany and Russia have to claim that India should be free."

T. W. Williams of London, mentioning that Germany had destroyed the Co-operative movement in Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, declared: "If we are faced with destruction of our own interests there is not a man among us who would not be prepared to fight in defence of them."

J. Agnew said everyone knew who would make the next peace treaty.

"It would be a good thing," he commented, "if each country could put up its own dozen or so men responsible for bringing about the morass into which Europe has fallen and offer them as hostages. That would be an easier way than sacri-

Denmark Lost Six Ships In 48 Hours

German Freighter Is Torpedoed By British Submarine

(By the Canadian Press.)

Denmark was the chief victim of German sea raiders in the week-ending March 22. The small Scandinavian agricultural country, a big exporter of bacon and dairy products to the British market, lost six ships of a total tonnage of 11,441 tons within 48 hours.

Britain lost but two vessels of a total of 1,808 tons, but announced that three further ships, because they are long overdue, must be considered lost. This brought the nation's losses announced during the week to a total of 8,834 tons.

Germany lost a ship of 4,947 tons which was torpedoed by a British submarine off Denmark. It was the first time a German vessel had been sunk by a British submarine since the war began.

The week's losses, as compiled by the Canadian Press:

Welcome Pilot Took Part In Air Base Raid

PORT HOPE, Ont., March 23.—(CP)—Dispatches from England referring to Mike, a tall Canadian aviator who took part in the Royal Air Force raid on the German air base of Sylt, led friends today to believe that Wilfred (Mike) Lewis of nearby Welcome, is the flyer mentioned.

The 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lewis of Welcome, three miles west of this Durham county town, went abroad in July, 1938 with nine other Canadian boys who had been accepted by the Royal Air Force before leaving Canada. He attended high school in Port Hope and was a draftsman for one year in a local industrial plant before signing up with the Air Force.

First in his class to fly solo, two months after arriving in England, he became squadron commander of a group of bombers and has taken part in leaflet raids over Germany, letters to his parents say.

First reports in which Mike and the name of a plane "Lord Haw Haw" were mentioned, led friends to believe it was Lewis, for previous to leaving here he told friends if he ever flew a plane it would be so named so Port Hope friends would recognize it.

Largest Bomber In World Almost Ready

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP).—The world's biggest plane, a bomber believed capable of flying across the Atlantic and back without stopping, is expected to take its place this summer in the United States army's air armada.

It is a 70-ton, $1,000,000 warplane which dwarfs the newest 42-ton trans-Pacific Clipper and is half again as large as the German-built DO'X, which carried 112 passengers.

Two years under construction in the strictest secrecy, the new sky monster is now so near completion that the army revealed yesterday a few guarded facts about it. The first test flights are scheduled for this summer on the Pacific coast, where the ship is being finished.

The plane will have a wingspread of over 210 feet, four engines, a speed of "over 200 miles an hour," and a cruising range of more than 6,000 miles. It is expected to carry a useful load of 28 tons, including bombs and fuel.

Hints that a super-plane was being constructed leaked out recently when the FBI revealed that some of the blue-prints for it had been stolen last year. Agents recovered them, however.

Snow Piled High On Roads Stopping Traffic

Farmers in all parts of the county looked out on snow-blocked roads on Friday morning and this morning many stretches of rural highway had not seen the track of a vehicle, since the storm started on Thursday night at ten o'clock.

Borne on the wings of a bitter cold north-east wind, the snow piled across roads and on the level a blanket ten inches thick was added to the winter's total. Whistling across Lake Chemong the snow practically covered the floating bridge and today only a few small patches of the railing were visible.

There was no traffic beyond the village of Bridgenorth on Friday and no vehicles have crossed the lake. Howard Quinn on the boundary between Otonabee and Douro reported last night that no cars or sleighs had passed his door during the day and in some places the snow stretched in a solid line from fence top to fence top four feet deep across the road.

Rural mail carriers were not on the job yesterday but will have to make their rounds today.

Berlin Prepares For Visit From Molotoff

BERLIN, March 23. — (AP). — There were indications in Berlin today that the German Foreign Office and the Russian Embassy are preparing for a visit by Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

Although yesterday, Good Friday, was a legal holiday, the personal staff of Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop worked feverishly, and it was a matter of common gossip in political circles that they were arranging all details for reception of the Russian Premier.

At the Russian Embassy cautious replies were made to the effect that "the exact date for events in the offing is not set yet."

Authorized spokesmen assured foreign correspondents that they could "enjoy a quiet Easter." This was taken to mean that Molotoff will not come to Berlin until next week at the earliest.

Gandhi Condemns O'Dwyer Slaying

BOMBAY, March 23. — (CP-Reuters)—Violence was condemned by Mohandas K. Gandhi today in an article on the assassination in London of Sir Michael O'Dwyer, former Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab.

"I should like," he wrote in his weekly newspaper Harijan, "every Indian to share with me shame at the act, and joy that the lives of three distinguished Englishmen were saved.

"If we are to fight fairly and squarely we must, as far as is humanly possible, make every Englishman feel he is as safe in our midst as in his own home.

"It fills me with shame and sorrow that for some time at least every Indian face in London will be suspect."

Ordered To Leave

Berlin, March 23 (AP)

DR. J. C. MEYER, financial correspondent for the newspaper Zurcher Zeitung, of Zurich, Switzerland, and treasurer of the Foreign Press Association in Berlin, has been given three days in which to leave Germany.

The order was in reprisal for Switzerland's having asked the correspondent of Voelkischer beobachter, official Nazi party daily, to leave Switzerland on a charge of reporting in a manner inimical to the interests of the Swiss nation.

75 New 'Planes Are Ready At Camp Borden

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., March 23.—(CP)—At this sprawling military camp today there is a concentration of service aircraft and personnel in the history of the Royal Canadian Air Force as men and machines are groomed to provide the nucleus for the start of the British Commonwealth air training plan.

About 75 fast new planes to train the Empire's war birds are attached to the air station here and a score or more growl through the skies day and night in flights over the surrounding countryside and into Western Ontario.

Practically all the 175 officers, including the class of 34 which graduated with their wings last Thursday, expect to become instructors in the training plan. Some, however, will proceed overseas on active service later.

With these officers nearly ready for instructional duties and any weaknesses in the planes being corrected in gruelling tests, this base is well advanced to making a major contribution to the successful

Social Crediters Take Lead In Ballot Count

EDMONTON, March 23—(CP). — The Social Credit Government supporters of Premier William Aberhart edged into the lead in the Alberta election today as the complicated counting of ballots progressed under the province's single vote system for rural ridings and proportional representation for the cities.

Only 27 seats out of 57 were decided early today, showing 17 Social Credit candidates elected and 10 Independents, the latter a coalition of Conservatives, Liberals and Unity candidates.

In 30 rural constituencies the results are still in doubt and will be for some time yet, as the ballot boxes move slowly over snow-packed roads towards the returning officers.

Lead in 19 Seats

In those constituencies that are still in doubt the Social Crediters have a lead in 19 seats, Independents in 10, and Labor in one.

Election of eight members was announced yesterday on top of 19 announced on election night, Thursday.

Lady Tweedsmuir Is Presented With Mink Coat

OTTAWA, March 23 — (CP). — When Lady Tweedsmuir returns to England shortly, she will take with her a handsome mink coat, the gift of Canadian women, as tangible evidence of the affection in which she is held in the Dominion.

Small contributions from women all over the country made possible the presentation of the gift to Her Excellency yesterday. The widow of Canada's Governor-General, who died last month will return to the United Kingdom soon and preparations for her departure are being made at Government House.

Seven representative women waited on Lady Tweedsmuir and asked her to accept the gift. Mrs. Ernest Lapointe, wife of the Justice Minister, made the presentation and told Lady Tweedsmuir how much her departure was regretted from one end of the Dominion to the other.

That as many women as possible might participate in the gift it had been asked that contributions be small and money poured in from the Yukon to Cape Breton. Small amounts in stamps came from the isolated Peace River and Cariboo districts which Lady Tweedsmuir helped with her prairie library scheme.

Seven British Soldiers Given Polish Cross

PARIS, March 23.—(CP Havas)—Polish Premier Wladislaw Sikorski yesterday pinned the Polish "Cross of Courage" on the breasts of seven British and 29 French officers and one French private for heroism during the Polish-German campaign last September.

The decoration, the premier-in-exile said, "Is the same as that which awaits the heroes who held out in Poland to the uttermost limit of their strength, and for those who still are fighting to save the indomitable soul of immortal Poland."

Attired In Officer's Uniform Lindsay Police Arrest Man

LINDSAY, Ont., March 23 (CP)—George M. Barr, 39, of London, who told police he was formerly an officer in the Ordinance Corps at London, being discharged in February, was arrested here Thursday on a charge of false pretences and was remanded until next Friday when he appeared today before Magistrate E. A. Gee. Accused appeared in the court room in part of his officer's uniform, the tunic and cap being held by police.

Besides being charged with several local offenses, a warrant of false pretences is held by Toronto police. Accused is alleged to have purchased a lieutenant's uniform in a department store in Toronto.

Police Chief Ralph Lawler said today that Barr had come to Lindsay, attired in the uniform of a lieutenant, and had posed as a representative of the department of national defence. He claimed, the chief said, to be authorized to purchase land as a proving grounds for guns.

Barr was said to have registered at a local hotel, hired several local men at 50 cents per hour, purchased a car, $75 worth of clothing and opened accounts in two local banks, all with cheques.

One of the banks wired Ottawa for information on the accused, police said, and informed the authorities when it was discovered there was no account in Barr's name. The car salesman looking for his car, found the car and Barr on the highway near the town.

They took the car away and left the accused walking up the highway carrying his suitcase. The police later arrested Barr at a farm house.

Safe Cracksmen Evade Windsor Police

WINDSOR, Ont., Mar. 23 — (CP)—Believed to be members of the notorious "sledge hammer gang," safe cracksmen evaded a police net thrown about the Barlet Building this morning when they were heard working on two insurance company safes in the office building.

More than a dozen officers surrounded the building at Pelissier and London Streets, but when a thorough search was made of the six-storey structure, there was no sign of the robbers.

Prior to the police interruption, the marauders had succeeded in forcing their way into two offices and had smashed their way into the safe of the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

Officials of the company refused to reveal the exact amount of money taken from their strongbox, but assured police the total would not be substantial. Their office is on the fifth floor.

The thieves also forced their way into the fourth-floor office of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, but were not able to penetrate the

Easter Sunday To Be Cold Probabilities Say

(By the Canadian Press.)

Those annual parades of Easter finery will be held to-morrow in decidedly cold weather throughout Canada. In most sections fur coats and overshoes were indicated as proper Easter garb — at least for warmth.

From coast to coast to-day, Christmas-like weather prevailed. Temperatures ranged from a 35-below at White River, Ont., to around 40 above on the Pacific Coast. Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Northern Ontario all reported sub-zero or near zero temperatures.

In Ontario and Quebec, hundreds of ski enthusiasts prepared for a week-end of the sport. Generally throughout Southern Ontario highways were open after a week of plentiful snowfalls and high winds, but many country roads remained blocked. Hundreds of Good Friday travellers, throughout Ontario, were either snowbound or forced to turn back as wind-driven snow filled the roads.

Hungarian Premier Is In Rome For Talks With Mussolini

ROME, March 23.—(AP).— Hungarian Premier Count Pal Teleki arrived in Rome to-day for conferences with Premier Mussolini and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano

Political observers said Teleki's visit might play an important part in the plans of the Rome-Berlin axis during the next few weeks.

The authoritative Fascist editor Virgino Gayda said in Il Giornale D'Italia last night that Italian policy is still directed at preserving peace in the Balkans.

Speaking of Premier Teleki's coming conservations here with Premier Mussolini and Count Ciano, Gayda said Italy's Balkan attitude had not changed since Teleki and Ciano met at Venice last January.

"Nonetheless," he said, "the Rome conversations will represent a new step in the development of a policy of collaboration between the two friendly states.

"Italo-German friendship is directed against nobody; on the contrary it tends to establish a broad collaboration in the Danubian and Southeastern Europe zone. Italian policy continue sto have as its purpose the encouragement of increasingly cordial relations between the states in that zone, and to preserve peace there."

Sons Of Poor Parents Stick Best At Jobs Says Professor; Maybe Because They Have To

New Orleans, March 23 (AP)

RICH YOUTHS are born with two strikes on them in the working world, says a psychologist who found that poor boys stick to a job better.

Dr. Lawrence Whisler suggested before the Southern Psychological Association that it may be about time to begin slightly ignoring the younger generation.

Pampered children, said Dr. Whisler, who tested freshmen at Louisville University, seem to "lack a mission in life" with tendencies to avoid work and "just dream of fame and fortune.

He suggested that perhaps "the current emphasis on care and protection of children should be balanced with an emphasis on the art of science of ignoring children."

A boy's ability to finish a job he started, Dr. Whisler found, would be aided greatly if he had more than three brothers or sisters, lived in a crowded apartment and if:—

His father not only did not own the family home but possessed only an old automobile or none at all, made less than $1,500 a year, didn't take the family on vacations, had no servants and wasn't any better off financially since the boy was born.

France Is Putting Into Service New Type Of Pursuit Plane

PARIS, March 23—(CP-Havas). — Reports of increased air force activity due to improved weather coincided today with an announcement that France is putting a new type of pursuit plane into service.

Designed for quick mass production, the new plane is extremely easy to manoeuvre and is speedy and powerfully armed. It replaces the "Morane 405," which scored numerous successes in the past six months.

Although the usual pursuit planes have gone up during the past 24 hours to protect reconnaissance flights, no air combat was reported. Observation and photographing flights were numerous on both sides.

French planes carried out distance reconnaissance flights in addition to some immediately behind the Westwall. The Germans flew over Alsace and sent reconnaissance planes over Northern France.

On land, the front between the Rhine and the Moselle Rivers remained virtually unchanged. Patrol activity was about normal in all sectors, with no particular incidents except in the Blies region, where French advance posts repulsed German patrols which had come too near.

"Activity of patrols east of the Saar" River was reported in this morning's communique from the French high command.

Pictures Fail To Show Damaged Base

LONDON, March 23—(CP). — The Air Ministry said last night that reconnaissance planes had been able by observation to confirm the success of the long bombing attack on the German air base at Hornum, Island of Sylt, but that photographs had proved of "no value in indicating the extent of material damage."

The scouting aircraft returned on Wednesday to the scene of the raid to take pictures of the island base.

A communique said:

"Royal Air Force aircraft carried out a reconnaissance of the Island of Sylt on Wednesday morning with the view of confirming the results of the previous night's attack.

"Our aircraft were able by observation to confirm the success of the operation. Photographs also were taken, but owing to opposition by anti-aircraft guns and fighters it was impossible for aircraft to approach close enough to the objective to enable satisfactory photographs to be obtained in the atmospheric conditions prevailing.

"The photographs taken have proved to be of no value in indicating the extent of material damage inflicted in the course of this heavy attack."

Young Tory Chief Sees Election Soldiers' Last Voice In Destiny

"We young men who are getting ready to fight in this war are vitally interested in next Tuesday's election," declared Gordon Ford of Toronto, Dominion president of the Young Conservatives, in a speech during the variety program staged by the Peterborough Young Conservative Association in the Canadian Legion Hall on Thursday night. "It will be our last chance," he added, "to say anything about the kind of Government we will have to look to during the reconstruction period after the war."

The program, which was directed by Curly Gibson as master of ceremonies, included song numbers by Mr. Gibson himself, tap dancing by Jimmy Goslin, piano numbers by George and Frances Nicholls, magic by Bob Hardie, Hawaiian music by Helen Ludbrook Galvin and her Aloha Serenaders, marimba solos by Patsy Connell, and dance duets by Shirley Garner and Kenneth Simmons.

L. C. Farley, president of the Young Conservative Association, was chairman for the speaking part of the program and Gordon Ford was introduced by John A. Bradshaw.

"Mr. King is appealing to us to re-elect him on his record in peace and war," said Mr. Ford, "and the strange part about it is that he has never spoken a word during the campaign about his peacetime record and he has covered his war record up by dissolving Parliament and keeping the information away from the public."

Unemployed Youth.

"Mr. King has failed," he continued, "to do anything about the tragic situation that has existed during the past few years of youth unable to find jobs. Last year there were 450,000 young people without work and 40,000 to 50,000 young men were transients, travelling around the country by hitch-hiking or riding freights, sleeping in hostels and police stations. Most of them did not want to bum, all they wanted was work, but there was nothing for them. And Mr. King either failed to realize the tragedy of the situation or he was incapable of finding a solution for the problem.

"Now thousands of those transient young men are in uniform and thousands more are ready to join the army when there is a chance. What about these men when the war is over and they come back? What about the young fellow in the Army now who never had a job? How can they look with any confidence to the King Government for assistance and sympathetic treatment during the post-war readjustment when that Government has failed so completely to do anything to meet the problem during the days of peace?"

"National Government," continued the speaker, "on the other hand offers youth hope; it offers action it offers a broad comprehensive program directed by a Minister of Youth Welfare . Dr. Manion has adopted some of the best features of the recommendations of the Purvis Commission, which Mr. King merely pigeon-holder, and he includes them in the most comprehensive and constructive youth program ever offered by a political party in Canada."

Gordon K. Fraser, National Government candidate, spoke briefly at the conclusion of Mr. Ford's address.

Disowned Order Re-enacts The Crucifixion

SANTA FE, N.M., Mar. 23 — (AP). — The sins of the Penitentes once more have been washed away in blood.

In the Spanish-speaking Dobe villages of New Mexico's northern mountains, many a brother lies today, racked by pain, but happy in the certainty of redemption.

For, by custom centuries old, the Brothers of the Blood of Christ—Los Hermanas de Rangre de Cristo—have re-enacted the Saviour's last agonies.

Through the 40 days of Lent, reaching a climax in Holy Week and Good Friday, they have atoned for thorny crowns, and the ultimate ritual of the Cross.

The flagellant rituals of the Third Order of St. Francis of Old Spain, which the Penitentes follow, long since were disowned by the Mother Catholic Church. But they persist in a powerful lay brotherhood in the isolated areas of Northern New Mexico and Southern Colorado.

Do Charitable Work.

Through most of the year, the brothers devote themselves to helping the sick and the needy and to burying the dead. During Lent their self-immolation reaches its peak.

Witnesses of the Holy Week ceremonies have described the processions of the flagellants, each penitent wielding a heavy scourge of yucca—the Spanish bayonet—over one shoulder and then the other, until the blood from his bare, lacerated back soaks the thin cotton drawers that are his only garment.

Other brothers bind themselves tightly with horsehair rope, lash cruelly-thorned cacti to their flesh and crawl on cactus strewn paths to kiss the Cross, erected on some local Calvary.

Legend says that once nails were used and that many a "Cristo" did not survive his ordeal, but church historians say there is no record of a crucifixion death.

Reynaud

head of the Information Service since last July. Creation of an Information Ministry was one of the main demands of critics of the Daladier Government, and Reynaud met this demand when he formed his ministry.

After a crisis that saw former Premier Daladier fall Wednesday, Reynaud succeeded him Thursday and barely survived his first test in Parliament yesterday, the new government began to gain strength.

Most of the press rallied behind him with praise for sticking to his post against strong opposition rather than plunge the country into the confusion of another crisis, and criticized the hostile deputies for playing politics in time of war.

Reynaud's statement to the Chamber yesterday plotted a course closely paralleling that of Daladier's—vigorous prosecution of the war, but "sparing in lives," and a relentless effort to "crush" the Communist party, which he called "an organization of treason."

After hearing his message with little evidence of enthusiasm, 268 deputies voted approval for the former finance minister's coalition government, 156 voted against it and 111 others refused to vote and had to be considered hostile.

"Patchwork Job"

Chief criticisms from rightist deputies were that the cabinet was a "patchwork job" and that inclusion of Socialist members might make the government lean to dangerously to the left.

"France expected a war cabinet and instead it got a smart patchwork job," Deputy Galimand said.

The presence of the Socialists, he said, might embarass the government "in the necessary repression of Communist propaganda."

Deputy Albert Paulin, Socialist, shouted back: "How would you expect to achieve national unity if you exclude from national action the strongest party in the country."

(The Socialist party under Leon Blum, constitutes the largest bloc in the Chamber, although it has not an absolute majority.)

Reynaud will have a breathing spell until April 2 since Parliament will be in recess until that date.

The cabinet's decision to risk its future on the narrow balance was arrived at during a special session held immediately after the vote. It was foreshadowed in the Chamber by Reynaud's assertion that "we will hold fast, with teeth clenched, because we are animated by the will to fight and the certainty of victory."

15 Below Coldest.

Ontario temperatures ronged from 15 below to 15 above and some districts reported the worst Good Friday snowstorm in history. Ten inches of snow fell in parts of Eastern Ontario. A bright sun shone and continued cold weather was forecast for the week-end.

Many accidents throughout the Dominion, including at least one fatal one, were blamed on blizzards. At Hamilton, Mrs. Mary J. Dawdy, 80, of that city, died in hospital to-day of injuries suffered yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding collided with another during a snowstorm.

Quebec reported prospects were that Laurentian skiing would enjoy one of its best week-ends of the season. Extra trains were required to carry the sports enthusiasts to the mountains.

A blizzard covered the Halifax district with snow. A 50-mile-an-hour gale, carrying in a heavy snowfall, buffeted the district early today. It was the highest wind velocity recorded in Halifax this winter.

CONSTIPATED? Laxative Should Work Where Trouble Lies

Blame your big bowel when you need a laxative. That's where most constipation occurs, and where quick help is needed. So why take calomel, salts, oils or some other dose that works first somewhere else in the bowels, possibly upsetting the whole bowel tract? Instead, try CHOCOLATE FLAVOR CASCARETS. They concentrate their help in the big bowel. And because they contain cascara, said to give "nearest to natural action" of any cathartic, they bring gentle relief in 10 to 12 hours, or overnight. They taste like fine milk chocolate, and are economical to use. Twelve tablets, only 25c. For free postpaid sample, write "Cascarets", Dept. C-7, Windsor, Ont (Advt.)

BURCHELL'S PLATE

CANBERRA—(CP). — The motor licence of Charles J. Burchell, Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, bears the letters "HCC" — High Commissioner of Canada—and no number. The British Commissioner's plate read "HCUK".

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Stores or any druggist, a package of Hemrold and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemrold is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost. —(Advt.)

N. York Woman Of 50 'Fixer' For Murder Gang

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—An unsmiling, sleepy housewife who doubled as a bail bond broker was accused yesterday by Brooklyn District Attorney William O'Dwyer as the "most important" member of a "fixing" family for a wholesale "murder-for-cash" syndicate.

The widening investigation fo the syndicate to whom authorities lay at least thirty gangland assassinations already has resulted in murder indictments against seven persons.

O'Dwyer's new accusations were made as a grand jury at Monticello, N.Y., returned two sealed indictments charging five persons with first-degree murder as a result of two gangland "rubouts" in Sullivan county.

Two of those named in the indictments were dapper Harry (Pittsburg Phil) Strauss and Irving Cohen, a player of tough-guy bits in the movies under the name of Jack Gordon. Names of the others were withheld, although detectives said two Brooklyn gangsters, now believed hiding in Florida, were believed involved in the killings.

O'Dwyer declared that 50-year-old Mrs. Lena Frosch frequently falls asleep as she waits in police stations. Her husband, Israel, and their son, Abraham, had been the keystone of "fixing."

"The fixing department of the mob was in the hands of the three Froschs, and Mrs. Frosch was the most important of the three," O'Dwyer charged. "I have found that in every instance where there was a hint of a fix, an attempted fix, or where a fix was made in connection with the affairs of this gang, some one or all of the Froschs were in the middle."

Operated Still, Man Fined $100

TWEED, March 23—In addition to one closed court case held before J. L. Lloyd in the local police court on Thursday afternoon, cases ranged from arson to theft and receiving stolen goods, issuance of N.F.S. cheques and vagrancy.

Henry Sharkey appeared before the magistrate charged with operating a still for the purpose of manufacturing illicit liquor. A fine of $100.00 and costs was levied by the magistrate, and in default, the accused was given three months in the county jail.

Clifford Woods of the township of Elzevir, charged with breaking into the residence of Mrs. Annie St. Charles, Elzevir township resident, and stealing property to the value of $175.00, pleaded guilty, and as he had three previous charges against him, a sentence of six to nine months was handed out by the magistrate.

Floyd Woodcock, Elzevir township resident, was sentenced to 14 days in the county goal, when he pleaded guilty to the charge of receiving the stolen goods from Clifford Woods.

Mrs. Albert Sherry, Tweed resident, appeared before Magistrate Lloyd, charged with shooting a brown Spaniel dog, valued at $15.00, which was owned by Ernest Blakely. Mr. Blakely accepted payment of $10.00 as the value of the dog, while Mrs. Sherry was handed a fine and costs of $29.50 and given until the end of the week to pay the charges. The animal, which was on Colborne street, was recently shot by Mrs. Sherry, wto killed the animal, in attempting to scare the dog away from their property. The animal happened to be on the common roadway when the incident occurred.

Arthur King, alias Rayne, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd charged with vagrancy. Police Constable Clair J. Hayes, found the accused wandering at night unable to give a satisfactory account of himself. He was also found to be acting in a pugnacious manner when approaching a number of local housewives for a meal. Upon investigating, it was found that the accused had 15 criminal charges at Peterborough, and a total of 18 charges, which were read before the accused. King's record commenced in Peterborough in August, 1922. The accused requested the magistrate to send him away for treatment, as he was a drug addict, however, instead of complying with his request the magistrate sentenced him to one month in the county goal.

Arthur Kleinsteuber, resident of Sulphide was assessed a fine and costs of $20.75 for keeping a common gaming house.

Messrs Henry Bovard, William Duquette, and Sanford Mastin, all of the village of Flinton, appeared before the magistrate, charged with disorderly conduct at Tweed. Bovard paid a fine and costs of $10.75. Duquette and Mastin were sentenced to 14 days in the county goal, for failure to pay the fines.

G. H. Mitchell of Trenton, pleaded not guilty to the charge of issuing a worthless cheque to Fred Trudeau of Tweed, in the amount of $70.25.

Mr. B. F. Joyce, bank manager at Trenton, gave evidence of cheque being returned and produced the accused's account, which at any time only showed a small balance. The accused was ordered to make restitution of $64.90 within three months time, in default of which a sentence will be meted out.

Two Canadians Attacked By Chinese

PEIPING, China, March 23—(CP Cable)—The British Embassy here today protested to the Japanese Embassy concerning an attack Tuesday at Changteh, Honan Province, on two Canadian missionaries and a British Vice-Consul.

The Canadian, Dr. R. Gordon Struthers of Galt, Ont., and Rev. G. K. King of New Brunswick, in company with D. J. B. Robey, the Vice-Consul, had gone to Changteh to investigate charges that property of United Church of Canada had been abused since the missionaries were driven from the town last year.

Arriving at Changteh Tuesday they first called upon the Mayor and then stopped at a Japanese hotel where, during dinner in company with a Japanese official, the party heard a Chinese mob arrive outside, shouting anti-British slogans.

The Japanese departed to summon Japanese gendarmes who were five minutes' walking time away, but were allegedly delayed in arriving. In the meantime the mob broke down a hotel partition and beat Mr. Robey and Mr. King with bamboo poles. The gendarmes, on arriving, dispersed the crowd.

Investigation showed two mission houses owned by the United Church had been burned and looted despite the fact they were formally handed over last year to the local Sino-Japanese authorities.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins By Rev. E. R. James

WHY TO MARY MAGDALENE?
NOW when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom He had cast seven devils.—St. Mark 16; 9.

Do you ever strive to read this beautiful story with imagination, instructed imagination? If so, you will see how true it is.

Jesus appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom He had cast seven devils." The Lord appeared first to a woman, a woman whose character had been far from reliable; an unstable, excitable, a highly neurotic woman we would say today.

Above all, remember the Jewish opinion about a woman. Every devout Jew, when he prayed, said: "Lord, I thank Thee that Thou hast not made me a woman." Moreover, this Gospel of St. Mark, the first written, makes its appeal to the Roman, whose ideas of womankind were very similar. So you can understand how natural it was for the Apostles to refuse to accept her story. "They are idle tales," according to St. Luke. Can we afford to throw stones? If you are over fifty your grandmother had neither a vote nor could hold property at her marriage. The law did not consider her fit for such responsibility.

The Lord appeared first to Mary Magdalene because she loved Him. She was in deep sorrow because her Master was dead. This was the overwhelming thought in her mind. Nothing else could enter in. When she saw Him she did not recognize Him. How true is the Gospel writer to the facts. She was not expecting Him. She could only think of the dead Christ Whose Body she thought had been carried away. Modern psychology accepts this truth.

Also He is changed to some degree. "He appeared unto them in another form," is the explanation. He is the same yet not the same. His life is now the resurrection life. He has not come back to live on this earth in physical form. "He is risen." He is the risen Lord and Christ. God raised Him from the dead.

Once more let us meditate upon the fact that the Lord appeared first to Mary Magdalene because she loved Him. The Lord lays down a spiritual law in that upper room: "He that loveth Me shall be loved of My Father, and I will love him and will manifest Myself to him." St. John 14; 21.

You fell in love with that girl and she with you. You opened your heart to her as you did to none other because you loved her. "You manifested yourself to her because you loved her." Others may look upon you from another standpoint. But she knows you in your true inwardness; your love, tenderness, patience and self denial.

This appearance of Our Lord to Mary Magdalene is an everlasting truth. She loved Him; she needed Him in her hour of sorrow. He appeared first to her.

Perhaps ere you read this the storm may have broken with its awful devastation and horror. There may be days of anxiety and sorrow for you. Mary Magdalene cries to you from her own experience: "Lift up your heart for the Lord will draw near to you even as He did to me. He is a Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. He manifests Himself to you because you love Him and He loves you. You need Him in your hour of desolation and His heart is full of compassion for you. He walks to you over the troubled waters and whispers: "It is I, be not afraid."

In your own experience you will discover the fact that "Christ is risen indeed." He hath appeared unto you as He did to Mary Magdalene.

CHRIST IS RISEN INDEED.

Highlights Of S.S. Lesson

THE SEPLUCHRE: TRIMPHY OVER DEATH
HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 24 is Matthew 27::57-28:15, the Golden Text being I Corinthians 15:20, "Now hath Christ been risen from the dead, the first-fruits of them that are asleep.)

EVEN AFTER Jesus was crucified and put in the tomb, the high priests and Pharisees were not content. They must have known in their hearts that it was no ordinary man whom they had crucified. They came together before Pilate and asked him to see that they had an adequate guard set about Jesus' tomb, as "we remember the deceiver said, while He was yet alive, After three days I will rise again." Pilate evidently had but little patience with them, for he answered them shortly, "Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can."

So the tomb was sealed and the watch was set, but early Sunday morning, after the Jewish Sabbath, the two Marys came to the tomb with spices to anoint the body. They found that a great earthquake had opened the tomb, causing the guards to lie as dead men, and the Son of Man had risen, even as He had said. An angel, whose "countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow," sat upon the stone that formed the tomb's door, and said to the startled women, "Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for He is risen, as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay. And go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead; and behold; He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him; lo, I have told you."

Run With Tidings

So the women ran from the sepulchre with fear and great joy, to tell the disciples the joyful tidings. And as they went Jesus met them, saying, "All hail." And the happy women came and held Him by the feet and worshipped Him.

The soldiers on watch at the tomb, after they were recovered somewhat from their swoon into which the earthquake had thrown them, ran to the high priests and told them all that had happened. They must have been alarmed, and so they hushed the soldiers up by giving them large sums of money, and told them to say to anyone who inquired about the matter, "His disciples came by night, and stole Him away while we slept." Thus telling the men to lie to possibly save their own skins. If this affair comes to the governor's ears, they told the soldiers, we will persuade him it is all right and protect you.

The soldiers took the money and did as they were told. They must have been glad to get out of the matter so easily.

It would be interesting to know what became of the high priests, scribes and Pharisees. What were their individual lives after this event? Were they happy? Did they prosper, or were one and all haunted by this Man whom they had so cruelly and vengefully killed and by the picture of Him standing so quietly before his judges and under the insults and blows of the crowd. Don't you suppose they had many fearful moments, especially after they were told by the soldiers of His resurrection?

Easter always is a joyous time. Even when it is an early Easter like the one this year, there is a promise of warmth in the air, with new life springing up in place of the old. On top of this is the assurance that our Lord is not dead. He is risen. No matter what discouragements the world is meeting at this time, we must have faith that out of all this tragedy and grief, too, the Lord will rise and make all the earth once more rejoice.

King Hands Out Maundy Money

LONDON, March 23—(CP).—King George VI for the first time in his reign personally contributed maundy money today to 45 poor men and a like number of women at the ancient annual ceremony at Westminster Abbey. Queen Elizabeth accompanied him.

The sovereign usually is represented by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the only previous personal appearances in recent times were those of George V in 1932 and Edward VIII in 1936.

Church dignitaries accompanied the King to the church where he walked between two lines of recipients. To each he hand a tiny crimson and white leather bag containing 45 pence in specially minted silver, and two, three and fourpenny pieces. The number of recipients and number of pennies given equals the King's age. (He will be 45 next Dec. 14.)

The Resurrection

"Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first-fruits of them that are asleep."—I Cor. 15:20.

The Passion of Jesus

Who was it in the Garden prayed alone?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.
Who was it there as sinner stood
To meet the anger of His God,
And sweat for me great drops of Blood?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.

Who was it in the judgment stood alone?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.
Who was it there in Pilate's hall
Though he could find no fault at all,
Yet for His death they still did call?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.

Who was it bore the mocking there alone?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.
For me the Crown of thorns He wore,
For me the cruel stripes He bore.
What wondrous love, could He do more?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.

Who was it bore the cross for me alone?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.
Between two thieves on cross of wood
'Twas there He shed His precious blood,
For there they nailed the Son of God.
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.

Who was it conquered death and hell alone?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.
Who was it took the life He gave,
And rose triumphant from the grave,
And now He lives to bless and save?
It was Jesus, it was Jesus my Lord.

Firm Foundation Of Character Being Removed

Schools and universities that teach boys and young men to doubt the truth of the Bible and of religion, are taking away the firmest foundations of character, Rev. A. Talbot Hindley told Kiwanians at their luncheon meeting at the Empress Hotel Thursday.

He warned of the national disaster that results from such a policy in schools, and pointed to Germany and Russia as proof of his statement. For the past 100 years, he said, the spades of archaeologists have been digging in the Holy Land without once uncovering evidence that did not tally exactly with Biblical records. On the other hand, those same spades had turned up a great deal of evidence corroborating Biblical accounts.

He urged the necessity of a Christian attack on Germany, and said that only such an attack could be successful.

Rev. Mr. Hindley, a padre in World War I. who is on a preaching tour of Canada and the United States, recalled many incidents of religious conviction felt by soldiers he had known. He was introduced by Adjutant Norman Buckley and Rev. E. W. Young moved a vote of thanks.

A highlight of the meeting was a preview of the operetta, Jack and the Bean Stalk, to be presented next week by the young people of St. Luke's Church. Three original melodies, composed by Queenie Hope of this city, were sung and two members of the chorus danced a ballot number composed by Miss Leone Comstock, who introduced the artists. The operetta was written by Miss Hope.

Triumph Over Death — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 27:57-28:6

The day after Jesus' crucifixion the chief priests and Pharisees went to Pilate and asked him for a special guard for the tomb for, they said, He has said, "After three days I shall rise again." Pilate told them to use the guard and seal the tomb, which they did.

Early on the morning of Sunday, after the Jewish Sabbath, the two Marys, Mary Magdalene and the mother of James and Joseph, went to the tomb with spices to annoint the body of their Lord, but an earthquake had rolled away the stone, and an angel told them Jesus had risen.

The women "departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring His disciples word,' says Matthew. As they went, behold Jesus met them, saying, "All Hail." And they came and held him by the feet and worshipped Him.

The guards, having been rendered "as dead' by the earthquake, ran to the chief priests and told them, asking what they should do. They were given money and told to say the disciples stole the body while the guards slept.

In The Hands Of The Voters

The voters of Canada have matters in their own hands on Tuesday, March 26. The issues have been explained to the electors, and it cannot be truthfully claimed that censorship of war time has prevented criticism; speakers have been permitted to say what they desired and they have gone the limit.

The campaign has been pretty much centred around the war effort. As we see it the election is to decide whether Hon. Robert Manion is more capable of carrying on during war time than the present Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King.

The Government claims it has acted at all times in close working co-operation with the British War Department, and that troops are going overseas as rapidly as places are provided for their care and final training.

Dr. Manion asserts the war effort has not been sufficient, and that it has been mismanaged, and he feels the people are not satisfied with the magnitude or enthusiasm of our present efforts.

It is an issue where few people have direct information of their own. In forming opinions and making decisions they are forced to rely on such facts or statements as may be made during the campaign by those who profess to have a knowledge of such matters. War effort is something which ranges clean across the continent, and it cannot be as definitely seen as the erection of a new building or a new bridge.

This much we do know—that for years Canada has been a nation at peace; we have known there has been nothing to fear from our immediate neighbor to the South; we have not been living in an atmosphere of fear and for that reason no government, Liberal or Conservative, has been called upon or felt the need of bringing our supply of armament up to the advanced stage of readiness for immediate participation in another European war.

During that time there have been plenty of occasions when criticism has been directly levelled at any government which was disposed to spend money for the erection of new armouries. Our navy, not impressively large at any time, has been made the butt for plenty of light talk. And all these things were done because as a people we did not realize the need for any more machinery of defence. In plain fairness to the government we do not believe it possible that when a European war broke we could have reasonably expected to find everything ready and waiting for an army eight times as large as what we had been maintaining in times of peace.

Like a number of other observers we regard this election as a straight party fight and there are no apologies offered for that observation. We believe in the survival of the party system because we have not yet developed anything better by which the country can be governed. The campaign has been bitter, but common sense is something which is widely distributed and the people can be trusted to make a wise decision.

As The Finns See It

When the question of bringing 100,000 Finns to Canada was discussed the Examiner approved of the general idea, but coupled with that the word of warning that the people of Finland might have ideas of their own. It was unlikely they would want to leave their country when so much of it was wrecked.

Later advices show that is how they feel about it. The Finnish newspapers agree there was wholesome generosity in the offer by Premier Hepburn to make land available in Northern Ontario, but from that point on the trend of explanation is that the people of Finland have something more serious to attend to at home.

Nor do they mince words at all. They speak like this: "To leave the country at this time would be tantamount to treason."

After getting that view one is even better able to understand the people of Finland. They were willing to fight and die for their country, and today they are ready to start putting it in order and shifting some 400,000 of their people to new land and new homes. Possibly we have at best only a meagre conception of the damage which calls for mending. That little nation was bombed without respite for 105 days. Hospitals, schools, public buildings, homes—shattered and smashed, and it is to the work of bringing order and life out of such shambles that the Finns have set their hand today. That's why they will not be coming to Ontario. They would have been welcome here, but we think more of them for having refused our invitation.

Don't Do It Again

United States Minister to Canada, James H. R. Cromwell, has been officially told not to do it again. He delivered an address in Toronto in which he said it was imperative that the Allies should win the war. There wasn't any doubt about it. It was printed in newspapers all over the continent and Mr. Cromwell did not rush in to say he had been misquoted.

United States began to bubble and boil, and in some sections at Washington the lid popped right off. Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts wrote a letter to the Secretary of State, and in one place he reached this high level of overblown rhetoric:

"The speech was intended to incite the American people to enter the present war in Europe and was a seditious utterance. It was the speech of an alien propagandist, not of a loyal American representative."

It may be the Tinkham individual coming as he does from Massachusetts is certain that he spoke for the spirit of '76. In the cradle of American independence the people of other years were prepared to fight against what they considered to be injustice, and we have always been of the opinion that they had good enough reasons for fighting. But none of that now.

The totalitarian states of Europe can give hell to all or any of the little nations, but shush, shush—there must be never a word said about that.

Sweden and Norway preserved their neutrality just recently, and as a result Finland went down to a defeat she did not deserve.

That lesson on preserving neutrality has not made any impression on the Tinkham from Massachusetts. He's all for it. Britain and France can go down if they so desire, and United States can remain as the one democracy of importance to make its way as best it can, but there must not be a word said.

It has developed so far that Mr. Cromwell has not been recalled; he received a message telling him to observe the rules and not do it again. Of course rules are rules, but the truth is James Cromwell by his plain speaking has put himself off to a mighty fine start in Canada. Massachusetts papers please copy.

Hitler Wants Men

Germany wants more territory. More of it in Europe and more of it by way of the return of former colonial possessions. Hitler says his people are so many that they need room for expansion.

Hitler in turn is closely bound up with Stalin, and Stalin can do nothing of which Hitler does not approve.

Stalin is the dictator and the positive ruler of Russia, and Russia occupies one-sixth of the land area of the world. It has more area than it knows what to do with it.

Yet within recent months Russia has taken about one-half of Poland; it has dominated such little states as Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia.

More recently it has extended its conquest to Finland, a little nation where people made progress by no other means than hard work and thrift.

Russia did not need more territory. Did not need another acre, but with the full consent and approval of Hitler it has been taking territory from people who did need it and who knew how to use it.

Hitler did not take Austria because his people would find more land and opportunity there. He took it so that the able-bodied men could be drafted into the army of the Reich. Austria could not possibly support any more people.

Hitler took Czechoslovakia for much the same reason. He wanted control and possession of the armament plants there.

Germany has never been an agency for successful colonization, and Hitler's claim that Germany is entitled to more territory is plainly for the purpose of having more men in the German army.

Voting Day On The Tenth

Voting day in a general election was an event on the Tenth Concession. If the Tories happened to be in power grandfather was the deputy returning officer and had the privilege of naming his own poll clerk. If the Grits were in office then McGregor, next farm down, held office.

Grandfather took it all seriously. On that day people actually had their hands on the affairs of the nation; they were liable to put another brick on the tariff wall or else knock a couple off. Power might be vested in Ottawa for four years or so but on voting day the hand that was on the plow and the hand that lifted the milk can from the stone boat to the stand at the end of the lane reached out and marked its ballot. It was generally felt that the elected men did pretty much as they liked after getting in, but for that one day power was on the Tenth Concession.

When grandfather drove into the village and picked up the ballot box and papers and bills and came home it was an impressive arrival. No one was allowed to go near. It's difficult enough for a layman to step on the floor of the House when it's in session, but it was just as hard to go near the ballot box and all the equipment which went with it.

If voting came in cold weather it was necessary to go along with grandfather to see that the fire in the Orange Hall at the other side of the cheese factory was burning. Then there were some posters which had to be nailed to the door. They told by illustration how a ballot should be marked, and then another one of impressive size and appearance contained dire details of what would happen if there were corruption, skulduggery or dirty work at the cross roads on election day. One could be locked up in the jug, or made to pay a fine. And when all that documentary evidence was displayed on the door of the Orange Hall grandfather took his seat at the pine table, looked carefully at his turnip-size watch which he had set by the regulator in the village jeweler's store the day before, and right on the dot declared the poll was open.

Truth is every person around there knew how every other person was likely to vote. It was straight Grit or Tory until the Patrons of Industry started to warm things up a little, but they didn't figure much in general elections. The only puzzlement came when a new hired man came to a farm in the polling district, and the knowledge of how people generally voted was so intimate that the politics of the hired man were soon identified by the election figures.

When the voting was over it depended on how things had gone, how fast grandfather got to the village with the ballot box, and the big sealed envelopes with results and unused ballot papers. If the thing had gone according to his likings he generally drove right straight in; he wanted to get the figures in before the bottom dropped out of the ballot box. If the voters had gone haywire grandfather was more orderly; he went home and had a bite of supper first, and when he drove toward the village the horse was not urged to exhibit speed. It just jogged or ambled like it did on nights when the hired man took it out and went courting at the sixth farm on the Broken Front Road. When the warnings about bribery and corruption were taken from the door of the Orange Hall things dropped back to normal and tension was released at Lot Four, Concession Ten.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Always some one is doing the thing which they used to say could not be done. Thus a child in Spokane, Wash., ran a temperature of 110 and recovered.

Mt. Etna in Italy is reported to have been rumbling deeply for ten minutes, but whether that was before or after the meeting between Hitler and Mussolini is not stated.

There are but four voters in Millfield, N.H., and they met and decided it would not be necessary to spend any money this year. A meeting with similar decision might be popular even in larger centres.

Washington State Medical Association sponsored a radio broadcast from an operating table, where the removal of an appendix was given a play-by-play description. The privacy of the Saturday night bath will be the next field for invasion.

A new high mark in something or other was recorded in an advertisement in the Campbellford Herald, in which Jamieson Bone, the Conservative candidate in Northumberland, was referred to as the man "better known in his home town of Belleville as WIND-BAG BONE." We hasten to add that those capital letters are not ours, but just as they appeared in the advertisement.

EASTER HAT

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Alfalfa got an Easter hat, it stands a lot of looking at, because it is so small; I saw it on her yesterday, some ways she turns you'd up and say, she had no hat at all.

¶ It's hard indeed to tell the shape, or to identify the make, it's such a little thing; to see Alfalfa come and go, I don't think one would really know, that we had come to spring.

¶ 'Twould need no band box that I'm sure, to carry home and be secure, it would not shade the sun; I fear a sunstroke might ensue, if when our chilly days are through, some heating up was done.

¶ It's like a peanut in its size, for smallness it would take a prize, it's held on with a string; she'll have to be more careful yet, or else Alfalfa may forget, just where she put the thing.

¶ It's no protection for her dome, it seems to set up there alone, just like a little twig; perhaps what makes it look so small, is that Alfalfa's broad and tall, in fact she's rather big.

¶ Alfalfa merely speaks to me, more frigid than she used to be, I've noticed quite a change; she asked me how I liked her hat, and foolish like I told her that—the things looked rather strange.

To The Editor

KEEP THE LOTTERY CAR MOVING

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The Hon. G. N. Gordon has done a good service to the city in calling attention to the lottery car from Southampton that is on the streets of Peterborough. Chief Newhall reported to the police commission that the car had been moved a number of times and thus complied with the parking by-law. This letter is a plea to keep the car moving until it moves out of the city. We have sufficient lottery cars of our own, and our patronage should be preserved for the local industry. This car is peculiar, it is only dangerous when it is stationary.

Chief Constable D. C. Draper in his annual report to the Board of Police Commissioners in Toronto last year made the following statement as reported in the Globe and Mail at that time.

"There is a definite challenge to the people of Toronto, and of every city and community, in the realization that vandalism, armed robbery and miscellaneous crimes are on the increase. It was not hunger, cold, or lack of employment which was sending youths and men on the quest for easy money.

"If it were possible to study individual cases of the majority of these unfortunate individuals involved in major crimes today, the starting point to their downfall would lead to the gambling den and gambling, and to the encouragement to believe that something can be had for nothing. It is but a step from the disappointment felt over loss in games of chance to the belief that these can be recouped by violence, and at the expense of some one else."

There is no difference between the craze for easy money, and the craze for a new car at the cost of a lottery ticket. The Southampton club are aiding and abetting the gambling evil. Doubtless their motive is a good one, but 'tis foolish to try to heal the people's bodies at the cost of their souls. Let us keep the lottery car moving.

• The Same Ad Stayed for Three Years

A COPY of the Weekly Despatch, yellowed with age and dated February 5th, 1851 was found yesterday in the Crown Timber office on George street, where carpenters are making interior repairs. The newspaper is a four-page tabloid and the printing office was on George street opposite the market. This newspaper was the forerunner of the present Examiner as the name was changed about 1861.

The publisher was G. Haslehurst and he had his own ideas on collecting money. For instance he writes "no paper will be discontinued or advertisements taken out of the paper until all arrearages are paid." All ads are dated and in this issue of the paper some of the ads have been running for more than three years.

Subscription rate was ten shillings a year if paid in advance or 15 shillings a year if paid at the end of the first six months. There were no street addresses and the houses were named by the present tenant or the last person to have occupied them.

The Weekly Despatch according to the publisher was devoted to Agriculture, Commerce, Science, public improvement and the diffusion of useful knowledge and general intelligence.

One advertisement issued over the signature of Charles Hudson, mayor of Peterborough town, offered a five pound reward, approximately twenty-five dollars to anyone who gave information about the persons "who left a newly born male child at the door of Mrs. Morrow on the night of January 30th."

T. J. Fisher in another ad announces that he is taking over the Albert House "which I am fitting up in a comfortable manner and hope by unremitted attention to the comfort of travellers to merit a share of public patronage."

W. Bletcher who owned a daily line of mail stages advertised for passengers. "The cheapest, shortest and most expeditious route from Peterborough to Lake Ontario. Extras always in readiness at Port Hope and Peterborough. Runs daily except Sunday and stops at all hotels." Presumably the extras were fresh horses.

A local druggist had an ad which was headed "Caution and warned people against using a spurious article called Dr. Lococks Pulmonic Wafers." According to the article a counterfeiter was at work making medicine under this brand.

In those days it was quite apparent that doctors were not averse to using the newspapers as an advertising medium. Dr. John McNabb, surgeon and coroner in a one column ad states he will attend professional calls at his home Peterborough West, while Dr. E. Perry announces that he is now prepared to practice the profession in all its branches at his home.

This is the way the paper records a birth, and apparently this particular birth was of interest to the owner of the paper found yesterday because it is encircled with blue pencil.

Birth—In this town on Wednesday the 5th inst., the lady of James Hall, Esq., M.P.P., a son.

W. Sheridan was county clerk, W. Crawford was government land agent, S. J. Carver is listed as postmaster and W. S. Conger as sheriff. William Cluxton and Robert Ridley were merchants and Templeton Brown was a watchmaker and jeweller.

Wheat was quoted at Toronto for 95 cts. a bushel and at Peterborough for $1.10.

Ten lines and under of advertising cost three shillings, approximately 75 cents and six lines and under cost 60 cts.

Robert Waddel was advertising new buggies for sale and also sought blacksmithing work and "will make repairs to wagons."

John F. Albro has a store at the corner of George and Hunter streets and was a dealer in dry goods and crockery.

• Compares City and Country Schools

DO COUNTRY children have a square deal when it comes to educational opportunities? is the question suggested by M. A. Campbell, secretary of the Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, in a survey in which he contrasted the position of the country child with that of the city child in Ontario:

His findings are as follows:

There are 186,143 boys and girls in public schools in the country, as compared with 186,408 in city public schools.

The average rural school has one room, the average city school twenty-five rooms.

The average salary of the woman teacher in the country school is $675 a year; that of the woman teacher in the city school is $1,546.

There are two teachers in country schools receiving less than $500 and three teachers in city schools who receive $3,800. Four hundred and seventy-three city school teachers receive less than $1,000 per annum.

Rural schools in Ontario have a total of 7,229 teachers, of whom 69 have university degrees; city schools have 5,045 teachers, of whom 490 hold university degrees.

The average assessment per classroom in the country schools is $121,919, while the assessment per city classroom is $359,169.

The cost per day for the country school child's education is: Current expenditure, 26.8 cents; capital, 1.8 cents; that for the city school child: current, 38.4 cents; capital, 7.7 cents.

Eleven of every 100 country children attend school less than fifty days a year as compared with five out of every 100 in the city.

While 2,506 country children leave school when they reach 14 years of age, only thirty-nine of the city children retire from school at that age.

When country school children pass the entrance 17.1 per cent of them leave school as compared with 4.7 per cent of city school children.

While 700 separate and public school children in the country have health service through the municipal board of health, 137,289 pupils in the cities receive health service though municipal boards and another 49,119 pupils have it provided by local school boards.

More city schools have agricultural equipment than country school. In fact, 88.9 out of every 100 city schools have such equipment, as compared with 56.9 per cent of the country schools.

While 89.2 per cent of the country school pupils buy their own work supplies, only 33.3 buy them in the city.

MEN WITHOUT JOBS

ONE million, five hundred and eighteen thousand, eight hundred and ninety-six. That is the figure.—That is the number of unemployed in this country. Look at it as you may, twist and turn it as you will, subtract what you can for special causes. Blame the weather, accuse the snow, condemn the frost. The fact still remains: there are nearly a quarter of a million more unemployed than when war started. These figures will give fresh arguments to those who demand a new minister to direct our economic effort.—London Daily Express.

SPIRITUAL LIBERTY

CONSTERNATION over reports that Finland has lost its fight will be tempered in Christian nations by the history of Christianity itself. The early champions of this spiritual liberty, no less than defenders of political liberty, contended against powers of darkness as awesome in their time as to some of us today. But though the early Christians lost their human lives without — as it seemed at the moment — winning their cause, we of today know that they did not lose their battle.—Christian Science Monitor.

NUMEROUS PROGENY

ARMAND DENIS and Leila Roosevelt recently returned from their Near East expedition, where they had sought material for their new Travelfilm. In Calcutta they were introduced to a young Princess who they learned, is the daughter of the Maharajah of Nepal. "We're seeing him next week," said Denis, "and we'll give him your regards." A few days later they met the fabulous Maharajah of Nepal. "I have regards for you, from your daughter in Calcutta," Denis began. The Maharajah seemed puzzled turned to his entourage, and questioned them. "You mean you dont' know about your child in Calcutta?" asked Denis. "The Maharajah," explained the ruler's aide, "has forty daughters and sixty-eight sons."—Leonard Lyons, in New York Post.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And it came to pass, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way side begging: and hearing the multitude pass by, he asked what it meant. And they told him, that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. And he cried, saying, Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me. And they which went before rebuked him, that he should hold his peace: but he cried so much the more, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

And Jesus stood and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him, saying, What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? And he said, Lord, that I may receive my sight.

And Jesus said unto him, Receive thy sight: thy faith hath saved thee. And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people when they saw it, gave praise unto God.—Luke xviii, 35-43.

"Well, Paul, aren't you going out to play this afternoon?" asked the aunt. "No, I've got to stay at home and help father with my homework," was the reply.

Just As Effective

A young naval officer home on leave was discussing arrangements for his wedding.

Mother, who was anxious to make a good show, exclaimed: "Tom, don't forget when the cake is cut you must help the bride to cut it with your sword."

"But," said Tom, "I've not got a sword—only a revolver."

"Well," said father, "I can see naught else for it, lad. Tha'll ha' to shoot it!"

A VOTE FOR GLOVER IS A VOTE FOR MACKENZIE KING

Throughout this whole campaign, at least since political fortune wafted J. J. Duffus to the peaceful atmosphere of the Senate, the strategy of the Mackenzie King party in West Peterborough has been to concentrate upon the humane qualities and the splendid record of service of Rollie Glover, King candidate. To everything that has been said along those lines, National Government supporters can say "Amen". They will be the first to admit that even more might have been said. But there is more to this election than that. Behind the golden record of Rollie Glover is the black record of the King Government of which he is the representative. Behind the things he has done for the unemployed is the absolute failure of Mackenzie King to do anything for those same unemployed.

Behind the assistance he has given the needy is the deliberate scuttling of unemployment insurance by the King Government. Behind the help he has extended young people is the gross neglect by the King Government of the problems of youth. And more important than all, behind the Liberal candidate in this election stands the King Government's half-hearted war effort and its failure to give Canada the leadership that a country in a time of national crisis has a right to look for from its government.

That is why many warm, personal friends of Mr. Glover are putting country ahead of anything else and even at the cost of having to turn down a popular citizen they admire intensely will vote next week for a change at Ottawa.

The swing is to National Government. The air is alive with it in this riding and everywhere voters who think of Canada before all other considerations in this unusual and momentous election are joining in the battle cry, King must go; let us get on with the war. They have decided to vote for a fighting National Government in which citizens of all parties will have a chance to co-operate, a government that will put the accent on youth, give the common people a decent break and above all throw the whole resources of Canada into the struggle against Hitlerism.

PETES LEAD ROUND-ROBIN SERIES WITH A WIN IN COLLINGWOOD

Cop Win From The Shipbuilders In Last Series Contest By 7-2 Score With Fine Work

COLLINGWOOD, Mar. 23. — Frank Buckland's Petes made sure of first place in the O.H.A. Intermediate A round-robin series when they sank the Collingwood Shipbuilders here on Friday by a score of 7-2 in a wide-open, fast game.

Both teams were travelling wide-open, but the Petes capitalized on the Shipbuilders' penalties to cop four of their goals. They led 2-0 at the end of the first twenty minutes. In the second stanza they outscored the homesters 2-1, while the third period was scoreless until the final three minutes, when the Petes added three of breakaways as Shipbuilders played every man up and managed to count once.

Press at Start.

The homesters pressed from the opening whistle, but couldn't beat Harding. Stewart was chased for tripping Tompkins, and Crowe made a pretty solo to open scoring in less than five minutes. With sides even, Nobes turned back Gardner and Heal in rapid succession. Young drew a penalty for spilling Heal, and Coughlin scored from F. Jopling. Burton drew the first penalty for the visitors, but Harding held the Shipbuilders out. Brophy came back fast to catch Tompkins on a breakaway. Stewart was through on a beautiful rush just at the bell.

Shipbuilders were pressing hard as the second opened and had the Petes bottled up when Coughlin broke to hand Blewett a smart pass to beat Nobes. Sandell was penalized for tripping Crowe, and F. Jopling counted a minute later on Coughlin's assist. Collingwood were shorthanded again when Young high-sticked Tompkins, but Nobes held the Petes at bay. Harding made a great save on Wilson and the latter came back only to hit the post. Referee Houston handed Young a cheap penalty when he swung at the puck in the air, but Nobes came to the rescue again, making sensational stops on Tompkins and Heal. Stewart came in fast on Sandell's pass only to shoot wide of the twine. Tompkins was outguessed twice by Nobes near the end of the period. Shipbuilders counted their first goal when McCarl rapped home Burns' rebound when he was parked on Harding's doorstep.

A Hot Pace.

The teams continued the fast pace in the final session. Blewett was through on a smart piece of stick-handling only to have Nobes beat him. F. Jopling went for boarding Fryer heavily and Coughlin followed shortly for dumping Young, but the Petes threw up a stout defence and no damage resulted. Wilson missed a great chance when he shot wide from six feet out, Heal breaking away only to have Nobes fool him. Young and Sandell sandwiched Heal as he rushed in alone, and Young got the gate again. While he was off Tompkins broke clear and scored the fifth goal. Gardner crashed Burns into the end boards and was hoisted. With the Shipbuilders all up, Kingdon picked up a loose puck and went in on top of Nobes to score. Young scored Collingwood's final goal during a ganging attack on a pass from Brophy. With only 15 seconds left Crowe got another breakaway to sink number seven.

For the Petes Tompkins, Heal and Coughlin played fine hockey. Tompkins was particularly strong on the attack. Gardner and Crowe stood out on the defence, while Harding turned in a nice effort in the nets. Stewart was the pick of the Collingwood forwards, with Wilson and Burns working hard. Brophy rushed well all through the game, but Young marred his play with penalties. Nobes turned in a star effort in the Shipbuilders' cage.

The teams:

Peterborough — Goal, Harding; defence, Gardner and Ellis; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Heal; subs., Crowe, F. Jopling, Blewett, J. Jopling, Coughlin, Burton.

W. Lawson Wins Ministerial Cup

Bill Lawson, St. James junior star is the first holder of the Ministerial Association trophy, Lawson was selected Thursday night at an exetive meeting of the C.H.L. A committee of 6 had a part in the selection with the Rev Canon J. D. Paterson and Rev V. E. R. Zufelt representing the donors, the Peterborough Ministerial Associataion, and President Jos Dunkerley, George Beauclerc, Bob Ainslie and Don Charlton of the C.H.L.

14 names were submitted by managers from the 22 teams and 250 players were eligible. The 14 candidates were judged by playing ability, team play, regularity at games, gentlemanly conduct and church activity.

Figuring on a joint basis Lawson received 82 marks out of a possible 100. Close behind in second place was Jack Chambers, All Saints' Bantam centre player with 80 points. There was a tie in the voting for 3rd place with Wally Parnell, Knox Bantam goalie, and Warren Smith, George St. Juvenile centre ice player, having 78 points each. Jack Carpenter with 77 points was also close. He played left wingfor the All Saints' Juvenile champs.

Lloyd Parnall with 73 points, topped the senior players. He played defence with George St.

All these 6 players will be guests at the Church Hockey League banquet at All Saints' parish hall Thursday, April 4th.

The choice of Lawson will meet with unanimous approval. Playing with a team of youngsters who failed to win a game, only tieing one game all season, Bill was a standout. He scored 4 of their 8 goals, assisting in 2 others from a defence position.

Tall and rangy he finished the season with the St. James' Seniors, where he was again a standout.

With a quiet disposition and a lot of activities at St. James' church Lawson more than fulfilled all the other requirements.

The Ministerial Association trophy, a very nice cup, will be presented to the winner at the banquet by a member of the Ministerial Association.

HITLER'S COFFIN

GLASGOW—(CP). — A cream-colored coffin for Hitler, killed by his friends within a few months, is the prediction of 90-year-old Donald McLeod, native of the Western Isles, who has a reputation for reliable prophecies.

In those days the West was 'wild'! We were bringing in a load of furs and we had made camp when up pops a Redskin. I don't know where he came from nor why—but my scalp itched. 'Pipe of peace' I said and shoved over my tobacco. He filled up and sat there saying 'Oom! Ooom!' It was Old Chum I gave him. I said then, and I say now, 'Always and everywhere, there is no other tobacco just like Old Chum! I like it and it likes me. They chose the right name when they called it Old Chum.'

Pitcher's Box Length Remains Same

TORONTO, March 23.—Defeating a motion of the Toronto Beach League for the secon consecutive year to lengthen the distance of the pitcher's box from 38 to 40 feet, and the base distance from 50 feet to 55 feet for Senior "A" and Senior "B" groups, and carrying a motion to allow all players in all sections from minors up to seniors to wear either regulation spike shoes or rubber-studded shoes, were the highlights of the 18th annual O.A.S.A. convention meeting here all day yesterday.

With about seventy-five delegates on hand from all parts of the Province, one of the heaviest agendas for some years was gone over with comparatively few changes being made in the playing rules. Contraller Fred Hamilton and Alderman Innis welcomed the convention on behalf of the city, with Vice-President Harry Sniderman of the O.A.S.A. and President Jimmy Glenny of the T.A.S.A. in charge of affairs.

Secretary Verne McIlraith presented one of the fullest reports ever heard for a number of years, stressing the fact that plans are under way to take care of softball among the soldiers now in training.

H. K. Champion of Simcoe was returned as president for his second year, getting an acclimation after Harry Sniderman withdrew his name, being re-elected as first vice-president, also for his second term.

The other officers elected are as follows:

Honorary president—S. H. Armstrong, Toronto.

Hon. vice-president—H. S. Briggs, Hamilton.

Second vice-president—D. Leether, Peterborough.

Secretary — Verne McIlraith, Guelph (acclamation).

Treasurer—W. L. Alguire, St. Catharines (acclamation).

Auditors—R. Horning, Hamilton; E. Howick, Hamilton.

Executive—H. Rollins, Belleville; H. Jefferess, Hamilton; H. D. Ovenden, Wainfleet; J. R. Brush, Sarnia; E. Simpson, Kingston; J. H. Glenny, Toronto.

The following motions were passed amending the constitution:

2. Add to exceptions in residence rule—"Members of the Canadian Active Service Forces who shall be required to present upon demand proof of transfer."

3. Championships—Add "in except of juveniles, in which zone champions will be declared, instead of coducting an all-Ontario championship series."

5. Delete Section A—"Two A.A.U. of C. Governors."

6. Change Section A to read—"Six members to be elected annually by ballot, and three to be appointed by the President."

7. That it is necessary for any nominee to secure a majority of all votes cast, with large number of nominees for any one office, nominee securing least number of votes shall be eliminated from succeeding ballots. This amendment to take effect at this meeting.

8. In the uniform rule—"delete the words—"pullover" and "Cap" from the first sentence.

9. "Steel spike sas approved by the O.A.S.A. ma ybe worn in all series. These spikes attached to shoes by three-cornered plata, to be not more than ⅜inch in height, nad graded from ¾ inch at the base, to ⅝ inch at the end ,and not sharpened, or rubber - studded shoes."

10. Rule change—A block is a batted or thrown ball that is touched or stopped or handled by a person not engaged in the game. A wild pitch or passed ball should not be considered a block under this rule.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

In the near future, the Petes' ball club will hold its annual re-organization meeting and the boys will begin to think soon of spring training. At the moment, we haven't a league but that should be ironed out ere long. It looks like the Petes will be back in some sort of a Toronto and district setup, including Oshawa—which club has practically promised to come back after a barren ball season in '39—this coming warm semester. We know Secretary Jim Dorris of the local outfit has been busy enough and Manager Eddie Murphy is getting quite heated up again. The club needs some four or five players to be a real provincial contender, as Foley and Mowry are gone and Calladine is a very doubtful starter—and one or two others are in the doubtful category, but all this will be worked out shortly.

* * * * * *

Last year, the Petes had a number of the players in official positions and it worked out well. It's amazing the difference in expenses incurred by a team of athletes when these athletes themselves stand to suffer financially at the end of the season—instead of the older officers as per usual! The gang here weren't any too fussy about the money agreement in the Toronto and district circuit last year, yet the locals wound up on the right side of the ledger, and it seems that the Peterborough senior ballsters either have to accept a Toronto loop or play no ball at all. So that seems to be that.

Skiers To Re-organize

Ski Club holds its annual meeting about April 2nd, in the "Y", the date to be announced definitely later. Nominations for the nine Board of Directors should be in 10 days beforehand, so this doesn't allow much time. Skiers of the city and district—with many visitors from Toronto and other centres—had a swelegant winter at the Bethany Alps, and they've even got names for all the hills, spills and sharp corners out there now. It's developed into quite a spot for skiing and next year should see this place really come into its own as a big-time winter holiday site.

Something different—and werry, werry attractive—is offered in basketball tonight at the Y.M. at eight bells in four 10-minute periods. 'Tis a mixed cage contest with gals and guys on both teams in the one fray. Quaker Aces, senior city champs last year—and now in the final playoffs again—will spread their starry femme performers among both the male St. Paul's champs and the he-man Zephyrs' finalists of the City League. It should have plenty of spectator appeal and will see the lasses really stepping, paced by the men stars. Coach Howie Macdonald's bunch include Capt. Dorothy Weese, Edith Alexander, Jean Fowler, Agnes Grady, Mary Duncan, Helen Rutter, Peggy Lawless, Muriel Hooton, Eleanor Kirn and Vera Wood. At least two and not more than three girls will be on each men's team.

Shipmen Are Scuttled

Scuttling the Shipbuilders 7-2 in Collingwood last night, the Petes remained atop the O.H.A. intermediate "A" round-robin series in their last tilt of this series. The local puckists now rest on their laurels till about Wednesday, as Kitchener—who won in 'Shirtville from the Sound yesterday 5-3—finish the round-robin in Owen Sound on Monday. A win for Kitchener puts the 'Shirts and Petes into O.H.A. finals, but a win for the Trappers would tie Kitchener and Owen Sound in second place, the one with most goals then meeting the Petes in finals. Despite a rather rough trip, the Buckland bunch came through unscathed and in fine fettle, ready now for their big titular try.

* * * * * *

Play was fast and a bit bumpy in spots with the Shipbuilders drawing more of the penalties. It was a tight enough tussle but the Petes showed superiority throughout to rack up the comfortable margin. Score was 2-0 'gainst Collingwood in the first and 4-1 against 'em in the second. Breakaways helped pile it up for the Petes in the lively third. All the gang, from the goalie out, turned in another nifty performance, with Don Crowe going great guns on the rear line, with the others not far behind. Tompkins, Coughlin and Heal stood out on the attack, but there was little to choose among any of the boys. Starr sat this one out. Goalie Nobes shone in the home cage to steal the locals blind at times, Tompkins and Kingdon especially being victims. And so it's now the finals coming up.

Dave Named Vice-Prexy

Dave Leether of this city was elected second vice-prexy of the O.S.A. at its annual meeting yesterday in Toronto, and we're glad to see Dave's steady rise in softball. Fred Scates and Norm Lewis represented Peterborough at a fine convention. Dope is in elsewhere, one change being to open up on transfers in the case of soldiers, and another important change being to permit players in all O.S.A. series to wear spikes approved by the Association. (Golly, we'll soon like this game better than baseball, if it keeps adding these rugged aspects!) Both Belleville and Kingston got a man elected to the executive, H. Rollins of the Quinte town and E. Simpson of Kingston—indicating there is plenty of softball interest up through Central Ontario.

* * * * * *

Dunno for sure, but we believe Doug Miller and Hubert Legros represented Peterborough at the annual O.L.A. session in Toronto on Good Friday, and possibly Pete King was up, too. A rather uneventful affair till two rival St. Kitts' clubs aired a lot of soiled linen and got nowhere. Both Oshawa and Brooklin obtained executive spots for their men, Kelly DeGray of the Motor City and J. Vipond of Brooklin, but this city missed out. Pete King formerly was on the executive. The Association was shown to have a nice financial balance with prospects good for 1940.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

No better climax to a wonderful season of curling could there be than to finish up the season with an all day bonspiel, with all the proceeds being handed over to the local branch of the Red Cross society. The neat sum of thirty-two dollars will be forwarded to that society in a few days.

Playing on ice that was just about tops for the season Darcey Davis' rink came out on top and they each won a set of fishing tackle, donated by A. J. Gibbs. T. McArthur's rink was runner-up.

It was a good 'spiel and the boys came out and supported this cause in grand style.

1st—H. Darling, C. Mowry, H. Hawley, D. Davis. Each a set of fishing tackle.

2nd—C. Barbor, V. Colley, J. Welsh, T. McArthur. Each a silver mounted butter dish.

With the mixed games tonight, in all probability the curling for this season will close. The annual meeting will be held on Monday evening at eight o'clock, and a good attendance is expected, and after that the shutters are nailed up and we turn the key in the door for another season.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

Pinky George, who built up Johnny Paychek and Lee Savold to where both are in the ante room to title shots, is known among fight men as a smart guy .... And no wonder, for Pinky used to be in the United States army intelligence service.

Just when everyone thought George Selkirk of Huntsville, Ont., had the left field berth with the Yankees cinched, along comes Joe McCarthy with the announcement that George will have to beat out Tommy Henrich, who is going great guns. . . .

Grid Democracy In Canada Meeting Is Told

At the last meeting of the O.R.F.U. this extract—dealing with the late John DeGruchy, former Union president, and football in general—is taken from the chairman's address:

He was a philosopher—a practical philosopher. He believed that the O.R.F.U. existed for the good of the many players that played under its jurisdiction, and he believed that all legislation of the Union should have that end in view. While there must be government and authority, nevertheless, that authority must recognize the personal rights and the individual nature of those who obey its laws. n other words, he believed that the game of football was made for the boy, and NOT the boy for the game. That is a principle that we, as leaders, must never lose sight of. It is not true that the denial of this principle is the basic cause of much of the turmoil in which we find the world today? Personal liberty and individual freedom are being sacrificed on the altar of an intolerant totalitarian authority, such as we find in some European countries today. In his goverment of this Union John DeGruchy inculcated, and spread an understanding of, those democratic principles of government upon which rests the very foundation of Canadian democracy and British freedom.

Today we are meeting at a crucial time. With our country in state of war there is need now, more than ever, for relaxation and encouragement of our national recreation, which will help the normal way of living, and will help to soothe the frayed nerves that must necessarily be present at such a time. The Ontario Rugby Football Union must be in the front in doing its share in building up the physique of our youth who some day may be called to the colors, though we pray that such a need may never come. Let us carry on with renewed zeal and prove that democratic way of building up the physical fitness of our young men is far superior to that method practiced in the army concentration camps of those nations that march its youth in the goose step under the lash of a dictator. It is our patriotic duty to further, in our own particular way in sport, the ways of peace, even though that peace must be maintained and won through the medium of war.

Not Locked

Providence, R.I., March 23 (AP) ROBBERS early today laboriously ripped through a steel and concrete safe in the office of the Universal Textile Co. Leonard White, the treasurer laughed when informed by police. There was no money in the safe and it had not been locked in 10 years.

McDonald Prexy At O.L.A. Annual Meeting

TORONTO, March 23 — (CP). — Moving to a non-traditional peaceful climax, the Ontario Lacrosse Association's 53rd Good Friday annual suddenly reverted to its robust character with last-minute developments involving a clash between St. Catharines factions which the sponsor of the outbreak catalogued as "Unfortunate washing of St. Catharines' dirty lacrosse linen."

Dan Millar, first vice-president of the O.L.A., it was who electrified the gathering with a resolution which asked the lacrosse governors to reject entries submitted by the Shamrock Lacrosse Club, opposition outfit to the St. Catharines Athletic Lacrosse Association, of which Millar is secretary-treasurer.

In the ensuing moments Millar and Dr. J. Longley were lined up in verbal battle against Cliff Rogers and Jimmy Joy of the Shamrock interests. Charges, counter-charges and Dr. Longley's declaration that Rogers was unthruthful in what he said, brought the hitherto more or less indifferent delegates to rapt attention.

Asked Control

The fiery redhead's resolution was worded as follows: "That the Ontario Lacrosse Association grant the St. Catharines Athletic Lacrosse Association permission to control lacrosse in the city of St. Catharines."

Over the protests of a minority that demanded the O.L.A. "either pass Millar's resolution or throw it out" the delegates voted in favor of Ski Warr's motion that the incoming president and secretary of the O.L.A. meet with the rival factions in St. Catharines and try to come to some amicable settlement. The meeting will be on or before April 5 and the president and secretary will report back to the association executive committee to decide the course of action.

Apart from this startling and unexpected pyrotechnic display the meeting was orderly and the agenda chiefly noncontentious. All officers elected were give nacclamations.

McDonald New Prexy

Jack McDonald of Mimico was named president, succeeding Russell Kelley of Hamilton; Frank Curran of Orillia acclaimed as first vice-president; Chuck Rowan as second vice-president, and Ted Johnston of Scarboro', third vice-president. Mail acclamations had already been given Secretary Gene Dopp and Treasurer Dr. Wendell Holmes. The executive council with one still to be named wil consist of Kelly DeGray, Oshawa; G. Fitzpatrick, Orillia; Dr. J. Longley, St. Catharines; Bruce Leighton, Toronto; E. McDermott, Toronto; Bill Scott, Toronto; J. Vipond, Brooklin; J. Walkey, Fergus, and J. Worthy, Brampton.

Kilby MacDonald Is Proclaimed Most Oustanding Rookie

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 23. — (CP) — Apple of Lester Patrick's wise eye, Kilby MacDonald today was declared the National Hockey League's most outstanding rookie of 1939-40 and winner of the Frank Calder trophy.

Kilby MacDonald

The 24-year-old forward, who fitted immediately into New York Rangers' scientific attacking methods was named in the annual poll taken by The Canadian Press among 23 hockey writers in N.H.L. cities. The only other player to poll a sizable vote was Wally Stanowski, Toronto's hurtling defenceman.

It was the first time the award had gone to any youngster after a climb from the Ranger farm system. The C.P. rookie poll has been taken since 1933 and the trophy awarded by the league president, Frank Calder, has been presented since 1937.

But it was a notable success for the careful development plan Manager Patrick has set up for his ivory, with a junior amateur team at Edmonton, another amateur club Eastern United States League a minor professional holding in the International-American League.

Placed First By Nineteen

Nineteen writers made MacDonald their first choice among freshmen and three others placed him second. Stanowski was rated first by three and second by 10.

Young Kilby's career doesn't pattern the Patrick plan exactly. Unlike most Ranger discoveries, he doesn't come from Western Canada but from Ottawa—where he was born and played his first hockey.

From Ottawa Montagnards juniors he went to Lake Placid, N.Y. in 1933-34 and from there to Kirkland Lake, Ont. In 1934-35 and Noranda, Que. in 1935-36. On both the northern teams he played on a forward line with his brother, Albert.

MacDonald was pulled into the Patrick plan in 1936-37 with York Rovers and was with the Philadelphia Int-Am team in 1937-38 and 1938-39. Last fall at the Winnipeg training camp he was selected with Alf Pike to fill the breach caused by departure of Cecil Dillon, George Allen and Bill Carse.

CAMPBELLFORD TEAM CAPTURES TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE TITLE

Amerks Even Up Detroit Series With 5-4 Win

(By the Canadian Press.)

Expressions of confidence came from both camps today as New York Rangers and Boston Bruins prepared to continue their Stanley Cup playoff argument on Boston ice in the third game of their best-of-seven series.

"We looked better in losing than the Bruins did in winning," declared Manager Lester Patrick of Thursday's 4-2 loss to the National Hockey League champions. Despite the loss, Patrick stuck to his original assertion that the Rangers would take the series in six games.

Cagey Art Ross, head of the Boston outfit, was just as high on the chances of his club. Ross feels, however, that the round will go the limit as it did last season when the Bruins won out and then continued on to be crowned Stanley Cup winners.

Third Game A Toss Up

Betting men in Boston were inclined to call it a toss-up for the third game tomorrow night, with the Bruins 7-5 favorites to win the series. The price was quoted despite the fact that Bruins may be minus Mel Hill, wingman on the Roy Conacher, Bill Cowley, Hill line, for the rest of the series because of an injury suffered in the second game. Hill suffered a badly twisted ankle when he tangled with Big Murray (Muzz) Patrick. Physicians have said that he definitely will be out of the third game.

Patrick, meanwhile, blamed the loss of the second game on "poor officiating." Thirteen penalties were handed out in the hectic first period, most of them to the New Yorkers who stopped the Bruins 4-0 in the first game last Tuesday night in New York.

At the same time as Bruins and Rangers tangle in their third game, New York Americans and Detroit Red Wings will clash in the deciding contest of their best-of-three round for the right to meet Toronto Maple Leafs in the playoffs semi-final.

Series Prolonged

Americans prolonged the series with a spectacular 5-4 victory last night at home over the Wings, scoring three goals in the last four minutes of the game. The third game will be played Sunday in Detroit. The Maple Leafs, winners over Chicago Black Hawks in two straight games in another round, have been marking time waiting for the Americans-Detroit series to end. The Leafs defeated Chicago 3-2 at home and then wound up the series with a 2-1 victory at Chicago Thursday.

Art Chapman smashed home Charley Conacher's rebound with 21 minutes to play to give Americans their victory last night. The Americans, with three regulars out of action and some of the others playing on nerve alone, staged a terrific three-goal rally in the last four minutes to wipe out a 4-2 lead the Wings had set up with a three-goal splurge of their own earlier in the period. It finished that way, in a blaze of goals, after two periods of dull, scrambling hockey.

Amerks Took Lead In Third

Altogether seven goals were fired in the last 20 minutes. They had played a scoreless first period and a 1-1 tie through the second with Mud Bruneteau and Charley Conacher the scorers. Hooley Smith gave the Americans the lead for the first time soon after the last period opened. Then what everybody had been expecting happened.

The 12 tired Americans wilted and Bruneteau, Joe Fisher and Connie Brown shot pucks by Earl Rogertson within a few minutes of each other.

There were four minutes left to play and still the Wings had the two-goal edge. Suddenly the Detroit house fell in on all sides. The Americans planted themselves in the Detroit defence area.

Johnny Sorrell fired a hot shot that Thompson caught and juggled in the air. Up came Tommy Anderson's stick and the score was 4-3. Then 63 seconds later, Anderson passed into the left side of the Wings' defence, Smith picked up the pass, cut across the goalmouth and fired under Thompson. The score was tied.

Harvey Jackson took it up from there a couple of minutes later. He passed to Conacher in centre ice. Conacher bullied his way down left wing, swept around the net and laid the puck on Chapman's stick five feet in front of the goal.

One Visitor

LONDON, March 23—(CP)—The Air Ministry announced that an enemy aircraft appeared over the Shetland Islands, north of Scotland, this afternoon.

A Ministry communique said:

"Early this afternoon one enemy aircraft appeared over the Shetlands. An air raid warning was sounded and the 'raiders passed'. Signal was given about 15 minutes later."

Norwood Team Beaten 4-2 In Fourth Game

NORWOOD, Mar. 23 — (ENS). — The powerful Campbellford Sunocos captured the Trent Valley League hockey championship on Friday night at the Norwood Arena, when they managed to snatch a 4-2 victory from their hustling Hornet adversaries, in a blazing struggle which marked the finale of the current T.V.L. season. The visitors made a fifth and deciding tilt unnecessary when they copped their third win of the best three-of-five series, thereby taking the round three games to one.

Took Three-Goal Lead.

Forced to take the offensive after the visitors had grabbed a three-goal lead in the initial period, the homesters set a terrific pace for the remainder of the game, which provided about the fastest bit of hockey witnessed in these playoffs . Also exceptionally clean, Referee "Toots" Hollaway of Belleville, who has handled all the games of the Campbellford-Norwood series, delivered only four penalties, which were evenly divided among the two teams. Wilkes drew both for the visitors, while Brady and O'Leary were the local offenders.

Sixty minutes of brilliant hockey by Hendy, the Sunocos' playing coach, sparked the winners in their victory drive. A dominant force gathering their early lead, he was also the central figure in a tight defensive which the visitors maintained while the Hornets bombarded the Sunoco cage from every angle throughout the last two stanzas. How the homesters failed to score on at least a few of their many opportune efforts, is impossible to account for, except that Lady Luck must have been against them.

Both Goalies Busy.

With Norwood continually ganging, and Campbellford getting a frequent breakaway, both goalies received a severe test in last night's encounter. McMaster and Turner were each called upon to make some sensational stops during the course of the battle.

Play had barely commenced when Puffer of the Hornets got a crack in the eye and went off for repairs.

Poor covering up in their own zone spelled disaster for Norwood in this first session, which came in the form of three goals, McIlwraith grabbing a loose puck, opened the scoring, when he raced past the defence to send a low angle drive past McMaster. Hendy duplicated this a few minutes later to make the count 2-0 for the visitors. End to end rushes followed, with "Dude" Brady coming particularly close for the homesters. Play see-sawed back and forth fairly evenly then until Robinson slipped one in the open side of the net on a pass from Hendy, with but one minute remaining in the period. Thirty seconds later the hard pressing Hornets succeeded in tallying their first counter, Hill poking the rubber by McMaster, while lying stretched on the ice in a pile-up at the Campbellford net.

Dominated in Second.

Although Norwood dominated the play almost completely in the middle frame, only once did they manage to hit the score sheet. Climaxing several neat attempts, Brady, the chief threat of the Hornet forces, finally was rewarded when he notched a nifty goal on a solo effort, near the midway mark this period. Given a break when Wilkes was sent to the cooler for tripping, the homesters struggled vainly in their furious attacks upon their opponents' cage. At even strength again, Norwood continued to swarm around the Campbellford end, and the latter were forced to clear the puck down the ice on different occasions to relieve the constant pressure.

Keeping up their terrific pace, Norwood still ganged during the final canto, and Turner was a busy man on numerous thrusts. There was no change in the score as O'Leary of the homesters and then Wilkes of the visitors drew successive penalties, leaving their sides short-handed. It was following a face-off near the Norwood net, near the last of the period, that Campbellford added their fourth and final marker to practically sew up the contest. Atkinson tallied this one on a pass from Couch. Brady drew a trip to the cooler after this for boarding Godin, and the count remained 4-2 for the visitors when the final gong sounded.

Outstanding among a generally effective lineup for the winners were Hendy, McIlwraith, Robinson, and Turner. For the losers Brady and Richardson were the most consistent performers. The teams:

Norwood — Goal, McMaster; defence, Rothwell, Webb; centre, Puffer; wings, P. Rogers, Hill; alternates, Brady, Weir, O'Leary, W. Rogers, Richardson.

Referee—H. Hollaway, Belleville.

The summary:

First Period.

Campbellford, McIlwraith 2.40
Campbellford, Hendy 6.10
Campbellford, Robinson (Hendy) 19.00
Norwood, Hill (Webb) 19.30
No penalties.

Second Period.

Norwood, Brady 8.15
Penalties—Wilkes.

Third Period.

Campbellford, Atkinson (Couch) 17.40
Penalties—O'Leary, Wilkes, Brady.

In Juvenile Court

WILMINGTON, N.C., March 23—(AP)—Zelda Morrison, 13-year-old girl charged with murder in connection with slaying of her father, William H. Morrison, wealthy resident of Toronto, will be tried in Juvenile Court.

Judge John J. Burney ruled yesterday that the Superior Court had no jurisdiction in crimes involving persons under 14 years of age. Court attendants said the child's birth record showed she was 13 when her father was found dead January 21 with a bullet wound in his head.

CLEARWATER, Fla, March 23. — (AP)— Rookie outfielder Pat Mullin of the Tigers has a pet dream. He dreams of hitting a ball over the scoreboard in centrefield in Briggs Stadium at Detroit. This would mean a carry of 500 feet or more.

"You'll be surprised to know how many balls I've hit over that board in the last two years," said Pat dreamily.

SARASOTA, Fla. — A trade between Boston Bees and New York Giants is going through the rumor mill as a result of a long huddle yesterday by Casey Stengel and Bill Terry, the respective managers. The Bees want an outfielder, leading to speculation that Jo-Jo Moore might join the Boston clubs.

HAVANA, Cuba.— It was reported here that Johnny Vander Meer, who pitched his way to fame with two no-hit, no-run games, will soon be on his way back to the minors if Manager Bill McKechnie of Cincinnati Reds can obtain waivers for him.

Vander Meer, unfortunately, was accredited with the loss as the Cuban All-Stars pinned the Cincinnati club's ears back 11-7 Thursday.

FORT MYERS, Fla. —Rapid Robert Feller is in form and Cleveland Indians are happy in spite of their third straight exhibition setback Friday. Feller blanked Rochester Redbirds in his four-inning mound stint, fanning eight, walking one and allowing two hits.

Sydney Millionaires Win Two Straight

OTTAWA, Mar. 23 — (CP). — Coach Bill Gill of Sydney Millionaires figures he has a sure thing in the Allan Cup playdown against Hull Volants, but he hedges about the result of to-night's third game in the best-of-five series.

"It may be asking the boys a little too much to win the series in straight games, but we are confident we'll win the playoff without too much trouble," Gill said. Millionaires won the first two games at home 6-0 and 6-2.

The teams arrived on the same train last night from the Cape Breton Island city and were scheduled to hold a light skating drill to-day.

Remember When—

Montreal Canadiens started on the march to their second Stanley Cup victory 16 years ago tonight when they defeated Calgary 6-1 in the first match of Cup playoffs at Montreal. They have won the Cup twice since, in 1930 and 1931.

Girl's Stockings Cost Her More Than Dresses Do

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The next time you see a pair of silk stockings go tripping down the street, ponder this, brother: Many a woman spends more on them than on dresses.

It has all been figured out by the United States Labor Department, which has been doing a little plain and fancy investigating on what city folks spend on clothes.

The average American woman invests more than one-eighth of a $55 clothing budget at the stocking counter. To be exact, she spends $7.61 for hosiery. (That's a little more than 11 pairs at 69 cents each.)

Shoes are the biggest item—$7.85. Dresses come third, a mere $6. The working girl spends a little more, especially if she is a clerical worker; the homebody much less.

The mere male provides no such startling statistics. His big moment comes every two years, when he gets a new suit, price $25. Annually he spends $6 less for haberdashery, etc that women do for their accessories.

All the figures were based on a 1934-36 survey, with the family income of those questioned averaging $1,524 a year.

75 New Planes

launching of the training plan which air experts anticipate will get underway sometime during the summer. There are about 500 aircraftmen here to service the planes.

Emphasis On Air Force

Camp Borden is again the bustling centre of military activity. It was 25 years ago but to a visiting newspaperman the emphasis appeared to be on the air force.

The same hangars of the first Great War stretch along the edge of the vast airdrome but before the field becomes No. 1 service flying school of the training plan's No. 1 training command plane accommodation likely will be expanded.

Aircraft to be used in the intermediate and advanced stages is being given a thorough workout as the last stages of the regular R.C.A.F. training scheme are put through their paces. The airmen who fly them pass favorable comment on the three major types.

It is the single-motored Harvard trainer, built in the United States, which comes in for particular commendation, however, and its motor is lauded highly.

Drawing Up Carriage

The Avro Anson bomber, a British made, twin-motored job, runs a close second to the Harvard among these discriminating fliers and the only protest is the complaint that it takes a pilot 165 turns of a crank to draw the undercarriage into the fuselage once the plane is in the air. The Harvards fold mechanically.

The shark-shaped Fairey Battle, with its own powerful motor and three-bladed propeller, is third in most pilots' book. It also is made in Britain.

A modern air base has been built up here with barracks, an airman's club for the groundmen, a spacious drill hall and a bombing instruction school, but the pride of the camp is the new officer's mess—a comfortable club where the men with wings may spend their idle hours.

It's mostly shop talk of planes and aerial manoeuvres one hears at this mess. The pilots eat and sleep flying and yarn about their work and airmen's luck with the current popular story concerning a flying officer who cracked up a light bomber, completely demolishing it. He stepped from the wreckage unscathed and next day broke a toe when he stumbled in his room.

The fliers avidly read newspaper accounts of Royal Air Force exploits and follow European air action closely.

Social Crediters

Hon. Lucien Maynard, Minister of Municipal Affairs re-elected in Beaver River, became the fifth cabinet minister re-elected. Provincial Treasurer Solon Low met defeat. The two other ministers—Hon. W. A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. D. B. Mullen, Minister of Agriculture—were leading the field in Vermilion and Camrose respectively.

Second counts, and possibly more, will be needed to determine the result in the remaining 30 ridings. The first second-count rural victory went to the Social Crediters last night when G. E. Taylor, last Government candidate to enter the campaign, defeated two opponents in Drumheller.

Contests Very Close.

Earlier yesterday four Social Crediters and three Independents were announced winners of seats in the closest election in Albert's history. In addition to Maynard and Taylor the Social Credit victory column yesterday included Fred Anderson in Calgary's five-member constituency, William Tomyn in Willingdon, and Roy S. Lee in Tabor.

The three Independents whose election was announced yesterday were Mayor Andrew Davison of Calgary, J. J. Bowlen, Liberal member of the last assembly, and J. C. Mahaffy, a barrister, all in Calgary.

Scrutineers worked all night in Edmonton's five-member constituency but after seven counts had not announced the election of any one apart from Hon. E. C. Manning, Provincial Secretary, whose return had been conceded on Thursday night.

J. Percy Page, the coach of the famous Edmonton Grads basketball team, headed the seventh recount in Edmonton but was still 1,172 votes short of the announced qualifying quota, 7,291 votes. He was more than 1,500 in front of his nearest opponents, including D. M. Duggan, former Alberta Conservative leader, running on the "citizen's slate" in the Independent movement.

Must Have A Majority.

Alberta's voting system—unique in Canada—requires candidates in the 47 single-member seats to obtain a majority of all votes cast before they are elected. In the five-member constituencies of Calgary and Edmonton a fixed quota of the total vote must be obtained.

With the second counts in rural ridings not starting until all ballot boxes are in the hands of the returning officers, the completion of the result will perhaps take days. Political leaders made only guarded comments on the outcome.

Provincial Secretary Manning said last night that he believed the result proves the government has received a mandate to continue its policies and reform program.

Premier Aberhart preferred not to make any statement until the result is more decisive and a similar attitude was taken by C. A. Ronning, leader of the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, although the C.C.F. failed to elect a candidate or place any in a leading position.

Mayor Davison of Calgary, one of the leaders in the Independent movement, confined his comment to his own personal victory. He was elected on the first count along with Premier Aberhart.

Seek To Destroy

Liberal-Progressives received the endorsation of the administration. No Government candidate was placed in Comox-Alberni on Vancouver Island.

Conservatives nominated 213, but they submerged the old party tag and ran as candidates supporting the National Government proposed by Dr. Manion the day after Parliament was dissolved.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation has 96 in the field and would not have a majority if every candidate was elected.

Social Credit, with 15 seats in the last House, also submerged the party tag for federal purposes and adopted the new democracy of Hon. W. D. Herridge. They have 28 candidates

The remaining 91 candidates include many from the old parties now running as Independents, followers of groups such as United Reform, Unity, National Unity, Anti-Conscription, Labor and Communist.

Nearly 6,600,000 civilians are on the voters' list, and it is estimated probably 75 per cent. will vote. In the 1953 election, 4,452,675 ballots were cast.

Parliament has a statutory life of five years, and six months thereafter is allowed, if necessary, to complete an election.

The Liberal administration could have carried on until early next year. But with both Liberals and Conservatives combining in the Ontario Legislature to criticize the Government's war effort, and similar criticism coming from Dr. Manion in the Commons, Mr. King decided on an election.

Dissolution came suddenly and dramatically on Jan. 25, four hours after the late Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, formally opened the regular session.

Privileges Shut Off

That action automatically shut off from Government opponents the privilege of demanding and receiving detailed reports on the administration's actions. Mr. King was charged throughout the campaign with having "scuttled" Parliament and with deliberately preventing disclosure of desire dinformation.

The Prime Minister's reply to this was that the interests of Canada and of the Dominion's war effort would not be served by a lengthy pre-election session with its political arguments.

An immediate election, he argued further, would enable the first Canadian overseas division to vote in England before it goes to the front, and enable the second division to vote in Canada.

Dr. Manion at once announced his party would endorse National Government but Liberals and C.C.F. leaders declared they would have nothing to do with such a government.

Criticism of the government's war effort on ground of inefficiency and half-heartedness featured the Conservatives campaign argument and they promised a government composed of "the best brains" regardless of party affiliation.

The Liberal administration based its appeal largely on its record and its pledge to prosecute Canada's share of the war with all vigor and resources. It criticised Dr. Manion for failing to name a single candidate as a prospective member of his proposed National Gvernment.

Inevitable Accepted

The C.C.F. party, opposed to war and war-like preparations except for defence of Canada, accepted the inevitable when Great Britain was followed into war by the Dominion last September. In the campaign, the party promised to guard against profiteering and to work for post-war insurance for soldiers and their dependents. It maintained its stand for nationalization of war industries.

Mr. Herridge's New Democracy would have Canada conscript all resources in its war effort and the Social Credit adherents of the new movement repeated their argument that by issue of debt free money the war and other expenditures of the public treasury could be financed without adding to the National debt.

Liberals came into power in 1935 with 180 members in the House of Commons, the greatest majority ever given a political party in Canada since Confederation. The Conservatives had only 40 seats.

Dissolution found the House with 176 Liberals, 39 Conservatives, 15 Social Crediters, seven C.C.F., two Independents, one United Farmers of Ontario-Labor, one United Reform, and four vacancies.

Mr. King and Dr. Manion both made campaign speeches last Thursday, the Prime Minister at Ottawa over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and the Conservative leader in a public address at Pembroke.

Instead of discussing public issues on their merits, Dr. Manion and some of his supporters made "deliberate effort to destroy the reputations of public men," Mr. King said.

He said substitution of "the grossest kind of personal abuse" for political argument" is the process which destroyed democratic government in Germany, and is all too rapidly making its evil presence felt in our own land.

Slanderous Attack

"There has been a deliberate effort to destroy the reputations of public men who have served this country faithfully, honestly and industriously over many years."

He questioned if there was a single Canadian who believed that any member of the government "would knowingly countenance for one moment the betrayal of national trust at a time when sore trials and great burdens are upon every man and woman in this country."

The tactics resorted to by the Liberals in the closing phase of the election campaign showed that party was prepared to descend to "any game" to remain in power, Dr. Manion said.

The desperate attempts to sway the electorate with big war contracts, by whispering campaigns, or last-minute favors clearly indicated the Government's growing fear of a sweep for National Government.

A new evidence of the King government's readiness to play with politics with the business of the country was the announcement by the Liberal candidate in Lincoln county that annual passes for motorists in the Niagara area would be restored immediately.

Those customs passes had been cancelled this year and his efforts to have them restored were fruitless, Dr. Manion said. He was informed that the regulations could not be changed.

"I, as leader of the opposition, took up the matter decently and fairly. Now, with an election on, a man named Bench, the Liberal candidate, announced the change. It's merely another piece of cheap political bribery by the King government, suggesting that politics is the only rule they know."

would be "as common as fishing boats."

British warships today discovered rafts from the Danish steamship Charkow, reported sunk, probably by torpedo, yesterday. The body of a seaman was on one raft, but there was no other trace of the 15 reported missing.

On the British credit side was the sinking of the German steamship Heddernheim near the entrance to the Baltic Sea, reported yesterday as the first such action by a British submarine.

Blocking Ore

Some quarters regarded the location as a tip that Britain is starting a campaign to block Scandinavian ore shipments to Germany in a spot at which the Allied blockade has been leaking.

British newspapers expressed skepticism over the extent of a tour which three United States newspapermen were allowed to take on the Island of Sylt following the Royal Air Force raid on that German base Tuesday night. The reporters had said they saw no evidence of extensive damage.

"Nazis Bluff U.S. Reporters," ran the Telegraph headline, and others printed extracts from the American's stories. The Mail said Germany was "using her favorite method of giving the world one per cent truth in the hope they would swallow 99 per cent falsehood."

The Air Ministry insisted R.A.F. fliers had confirmed success of the operation Sylt "by observation," although saying that weather conditions and German ground defences made it impossible to obtain good photographs of the damage.

Give Them More

The Daily Express suggested that since "the Germans do not appear satisfied" with the results of the raid on Sylt and Hornum "give them another raid." It declared:—

"The Germans say that Sylt and Hornum were almost undamaged by the R.A.F. raid. American journalists in Germany say they went to Sylt by train across the Hindenburg dam and found most of the British bombs had landed in sandhills.

"Italian journalists say the Americans did not go to Sylt by train at all but borrowed Goering's airplane to make the trip and turned back when they were half-way to their destination.

"Sir Kingley Wood (Air Secretary) ought to accept the Nazi story. The Germans do not appear satisfied with the result of our last raid. So give them another, Sir Kingsley!

"Send another lot and have another shot. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again!"

Friends In Emily Honor Newlyweds

EAST EMILY, March 23 (ENS).—On Monday evening about sixty friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunlop to honour Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Atwell nee Violet Dunlop on their recent marriage.

The evening was spent in playing cards and dancing until midnight when Mr. and Mrs. Atwell were asked to come forward and an address was read by Miss Thelma Barley and the presentation of a beautiful Coleman Lamp in Ivory with Ivory parchment shade, and a lovely linen tablecloth was made by Messrs. Esmond Storey nd Aldon Bailey.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Atwell replied very suitably and invited everyone to visit them in their new home, after which all sang, For they are jolly good fellows.

Refreshments were then served and dancing was again enjoyed until the wee small hours of the morning.

Snow

Stocks bread took the Otonabee route yesterday and did not dare budge off the main travelled roads. He had a tough time of it but got through. The same story came from Bert Boomhower who takes the Buckhorn run. He had to be towed out several times by farmers, did plenty of shovelling and did not drive off the main road as it was impossible. At Madoc Keith Rollins headed north east toward the Cooper Settlement but stalled ten miles out, and became jammed in tight when the snowplow coming behind him smashd an axle and had to wait for repairs. Rollins slept over night at a farmer's house.

Generally speaking the main roads are passable but the secondary roads are blocked.

At four o'clock this morning the Otonabee plow was bucking its way in the old Norwood road and had the road open and in good condition for any persons wishing to go to the city.

In the city the Board of Works lost no time getting the snow removing units underway. On Friday afternoon a large grader had cleaned all the main streets and was clearing the snow from side streets. Bus drivers had no trouble but found the going a little heavy near the end of the routes.

Armour Hill and other spots throughout the city was dotted with skiers who braved the chill winds because the skiing was so good.

WARKWORTH

Institute Enters Music Festival

WARKWORTH, March 23—(ENS)—In spite of the stormy weather about thirty members and a few visitors met in the Council Chamber on Wednesday afternoon for the March meeting of the Percy Women's Institute. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Lorne Hutchison, the vice-president, Mrs. William Shaw, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of the Ode and repeating the Lord's Prayer. It was decided to take part in musical festival this summer, and Mrs. James Black, Mrs. C. Puffer and Mrs. Gordon McCubbin were the committee appointed to look after it.

Two quilt tops have been donated and the members decided to hold a pot luck dinner at the next meeting and quilt them.

The visiting committee reported three calls. A number of socks were brought in and will be sent to the local boys in the near future.

At the close of the meeting the hostesses, assisted by the lunch committee, served a dainty lunch, and all joined in singing the National Anthem.

The hostesses for the April meeting: Mrs. Stanley McNutt, Mrs. Vansickle, Mrs. Bert Nelson and Mrs. R. Bateson.

Personals.

Mrs. Tom Allen entertained a number of her neighbors to a quilting on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. A. Smale, Mrs. Dinwoodie, Mrs. R. McLaren, Miss Nellie Ewing and Mr. Douglas Knight motored to Toronto to enjoy the popular show, "Gone With the Wind."

J. A. Partridge, B.A., B.Paed., formerly science master of Hamilton Normal School, who is this year inspector of Halton County, has written a text book for Grade VII. of the public school which has just been published. It is an attractively bound book of 414 pages, with numerous pictures, several of which are from photos by the author and some were taken in this vicinity.

Mr. Partridge attended the local village school and his many friends are pleased to hear of his success. Mrs. George Helson is a sister of Mr. Partridge.

THEY KNOW!

ENGINEERS have GOOD REASONS for choosing the FORD V-8! Among them:

V-8 ENGINE!

"Most engineers acknowledge the V-type engine as an engineering masterpiece! It's the type that holds records in boats, airplanes and motor cars. Naturally, I choose the Ford V-8 for its combination of smooth performance and economy."

—F. J. TACEY, Construction Engineer, Vancouver, B.C.

ECONOMY!

"I drive a Ford car for four very simple reasons, namely: low-price, performance, appearance and above all—low-cost maintenance. As an Engineer, I know what I want in transportation, and the Ford has it."

—E. AVERY, Structural Engineer, Calgary, Alberta.

DEPENDABILITY!

"When I bought my Ford V-8, the salesman talked 'trouble-free performance'. Well, it's true! The way my car stands hard, steady driving month in, month out, with the least amount of attention, talks a book for its dependability!"

—A. D. McKINNEY, Mechanical Engineer, Toronto, Ontario.

VALUE!

"It takes an engineer to fully appreciate the tremendous value offered in Ford cars. I don't understand how the Ford people manage to build so much quality into a low-priced car—but it's a great feat of engineering. Of course, I drive a Ford V-8 myself."

—E. B. MARTIN, City Engineer, Moncton, N.B.

Religious Drama Presented By Young People

The large audience that was present at George Street United Church Friday night witnessed an unusually able dramatic performance when the Young People's Union presented a religious drama, "The Crown of Thorns."

Especially apt on Good Friday, the three-act play surprised everyone by the high order of the acting seen. Costumes and stage setting were far above the ordinary in quality and the cast, director and stage manager won enthusiastic applause at the conclusion. It was merited applause, too, for seldom has this city seen a more sincere presentation of a religious drama. Ably, and with keen feeling for their parts, the cast presented a finished performance of a play that had not only religious feeling but fine dramatic opportunities.

It was the fifth consecutive year that the young people of George Street United Church have presented a religious drama during the Easter season—the only group in the city that can boast such a long record—and while other plays have been successful, none, it was agreed last night, had the same success as this performance.

The drama depicted the Easter story and centred around Pontius Pilate and his wife, Claudia Procula, with Stephen, a disciple of Jesus, playing an important part in leading others, especially Claudia and Marah, a Jewish maid, to follow the Christ.

The Christ is first seen from an unusual point of view, through the eyes of a Roman centurian, to whom Jewish bickering about the Messiah, an obscure religious fanatic to him, is rather droll and not particularly interesting. The figure of the Christ develops into reality during the play, His actions and His words being recounted and giving Him gradually increased stature and importance. Pontius Pilate, too, is given sympathetic treatment—a man for whom there is no world order but the Roman order, no justice but the Roman justice, no reward but the reward of Caesar.

All scenes took place in the reception room of Pontius Pilate's palace and the stage was admirably fitted to represent such a room. It showed real skill on the part of Herb Pick, a newcomer to Peterborough, who has had staging experience in Toronto. Mr. Pick was ill and unable to attend the performance.

The climax of the play is reached in the closing scene when Stephen, Claudia and Marah, with Gaius, son of Pontius Pilate, all pledge allegiance to the crucified Christ. Brought to the peak of its climax by good acting, the conclusion made a profound impression on the audience.

Cast of the play was as follows: Pontius Pilate, Stewart Anderson; Claudia Procula, Dorothy Smith; Gaius, Ronald Parr; Marah, Noreen Dunford; Cornelius, Bert Hawkins; Classius, Melville McEwen; Stephen, Jake Burnham.

In charge of the skilful make-up of the characters were Helen Wellman, John Fletcher, and Irene Constable. Mrs. Parr played on the piano between acts. Miss Daisy Inch was in charge of costumes.

The play followed a unique worship service that was led by Rev. M. C. Parr, assisted by Ruth Parnall, Audrey Oliver, Mrs. L. Ash, Ross Hudson, and Cecil Wasson, with Miss Loretta McDougall singing solo parts. Mrs. Parr was at the piano.

Counsel Asks For Court To Be Cleared

When Private Frank McIntosh appeared in police court this morning for sentence on a charge of having stolen a sum of money from William Burns, Toronto traveller, to which he had pleaded guilty, W. F. Huycke, K.C., who appeared for him asked that the court should be cleared.

"What I want to say in this case is confidential," he said.

"I don't see why the court should be cleared," replied Magistrate Langley. "There are other cases on the list, and these people have a right to be here."

"That is so in ordinary days," said defence counsel, "but this is war time, and what I want to say has to do with the movement of troops and it should not be said publicly, according to the Defence of Canada Act."

Finally Magistrate Langley decided to set the case for the foot of the list.

ROBERT GEORGE ALLAN

The death of Robert George Allan occurred on Thursday at his home at 540 Stewart street after a lengthy illness. Widely known in this city, Mr. Allan was for many years foreman at Silverwood's Dairy here. He was in his 66th year.

He was born in Hamilton township, son of the late Alexander Allan and Mary Boyd, and had resided in Peterborough for the past quarter of a century, coming here from Reaboro.

Mr. Allan was a member of St. Andrew's United church, and of the Corinthian Lodge A.F. & A.M., as well as the I.O.O.F., Lindsay branch.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Ethel Cornell; one son, Norman, at home; and three daughters, Miss Agnes Allan and Miss Elizabeth Allan, both of Peterborough, and Mrs. Amberson Davis of Lakefield.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his late residence, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United church officiating. Interment was at Little Lake cemetery.

GERALD CONDON

The funeral of Gerald Condon of Douro was held from his late residence to St. Joseph's church on Tuesday morning. The Holy Name Society of which he was a member formed a guard of honor and the Requiem Mass was chanted by the pastor, Rev. J. J. McCarthy. Also present in the sanctuary was Rev. P. Costello of Hastings who had married Mr. and Mrs. Condon just over two years ago.

Pall bearers were John B. Condon, John Garvey, John Delaney, John Dwyer, Robert Leahy, and Joseph Tobin.

The funeral was largely attended by friends and relatives from the immediate district, and also from Hastings, Burnley, Asphodel, Campbellford, Otonabee, Warsaw, Lakefield, Peterborough and Toronto.

Mr. Condon's death came suddenly on Sunday and took from Douro a loving husband and a kind son and brother. Death occurred early in the morning when he was rushing to finish his farm chores to fulfil his first duty to God, attending mass.

Mr. Condon was born and lived all his life in Douro where he was highly respected and honored by all who knew him, as was testified by the large number who attended his funeral.

Left to mourn his loss is his young wife, formerly Mary Coveney of Hastings; his mother, Mrs. Agnes Condon of Peterborough; four sisters, Mrs. Fred Doris of Keene, Mrs. James MacFarlane of Peterborough, Mrs. Ollan Leahy of Douro, and Miss Carolyn Condon of Oshawa; and five brothers, John, Patrick, and Stanley of Douro, Fergus in the R.C.A.F., now serving in England, and Clare of Peterborough. His father, Maurice Condon, predeceased him nine years ago.

Recruiting is proceeding briskly at the Armouries for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and already several of the recruits have been outfitted with battle dress.

A few of the local men who have been seen in uniform are Robert Rex, son of Mrs. Annie Rex, 346 Aylmer Street. Bob (Scotty) McDougall, son of Mrs. Mayme McDougall, 313 Bethune Street; Mike Lucarno, 616 Aylmer Street; Wray Hamilton, Water Street; Joe Youdell, Water Street North; Arthur Druce, Park Hill Road, and Lionel Campbell, 75 Ware Street.

Bob (Scotty) McDougall, son of Mrs. M. McDougall, 313 Bethune street, found window dressing at the Robert Fair store a little tame so he donned the King's uniform, as a member of the Hastings-Prince Edward regiment. He was home on leave this week.

Ivor G. Pakenham, 737 Water street is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Pakenham to enlist in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. The other brother is Mel Pakenham, well-known boxer.

Gunner James Ryder of the 14th Battery at Cobourg came home to Hastings on leave this week to find his 3-year-old son, Junior, had sprung a surprise on him by also wearing a soldier's uniform although it was somewhat diminutive compared to daddy's. His father began teaching him the first essential of a good soldier and the pair are shown here as they salute one another.

It is also reported that Ross McColl, Bill Coursey, and George Biggs have been accepted, but none of these have received uniforms so far.

Lionel Campbell's father served with the 5th C.M.R.'s in the last war, and Joe Youdell's dad served with the King's Own Regiment, an Imperial unit.

Bruce Burfield, 371 Bethune Street, and Walter Pilling, London Street, have enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

The boys from Picton report that Leslie Rutter, Elm Street, is in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and that he has been named cook. His culinary ability is so marked that it is unlikely he will work any place but in the field kitchens.

Bob White of 271 Simcoe Street, was called up this month to Halifax. Mr. White formerly worked in the C.G.E., was in the Royal Navy from 1909 until 1922. He was decorated while aboard the H.M.S. Brilliant, was mentioned in despatches, and received the Croix de Guerre (Belgium). A Halifax reporter asked this witty rating "What stands out in your memory more than any other happening in the last war?" He replied, looking off in the distance—and back through the years—"Zeebrugge...that night when we fired star shells for light and the battle began, we were given the finest display of fireworks that it has ever been my lot to witness." Mr. White has been in Canada since 1939, and is in the Navy for duration of the war.

Frank Burton, brother of Les Burton, the hockey player, and son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burton, 499 Bethune Street, has enlisted with the 40th Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, C.A.S.F., at Hamilton as a gunner.

Stanley Clarke, 3 Dunlop Street, and son of Fred D. Clarke, milk man, has enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and should soon be home on leave in uniform.

Grant Garfield Torrance, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Torrance, signed up with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment this week, and is now on leave in uniform. His Dad served in the Canadian Army during the last War.

Joe Delore of Hall's Bridge, is reported to be a recruit in the Hastings-Prince Edward unit. He passed medical examinations on Thursday and left for Picton to be outfitted.

Canadian Legion Notes

The annual general meeting of Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion was held on Monday last and in spite of the adverse weather conditions there was a fair attendance of the members. The president, Com. G. Gimblett had a pleasant and cheerful report to make of the year's activities, in fact the most successful year in the history of the branch.

The financial report of the chairman of the finance committee, Com. D. Douglas, was an eyeopener to most of the members who had no idea that the various activities of the branch had been so profitable.

Election of officers resulted in the return to the presidential chair of Com. G. Gimblett for the third term and the re-election of the two vice-presidents. Comrades D. Loomis and D. Douglas.

There will be a church parade on Sunday next to the Salvation Army Temple to greet Commander Benjamin Orames an Australian Padre in the World War I, and it is hoped there will be a large turnout of ex-service men. Fall-in will sound at 2.30 p.m. Berets, medals and armbands will be worn. There will be a Vimy Dinner this year as usual and the date will be Tuesday, April 9. On the previous Sunday, April 7, we will hold our annual Vimy church parade to St. James' church.

The date for the much talked of social to the ladies will take place on Friday, April 26th and invitations will be sent to all members and their wives and to the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary and their husbands.

Censor's Scissors Go Snip, Snip, Like Cutting Dolls

WHEN the cenors go to work on a soldier's or a sailor's letter in this war, they don't fool about it. Mrs. J. Laurie, 847 Water street, has a letter from her nephew that looks as though some worker in the censor bureau has a mania for cutting out paper dolls.

No blue pencil was used on this letter, but a pair of scissors and they snipped the pages into about as intricate a design as could be found on any patchwork quilt.

The letter was from Seaman Jack Laurie who is aboard H.M.S. Patroclus. "I can't tell where we are going or what we are doing, because the censor would only score it out," he said, ironically enough, and little knew that those were among the comparative few that the censor left in.

Woman Undergoes Spiritual Change of Mind Confesses Firing Home; Collected Insurance

TWEED, March 23—ENS). — Mrs. Mary Ruttan, charged with arson, pleaded guilty before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd on Thursday afternoon in local police court. The accused had, on July 12, 1929, set fire which destroyed the farm dwelling, owned by Joseph Fobert, and in which the Ruttans were residents at the time.

The accused gave a written statement to Chief Constable J. C. Hayes, who previously warned her that anything written or said would be used against her. The accused stated that due to a spiritual change of mind, she thought it best to confess. The accused stated that she took a brace and bit, and bored holes in the floor, stuffing the holes with paper, setting fire to same. The accused had collected $150 in insurance for household effects destroyed in the fire. The accused stated that she had quarrelled with the landlord over the rent. Mrs. Ruttan offered to make restitution of the insurance collected, and pleaded that a mental condition at the time of the fire was responsible for her action. However, Magistrate Lloyd ordered Mrs. Ruttan sent for observation to determine her mental condition, and upon the basis of the medical report, the case will be dealt with.

RIVER FROZEN OVER

The Otonabee River north of the Quaker Oats dam which a few days ago was free of ice in the middle of the stream has frozen over again from shore to shore as a result of the cold dip. Old timers fail to remember another similar development at this season of the year.

WOMAN KNOCKED DOWN

When a car stuck in a rut on Stewart street and then ran up on the sidewalk after the driver had succeeded in extricating the wheels, Mrs. Knox, 213 Stewart street, was knocked down and had to have medical attention as the result of shock and bruises. The car was driven by B. Garside, Western Avenue.

HERE FROM WARKWORTH

Ben Isaac of Percy township made the trip to the local market this morning by way of Campbellford and Havelock. He took the long way round on the advice of highway reports that the road from Hastings to Warkworth was difficult. The county plow had been over it, but snow blew in behind it after it passed.

MUSKRAT SEASON LATE.

No report has been received from the Department of Game and Fisheries to indicate when the muskrat trapping season will open this year. Weather conditions have been decidedly unfavorable, and as the season is usually set by order-in-council after reports have been obtained from local game overseers, it appears as if the season will not be opened for at least two weeks.

POLICE MAKE RAID

As the result of a raid by Sergt. W. E. Wigg and Constable Archie Menzies on a house on Reid street early this morning Christopher McGrath was charged with allowing drunkenness on his premises and four other men found there faced charges of illegal consumption. All five pleaded not guilty, and the cases were adjourned until March 28, with the exception of one man who was unknown to the police and who got a remand until the same date; bail being fixed at $100.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

Three men had a close call from injury the other day at the Westcott Street crossing of the C.N.R. when a car driven by Archie Shearer of Birdsall was struck by a C.N.R. engine and turned half way round. Mr. Shearer tried to stop when he saw the train coming, but his car skidded close enough to be struck. James Hope and R. J. Cameron of Indian River were passengers in Shearer's car, and all three men escaped uninjured.

FOR THIRD OFFENCE

A local young man appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning, charged with being drunk here Friday. Another man who pleaded guilty as a first offender to being drunk was fined $10 and 75 cents costs or ten days.

PRINTED 60 YEARS AGO

An old subscription appeal for the Weekly Witness, formerly published by John Dougall & Son, Montreal, and dated March 18, 1879, was shown to the Examiner today by one of its rural readers. The circular was almost in as good condition as when it came from the press. Many of the older folks will remember the Montreal Witness and its crusade against the evils of the world.

A "HITCH-HIKER."

Walter Bowles of Cavan township, told the Examiner this morning that he had to thumb his way to market. He had to walk one-quarter of a mile along the twelfth concession, which was filled in with snow, carrying thirteen chickens to market, taking a chance on being picked up by some friend on the highway. Incidentally he sold all the chickens. Farmers stated that country roads will not be open until the middle of next week.

FEW VOTES CAST.

Voting at the advanced poll in Vincent Eastwood's office in the Bank of Commerce Building has been light, he told the Examiner this morning. Possibly the incidence of the Good Friday holiday may have kept at home some of those who put off the casting of their ballots until to-day. The office in Room 15 of the Bank of Commerce Building will be open until 10 o'clock this evening. Mr. Eastwood remarked that deputy-returning officers should get their ballot boxes this evening.

A ROUGH TRIP

Twenty-two skiers headed for Bethany in Ivan Fletcher's bus yesterday. The bus floundered twice on Highway 7A and on the second jam, the skiers had to push six maroneed cars out of the ditch before the bus could proceed. Two miles from Bethany the bus had to be stopped and could go no further. A farmer charged four dollars to complete the trip by sleigh and when the group reached Bethany they had to hire another sleigh to get to the chalet. The snow was so deep the farmer drove his team across the fields.

SONG OF PROTEST

When Alex Sage, power house operator for the Quaker Oats Company at London street, looked at the thermometer outside the power house door this morning it registered four below zero. He had only been sitting down at his desk for a few minutes after that when a cricket came hopping across the floor, and parked beside the chair, then proceeded to sing a rather subdued cricket song. Alex believes it was a song of protest against the weather as the voice lacked the usual volume of sound

Colored Eggs Go Bounding Downhill In Old Country On Easter Morn

IN England and Scotland, they gather the yellow blooms from the whin and the broome, and boil eggs in the same pot with these native blooms. A yellow dye from the flowers colors the eggs yellow and with streaky patterns. The gaily colored eggs are given the children on Easter morning, and they play a game of rolling the eggs down any nearby hill. Usually the bouncing trip down the hill, breaks the hardboiled eggs and the game winds up with the children sitting at the foot and eating them.

In Ireland and England, many natives believe, and the belief even persists in this country, that the sun dances on Easter Sunday morning. Many of the pioneers in this country would rise early on Easter Sunday morning to watch the sun dance as it appeared over the eastern horizon.

This belief originated in the early days and long before the Christian era, when Easter was supposed to mark the awakening of nature from its long winter sleep, and the sun danced to show its joy that spring had arrived. Some writers claim that Easter received its name from the Teutonic Goddess of Light "Oestre". This name was given to the east, or the place of the rising sun. The early Saxons called the greatest of Spring festivals Easter.

Centuries later, in southern Europe elaborate dances and other ceremonies were still being given in honor of this goddess, Oestre. Always in the month of April.

There was a long dispute in the Christian church as to the proper time for holding Easter, the Christians of the East celebrating it on the same day as that on which the Jewish Passover fell, that is the fourteenth of Nisan, while the majority of the church celebrated it on the next Sunday after this day. The controversy was decided by the Council of Nice in 325 A.D. which fixed Easter on the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after March 21st. If the full moon happens on a Sunday, Easter is the Sunday after.

Easter Season Happy One For Children

Easter, the glorious spring festival for styles and the holy day for joyful celebrations in the Christian world, as it marks the day of the Resurrection, comes to-morrow. It will not occur on March 24th again until the year 2391.

Easter is usually regarded by the farmer as the dividing line between winter and the start of spring work in the fields, but this year it fails to serve that purpose.

To the small boys and girls it rivals Christmas for in many cities the youngsters have been taught to believe that on the eve of Easter the Easter Bunny goes hopping across the country and comes into each home where he lays eggs, brown chocolate eggs, jelly beans, and even hen's eggs which have been beautifully colored. It is the custom in many cities for the children to get a small basket or box, and fill it with colored excelsior or straw for the Easter Bunny. Some kiddies will even go so far as to tie the family dog upstairs so the bunny will be safe:

The origin of the Easter egg legend like many of our customs is lost in antiquity It is a well established custom though to have colored eggs adorning the breakfast table. Many people choose pullet eggs because then the kiddies can eat more and the youngsters can boast of their ability to consume the hen fruit.

The Easter bunny is generous at some homes, for he often will leave behind a basket with a large brown chocolate bunny standing in a nest of gaily colored candy eggs from the size of jelly beans to the common hen variety.

Plowed Road For Funeral

"The sting was in the tail of winter," an Otonabee farmer remarked to the Examiner in reference to Thursday night's snowstorm, followed by Friday's high winds, a combination that filled roads in all direction.

"We've had more snow trouble in the last two days than we've had all winter," he said, "but the township road department was getting things back toward normal today. I don't know what it will be like in other townships where they don't go in for township snow removal, but I'd imagine a lot of their roads will still be plugged on Tuesday."

The Otonabee snow plow took to the road early Thursday, toiled away all day, and then was turned over to a fresh crew working Friday night.

A county plow cleared the Keene Road through Zion Friday morning for the funeral of John Kindred, and several trucks followed it later to make sure the roadway was not filled in again.

It was also stated that in several places home-made plows were put to use where farmers decided to do something in their own neighborhoods until the township plow got around to it.

Otonabee roads will all be cleared by the first of the week, it was said, and there should be no obstruction to motor traffic for voting on Tuesday.

Sacred Cantata Presented At Mark Street

Mark Street United Church was packed to capacity on Good Friday evening when the combined choirs of the Park Street Baptist Church and Mark Street United Church presented Maunder's sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary". Guests were on hand from points as far distant as Norwood even in the face of most disagreeable weather.

The program of sacred music was remarkably well done and the choir handled the presentation with all the sweet tone and vocal skill of a metropolitan choir. It was the first time the organization had ventured into the realm of cantatas and their interpretation of this lovely sacred number was commendable.

Prior to the cantata a variety musical program was given which consisted of a piano and organ number by Harry and Stanley Northrop and a solo, "The Lord's Prayer" by Mrs. James Goldie, soprano; The Northrop String Ensemble; and a solo by Mr. Ed Rowe, baritone. The program concluded with a violin solo by Stanley Northrop and the cantata started immediately after a word of prayer by the pastor, the Rev. E. W. Rowland.

Mr. Rowland went into detail explaining the origin, history and meaning of this beautiful cantata just before it was presented which gave all present a complete picture of the musical program.

As the cantata was presented emphasis was placed on the pleasing massed choir effects and the two choirs comprising 68 voices responded nobly to the occasion producing a musical picture of warm and solemn melody. The soloists kept the continuity of the story and all solo parts were taken by Mrs. James Goldie and Ed. Rowe. Mrs. Goldie's rich soprano voice fitted delightfully into this particular cantata, and Mr. Rowe used his baritone in an incomparable style, both powerful and melodious. One chorus of the cantata was taken by an octette composed of Mrs. C. Corbett and Mrs. H. Northrop, sopranos; Mrs. Wm. Hepburn and Mrs. George Batley, contraltos; Max Pomeroy, and George Batley, tenors; Clarence Corbett and John Fowler, bass.

The Northrop String Ensemble which supplied the background of music throughout consisted of, Harry Northrop, organ; Stanley Northrop, George Gatfield and Russel Huggins, violins, Tom Smith, cello and Ross Gillespie, viola.

The cantata portrays that portion of the life of Christ just prior to and leading up to the Crucifixion and is one of the most appropriate for Good Friday.

Thelma Winterbottom Is Married Good Friday In St. James' Church

St. James' United Church, effectively decorated with palms and ferns, was the setting for an Easter wedding at three o'clock in the afternoon of Good Friday, when Miss Thelma Winterbottom, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Winterbottom, 596 Chamberlain street, and Mr. John William Charles Simmons, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Simmons, 526 Romaine street, were united in marriage. Rev. F. W. Craik performed the ceremony, and wedding music was played by Cecil Lapp, organist.

A lovely model of white net over taffeta was worn by the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. It was made with a graceful skirt of double net, and a slim-fitting shirred bodice with a square neck finished by narrow net ruching. There was a tiny jacket, and she wore white lace gloves of elbow-length. A wreath of orange blossoms held in place the finger-tip veil of silk embroidered net, and the bridal bouquet was a lovely arrangement of Premier Supreme roses. Miss Marion Langfield was the bride's attendant, in a dainty gown of turquoise chiffon with a square neckline, brief puff sleeves, and a very full skirt flowing from a softly moulded bodice. She wore elbow-length gloves of shell pink lace, a headdress of net and tiny pink and blue flowers, and carried Briarcliff roses. Mr. Harry Winterbottom, brother of the bride, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Arthur Thomas and Mr. John DeNoble.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Winterbottom, mother of the bride, receiving in a gown of angel blue crepe with smart black straw hat and corsage of roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Simmons, was in a becoming gown of atmosphere blue, with black and white hat and corsage of roses.

For a motor trip to Toronto, the bride donned a travelling frock of printed silk. She wore a black seal coat, and matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Simmons will live in Peterborough.

We Noticed

...That many people wonder why the date of Easter should change year by year, while Christmas is a fixed holiday. The reason is that the Crucifixion took place at the time of the Jewish Passover, which, due to peculiarities of the Jewish calendar, is a moveable feast. The Christian Church therefore decided that the Easter festival should coincide with the Jewish Passover. Easter can come any day from March 22 to April 25, a range of five weeks.

...The method of fixing Easter is complicated, and would take too long to explain here. Easter Day is the first Sunday after the full moon, which happens either upon or next after the spring equinox. If the full moon happens on a Sunday, Easter Day is the Sunday after. Owing to the imperfections of our calendar, the spring equinox for fixing Easter is, curiously, a calculated date, and not the actual spring equinox.

"Crucifixion" Is Presented By St. John's Choir

The story of the Savior's last days on earth, with all its glory and heart-breaking pathos, was unfolded in beautiful song and prayerful chorale Friday night, when St. John's Anglican Church choir was heard in Stainer's "Crucifixion," under the direction of F. G. Mann, L. Mus., organist and choirmaster.

The Crucifixion, a meditation on the passion of Jesus Christ, is the best-loved and most familiar of all Lenten cantatas. Its chorus, "God So Loved the World", is used a great deal during Lenten services.

It was during the years between 1872 and 1888, when Sir John Stainer was organist in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, that he wrote the Crucifixion, of which the full title is "The Crucifixion, a meditation on the sacred passion of the Holy Redeemer." Confirming himself to the dramatic narratives which recall simply and reverently the scenes which mark the last few days of the Savior, and some of the reflections suggested thereby, Stainer's Cantata is dramatic, and sets forth in stirring language and music the outstanding events of the greatest drama of history.

The infinite pathos of the Garden of Gethsemane, the sudden appearance of the hostile crowd, Jesus forsaken by His disciples, His utter lonelines samong ruthless foes, the passage of the Cross, and the tragedy and triumph of Colvary, was depicted in an excellent piece of work by both organist and choir.

Heard first was the choral prelude, "Lord, Hear My Deepest Longing," by J. S. Bache, and the Processional, "Sacred Head Surrounded." Other organ numbers included "Sevenfold Amen" by F. G. Mann and Walford Davies' "Solemn Melody." The famous "Shepherd of Souls" from the sign of the Cross, by Edward Jones, was an impressive rendering by a quartet consisting of Messrs. J. Clarke, L. Groombridge, I. Luther and R. Pitchford. Outstanding parts, rendered with profound emotional feeling, were taken by Messrs. V. Coleman, E. May, W. Crouter and F. Hooper (tenor), G. Young, L. Dyer, R. Pitchford, R. Crocker (bass). The soprano work was carried entirely by boy choristers. St. John's Church has the distinction of having the only purely boys' choir between Kingston and Toronto.

The presentation was interspersed with four hymns for congregational singing.

Early Spring Wedding

An early Spring wedding of much charm took place in Trinity United Church on Wednesday afternoon, March 20, at five-thirty, when Violet Elsie Gilmour, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Gilmour, 5 Kenneth Avenue, and Mr. Ormie Robert Henry, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. R. Henry, of Lindsay, were united in marriage by Rev. G. S. Easton. The bridal party, ABOVE, includes: Miss Mary Thompson, bridesmaid; the bride and groom; and Mr. Hugh Fallis, groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Henry will live in Toronto.

A.Y.P.A. Notes

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

The last Lenten meeting of St. John's A.Y.P.A. took place after the church service on Wednesday evening. The members went into the church in a body to listen to a talk by Rev. Mr. Brain. He discussed the Holy Communion office, and explained the history of it and also the reasons for the way in which it is celebrated. Following this, a short business meeting was held in the Sunday school and plans were completed for the coming conference in Toronto.

Members are reminded that next Wednesday evening Rev. Mr. Brain will deliver the final address in the series of lectures on "Matrimony." As this promises to be very interesting and most practical, a large turnout is hoped for. After the address there will be a social evening.

DOROTHY DIX

Make a Chum of Your Wife and You Will Never Lose Her. Woman Prefers Soft and Loving Words to Great Deeds From Her Husband.

A young man who is about to be married asks me if I can give him a few plain, practical rules for keeping his wife in love with him and glad she married him. Ho, that's easy, because women are simple, sentimental creatures who are always in love with love, and as long as their husbands will let them think they are fairy princes they will do it. It is harder to lose a wife's affections than it is to hold them. Nevertheless, a lot of men do it. But, anyway, if you want to keep your bride eating out of your hand: Put sugar in it. The marriage ceremony does not automatically extract a girl's sweet tooth. She craves flattery and caresses and pretty speeches just as much after marriage as she did before. Inasmuch as you have cut her off from the attentions of other men, it is up to you to pinch-hit for them and supply the jollying without which life is cinders, ashes and dust to a woman.

Don't quit being a lover just because you have become a husband. Don't take your wife for granted and treat her as if she is just a household gadget that is convenient to have about and that adds to your comfort. Don't forget that women put more stress on words than deeds and that a wife may doubt the affection of the husband who works himself to death to make her comfortable, but she will believe in his devotion if he pays her compliments. Words are cheap. Don't be niggardly with them.

Get off on the right foot. While you are still so much in love with Angel Face that you are a little woozy and not in full possession of your faculties, don't let her establish herself as head of the huse and she-who-must-be-obeyed. Just remember that women are still emotionally primitive and hanker for caveman stuff. No wife loves long the husband who lets her dominate him and henpeck him.

Train the girl you marry into being the kind of wife you want. Take as much time and trouble and give as much patience to breaking her into her duties and responsibilities as a wife as you would if you were employing her as a stenographer. Don't be silly enough to think that a young girl who has had no experience of marriage or the wife job will know how to deal with all of your little peculiarities, and run a house by sheer inspiration.

Many men alienate their wives' affections from them during the first year of marriage by their continual fault-finding, and once a husband establishes in his wife's mind the belief that he is a grouch that there is no use trying to please, the marriage becomes nothing but an endurance test or ends in divorce.

Be just to your wife. Play the marriage game fairly and squarely with her. Don't ask more of her than you are willing to give. She works just as hard in the home as you work in your business, so give her her share of the famil yincome as her right. No woman in the world can love a tightwad.

Don't expect her to be any more faithful to you than you are to her. Don't think that you can philander around with other women and when you are tired of them come home to a wife who still loves you and believe in you. It can't be done. When you have killed love it is the deadest of all dead things.

Start on your wedding day making a chum of your wife. When you stop the lovey-dovey twaddle of courtship begin talking to your bride about the things that interest you. Tell her about your business. Interest her in your plans and hopes and ambitions. Make her read the books that you read. Make her play with you. Develop her along your lines. If you will do this, you will never come to those horrible days when a husband and wife sit up in silence when they are alone together because they are strangers who have

Provincial Problems Undertaken By Council Of Women Are Outlined

Health examination before marriage, which should be taken by modern young people as a matter of course, and which is now compulsory in the United States, is one of the problems now being worked out by the Ontario Provincial Council of Women, Mrs. S. G. Miller, president, told a large meeting of the Local Council of Women Thursday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room.

Other problems receiving the attention of this organization is municipal voting for women teachers; the present unfair system whereby relatives may step in and claim a share of the property when a man dies intestate, even though that property has been acquired as much through his wife's efforts as his own, and the matter of equal pay for men and women.

Employers will not pay equal money for equal work in the case of women, Mrs. Miller said. With the exception of such professions as doctors or lawyers, perhaps, salaries are usually paid according to sex and not to business ability and efficiency. Hollywood is an exception, she stated. In Hollywood the highest paid single entertainer today is probably Marion Anderson, the well-known colored singer — salaries here are paid according to the ability of the one who draws them. Finland, that small country which has won the admiration of the world during the last few weeks, with a number of other Scandinavian countries, has for some years believed in equal pay for both men and women.

Mrs. Miller gave a brief account of the history of the Provincial Council, which was organized after the Great War. All provincial work prior to its organization was carried on by the National Council, but by degrees it became necessary to form a Provincial Council to handle provincial questions.

The importance of using more Ontario apples was also emphasized by Mrs. Miller, who said that thousands of barrels had been left unsold when the European markets came to an end. Agriculture is one of the country's basic industries, and apple-raising one of its most important features. Upon investigation, it was found that many of the large Canadian institutions such as sanitariums and hospitals, have been using apples but once a week, while large quantities of citrous fruits grown in the United States had been purchased, Mrs. Miller stated as she urged women to use more of this valuable fruit in their homes.

Referring to the refugee problem, Mrs. Miller said that 9,400 refugee children alone are now in England, and yet, after a great deal of pleading on the part of women, the government here has finally given a grudging consent for but one hundred children to come into Canada, and that only if good homes have been provided, and the Children's Aid Societies have guaranteed to accept the responsibility of such children.

Mrs. Miller was introduced by Mrs. E. Wand, president of the Local Council of Women.

Mrs. Young thanked the speaker, also Mrs. Charles Renaud, who sang a delightful solo during the afternoon, and Mrs. W. C. Parr, who was her accompanist.

A brief business meeting was held with Mrs. Wand in the chair, at which it was decided to change the hour of Council meetings from three o'clock p.m. to two-thirty. A report by the wine-shop committee said that no move could be taken until 1941, when a vote would be taken on both beer and wine shops.

Announcement was made by Dr. Agnes K. Moffat that Dr. Ebbs of Toronto, nutrition expert, had consented to address the Council, and the date was set for Wednesday evening, April 10. A letter was read acknowledging the message of sympathy sent to Lady Tweedsmuir following the death of Lord Tweedsmuir.

A collection was taken at this meeting which will go towards the purchase of a gift of Canadian furs for Lady Tweedsmuir prior to her return to Scotland this month.

Another Bad Night Could Get No Rest

To the thousands who toss, night after night, on sleepless beds and to whose eyes slumber will not come.

To those who sleep in a kind of way, but whose rest is broken by bad dreams and nightmares.

To those who wake up in the morning as tired as on going to bed, we offer in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills a remedy to help soothe and calm the nerves and bring them back to a perfect condition, and when this is done there should be no more sleepless nights due to shattered nerves.

Reasons Why The Mackenzie King Government Will Be Returned To Power

1. Because of what it has accomplished in organizing Canada for carrying on the war. Already 90,000 troops are under arms and two contingents of infantry, fully equipped, and an air squadron have proceeded overseas. The British and French governments and military leaders in both countries have highly praised Canada's war accomplishments.

2. Because it has united Canada as it has never been united before for any great task. Not only is the Liberal Party unitedly behind the Government but every Provincial Government except Alberta and Premier Hepburn, is whole heartedly co-operating so that Canada may render the greatest possible assistance in winning the war.

3. Because the so-called "National Government" is only a myth. In the Maritime Provinces, in Ontario, in Manitoba and British Columbia every one of the so called National Government" candidates is a Conservative. In Quebec the campaign is controlled by Duplessis' followers, according to the Montreal Gazette and Montreal Star (Conservative Papers.) In Alberta there is apparently an agreement with the Social Credit Party and in Saskatchewan with the C.C.F. All three are oposed to Canada's participation in the far.

4. Because across Canada great Conservative papers like the Montreal Gazette, the Montreal Star, the Ottawa Journal, London Free Press, the Hamilton Spectator, and many others, and outstanding individuals who helped make the Conservative Party great while Hon. Dr. Manion was still a Liberal, are protesting against the scuttling of the Conservative Party and carrying on the campaign under false colors.

5. Because the King Government by co-operating with the British Government and the securing of Trade Agreements with the United States and several other countries has greatly increased Canada's foreign trade and by wise legislation has improved economic conditions. Compare prices of farm produce to-day with prices between 1930 and 1935 and you will find in most cases they are double or more. At the same time the Canadian and British consumer must be considered and inflation of prices should not be expected.

Leading Independent papers like the Toronto Saturday Night, the Financial Post, the Montreal Standard and many others predict the return of the King Government by a big majority. They have usually been right in foretelling the results of previous elections.

Vote For RORK S. FERGUSON

Who has proven his worth as a representative of the Riding and his willingness to serve all classes, without regard to Party or creed.

. . . and he passed NOT by on the other side.

"What we need is not more of a 'brain trust,' but more of a 'heart trust' in government. It is a fashionable pride these days to point to a government composed of the best brains, and some people think that is a direct invitation to them to offer their services. It is true we need both brain and heart trust, but mostly more heart."

SOME RECOLLECTIONS OF A LIFE-LONG ASSOCIATE

Hundreds of Peterborough's citizens know from bitter personal experience during the depression that R. M. (Rollie) Glover is the kind of man the writer had in mind when he said, as quoted above. . . . "we need more 'heart trust' in government."

For them it was a time of anxiety and distress and heartbreak. For R. M. Glover it became an opportunity for doing good. For him, too, it was a time of testing, and the kind of testing which he could easily have avoided if he did not rank high among the modest company of the Good Samaritans.

When people were in dire need, most of them for the first time in their lives, R. M. Glover could have "passed by on the other side." Most newspaper publishers throughout the country did not feel that they were called upon in that economic calamity to convert their offices into relief depots.

The publisher of the Examiner did, and it is no wonder hundreds of citizens who received help through the medium of the Examiner are out working for the election of Rollie Glover, however, he asked nothing from the people he befriended. . . .But, there is such a thing as remembrance. . . .

Remembrance of the hurt and humiliation of want, the lack of the necessities of life, and having to seek help from others!

Remembrance, too, that your faith in human sympathy was vindicated by a community of many kindly citizens, when even you, dear Reader, in the same cruel circumstances would have discovered the heart-lift of finding a "friend in need",—a Good Samaritan.

It is not easy to say these things about Rollie Glover. . . .Men of his stamp don't want their good deeds published abroad. . . .but, we come back to the text,—"governments need more men of warm and kindly hearts."

Friends of Rollie Glover are refusing to stand silently by while a whole retinue of comparative strangers, from British Columbia to Burleigh Falls, tramp into and around this riding trying to becloud the fact that Mr. Glover has richly earned the confidence of his fellow citizens by many years of good deeds done among them and with their help.

And, just one more digression from the text. When you are handed a ballot next Tuesday surely it is worth remembering that only one of the two men whose names are set before you is a resident of this riding, a life long resident, and the only one who has a vote here . . .That candidate is Roland Maxwell Glover.

He has lived here through the full years and through the lean ones like that long period which began October 1929, the depression.

Mr. Glover was the publisher of the Examiner at that time, during the winters and summers of widespread unemployment when the Examiner developed into a community relief office.

A legion of charitably disposed men and women of the city and county will always remember their contributions of money, clothing, furniture, stoves, beds, mattresses, radios for "shut ins", crutches for crippled persons, sewing machines, chairs, tables, dental work, eyeglasses, medical attention and so on.

Many a night, especially during several winters, Mr. Glover personally delivered baskets of food and other necessary articles to families who could find no other help. But, the bulk of that relief could not have been carried on without the splendid contribution kept up by the generous hearted people of this community.

Today, they seem "old, unhappy, far off things", but they are recalled because they revealed the kind of man and citizen Rollie Glover was and still is. . . .It was a strange enterprise, bridging a painful period until organized relief came into being, eventually with the governments and the municipality paying the bills.

However, during that first phase of the depression, social assistance and relief had to be voluntary, and the Examiner, under Mr. Glover, became the chief medium of receiving and distributing the necessities of life for those hundreds of families who were first to know the worry and tears of unemployment.

Citizens gladly contributed money to this relief fund. . . . Theatres gave their proceeds. . . .Two nights at the Capitol Theatre netted more than $1,000 to the fund. . .Young people held dances for the same purpose. . . . Church organizations did their part. . . .

Mr. Glover's office became so crowded with clothing and furniture that large space had to be obtained in the Toronto Savings & Loan building. . . .That was the beginning of the relief office. . . .It was later moved to a vacant store in the old Cressman building with stocks of dresses and men's clothing, boots and shoes and so on. . . .

Hundreds of transients were given meals. . . They also found lodging over night at the Red Cross Hostel. . . .At other times the relief fund was "in the red", and it is no exaggeration to mention that Mr. Glover paid into it hundreds of dollars from his own pocket. . . .

Meanwhile, the old Charity Board, overwhelmed by demands upon it, realized that it could not cope with that emergency. . . .The city council moved into the organization when the provincial and federal governments began assuming a very large part of the burden. . . .

Then came the city's relief committee composed of citizens who desired to lend their assistance, and finally the council assumed the entire responsibility, appointing A. G. Metheral as relief officer. . . .

Mr. Glover's active association with Peterborough's ten years of helping its citizens who were in need began with his own initiative back in the winter of 1929-30 and continued until he retired from the city council. . . .

All the mayors during that period will tell of Rollie Glover's contribution to the success of Peterborough's relief work, and probably Alderman James Dutton most of all because he came into the work in its early stages, and is still directing it as chairman of the city's relief committee. . . .

It has been a long chapter of need and distress, often dampened with tears, but it has had a grateful side, too, in disclosing the large number of Good Samaritans there are in this community.

Glimpses of the kind of relief that was rendered during the first three years of the depression in this community are included with this review . . . . That was the Rollie Glover period before the country realized that voluntary giving was inadequate.

How true it is that we need men of warm hearts in government.

The people of Peterborough West have in Rollie Glover the Good Samaritan type of candidate, apart altogether from his business experience and ability as a successful newspaper publisher.

You can't make a mistake in marking your ballot on Tuesday for Roland Maxwell Glover,—a Good Samaritan.

A Few Incidents Recalled

The Examiner sent out more than 200 baskets of "cheer" for Christmas 1930—baskets of groceries and meat, fruit and candies. Mr. Glover directed and helped with the packing until after midnight. On Christmas morning he heard of five families who had been overlooked. So, he left home and rounded up provisions and good things and delivered the bundles to those five homes. Later he heard that two of them were of the "grabbing" variety, that they had previously received baskets.

"I guess they'll be able to use it all," was Mr. Glover's characteristic reply.

There was a young boy who no one claimed as a son. He had been kept for some time by a man and his wife. Then the depression pinched them so severely, that just keeping that boy any longer was no longer possible. The man asked the Examiner to advertise for a new home for the boy, and after some reluctance at such a strange request an advertisement was published.

Providence must have taken a hand in that boy's destiny. The "ad" was read by a kindly man, a teacher, who gave the boy a home with his own good family. He was a good looking boy and well mannered. He remained two years in that home. The teacher sent him to night school, got him a job in a factory, where he is still working, and he has been married for some time.

• • • • •

Rural and City Women

The co-operation of the women of both the city and country was a wonderful help in that community enterprise. Several junior church societies specialized in toys for Christmas baskets; country ladies sent quilts; women generally knitted socks and mittens and scarves.

And there never was any question of creed or race or politics or things like that. Hundreds of women in the rural and urban community of Peterborough will recall their participation in those good deeds when so many people were suddenly left helpless and almost in despair.

• • • • •

Stocks of Ovaltine from A. Wander & Company were kept on supply at The Examiner for quite a long time, thanks to the generosity of Mr. Charles Shaw.

One mother of a sickly baby declares to this day that the little one wouldn't have lived if it had not been for the free Ovaltine.

There was a doctor who used to supply medicine, and never made out an account for it. Milk dealers were exceedingly generous, one head of a large establishment, esoecially. There was even cod liver oil for children who needed extra nourishment.

• • • • •

A Soldier and His Family

The late James Abraham was trying to get a pension for a veteran of the war who had contracted arthritis after returning from Germany. Because he had refused to work in a munitions factory as a prisoner of war, the Germans had rubbed acid on his hands and put him to work in the salt mines.

This returned man was reduced to beggary, himself, his wife and two children. They needed food, and he needed some decent clothes. Captain Abraham obtained the articles after discussing this case with Mr. Glover. It was only one of many of the same kind.

• • • • •

One of the strangest gifts inspired by this form of relief service was the $18 stakes of a poker game contributed by a group of young men on a Christmas Eve, perhaps 1932.

The money was for a woman who had asked for help a few days prior to Christmas. Her husband had been out of work for months, she had a child very ill, and a doctor advised her she should be in the hospital. She refused because of the sick child.

A special appeal for that family brought them everything, even to a Christmas tree, half a ton of coal, three large baskets of food, a doctor's service free and the $18 from the poker party.

Mrs. Everson was appointed secretary as Mrs. Williamson was absent. The president, Mrs. MacPherson, was in charge of the meeting and opened it by the roll call and it was answered by Irish jokes. Plans were discussed for a dance early in April. The hostess, Mrs. Fisher, and Mrs. Northey served dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Lamb was a visitor to Peterborough on Tuesday and called to see Mr. Moon at Nicholls Hospital, where Mr. Moon underwent an operation for appendicitis. His many friends are pleased to hear his condition is improved.

Card Party Is Held In Lakefield Hall

LAKEFIELD, March 23—(ENS)—Five tables of euchre were played at the card party in the Orange Hall, Lakefield, on Monday evening. Mrs. Bruce Preston held the ladies' high score and Miss Mary Wildman the second high score. To N. S. Higgins went the gentlemen's high prize, with Allen Gill taking second prize. R. C. Darling was the winner of the consolation prize.

Following the games refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Y.P.S. Meeting

The Easter story in the Scripture lesson, the missionary paper on the Jhansi Field in India, a contest of the St. Patrick theme, comprised the interesting program presented at the regular meeting of the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Church, Lakefield, on Monday evening.

The society accepted the invitation of the sister society of the United Church to be their guests on Tuesday evening, March 26. A committee composed of Mrs. C. Lee and Miss Evelyn Moore was appointed to plan a short program for that meeting.

A one-dollar donation toward paying for the recently installed church organ was ordered made.

An invitation to the Presbytery executive to attend the meeting on April 15 will be sent to the district president.

The work of the Presbyterian Church in the Jhansi field was described by Mrs. J. M. Young, missionary convener.

A pageant entitled "Sunrise in the Garden" will be presented by members of the W.M.S. of the Lakefield United Church on Easter Sunday evening in the church.

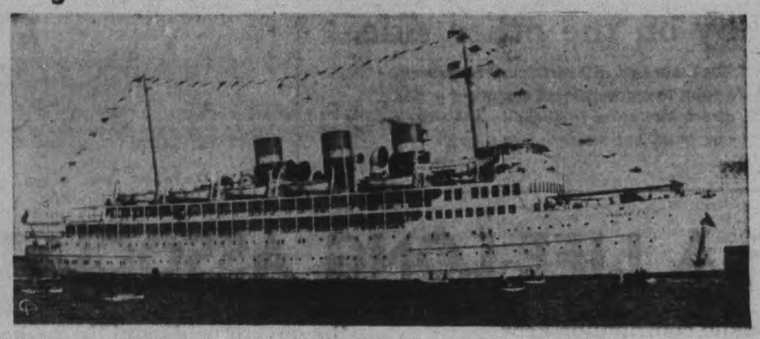
Being Converted Into Armed Merchant Cruisers



S.S. PRINCE DAVID

S.S. PRINCE ROBERT

The War Supply Board in Ottawa has disclosed that the S.S. Prince David and the S.S. Prince Robert of the Canadian National Steamship Line are being converted into armed merchant cruisers.

STATESMEN'S SNAPSHOTS

Canada's representative at the recently concluded Imperial War and Economic conference in London, the only Canadian minister to have seen the Maginot line and the only Canadian cabinet minister to broadcast in German to Germany since the war began is Hon. Thomas Crerar, Canada's minister of mines and resources.

No straight "party" politician is this Ontario born, western farm boy who made good in a big way. He has been a minister in Sir Robert Borden's Union government, the leader of the Progressive party, when it almost swept into power in 1921 and twice swept into power in in Mackenzie King's cabinet.

While Perth county, Ontario, can boast as being his birthplace, he went west by covered wagon in 1881 when he was only six years old.

"Long Tom," as he is sometimes called, worked on his father's farm, taught school while earning enough money to go to Manitoba college and finally worked his way up from the beginning with the United Grain Growers, Ltd. He became president.

"Out of the blue" in 1918, Mr. Crerar, who had never before entered public life, was invited to join Sir Robert Borden's war-time cabinet, which he did as minister of agriculture.

Disagreeing with his leader over the tariff policy of the Union government, he returned to Winnipeg in 1919.

Then came the organization of the Progressive party with a following of 65 members and Mr. Crerar as their leader. A year later he resigned as leader and again devoted his time to the development of his company.

Seven years later he re-entered public life, this time as minister of railways and canals.

With the return of a Liberal government in 1935, Mr. Crerar was given three portfolios, minister of mines, minister of the interior and minister of immigration and colonization. Added to this he was superintendent general of Indian affairs, head of the soldier settlement board and a few minor tasks, all of which he moulded into one great new department, mines and resources.

He is a tall man, grey haired, rather reserved, quiet spoken and knows thoroughly the potentialities of Canada in farm, mine, forest and sea.

ONE FALSE STEP

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XXVI

AS THE limousine swung out to the highway, Mary said to Janis: "Roul's incorrigible—but good company. He seems to have taken a fancy to you."

"He certainly has a way of inviting himself to other people's houses."

"Oh, he doesn't mean anything by that. Stephen and I were brought up with the Smith family. He'll probably amuse you—but don't take him too seriously."

Janis bit her lower lip. If Mary only knew how unnecessary it was to warn her against a man like Roul Smith! She made no reply, fastened her gaze on the road ahead lying tight against great perpendicular hills, down which any instant loose-hanging boulders and masses of caked earth threatened to roll directly in the car's path. She wished that men like Roul Smith and Rock Conover would stay out of her life. But perhaps she was getting downright wicked. Rock Conover—he was—her husband!

Doyle Shows Interest

One of the dinner guests that evening was Max Doyle, the director so frequently mentioned by Rock. He seemed particularly interested in Janis, and she had an opportunity to chat with him a few minutes in a secluded corner of the drawing room while cocktails were being served.

Max Doyle was nearing middle age. He was short, stocky, nervous and continually on the lookout for motion-picture talent.

The exquisitely slim, fair Janis, her hair tawny under the softly shaded lights, was arresting. Her wide blue eyes giving color accent to her long-sleeved, black taffeta gown, that impregnable, dreamy expression on the sweet oval of her face, was that Doyle seldom found assembled so strikingly in one girl.

He mentioned that she might have screen possibilities, and she told him of her recent experience with a test. Also, she made it quite plain that she was not interested in becoming an actress. It hurt her to say this, but she could not be a career-woman now—later perhaps. She could and did, however, try to draw out the energy-motivated Mr. Doyle.

"Besides, I'm married," she told him. "I understand you dont care to have married people on contract."

"Nonsense! Where'd you get that idea?"

"I—I heard you made that restriction in some recent contracts with new actors."

"You heard wrong—I did nothing of the kind. That's like so many other tales that get around about what goes on in the studios. Can't believe any of it."

"I suppose not," came faintly from Janis. How well she knew it! Rock—deliberately hatching up a story about his contract restrictions! Rock, wanting to flit about among women, unhampered by the ties of matrimony!

"By the way—not long ago, I signed up a fellow by name of Conover. He might be related to you. Now in his case, marriage would be beneficial. Hard on his wife, no doubt. He's too handsome—women are too crazy over him. Will you tell me, Mrs. Conover, why women get that way over a fellow when they know it's hopeless. Why, Conover wouldn't marry any of them. He told me so. He thinks marriage is a joke."

Fortunately, Mastin announced dinner just then and Janis was not obliged to explain to the fast-talking Mr. Doyle her exact relationship to Rock Conover.

Gay Dinner Party

She went into the dining room on the arm of Roul Smith, her heart dead within her, a set smile upon her lips. She watched Doe Smith go in ahead, flirting with Stephen Black for all she was worth. She wondered if Doe was "that way" over Stephen, and found herself resenting it. Stephen Black was too fine a man to be taken in by so shallow a girl. She would hurt him too much, and he shouldn't be hurt.

Upon reaching the table, Janis' desperation sent her into a high, false gayety that fairly astonished Mary, at one end of the table, and Stephen at the other. She was so nearly brilliant in repartee that she quite surprised herself, and she paid so much attention to Roul Smith that he misconstrued it, began to act lightly possessive.

When they were all having coffee later in the drawing room, Janis abruptly felt stifled, wanted to be alone. In a moment when the room was buzzing with a political discussion that was waxing controversial, she managed to slip out through an open door leading to a patio.

A thick mist was falling and the chill in the air was sharply penetrating, but hot blood was racing in her veins now, making her insensible to all outer discomforts. A baritone came over the radio inside the house.

"Love—why is he singing about love?" she thought impatiently. "Is there nothing in the world but love?"

"To think you could spend a second away from me—it doesn't make sense," said Roul Smith, unexpectedly joining her.

"Why! You startled me. I came out for a breath of air," she told him, listlessly, her face chalk-white under the overhanging lantern.

"But it's clammy. You should have a wrap. Here——" He opened his dinner jacket and, before she sensed what he was about, flung an end of it around her, together with his arm.

"Please——" She attempted to pull away but was helpless against his strength.

Stolen Kiss

And before she could spurt out her disgust, he suddenly leaned over her, laid his lips hard against hers. She struggled frantically to free herself, and over Roul's shoulder caught a fleeting glimpse of a tall erect figure turning from the doorway. Stephen Black! What would he think of her?

Roul abruptly released her with a short laugh.

"You're so confounded sweet—just about the sweetest little imp I've ever met," he told her flippantly.

"Perhaps I'm not interested in your opinion, Mr. Smith," she chopped out scornfully, and tried to pin up her disarranged hair.

"What else did you expect—Mrs. Conover?" he asked mockingly, and reached in his pocket for a cigarette.

Without hesitation, she did now what her anger prompted. She flung her hand wide and slapped him smartly across the mouth. He was too stunned with surprise to protest. He watched her vanish through the door, his eyes bulging.

She wound quickly through the library and reached the front hall unnoticed. She was finally in her room with the door locked behind her.

She began walking up and down the room, her hands pressing hard against her throbbing temples, her thoughts whirling around the evening's incidents. The misconception that Stephen Black would surely place upon what he had seen on the patio now overshadowed Roul's disgusting deception. All sorts of dire possibilities ran through her mind. But why was she so upset by what Stephen Black would think of her? What did this mean?

Suddenly then, like a burst of sunshine through a black cloud, came quick realization. It soared to lovely rapture in her heart, and she held it there, wondering if she were very sinful. Then the futility of it slapped across her consciousness like a cruel lash, and the weight of all her trouble settled upon her slim shoulders again. She undressed slowly and crawled hopelessly into bed.

The morning mail brought a letter from Boardman West, in which he expressed keen interest in her return to St. Louis, but not as a stenographer in his office. It was a precisely worded, matter-of-fact offer of marriage, which made Janis smile for the first time since last night. "Any scholarly lover of the seventeenth century could have written better emotion," she thought.

Maybe it was a pity that Mr. West hadn't seen fit to propose before she left his employ. Would she have accepted him? His millions might have dazzled her, even if she couldn't have loved him. And her life would now be in different channels. So helf-regretfully, she declined his kind and honorable offer, neglecting to explain in her letter that she had already taken on the bonds of matrimony. It would be slightly awkward to tell him about it now.

Married, virtually deserted, events to come closing in on her at a dreadful rate of speed. It didn't take long did it? A girl rushed headlong into marriage, thinking nothing but happiness could ever happen to her. But before long other things had happened and she was facing facts in full-fledged womanly fashion. This must be life.

Held In Murder Syndicate

Mission Circle, Band Rally At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, March 23 — (ENS). —Mrs. F. A. Kidd and her daughter Miss Phyllis were hostesses for the March meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle, held at their home, King Street West, on Tuesday evening, with the president, Mrs. E. J. Powell, in the chair.

Business items were concerned with the contents of the annual bale to be ready for the first of June, and for which the society is responsible for a complete layette, games and toys, new and second-hand clothing. On account of the removal from the village in the near future, of the present supply secretary, Phyllis Kidd, as the family is going back to Peterborough to live, the name of Mrs. E. C. Richards was suggested for this office. Mrs. Richards and the president will buy the necessary supplies for the bale, and voluntary contributions will be gratefully received.

This being the Easter meeting, the responsive service, "Christ the Light," was followed and appropriate Easter stories, "As it began to Dawn" and "Easter Hearts," were read by Mary Dawson and Jean Burnham, respectively.

Two members will write the monthly letter to Margaret Luxon, and after the benediction in unison, a social hour was enjoyed, during which the hostesses served home-made candy. Much regret is felt at the coming loss of Mrs. Kidd and her family from the community, where they have lived for the past thirteen years.

The Sunshine Mission Band held its meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. Stinson, the superintendents, Mary Burnham and Beatrice McDowell being in charge, with the secretary, Connie Stinson, giving the minutes and roll-call. A discussion of ways and means of raising money and of further education along missionary lines, was followed by the Bible study led by Mary Burnham, and the second chapter from the study book on India, after which the benediction closed the gathering, and Mrs. Stinson and the leaders served candy before the boys and girls left for home.

The Young People's Union on Monday evening was in charge of the Christian Fellowship convener, Jean L. Burnham, the leader conducting the period during which new hymns are learned, and the weekly Bible drill.

Ruth Thorne read the Easter lesson, and Elwood Fallis gave the talk, Della Mae Sisco closing this period with prayer. Earl Edworthy, president, followed with an inspirational talk on "Modern Friends of Jesus" and after the benediction a recreational period was enjoyed.

Easter Message Heard By Circle

HASTINGS, March 23.—An inspiring and challenging special Easter message on 'The Story of the Cross,' was given by Mrs. Walter Hubble as the chief feature in connection with the monthly Mission Circle meeting of Trinity church, held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Clifford Baker.

Miss Carrie Doxsee conducted the opening worship period, which was followed by a very lovely Easter programme.

Mrs. Clifford Scriver gave a reading on 'Palm Sunday' and Mrs. E. Hess and Mrs. J. E. Glover sang a duet, a beautiful number 'The Palms.'

The 'Preparation for the Passover', a reading, given by Miss Helen Collins; 'The Passover Feast, reading by Miss Claudine Hoarde; 'Go to Dark Gethsemane' by Mrs. Fred Crate'; 'Gethsemane' by Mss Rhea Preston; 'The Crucifixion' by Mrs. Iden Bonds, Jr.; 'The Seven Words of the Cross', by Miss Jessie Lamb. Mrs. C. Baker sang a lovely Easter solo, entitled 'Alone.'

Business centred around the Plunkett dinner to be held in the church basement on April 3rd.

A chapter from the Study Book was outlined after which a social half hour was enjoyed, when a very special luncheon was provided and served by Mrs. E. Hess. Miss Claudine Hoard and the hostess.

The Mission Circle girls then responded ao the special Thankoffering.

Ready For Sentence

London, March 23 (CP)

A 37-YEAR-OLD British Indian engineer, Udham Singh, alias Mahomed Singh Azad, was returned to Bow Street court today for further examination on a charge of murdering Sir Michael O'Dwyer, retired Indian administrator.

Prosecutor Vincent Evans read a statement attributed to the prisoner, as follows:—

"I shoot like I think, at the wall. I just shot to make a protest—not to kill. I do not mind what sentence—10, 15 or 20 years or to be hanged. I did my duty."

AN INDUSTRY Pledged TO THE FURTHERANCE OF AGRICULTURE

Founded and developed on the basis of helpfulness to the farmer, the implement industry is entirely dependent on the prosperity of agriculture for its own success.

Through the years the implement maker has, with quality of product and genuinely helpful service, won the high regard and goodwill of the users of his product. There are few farmers who do not value sincerely the service of the implement company.

Lack of understanding of some of the problems of the industry may give rise on occasion to criticisms that seek to detract from or disparage the part that the implement maker plays.

In the light of the facts, however, misunderstandings vanish and a better appreciation results.

Farmers' Equipment Investment Greatly Reduced

Most of the discussions on prices of implements, comparing them with those of years ago, for instance, fail to take cognizance of the improvement in methods that have taken place, resulting in the use of different machines from those of a quarter-of-a-century ago.

The One-Way Disc Seeder has displaced, to a serious extent, so far as the manufacturer is concerned, several other machines, and it does so because it cuts the cost of tillage and seeding by from 40% to 50%.

The small combine has spread the use of this method of harvesting until the sale of them now almost equals that of binders. And this because it costs only 26c per acre for out-of-pocket expense to harvest with the small combine as against $1.90 per acre by the Binder-Thresher method—a saving of $1.64 per acre.

The wheat farmer can equip today with the latest tractor and tillage and harvesting equipment at 28% less than he could for comparable machines ten years ago—equipment, too, that enables him to cut the costs of his operations by over 50%.

This is the contribution of the implement industry to the furtherance of agriculture and Massey-Harris takes pride in having played an important part in it.

Foe Powerful Rex Frost Tells Masons

CAMPBELLFORD, March 23. — (ENS)—Germany is not ready to fall apart economically, declared Rex Frost, Toronto, widely recognized authority on world affairs, radio commentator and traveller before members of the Royal Arch Masons on the occasion of the 31st anniversary of the Ionic Chapter No. 168. Mr. Frost, who was introduced by Ex. Companion P. M. Locke voiced the opinion that Germany was a powerful enemy whose challenge for world domination was not only sincere but was backed up by an internal economy that was not dependent on an early peace.

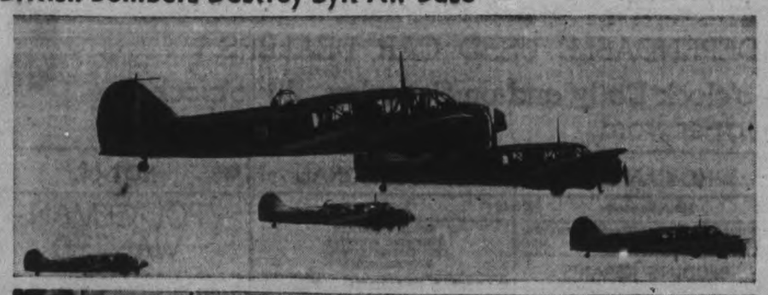
Giving a comprehensive but brief survey of the European background together with the principal issues confronting the world today Mr. Frost laid emphasis on the part played by Germany. He pointed out that many of his views had been gained as a result of an extensive personal survey of Europe together with much matter of value he had received from friends and other reliable sources. Speaking of the food situation in Germany he said that though there may not have been any great variety there was certainly no shortage before the war.

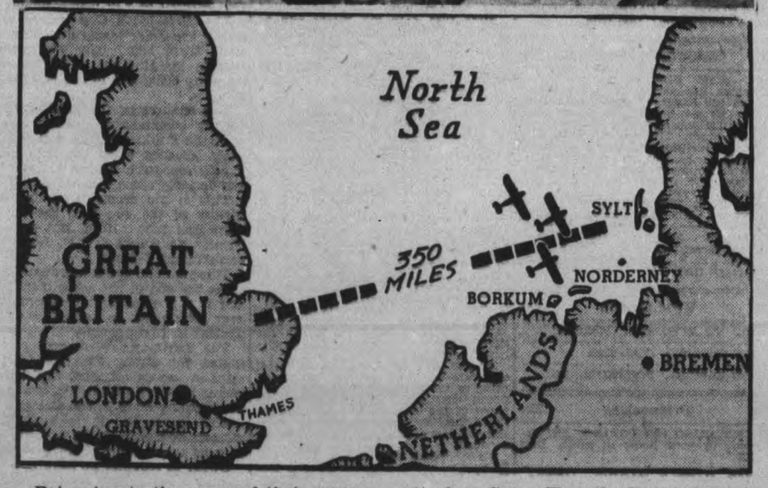
As to what extent the people were behind their Fuehrer the speaker voiced the opinion that for the most part he was highly regarded. There are some who harbor considerable doubt as to his virtues and only a minority are diametrically opposed to the present government. The farmer was one class which had benefited greatly under Hitlerism since he now was guaranteed a profitable price for his produce. Marketing is superintended by the government and all retail prices are directly controlled by it. Principal reason for Hitler's support from the working classes arises from the fact that most of the unemployed have been given work either in an industry allied to the ally war machine or in the army itself. Manufacturers who have been called upon to give employment are in turn given a certain amount of protection by the government.

Chief opposition comes from the wealth classes and big manufacturers along with religious groups headed by Roman Catholics and Evangelical churches which comprise 40 per cent of the religious bodies. Mr. Frost forecast that the turning point in Germany economy would probably come as the result of pressure from these religious groups.

Comp. H. Bleecher, who presided for the banquet expressed the thanks of the Chapter to the speaker. The toast to the visitors was proposed by V. Ex. Comp. O. C. Watson to which replies were made by V. Comp. T. W. Solmes of Keyestone Chapter, Stirling; Ex. Comp. W. A. Hogle and W. Bro. S. Clegg, W.M. of Golden Rule Lodge No. 126, Campbellford. During the early part of the convocation which took place in the lodge rooms Comp H. E. Bleecher presided and the M.E.M. degree was conferred on one candidate. Another feature of the evening was the presentation made by V. Comp. A. J. Meyers of a First Principal's jewel to Ex. Comp. J. Lewis Hay who responded briefly expressing his appreciation for the co-operation accorded him during his term of office.

British Bombers Destroy Sylt Air Base





Returning to the scene of their seven-hour bombing attack on the German air base at Sylt Island, Royal Air Force bombers continued their attack with bombs and aerial cameras. Pilots reported to the Air Ministry that tremendous damage had been done during the continuous night bombing raids and that little of the operational part of the air base was left. Roaring out of the night sky, the British bombers blasted hangars, workshops and slipways in the longest air raid of the war. Following quickly on the heels of the German aerial attack on Scapa Flow, the British bombers carried out their destructive work in successive, almost continuous waves. Moonlight and scattered clouds enabled the British planes to dive on their objective, unleash their bombs and dart to cover before the Germans could recover from their surprise. Bombers, such as the ones that took part in the raid, are shown TOP, while a group of R.A.F. pilots are shown CENTRE studying a map of their objectives before taking to the air.

Miami Press Arranges For Woman Expecting Quints

MIAMI, Fla., March 23—(AP).—Enriched by an agreement that grants funds and medical care, Mrs. Katherine Callahan, who hopes to become a mother of quintuplets, rested to-day in a hospital suite far more luxurious than her one-room $2.50 a week apartment.

But she was not a willing patient. Her physician, Dr. Arthur W. Wood, who earlier confirmed that X-ray photographs apparently showed five distinct heads of unborn babies, had to persuade the mother that a period of rest was necessary.

"I'm not sick," she said, and demanded to be permitted to join her husband, Emory, 30-year-old furniture factory wood-worker who earns $15 weekly.

To-day the Miami Herald, whose owner, John S. Knight, placed the Callahans under contract for exclusive publication rights of photographs and news, planned to lease a new home for them where nursing and medical attention would be constantly available.

The Herald's agreement provided the prospective mother with an undisclosed sum of money, the services of Dr. Wood and specialists if the physician desires to call them, and all hospital expenses, including nurses, as well as income from news and pictures.

Normally, the babies would be born May 20. Medical men pointed out, however, that multiple births usually are premature. The mother, a small, brown-haired, blue-eyed woman, has gained 20 pounds in recent months. She weighs 128 now, but her condition was declared to be excellent by Dr. Wood.

The husband's father, Thomas C. Callahan of Thomasville, Ga., was a twin, but no other multiple births have been recorded in the family.

Just A Myth

Philadelphia, March 23 (AP)

GRANDMOTHER probably will never believe it but take the word of experts — she was all wrong when she gave generous doses of sulphur and molasses as a cure for "spring fever." There isn't any such thing.

That listless feeling you get around this time of year, three medical authorities agreed today, isn't something that you can prescribe medicine for, or put down in a textbook, or analyze under cause and effect. It is well—

"It's all a myth — a state of mind," says Dr. Hobart A. Reimann, professor of medicine at Jefferson Medical College.

"When the weather gets warm, people begin to think of going fishing and going on vacations. But they can't because they have to keep working. So they feel against the restraint and become restless. That's all spring fever is."

A 100-FOOT OAK in Capitol Square that breathes and smokes is going under the axe soon. The trunk is split, and the crack opens and closes as the ancient tree sways in the wind, a cigarette stuck into the opening puffs slightly as the tree "exhales."

Despite its scenic value, officials decided that the tree was a menace.

Mrs. Rowan Hostess To Bethany W.M.S.

BETHANY, March 23—The March meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. W. L. Rowan. The theme of the meeting was "The Missionary Purpose of God, Into All the World."

Mrs. F. Thompson took the scripture lesson from different parts of Acts, showing that Christians were to be witnesses in all parts of the world. Paul was God's instrument in transforming Christianity from a Jewish sect into a universal religion. "We in America have a special responsibility to carry out the missionary purpose which is ever present in the heart of God," she said.

Mrs. Porteous gave some interesting items on China; Mrs. Jackson on Trinidad, and Mrs. Thompson on Korea.

Mrs. Porteous gave the chapter from the study book on "Higher Christian Education in India. Wonderful progress has been made in the last century. In early years Hindu learning was confined to the priestly Brahman caste and Moslem learning was confined to the Arabic or Persian classics.

Since the last regular meeting the members met at the home of Mrs. Waddell and quilted a quilt for the missionary sale, and at the home of Mrs. Lee and quilted a quilt for which the society received $3.

On Thursday evening the basement of Bensfort United church was the scene of a St. Patrick's gathering when the Sunday school sponsored a chicken-pie supper. A large crowd attended in spite of the inclement weather. The decorations were very pretty in green and white. Mr. Fisher, Buckhorn, superintendent, very capably acted as chairman for the program, which was put on by Mrs. Helen Ludbrook Galvin and her Aloha Serenaders of Peterborough.

City Carpetball

Not many results so far this week, but we find No. 14 more solid in second place for the Bleasdall Shield.

There is yet time for a change, and the standings in the first six places are not great.

It must be conceded that C.N.R. Freighters are winners on the Hope Cup without fear of displacement.

The President's Cup games are giving the lower teams a chance to blow, there being only two teams now in the first six of the league standing being left in the cup playoffs.

The chances of the president-secretary combination stealing away with the President's Cup was absolutely smashed when the Fire Hall simply wiped the floor with them in the deciding game with a score 13-0.

This is the second time in the history of the cup that the same score has been tallied, last season Trinity No. 6 beat S.O.E. No. 8 in two straight, 7-3 and 13-0.

This year the game was abandoned at the end of the seventh frame, and it is possible that the Orphans may have piled up another 6 or 8 against their opponents.

The South-end Wanderers eliminated the strong Fire Hall Captains in two out of three whilst the league babies, St. Andrew's, took out the Fighting Macs in two straight.

This leaves No. 11 to meet the winners of the 13-15 tilt and No. 16 to meet the winners of the 3-10 tilt.

Owing to requests we have had to change the schedules around slightly and left some of the games out owing to the fact that it would mean three games for some of the teams because of the President's Cup games.

Rumary's Antiques would like to complete their schedule this week if the Scabs would be able to arrange their game with them.

And if the South-end Wanderers and Bonnerworth Spinners feel like catching up to their back game it will help things along.

Meeting of executive committee will be held on Thursday evening at 7.15 in Trinity Church rooms before the cup games. All executive officers and skips are requested to attend.

The Stars Say . . .
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 24

SUNDAY'S horoscope fosters the affairs of church and state, education, philosophy and social pleasures rather than workaday avocations. These may be pursued with enterprise and ambition, superiors collaborating. In private affairs social or sentimental correspondence should give happiness.

For Monday, March 24

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a rather perplexing one, with certain factors for success and satisfaction and others conflicting and difficult. There may be obstacles, delays and disappointments, with some ruthless activities directed at breaking the static situations. There also may be some subtlety and connivance, but progress may be made.

Those whose birthday it is may look for some fair progress despite frustrations and perplexities. Subtle and peculiar situations may arise, calling for protection and wise management. New plans and objectives may benefit.

Annual Club Banquet

With the season's activities drawing to a close, our thoughts turn to the annual meeting and banquet, the grand finale to each skiing year. Full details are not available at time of writing but our guess would be about April 12, probably at the Y.M.C.A., and tickets will doubtless be 40 cents for seniors and 25 cents for juniors. Various committees are looking after the details including entertainment and full information will be available for the Telemarker next week. Tickets will be on sale next week at Simpson's Office, Charlotte street, at the Y.M.C.A. and from any member of the executive. We are counting on each person to buy his or her ticket well in advance of the date as we definitely must know how many to expect at the banquet a couple of days ahead.

Elections

Annual meeting means annual election, the all important question of choosing the executive for the coming year. Again we remind that nominations for the board of directors must be handed to the secretary in writing ten days before the date of the annual meeting. That means now. Remember what happened last year and we don't want that to happen again. Please make out your nominations at once, nine directors. Telephone them and ask their consent to run and then mail or deliver to Miss Reid at Simpson's Office, Charlotte street. Don't leave it for George to do. Do it yourself and right now. It's your duty.

The fact that the annual banquet is not far off does not mean that the skiing season is over by a long shot. With any sort of break in the weather we should have good skiing this week end, to finish off the season. The tow will be operating and Brunswick Heights in full swing as usual. This Easter, go to Bethany, the Sun Valley of Ontario.

This And That

About ten or twelve of the boys are deserting us this coming week-end for some skiing in the Laurentians at Mt. Tremblant, St. Agathe, St. Adele, etc. Lovely trip if you can make it. Good luck, gang, and keep to the right.

Prize committee is working overtime to get things in shape for the banquet. Some 44 prizes to be looked after this year which is some job.

We expect to see some good moving pictures of Bethany skiing at the banquet.

Jim Parsons, former hard working technical expert of the club was in town last week-end and made a flying trip to Bethany for an hour's skiing. Jim is putting his wax on up at Dome Mines these days and reports everything booming up there.

The boys finally discovered a new way to get down the slalom trail without going over that icy section. Granny trail is all the rage now provided you can make yourself thin enough at the right time to get

East overtook his partner's top spade, cashed another and switched to the club J, which the declarer took with his K. Planning a neat strip play, to prevent the loss of a trick each in the minors, declarer gathered in three trump tricks, ruffed the spade 8 to eliminate that suit, then cashed his top tricks in the minors, leaving himself one club, one diamond and one heart in his hand and the same lineup in dummy.

Then he led his club. West won it and had a diamond to return to East, setting the contract. Had South to what eleventh trick led his diamond to the J. East would have had to win it with the Q and would have had nothing left to return, no matter how he had discarded, but a diamond or spade. Declarer could have discarded a club then while he ruffed in the opposite hand.

The clue to this play was that East, who made an original bid of spades, had shown no high card strength in side suits as yet, and so must surely have the diamond Q.

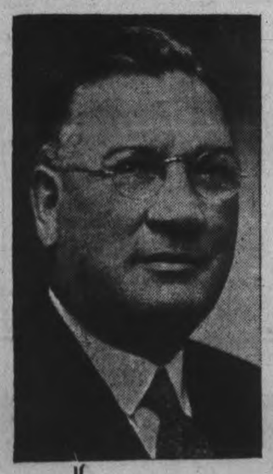
To All the Electors of Peterborough West

National candidates have taken the lead of Dr. Manion and they have suggested nothing which is helpful to a Government faced with the serious business of conducting a war-time regime. Plain facts have been ignored and name-calling has been their weapon. The Prime Minister has been branded as disloyal, and trading on loyalty is one sure admission of impending disaster. Here are plain facts:



Before Britain declared war on Germany the Prime Minister of Canada was daily in touch with the British Government. He would receive several times a day messages and information which would never be made known. He would know exactly what Britain needed.

Britain declared war on September 3, 1940. The Canadian Parliament was called in special session, and one week later Canada also declared war.

In the last war Canada declared itself two weeks after Britain had acted.

Doing What Britain Wants Done

The King Government, working in conjunction with Britain and seeking to make its war plans meet the requirements of the British War Office, did not go ahead on any hit-and-miss plan. Every move made was known in advance. It had all been worked out between London and Ottawa.

When troops were sent forward it was after Britain had prepared for their housing and for their advanced training. There has been no confusion and no unwise rushing ahead into schemes which would not coincide with the plans made in Britain.

In the last war there was an error made, and a serious one. It was the result of Canadian officials trying to do what they thought should be done without knowing definitely what the British Government desired.

It Was Not Fair To The Troops

Sir Andrew McPhail, in his official War History, says:

"Canadian troops were sent to England before barracks or huts could be provided, and they spent the winter lying in the mud and rain of Salisbury Plain with summer tents to protect them from the worst weather in several decades.

"The soldiers were furnished with boots which were reduced to a sodden mass after 12 parades, and paper from which the heels were made reduced to its primitive pulp.

"Scores died of spinal meningitis. No. 1 General Hospital alone treated 3,993 patients with scores of deaths."

The King Government wisely avoided those mistakes. It considered the welfare of the soldiers. It has increased their pay, and when they go to England now it is known in advance that they can be properly housed and protected.

There has been no wild rushing about by people who do not understand the situation or how to deal with it. Rather an orderly procedure, carried out after consultation with the British War Department.

Making Canada The Air Centre

Britain and France saw how the German army went through Poland, and Britain knew at once that strength in the air was urgently needed.

Once more there was that same consultation between Britain and the Overseas Dominions. The result was that Canada was decided upon as the training centre for the Royal Air Force. British instructors are now here; landing fields have been established across the continent. Britain gives its entire approval to the way in which the plan is working.

Every form of training is done here—mechanics, ground crews, men of the air. It is not a plan hurriedly devised, but like every other move made by Canada since the outbreak of the war, it is the result of methodical and orderly planning by men who know what must be done, and also know how to go about and do it.

Such precise [illegible] was not known in our last war effort. The King Govern[illegible] been wise enough to avoid the mistakes of other days.

How The Profiteer[illegible]n Stopped

One of the first acts of the [illegible]t was the [illegible]g of war-time regulations regarding pri[illegible] There was a panic in the sugar situation in September. The situation was handled at once. The stocks of large industrial concerns were taken away from them; the duties were reduced to bring in more supplies for our refineries.

What happened? In the first three months of the war sugar increased one-half cent per pound, while during a similar period in the last war the increase was three cents—or six times as much.

Householders who lived through the previous war days recall that they had to stand in line for coal in quarter-ton lots.

At that time there was no machinery set up to see that the consumers were protected. You [illegible] thank the King Government for the even trend of comm[illegible]prices today.

Patronage Taken From War Orders

The War Supply Board came into existence with the declaration of war. There were outstanding industrialists whom the King Government desired to have in Ottawa. They had a wide and thorough knowledge of steel, iron and allied industries. They were accustomed to buying in a large way and getting value for every dollar spent.

Regardless of their politics they were called in, and they responded. When they place orders it is on the basis of competitive tenders, and the work goes to firms capable of filling the orders regardless of politics.

There is no secrecy about where these orders have been placed. There is not a thing which the King Government desires to conceal. It is not necessary to wait for Parliament to meet and have members placing orders on the question paper asking what firm got this or that order.

Every bit of that information is handed out to the press at Ottawa and is published across the country. Names of the firms, the amount of the contract and the nature of the business. It is wide-open business, and if people approve of non-political purchasing that is what they are getting today from the King Government.

Let The Same Government Continue

When a Government has faced a serious situation, an Empire crisis, and has shown it is able to go ahead carefully step by step, has had the endorsation of the British Government in all these moves, it would be a national error to place in power a Government which has had nothing whatever to do with the war activities of the Dominion, and which has not participated in all the plans worked out in conjunction with the British War Department.

Such a Government, no matter under what name it seeks to travel, would be at a decided disadvantage. Let the electors say plainly on March 26 that they approve of what Canada has done, that they are ready and willing to continue the fullest co-operation with the British Government. The best informed observers admit that the King Government is going back into office. People do not want to take the risk of making a change in t[illegible]ical days. Give the Government the encourage-[illegible] will come from a substantial word of approval [illegible] Peterborough West.

Nazi Coke Freighter Runs Aground Fleeing British

LONDON, March 25 (CP)—Britain's warships scoured Germany's North Sea shipping lanes today in an effort to strangle her trade with Scandinavia while suspicion mounted that the Reich might be trying to engineer a grab of Rumania's oil.

Pushing her sea blockade further from home shores, Britain counted three blows against Germany's merchant marine in the mine-infested waters of the eastern North Sea.

Two German cargo carriers became the war's first merchantman victims of British submarines during the Eastern holidays. They were the coal-laden freighter Edmund Hugo Stinnes, 2,189 tons, sent to the bottom yesterday by shellfire near where a torpedo earlier had sunk the 4,497-ton ore carrier Heddernheim.

The British also credited naval action for the grounding of the 5,000-ton German freighter Ostprussen, which ran ashore on Jutland with a cargo of coke after zigzagging for three days to escape British searchers off the west coast of Denmark.

On the debit side, the Admiralty acknowledged one casualty — the 210-ton naval trawler Loch Assater, which was sunk by a mine off the northern Scottish coast. The air ministry disclosed the loss of a British plane on a night reconnoitring mission over Germany.

The New "Hot Spot"

Much British attention, however, centred on the Balkans as a possible coming "hot spot" of the war.

THE returning officers at the various polls in Peterborough West are asked to telephone the results to the Examiner at 4641 as soon as possible after the ballots are counted. The Examiner as a member of Canadian Press is responsible for the collecting of the vote in Peterborough West and Hastings-Peterborough and how soon the results in the Dominion are known depends all on how the returning officers co-operate with the newspaper collecting the returns. Canadian Press is the only agency which gathers the results from all parts of Canada on election night and the support of this agency is asked of the election officials in Peterborough West.

Aberhart Party Elects 21 And Leads In 16

EDMONTON, March 25—(CP).—Two more members were elected today to the Alberta legislature, but the standing between the Social Credit party and the Independents following last Thursday's provincial voting was changed only slightly.

Social Credit hopes received a boost with the election of E. O. Duke, a member of the last house, by a second count in Pincher Creek-Crowsnest. His victory raised the total of Social Crediters elected to 21, eight short of the number necessary to form a government.

Independents, the amalgamation of Liberals, Conservatives and unity movement candidates, elected their 15th member with the concession of Peace River to E. J. Martin. With only three polls to hear from, Martin led his single opponent, W. J. Lampley, Social Credit member of the last house, by 150.

Twenty-one of the 57 legislative seats remain in doubt. Social Credit lead in 16, independents in four and labor in one.

Children Murdered By Father Says Toronto Coroner

TORONTO, March 25 — (CP). — Asphyxiated by illuminating gas, the bodies of Malcolm MacDougall and his three children were found today in a single bed at the home in which they boarded. The children were Malcolm, Jr., 10; Donald, seven, and Christina, five.

Police said gas jets in the room had been turned on and that cracks under the door had been stuffed with cloth. The father was unemployed and had a pension as a veteran of the first Great War.

"This man deliberately murdered his three children," Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner, said. "Death was due to murder and suicide. There will be neither inquest nor autopsy."

A fourth child, an infant, was with the mother who works as a domestic in a North Toronto home.

Smelling gas shortly before 11.00 a.m. to-day, a roomer, J. Spruce traced it to the locked door of McDougall's room, breaking the door with his shoulder, he found the bodies lying on the bed and gas flooding the room from a connection whose cap had been removed.

One Last Fling.

"McDougall had been drinking last night," said Dr. Lawson after the preliminary investigation. "He offered some to a roomer, J. H. Post, with the comment that he didn't need to worry about the cost since he had money and would get some more to-day. He was on relief.

"The children had already gone to bed. About 1.30 this morning Mr. McDougall went up to their room, put adhesive tape over all openings, and then unscrewed the pipe cap with pliers.

"There are no marks of violence and the police and myself are definitely satisfied this was suicide and murder.

Yesterday the mother had taken all of the children to church.

Spruce said McDougall had told him about 1.15 a.m. that he thought he'd go upstairs and sleep with the children because it would be warmer.

"During the night I'm sure I heard the children whimper, but I thought it was just because there were four crowded into one bed. I smelled gas when I went out this morning and I wondered about the children then. When I came back I smelled gas even stronger, so I went to see where it was coming from," said Spruce.

The three children all attended Withrow Public School, and neighbors described them as "very good children."

McDougall and his three children were on full relief, it was stated today at relief headquarters. A cheque for $9.22 for food was sent last Tuesday.

Bit Too Early

Trent River, Mar. 25 (ENS).

A PARTY of cottagers arrived from Toronto to spend the Easter week-end at their summer home along the shores of the Trent, but were very much surprised and disappointed at the conditions they found — snowbanks piled up along the highway, the young folk skating on the back channel which was frozen from shore to shore, the road to their summer home snow-covered, and trackless. Needless to say, their visit was not prolonged, and they returned to their home in the city the following day.

TheatreManager Dies In Fire At Bowmanville

BOWMANVILLE, March 25.—Lying on a chesterfield only ten feet from the front door of his home, C. T. Ross, 43, owner and manager of the Royal Theatre, was burned to death here Sunday afternoon.

His wife and three small children were out of the house at the time visiting friends, and Ross was alone when some children playing near by noticed smoke pouring out of the house at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The children rushed to the home of B. B. Furber. Ross's next door neighbor, who turned in the alarm.

Firemen, thinking the house empty, worked for ten minutes trying to extinguish the fire without entering the house When Mrs. Ross arrived from a friend's house she told them her husband was inside.

After a search of several minutes firemen found the charred and blackened body of Ross stretched out on a chesterfield in the sitting room, just ten feet from the front door and safety.

Mrs. Ross said that she believed her husband had lain down after lunch to smoke a cigar and been overcome by coal gas fumes from the furnace. She believed that the fire started from the cigar.

"We have been troubled with fumes from the furnace for some time," said Mrs. Ross in a broken voice, "but Tommy (her husband) suffered from nose trouble and

Hard-Packing Drifts Fill Ontario Roads Fast As Crews, Plows Clear Them Block Everything Except Key Highways

Quebec And New York Traffic Bogs Under Wild Gale

MONTREAL, Mar. 25 — (CP). — Snow ploughs cut through drifts on a score of highways to-day as residents of Quebec's rural districts sought to re-establish transportation service after one of the severest blizzards in a decade.

Blown by a 30-mile-an-hour gale, light snow filled cuts on highways and railway lines to a depth of 15 feet from the Ontario border to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. There were few signs of spring to usher in the Easter season as the biting wind blew steadily from Saturday morning, petered out temporarily last night, and resumed again less fiercely to-day.

Weary skiers, due in Montreal early last evening, were still trooping off trains at a half-dozen stations this morning. Sixteen trains were tied up on two different lines during the night, leaving more than 7,000 skiers stranded on board or at Laurentian Mountain resorts they had expected to quit hours earlier.

Caandian National Railways officials said five trains from the Lac Remi district, blocked near Lafrenlere when a snow plough was unable to break down a drift, reached here early this morning. Eleven Canadian Pacific Railway ski specials unloaded their passengers after being halted north of Ste. Rose by two derailed ploughs.

South Shore Tied Up.

Similar stories of tied up traffic and snow-filled roads came from border districts south of Montreal, towns along the south shore of the St. Lawrence River and Lake St. John, in the north-east.

Automobiles, half buried in snow, were stalled on country roads and highways. Train services, although unaffected on some lines, were delayed as much as nine hours on others.

Book Gift To Library Only Public Bequest Of Tweedsmuir's Will Drafted In 1927

EDINBURGH, March 25—(CP Cable).—The will of Lord Tweedsmuir, containing only one bequest of a public nature, was lodged at Register House here today. The amount of the estate was not given.

It was signed "John Buchan," and dated July, 1927, at Ardura in the Island of Mull. The butler, cook and housemaid at Elsfield Manor, Oxfordshire, were witnesses.

Lord Tweedsmuir directed his trustees, one of whom is a brother, Walter Buchan, town clerk of Peebles, to give the national library of Scotland "all books in my library dealing with the Marquis of Montrose which the national library may desire."

His authoritative biography of Montrose was published in 1928.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada since 1935, died at Montreal last Feb. 11.

Coldest And Stormiest Easter Weather Recalled In Years

TORONTO, Mar. 25 — (CP). — Eastern Canada shivered through the coldest and stormiest Easter in years yesterday and parades of spring finery were staged only in a few favored centres in the Western Provices.

So severe were storms in Ontario and Quebec that authorities reported blocked rural roads and huge snowdrifts probably would hinder balloting in the general election tomorrow. The blizzard also covered the Maritimes, with political rallies in Nova Scotia suffering because of deep snow during the week-end.

On the Pacific Coast, the earliest Easter in years saw bright colors predominating the parades under a warm, summer-like sun. Famed Stanley Park was crowded with throngs of people, and it was warm enough for tennis and golf.

Snow fell for the eighth consecutive day in Edmonton, bringing the total fall for the week up to 14 inches. Bright sunshine and a temperature of 19 degrees—comparatively mild after the recent cold spell—brought women out in Winnipeg in their light spring outfits.

Rural Voters Marooned?

Reports from all sections of Ontario told the same story of blocked roads and mountainous snowdrifts. Over the week-end gales swept across Ontario, drifting freshly fallen snow on top of old layers, and experienced persons shook their heads when asked concerning the prospect of rural voters getting to

Norway Charges Her Waters Been Violated

COPENHAGEN, March 25—(AP)—British warcraft in imposing force hovered on the fringe of Scandinavian territorial waters today, apparently under orders to stalk or pounce upon every German merchant ship en route to or from the blockaded Reich.

With three German ships knocked out in the past four days of intensified British pressure on Germany's outermost Scandinavian lifeline—one sunk by torpedo, one by shelling and the third aground—Norway and Denmark again felt the sharp squeeze of unceasing war at sea.

The Norwegian admiralty announced last night that a protest against what is called violation of Norwegian waters by British warships had been delivered in London. An Oslo communique claimed two encroachments and said a third incident was under inquiry.

The latest success of the British blockaders was the sinking of the 2,189-ton freighter Edmund Hugo Stinnes, after the pounding of a submarine's gun. The ship was en route from Hamburg to Copenhagen, with a cargo of coal.

The Stinnes sank Sunday afternoon a few miles west of Skagen—not far from where the 4,947-ton ore carrier Heddernheim sank last Thursday night as the war's first reported merchant ship victim of a British submarine torpedoed.

Chased Aground

Another victim of the cat-and-mouse watch the British admiralty has posted along the western shores of Denmark and Norway was the 5,000-ton Ostprussen, run aground yesterday with a cargo of coke after three days of harried cruising off the western Danish coast to dodge British warships.

The Ostprussen, bound for Sweden, had been ordered to double back to Esbjerg, Denmark, to lie there out of reach of British submarines. Hugging the rugged shore to escape detection, she stuck a rock and, with nine feet of water in her hold, was beached on the Jutland coast. The crew remained aboard.

The Edmund Hugo Stinnes likewise had received home radio orders to dodge back into Esbjerg. It had almost reached Skagen at the French Outpost Scatters German Patrol

PARIS, March 25—(AP).—French advance guards east of the Moselle River were reported today to have scattered a large German patrol and to have taken prisoners.

The French surprised Nazi troops during a scouting operation Sunday and opened fire, military advices said. The Germans fell back from a severe attack, leaving an unspecified number of their men in French hands, they declared.

Aerial forces on both sides made numerous reconnoitring flights and several German patrols seeking to take French outposts west of the Saar were said to have been repulsed.

Premier Paul Reynaud's office announced he would make an address to the nation by radio tomorrow at 8 p.m. (2 p.m., EST).

Opposing front line forces exchanged propaganda barrages yesterday. German warplanes dropped leaflets on French positions and the French answered with a word barrage of their own and with scattered firing.

New Canuck Dog Developed By Boy Trapper

TORONTO, Mar. 25 — (CP). — John Lehmond, young trapper of Prince Albert, Sask., has developed after fourteen years of hard work and patience what he terms a "Canadian national dog."

Lehmond, a visitor at the Spring Show of the Toronto Kennel Club, told to-day in an interview of the evolution of the "Canuck' dog from five pure-bred forbears. The Canuck is 26 inches high, weighs 65 pounds, and has a medium coat of white, black or tan. It is an all-round dog —hard-working, rugged, reliable, gentle and spirited, he said.

"The Canuck has the warm fur of a Samoyed, the bone structure of a Great Dane, the size and spirit of a Boxer, the speed and depth of heart of a Russian wolfhound, and the gentleness and reliability of a shepherd dog," the trapper added.

"Canada hasn't got a dog it can call really its own. Huskies are not pedigreed and are not pure-bred. And there is some doubt that the Labrador retriever is really Canadian."

Lehmond said that 14 years ago,

Rumor Hitler Pulling Strings Jittery Lest Conflict Hit Rumania and 'His' Oil

LONDON, March 25 — (CP). — Britain today appeared to be extending its blockade of Germany into waters bordering the Scandinavian states, while the Reich's diplomatic struggle to ensure its oil supplies from Rumania and escape a fight there continued.

Extension of the blockade eastward appeared to leave the German merchant fleet only the Baltic in which to trade with any degree of safety and speculation arose whether the Royal Navy might try to extend its operations even there.

Observers pointed out it would be difficult for British warships to get through the narrow Kattegat without striking mines or trespassing in Danish or Norwegian territorial waters. They added, however, that advantages of such a move would be great, as by that means the navy could cut off Germany's iron and steel trade with Sweden as well as its imports from Norway.

In Rome Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, and Foreign Minister Paul Teleki of Hungary opened conversations which were thought to concern Hungary's attitude towards Rumania.

Curb Hungary?

Many believed Adolf Hitler asked Benito Mussolini at their meeting in the Brenner Pass last week to use his good offices in an effort to curb Hungary's territorial ambitions in Rumania.

Hungary, deprived of Transylvania in the peace settlements of the first Great War, wants it back, a desire believed to have sent shivers down German Foreign Office backs.

Strengthening of Rumanian defences, maintenance of a huge Rumandan army and insistence of King Carol that his subjects stand ready to defend their homeland are believed virtually to preclude any peaceful frontier revision between Rumania and Hungary.

Any other settlement would be disastrous to Germany which depends almost exclusively on Rumania for oil imports and is anxious to ensure that they are not swallowed up in a new war in Eastern Europe.

Further, the Germans are reported frightened that a war involving Rumania would give the Allies a chance of going to her assistance and flanking the Reich.

Germany only recently recovered from a similar fright when it appeared likely the Allies would go to help Finland in her war against Russia. To escape a flanking at that time Germany helped engineer a Russo-Finnish peace, partly by threatening the Scandinavian states they would be attacked if they al-

Loud Speakers And Lantern Slides Be Used As Examiner's Election Night Service

Plans have been completed by The Examiner for an election service on Tuesday night. Results from every riding in Canada will be received from Canadian Press over The Examiner's leased wires and these results will be announced over loud speakers by Dick Lush, who for years has handled this branch of the election night service for The Examiner. In addition a lantern slides service is being arranged in which party standings and all other important election news will be thrown on the screen on the north side of Hunter street opposite The Examiner. The candidates will be asked to come and speak over the loud speaker service.

The usual telephone service will be provided with five operators answering 4641 calls.

The polls close at six o'clock but few results will be known until seven o'clock. All deputy returning officers in Peterborough West, unless they have been otherwise advised, are asked to telephone in their results to 4641.

Television Crew Trapped Atop Mountain

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., Mar. 25—(AP). — A screaming 125-mile-an-hour gale and 18 below zero weather marooned three television engineers atop bleak Whiteface Mountain today where they clambered on Saturday to bring televised Easter services to an isolated meteorological station crew.

By short wave radio the men, Joseph Wiggin, Alex Smith, and Elbert Corwin, reported that if the wind abated they would attempt the descent to-morrow.

A party of 13 skiers, snow-bound at Adirondack Loj near Mt. Marcy, awaited opening of drift-blocked highways so they could return home. The group, comprised of residents of New York and several up-state cities drove there on Saturday to spend the week-end skiing. When they attempted to leave yesterday they found 10-foot drifts blocking the way.

Six other skiers, including radio commentator Lowell Thomas, his wife, and Lowell Thomas, Jr., attempted to come out of the mountainous region on Saturday night, and were forced to abandon their automobile in a drift.

Great Sun Spots Blackout Communications

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP) — The earth recovered today from the communication-wrecking effects of a magnetic storm, possibly the greatest in modern history.

A tornado-like solar disturbance, scientists said, whipped up huge spots on the sun from which a stream of electrical particles emanated, riddling the earth's atmosphere and virtually isolating North America from the rest of the world for several hours yesterday.

The phenomenon affected land telegraph and telephone; undersea cables; the wireless tlepehone from New York to London, Paris and Rome; short wave relays and even long-wave radio to a lesser extent.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company said it was the worst case of wire disruption its engineers could recall. Currents as high as 500 volts were set up by the disturbance, causing insulation to burn in some instances.

The Associated Press' 285,000-mile leased wire circuit was badly hit, as was its 10,000-mile wirephoto network over which news-pictures are transmitted.

2,600 Miles In 18" Wide Outrigger Gives Trio Taste For Barnacles

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP). — Still a bit stiff in the joints" and bearing salt water scars from a 2,600 mile Pacific ocean adventure in an outrigger canoe only 17 inches wide, the "South Sea skipper" is planning still another perilous voyage.

The skipper is Captain U. A. Woodbury II, scion of a distinguished Vermont family. For most of the last 25 years—since he was 20—he has done things which he admits lead his friends to think he's crazy.

Before learning of his plans for his next venture, glance at a few notes of his latest Odyssey:

He and two young companions sailed from South Point, Hawaii, to American Samoa, 2,600 miles, in a 100-year-old outrigger he bought in the Hawaiian Islands.

The craft, a one-master, was 29 feet long and about as wide as an eight-column newspaper page.

Rain fell on each of the 34 days of the trip and the last 20 days were foodless (except for two fish and the barnacles off the boat's hull).

Tasted Real Good.

Captain Woodbury said it did not take the adventurers long to cultivate a taste for barnacles, which they got by braving the shark-infested waters and scraping them off the boat while swimming. "They tasted real good," he said.

The skipper says he has regained 30 of the 40 pounds he lost in the adventure almost a year ago, but the salt water has made most of his body hairless and left numerous

SenatorFearsUS EconomicCollapse In Trade War, If Policy Switched

WASHINGTON March 25—(AP).—Senator Pat Harrison, Missouri Democrat, opened Senate debate on extending the reciprocal trade program today with an appeal to his almost evenly divided colleagues that they retain the system lest an eventual world trade war threaten the United States with "an economic collapse."

Abandonment of the policy of executive tariff-making, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee asserted, would invite foreign fields and factories to vie "with each other and with us" as soon as peace returns abroad.

"Let no one be deceived as to the magnitude of that trade war," Harrison admonished.

A handful of noncommittal members held the balance of power on the House-approved measure to continue the far-reaching program another three years beyond June 12. Canada and Great Britain are among the score of nations which have agreements under the present act.

Senator Key Pittman, Nevada Democrat, leading off for opponent, said the program was unconstitutional because it does not provide for Senate ratification of trade agreements.

The agreements really are treaties, Pittman argued, and therefore should be subject to ratification by a vote of two-thirds of the Senate.

"It may seem a small matter at the present time to delegate to the President the power to make treaties without ratification by the Senate," he said, "but one establish this precedent and those who fought our

Campaign Finale Sees Leaders Call For Unity

(By the Canadian Press.)

Canada's wartime election campaign moves swiftly toward its finale and the curtain rings down tonight on the political drama staged before voters of the nation during the past eight weeks. Tomorrow the electorate goes to the polls to choose the government that will carry on the war administration.

An active week-end brought the campaign to a climax with Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Conservative leader Manion, J. S. Woodsworth, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, speaking Saturday as well as five cabinet ministers and Conservative leader Drew of Ontario.

In an Ontario network broadcast from Ottawa, Mr. King urged his government's return which he said would be the greatest evidence of the Dominion's unity in the war effort.

"Once the heat of the campaign has passed our citizens will be able to forget party differences and join with the war administration in the winning of the war."

Opposition to the system, Harrison said, largely has come from agricultural and business interests because of their fear the effect of tariff reductions that might be made in the future, rather than because of any ill effects of the program during its six years of operation.

Already the captain—grandson of the late Governor U. A. Woodbury of Vermont—is laying plans for the coming voyage, to start in July.

Improved Rural Mail

The rural mail service in Peterborough West and also in many other sections of Central Ontario requires a complete new survey being made. Railway trains have been cancelled resulting in a slowing up of mail delivery to the post offices from where the rurals start. In general there has been a curtailment of the mail service given rural residents. Rollie Glover, Liberal candidate in Peterborough West, having been a newspaper publisher for over thirty years has seen in recent years this slowing up of the rural mails. During the campaign it has been brought more prominently to his attention. He intends, if elected, to work for a better mail service to the farmer of this riding, especially those in the more distant parts, so that they will not be a day late in getting their mail.

Pope Sorrowful At Easter's Dark Outlook

VATICAN CITY, March 25.—(AP)—War threaetns "the very salvation of human society," Pope Pius XII said in his Easter message to the world, and the only hope for universal peace with 'truth, justice and charity' is in the reestablishment of Christian principles.

Celebrating his first Easter mass as Pope in the ancient Basilica of St. Peter's yesterday, he expressed sorrow that "solemnly stipulated" treaties among nations had been broken and that the ravages of war had been extended to "citizens unarmed and even infirm, staggering old people and innocent children."

His expression of concern over disregard of international law and the fracture of treaties mentioned no nations by name, but Vatican circles said he had been aggrieved by the sufferings of the Poles and Finns under German and Russian invasions.

The Easter Homily, rendered in Latin, followed the St. Peter's mass. Urging 'spiritual renewal in Christ" the Pope said "this work of reform is not called for alone for private

New York Roads Filled

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—snowshovels and overcoats held the limelight in New York state today as briefly-displayed Easter finery went back on the shelf to await something that looks and feels like spring.

The weatherman, meanwhile, indicated no immediate relief from chilling weather which accompanied snow-lashing winds.

The wintry week-end saw the city of Rome isolated, Malone nearly so, an express train marooned nine hours, many railway lines and highways in western, central and northern New York snowblocked, and temperatures ranging as low as two below zero. Three deaths were attributed indirectly to the abnormal weather.

Walter J. O'Brien, Oneida county engineer, ordered ploughs to stop work because of low visibility and danger to drivers. Few roads in this county were open, and those in poor condition.

Rural roads about Syracuse were blocked, and chief highways drifted by wind-blown powdery snow. A big snowslide at Onativia valley closed Cherry Valley turnpike, filling the road 20 feet deep for 200 feet.

St. Lawrence county ploughs made a futile fight to keep traffic going and low visibility and drifts added to motorists' troubles in Jefferson, Madison and Oswego counties, where side roads were blocked. Cortland county's main highways were impassable at times, side roads blocked.

Most state roads were kept open in Cayuga county, but travel was difficult on others.

Western New York's high winds continued to pile up drifts which stalled many automobiles. State police at Batavia advised no travel, and cautioned motorists throughout much of the state. Rochester area traffic arteries were open.

It was a bad week-end for railroads. The Laurentian, Delaware and Hudson Railroad express from Montreal to New York, was freed after being marooned nine hours by huge snowdrifts near St. Edouard, Que., and backed slowly toward Montreal for rerouting over the Canadian National to Rouses Point.

The train, orginally due in Troy at 4:15 p.m. yesterday, left there at 7:17 o'clock this morning for New York city running 15 hours behind schedule.

One train on the St. Lawrence division of the New York Central was six hours late from Massena. Ploughs preceded trains on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western.

Premier Silent On War Cabinet

LONDON, March 25 (CP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain kept his own counsel over Easter week-end concerning expected changes in his cabinet, but some speculation predicted a "war cabinet" of five members will be named.

The Star quoted "well informed political circles" as saying such a group would be composed of the Prime Minister, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Samuel Hoare, Lord Privy Seal, and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty.

Under this scheme Mr. Churchill would act as spokesman for all the fighting services and the supply and shipping ministries.

Viscount Trenchard was mentioned as a possible successor to Sir Kingsley Wood as air secretary.

"Bold and far-reaching changes" are needed, said the Evening News. "The usual reshuffle of the same pack will not be sufficient," it declared.

The Star said Mr. Chamberlain wants the Labor party represented in his cabinet and that the party at its conference May 13 may be asked to approve the entry of Clement Attlee or Herbert Morrison into the government.

Among the ministers "expected to be shifted or dropped" in the Star's list are Supply Minister Leslie Burgin, Euan Wallace, transport, and Geoffrey Lloyd, mines. The last two were blamed for a muddle in the coal industry which resulted in a fuel shortage that has not been remedied yet.

Cardinal Advises Quebec Electors

QUEBEC, March 25 — (CP). —A message of advice on conduct during an election campaign and on voting day, which Rodrique Cardinal Villeneuve issued before the Quebec provincial election last October, was read again Sunday in churches of the Arch-Diocese of Quebec.

Easter congregations heard priests read from the message that this week electors would be called upon to elect a member to represent their respective electoral division in the parliament.

The message said in part:—

"Realize, then that Almighty God will require you to render an accounting of all your thoughts, words and actions during the election as well as at all other times.

"...after having enlightened and informed your conscience in accordance with sound religious and social principles, register your vote conscientiously, as in God's sight, in favor of the candidate whom you truly believe to be honest and capable of fulfilling his duty to God and to the state. Accept no money for voting, or abstaining from voting."

2,000 Middlesex Hogs Destroyed

LONDON, Ont., March 25—(CP).—Western Ontario's worst hog cholera epidemic in recent years which has killed thousands of animals being raised for wartime markets is now believed under control, Dr. James Bovaird, Federal veterinary inspector, said today.

The disease spread into nearly every county, reaching its worst in Middlesex, Sarnia, and the Wingham-Clinton districts.

The London area has reported no new outbreaks in the past week, and authorities hoped the epidemic had been isolated in a few sections.

It is estimated that nearly 2,000 hogs had to be destroyed in Middlesex County districts alone.

As a precautionary measure, until the disease is checked thoroughly, instructions were sent out over the week-end by the Dominion Department of Agriculture officials that all hog sales were to be suspended until further notice.

A six months' ban on hog auctions at Queen's Park here and in other major centres in Western Ontario has been in effect about two weeks.

The outbreak was traced definitely to public sales held in London on three successive Saturdays in February.

Moore Is Silent On Cabinet Post

OTTAWA, March 25.—(CP)—Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, Sunday had little to say about a report he would be invited to become minister of labor should Conservative Leader Manion form a national government following the Dominion election on Tuesday.

"I have nothing to say beyond that I have not been involved in the election up to the present and have no intentions of becoming involved now," said Mr. Moore. "I have nothing to say until after the election."

R. W. Crumb, national government candidate in Cochrane, said in a radio address Saturday from Timmins, Ont., that Dr. Manion had allowed him to announce Mr. Moore as potential labor minister.

However, at Fort William, Ont., Dr. Manion said he had not given such permission.

Easter Services At St. George's

Special Easter services in St. George's Anglican church Sunday were well attended.

Celebration of Holy Communion was held at 8:30 a.m. with Rev. T. H. Floyd, rector, as celebrant.

At 10 a.m. Sunday school was held in the church with the superintendent, Robert Pilling, in charge, and the rector addressed the children. The children's voices rose triumphantly to the well known hymn, "Jesus Christ is Risen Today." Prizes were also distributed at the service to the two scholars of each class who held highest marks for the year 1938-39. Lenten boxes were returned by the students who faithfully contributed to them during the six weeks of Lent.

Choral communion was held at 11 a.m. with the rector as celebrant. Rev. Mr. Floyd took as his text "He is Risen." Special music was sung by the choir during the offertory.

A Baptismal service was held at 4 p.m.

The evening service at 7 o'clock was well attended with the rector giving the address. During the offertory the choir sang "King of Kings."

Blocked Roads Delay Alberta Final Decision

EDMONTON, March 25.—(CP)—Snow-blocked roads and the intricacies of Alberta's vote-counting system today still delayed the result of last Thursday's election.

Last night the election of two Social Credit candidates and one Independent was announced, giving the government of Premier William Aberhart a lead with 20 members elected to the Independents' 14. In addition, Social Credit candidates were leading in 17 seats, the Independents in five and Labor in one.

Canada's most complicated voting system—single transferable vote in the 47 single-member ridings and proportional representation in the five-member constituencies of Edmonton and Calgary—combined with the weather to delay results.

Under the transferable vote, second choices of voters will be tabulated in 22 ridings. Results will not be known until late this week as all ballot boxes must be delivered to the constituency returning officers in each riding before the count starts. Delivery in some cases has been delayed by snow-drifted roads.

Ram Fractures Leg Of Wooler Woman

TWEED, March 25.— (ENS), — Charged by a ram while working near the barn at her home in Wooler, Mrs. J. Stacey suffered what is believed to be a fractured leg. She was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital in order to ascertain the extent of her injuries.

Mr. Stacey stated that the animal was in the habit of charging at people and on occasions it had charged him; he had always driven it off. Mrs. Stacey, however, was caught unawares and was unable to avoid the swiftly-charging animal.

Believed at first to have succumbed as the result of a kick by a horse, the body of John Carroll, seventy-four year old resident of Elzevir township, was found lying near his barn on Friday by a member of his family.

Subsequent medical investigation, however, by Coroner Dr. M. G. Dales of Tweed, revealed the dead man had been the victim of a heart attack No signs of injury or other marks were found on the body. Coroner Dales decided no inquest would be held following his investigation in which he was assisted by Chief of Police Clare Hayes.

He leaves a widow and several children.

MONDAY, MARCH 25, 1940

Your Duty Is Plain

Roads out in the country are bad and it is going to be difficult for the people to get to the voting booths on Tuesday. That condition is general, and there are many sections where the road problem is worse than in our own district.

Possibly people who have a fairly long distance to travel to get to the voting place will say it is easy enough for a paper published in a city to tell them to get out and vote. They may not say it out loud but they will think it. That we know as we have encountered it before.

But if you do not vote you have passed up the one chance you are going to have for a number of years to give expression to your own honest opinion regarding the way in which this country is going to carry on.

You are going to allow other people who are determined to make use of their ballot to speak, and the way they speak may not be at all according to your convictions.

There is something more. There is a war on and this is a war-time election. Our soldiers when they go overseas, and even before that, have to take the weather as it comes. Mud, rain, heat, or cold—nothing stands in the way of duty and obedience.

We do not consider it too much to suggest that voters in 1940 can well enough look at it in the same way. The going may not be pleasant in some rural sections. Neither is it pleasant going to war. Nor is it pleasant to know that you have allowed some other person to register an opinion which is not yours and you have done nothing about it.

In urban centres there is no excuse for not voting apart from sickness. The committee rooms will send a car if you desire; the car will wait while you vote and take you home again. Your voting problem in village, town and city is quite an easy affair. Tuesday—tomorrow—the formation of the Government which is to be entrusted with our national war effort, which has the power to tax you and govern you is placed right in your own hands. The individual who can vote and yet does not do so is failing miserably in the discharge of a national duty.

No Witnesses Wanted

United States has closed its consular office in Poland, and it did so because Berlin said it must be done. The explanation was there was no need for a consular office there because no person was allowed to enter the country without a special permit from its governor-general.

The same order will apply to all nations. They can have no more representation in Poland, because according to Berlin, Poland no longer exists.

For the sake of argument let us grant that. United States or any other nation would soon make the discovery there was nothing for a consular office in such a place to attend to, and if it were found there was no demand for its services then the office would be closed as a matter of straight business policy. As matters stand at the moment United States nationals in Poland have no official office to which they can turn. They are cut off and left alone, and Berlin has told Washington it must be done that way. And Washington is doing it.

And while that is going on there are supposedly patriotic people at Washington who fall into jitters every time an American voice is raised to say that the Allies must win the war and that the future of United States as well as the future of Britain and France is at stake. If they would look facts straight in the face they would read something between the lines of that German order telling United States to close her consular office in Poland. They would see that the outside world is not wanted there; the German method is being applied and no spectators or witnesses are desired. And the world's richest democracy is told to turn the key in its official office door and get out. It is very plain if one takes only a few minutes to think it over.

Question Mark Here

Quick work on the part of the police. That phrase was used in a story from Hamilton telling of the arrest of three men in Toronto. They had been at a restaurant at the Beach, near Hamilton, and the complaint is they had tinkered with the pin ball games there, or had in some way been able to take money out of them. And that in itself is quite an offense, because the [illegible] principle of pin games is that the sucker public shall pay in a good many times more than what it ever takes out. So when the proprietor of the place found that the nickels had disappeared from his pin game it did look mighty serious.

He happened to jot down the number of the car and telephoned to the police, and word was sent along to Toronto in which city the car was spotted and three men arrested.

That part of it was all right, and it is well to know that one can jot down car numbers and make certain that the whereabouts of the car will be determined before long. No one is going to complain about that.

But the rest of it is not so clear. Here we have a row of pin ball machines, the existence of which in point of law is not at all clear. It was supposed to have been all cleared up by the changes in the Criminal Code dealing with slot machines, but such a result has not been forthcoming. There are some municipalities where pin ball games are out; there are others where they are actually licensed or tolerated.

That is what makes it look a little odd to find police chasing around trying to locate men who were charged with having tampered with these machines and taken money out of them. Possibly it is quite right to pursue men who have stolen money no matter where they got it, but it is difficult to entirely remove the question mark when police are called upon to protect the gains of pin ball machines while the legality of the devices is still open to doubt.

There Are Two Ways

Alice Fay of the movies has won a divorce from Tony Martin, whose business we believe is a crooner. But it was not on that ground the divorce was granted.

It was because Tony was a bit cruel. He never dragged his wife about by the hair; never once had he socked her on the jaw. It was more subtle. Once when they were in New York Alice was not feeling well, and yet Tony insisted on going to some sporting event. Then there was the time when he was out playing golf and she had to keep an appointment, and often when she entertained Tony would not show up.

In a general way it looks like a couple of pounds of tripe, but the master hand was visible in reporting the court scene where the divorce was granted. "The star went to court in a subdued ensemble." A few lines below we were assured again "She was subdued, too... in a husky voice, at times barely audible ..."

They did not get along any too well so they were divorced. Nothing to show that they made any serious attempt to live together. There was nothing in particular for which they had to strive together; nothing for which they had to sacrifice. Each had what is termed a "career" to look after.

On the same page where this was recorded was another story of the 57th wedding anniversary of a fine old couple on a farm. There was something in there about no honeymoon trip because they had no place to go and no money. So they went to the very small farm house the husband had prepared. For some years the wife helped in a good deal of the farm work... when the children came they helped too as soon as they were old enough... there have never been any cross words spoken in this house... it was when we had been married 25 years we moved into the new home... we gave the children all the education we could afford... we have been spared for each other a long and happy life."

That last report was real. It seemed to have in it the substance from which nations are born. It had love, confidence, courage and those spiritual qualities without which no nation becomes great.

Taking No Chances

Always before election time there is a good deal of general prophesying which amounts to nothing at all. Much of it is written because of the feeling that something like that should be written. People are wondering how the election is going to do, and the business of the writers is to tell them. Only they don't. And they don't because they can't.

The Winnipeg Free Press on March 21 carried a story from its Ottawa correspondent, and on top there was a nice two-column heading which said that a Conservative gain of 19 seats in Ontario was considered possible. Now that was something because it would increase the present 26 Conservative seats in this province to 45.

But it is generally well to keep on reading, and in this case we found that gain was arrived at by conceding to the Conservatives every gain which their leaders and workers were claiming.

Going a little farther we found that "no Liberal would accept that estimate, and Dr. Manion will be lucky if he gains half a dozen seats and may well gain none at all."

And after doing that much reading we find we have arrived right back at the point where we started. There was a promise of 26 additional seats in Ontario and then they were all taken away in the next paragraph or so.

Then the writer starts again to analyze the claim that it may not be possible for the Conservatives to hold the 26 seats they now have. Not a riding is mentioned as being considered weak or doubtful; if a sitting member is going to be toppled we are not giving any indication of where to look for the toppling.

It starts off with 19 seats gained for the Conservatives; it turns then to the chance of making no gains at all and winds up with the prospect of the Conservatives losing some of the seats they previously held. And all because it was considered necessary to write something from Ottawa and wire it to Winnipeg telling about the election chances. A prophet should probably leave a loophole open through which he can pop to safety if things go wrong, but in this case the Ottawa writer spent a little too much time manufacturing more loopholes than he could possibly use.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Cold on Easter Sunday, but not sufficiently so to cause the nifty little hat to stay home.

Henry Petley, of Washington, has attended Sunday School for 3,180 consecutive Sundays, and we were wondering what Henry has been doing the other days of all those weeks.

The other day the French communique merely said: "Nothing to report." Perhaps it was something like that which suggested the name for that war book, "All Quiet on the Western Front."

French-Canadians joined with the Irish in Montreal in honoring the memory of St. Patrick. When the French and Irish can get together on such an occasion it indicates a degree of unity in the country which we had not previously realized.

In 1934 Hon. W. H. Euler made an address outside of the House of Commons on his own idea of the way to solve our railway problem. Apparently it is dangerous for a man to do such a thing, as we notice now it is being paraded as the "Liberal" railway policy in favor of railway amalgamation.

Starlings sat on the hands of the clock in the government building at Brantford and brought the thing to a stop. It is thought they picked that spot in order to keep warm. Perhaps the birds are beginning to hear something of the government relief plan.

Representatives of 6,500 seamen from Fort William to Halifax had a gathering and passed resolutions for better conditions and higher wages. It is not so stated but we have a feeling that the section regarding higher wages would find the hands raised a little higher.

The price of a hair cut in Indianapolis has been placed at 50 cents but in order to draw trade some shops are not offering the customer 15 cents for the hair which falls from his head on the floor. There must be some heads in the community where that price on a tonnage basis would be too great to contemplate.

St. Thomas Times-Journal speaking of local movements, says: "Pedestrians pick their way along trying to avoid puddles, deep enough in some places to cover their ankles." We take it the St. Thomas paper is using that form of statement rather than telling of the coming of Spring by publishing poetry.

FOILED!

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My coal bin just a week ago, was plainly getting rather low, a lean and dwindling stack; I did some mathematics there, and hoped as much as I could dare, then sought the almanac.

¶ I went past pills and ointment too, to see what days ahead would do, at last I found it there; no snow drifts and no zero days, some joyful tidings met my gaze, warmer and quite fair.

¶ And winter would lose all its starch, before we neared the end of March, the sun rode high at noon; we would be heading down toward spring, and I was moved to hum and sing, it couldn't come too soon.

¶ And then I reckoned on some more, for I could burn the cellar door, I'd get some fuel from thence; and if I needed stoking yet, why I could scamper out and get, some pickets off the fence.

¶ All that took place ten days ago, since when they piled down heaps of snow, and zero stalked once more; I touched the coal bin very light, packed cinders in to last the night, pulled boards from off the floor.

¶ I thought I had the coal man beat, turned boxes, garbage, into heat, was cold clean to the core; I schemed and planned and worried too, and found one thing I had to do—just go and buy some more.

Men Went Crazy After Sub Sank Greek Vessel

FROM The Manchester Guardian we learn the full story of the sufferings of the crew of the Greek cargo ship Eleni Stathatos (5,625 tons), which was sunk in the Atlantic by a German submarine, was told by survivors who have been landed at a fishing village in Eire.

During four days these seamen watched the spread of insanity and death among their comrades in an overcrowded rowboat, and threw them overboard one by one as they died. Three times they suffered the agony of watching a ship that meant rescue sail away without seeing their signals.

There were 20 survivors who endured the four day's ordeal from the time their ship was torpedoed without warning Sunday morning until they were landed Thursday afternoon.

Able Seaman Michael Ryan, of Tullabracky Bruff, County Limerick, said after two explosions had wrecked the ship they took to the boats.

"I was in the port boat with five or six others, and there were 26 or 27 in the starboard boat. When we were 100 yards away we were horrified to hear shouts for help from the other boat. We pulled back quickly and discovered the boat swamped and all the occupants in the water. Their boat had drifted under the propeller and was cut in two. We managed to get every one of them into our boat, which was then very much overcrowded. We started away and hoisted a little canvas sail. We had to keep continuously bailing out water in order to avoid sinking.

"OUR SUPPLY of provisions was only sufficient for 15 for a few days and there were 33 in our boat. That night and for the three following nights we tried to snuggle under a length of canvas for shelter. On Monday the rain began and the cold was driven into us by a fierce gale.

"Lack of food and drink, as well as exposure and mental anguish, were taking a heavy toll of us. On Tuesday night the first two died after going mad. The first deaths had a shocking effect on the rest of the crew. Next morning two or three more were dead. Two or three more died on Wednesday, and the last few died yesterday morning.

"We saw the light of a lighthouse and headed for it. Then a trawler came close by us. I signalled her with a police whistle, but the trawler put out its lights and rushed away. That was just at daybreak on Thursday morning. Then we saw another vessel and signalled, but that one took no notice either.

"We kept going on somehow and saw a village on a headland. A motorboat came out and towed us to land."

The chief engineer, Dimitrios Pangos said: "There was no reason for the sinking. It was a neutral ship, we had no cargo, and we were going to a neutral country. It was inhuman what they did. The Greek flag was painted on both sides of the ship, illuminated."

Six members of the crew of the Whitby steamer Kildale (3,887 tons) lost their lives when the vessel was attacked by two German bombers in the North Sea. Fifteen survivors were landed at an east coast port late on Saturday night. The bombers swept the decks with machine-gun fire and also dropped bombs which caused the deaths of three of the engine-room staff. The vessel sent out distress signals stating that the crew was taking to the boats, and two lifeboats responded. The bombers then made off.

One of the survivors, J. Williams, of Hull, told a reporter: "It was nothing less than murder. We were attacked by two bombers for 45 minutes."

The Yewdale, a Glasgow collier of 823 tons, was about a mile from the coast when two enemy 'planes circled over her. Machine-gun fire smashed the windows of the wheelhouse and killed the skipper, William Richard Taylor, of Liverpool. Three other members of the crew who were wounded were brought ashore and taken to hospital. Three or four 'planes took part in the attack, machine-gunning and bombing the ship for nearly half an hour.

ENTIRELY MR. NIXON'S

PREMIER HEPBURN describes Mr. Nixon's attack upon himself as "concocted" in the Star office. The statement is untrue. There is not the slightest foundation for it.

Mr. Nixon telephoned a member of the Star staff to come down to the Royal York hotel. When he got there—not knowing why he was required or what was transpiring—he found that Mr. Nixon had already dictated to a public stenographer his letter of resignation to Mr. Hepburn and his attack upon the Premier's record. Mr. Nixon informed him of this, and read to him from the notes he had used in dictating the two documents, which were meantime being typewritten by the stenographer in another part of the building. When they were ready, they were handed to the Star man without alteration.—Toronto Star.

THE OLD WAY

William A. Burnett, who offered to serve without pay if elected to Congress, has been ruled off the ballots in Nebraska. The Secretary of State held that Mr. Burkett's promise to let the taxpayers keep his salary, a thing of value, constituted an attempt to "bribe" the voters.

Other candidates for Congress need not feel apprehensive. They can preserve their places on the ballots by sticking to the time-honored custom and promising things of no value.—New York World-Telegram.

• Are You Fed Up With The War?

BORED? Fed up with the war, the blackout, rationing and other restrictions? Well, everyone is bored sometimes, for war is a boring business. Since the days of the Roman and Grecian campaigns war has consisted of short periods of intense activity and long periods of boredom. For the civilian population on the Home Front it is mostly boredom. But let us look at this strangest of wars from a different angle. Let us try and see it through other people's eyes, the eyes of those who must watch, wait, and sometimes fight and die so that we may lie safe abed at nights.

When next you are bored, go along to the public library, turn up the files of the Times of December 20, and read the full account of the action of H.M.S. Exeter against the Graf Spee. Read the tale of this very gallant action, of the unnamed hero who, with both legs shot off, told his officer as he lay dying that he was "not doing too badly under rather adverse circumstances." Read too how another sailor died, the Commander of H.M.S. Mohawk, legs shattered, in agony but tied to a chair on the bridge of his damaged ship so that he could bring her safely into port. And should you still feel bored, turn up the tale of the last action of the armed merchant-cruiser H.M.S. Rawalpindi against the pocket battleship Deutschland. Such is "the price of Admiralty," and of our food and safety.

Think of Bill and Angus and Joe, trawler hands out of Peterhead, Buckie, Tyne, Humber or East Anglian ports, face and hands seared by the bitter North Sea cold, eyes red-rimmed with lack of sleep, watching-sweeping, watching, sweeping, day in, night out. They have no time to get bored, little enough time to eat or sleep. As long as there are mines in the fairway there is no rest for them. Think too of the countless thousands of men in the merchant marine, carrying to us our food and the sinews of war. "Tanker Sunk in Flames. Forty-four Missing." In the ports of Britain they know this kind of headline all too well. This is part of the price of freedom, paid in men's lives and the tears of women and little children.

Bored? Then give a thought too for the clear-eyed laughing young men who fly out each day and night to patrol the long line of the German coast, to photograph and keep ceaseless vigil over Germany itself and to meet the Nazi 'planes when they approach our shores. Some of them do not come back, others must know until war is over the worst boredom of all, the forced inactivity of a Nazi prison camp. Let us think of them, of their gallantry and courage, and not of our own little grievances and petty discomforts. And let us not forget the other half of our air defence, the men on the winches of the barrage balloons, the searchlight crews who probe the night sky with ever-moving fingers of silver light.

Let us remember the men who stand turn and turn about on the guns round our coasts and the great industrial plants, waiting in the bitter cold, living long hours in huts on wind-swept hillsides and heaths. They perhaps have some right to be bored; but they are the sentinels on the wall, the watchers on the keep of Britain, and upon their unceasing vigilance depends our safety, as it does upon the patrols who go out each night from the forward posts of the Maginot Line and the men all along the line in France who "stand to" in the cold of a Winter's dawn.—Economic League Leaflet.

SAFE DRIVERS

ONE of the mutual insurance companies has adopted a new schedule of automobile insurance rates for public liability and property damage. These are based generally on the exposure of the car to accident and record of the driver rather than the size of the car. The main factors considered in formulating the rates are the mileage the car is driven, the number of drivers who will be in charge of the car, their ages, driving experience and claims record.

"The company believes that this method of computation is sounder than basing the rate on the size or horsepower of a car and if it spreads, it will be appreciated by many drivers with excellent records who are, nevertheless, obliged to pay just as high insurance as the drivers with extended claims records.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

JAPANESE CANADIANS

WITH new contributions from all over the province and as far-east as Regina pouring in, the total amount donated by Japanese Canadian communities, clubs and organizations towards the prosecution of Canada's war effort continues to mount upward week by week, until today it stands at over $3,600.

Tuesday, March 12, the Canadian Japanese Gardeners' Union of Vancouver donated the sum $180, as a "humble but sincere means of expressing our loyalty and gratitude to the land of our adoption, Canada, at the time of her supreme struggle for democracy and all that it stands for."

A check-up of the records reveal that since the first donation of $100 was made by an unidentified Japanese resident of the Okanagan, $3,604.05 has been voluntarily contributed to assist the nation in her war needs. —The Vancouver New Canadian.

DID STALIN WIN?

THERE is another side to the Russo-Finnish peace. It is to be seen as hundreds of thousands of Russian peasant families welcome their loved ones home. The brave Finns, too, even in defeat, will be grateful for the opportunity to return to farms, factories, and forests and to plan for the day when they may reclaim a fuller measure of freedom—and the world is full of hope for them.

But the heart of the world also turns with sympathy to the hordes of helpless Russians, deceived by propaganda, driven like cattle, ignorant of anything except that which their masters have told them. Though thousands of Ivan's brethren perished miserably in the frozen Finnish wastes, this will not be altogether in vain if their sacrifice helps to advance the day of Ivan's awakening.—Christian Science Monitor.

TOO MANY HIDEBOUND

ROSS W. GRAY, K.C., who is seeking re-election as a Liberal in West Lambton, says all candidates nominated as supporters of Hon. R. J. Manion are just as "hide-bound" Tories as he is a "hide-bound" Grit.

That's exactly the trouble. There are too many hide-bound politicians in this country. Using the term in the horticultural sense, the dictionary defines it as meaning: "Having the bark so closely adherent as to impede growth."

This definition might also be aptly applied to the political field. Hide-bound politicians have impeded the growth of this country. — Windsor Daily Star, Ind.

COST OF THE WAR

THE WAR is said to be costing Great Britain at rate of $9,600,000,000 a year, and to be costing France at the rate of about $7,400,000,000 a year.

The World War, at its peak, was not much more expensive.

Why then, are they spending so much in the early stages of this war, which so far has produced comparatively little troop action?

Two reasons have been given.

One is that it costs a great deal more to equip a mechanized army and maintain it in the field today than it did in the last war.

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer says, for example, that military aircraft now costs three to seven times as much as it did in 1918 and that it costs about twice as much today to maintain an army division as it did in the World War.

The other reason is that in 1914 the Allies looked for a short war and were slow in preparing for a long one, as they eventually had to do. With the experience of that struggle to guide them they are now preparing from the outset, for a long war. That is why they are already spending at the rate they attained in the World War only after many months of desultory preparation.

The projected Allied war expenditures this year are equivalent to about 40 per cent of the national incomes of Great Britain and France.

The German Government is believed to be spending about 60 per cent of Germany's national income to counter the effects of the British and French expenditures. — Detroit Free Press.

BRITISH SEA POWER

WOULD MUSSOLINI, if it came down to it, really prefer to see the Royal Navy on the bottom and its world supremacy being exercised by his somewhat erratic fellow dictator?

Would the Scandinavian neutrals prefer a world in which there was no British sea power to check Nazi ambitions concerning themselves?

Would the United States be more comfortable for its absence? Since the first enunciation of the Monroe Doctrine this country, while it has had its differences with the British, has not infrequently benefited by its differences with the British, has not infrequently benefited by the existence of their naval preponderance; and while today we might still be able to defend ourselves without it, there is no attraction in the idea of its being replaced by a German naval supremacy further fortified by co-operation with Japanese and perhaps Soviet Russian navalism.—New York Herald Tribune.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

What profiteth the graven image that the maker thereof hath graven it; the molten image, and a teacher of lies, that the maker of his work trusteth therein, to make dumb idols? Woe unto him that saith to the wood, Awake; to the dumb stone, Arise, it shall teach! Behold, it is laid over with gold and silver, and there is no breath at all in the midst of it.

But the Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him.—Hab. ii, 18-20.

A Bit of Nonsense

Ambition

An ambitious young man, on entering the army, worked well. At the end of three months he was made a lance-corporal.

Writing home to his wife he said: "I have taken my first step in promotion. But do not move to a larger house yet, and speak to the neighbors as usual."

Another Matter

A certain London magistrate once had occasion to say to a solicitor who had been unusually long with his cross-examination: "Kindly avoid repeating questions. You are wasting my time."

"Surely Your Worship will allow me some latitude," pleaded the solicitor.

"I don't mind giving you latitude—it's your longitude I object to!" was the retort.

Did He Know?

A burly cavalry instructor was bellowing orders to a young cavalry recruit.

"Now, you half-wit, do you understand what you've got to do?"

"Yes-s-s," said the recruit, "but how about the horse?"

Same Result

A man entered the out-patients' department of a hospital, his head enveloped in bandages.

"Married?" asked the doctor.

"No," replied the man. "Knocked down in the black-out."

Following Orders

A wealthy officer gave his company a dinner before leaving for the Front. There was an abundance of everything, so after a few speeches, he said:

"Now men, I hope you will do justice to what is in front of you; in fact, treat it as you would the enemy."

As it was nearing a close, he noticed a man putting a bottle of whisky in his pocket. Going up to him he said, "What is the meaning of this?"

"Well sir," said the man, "you told us to treat it as we would the enemy, so what we can't kill we take prisoner."

Speakers Arrive Hours Late For Tory Rally

HASTINGS, Mar. 25—(ENS). — Jim Hunter, Toronto newscaster, addressed a rally in the Town Hall here on Saturday night where Jamieson Bone and George S. White, National Government candidates were slated to meet the electorate in this district for the first time.

Scheduled to speak at 8 o'clock bad roads held up the speakers for more than two hours. First to appear at the meeting was George S. White from Madoc, candidate in Hastings-Peterborough riding. After battling bad roads for most of the distance and then waiting for the snow plow to reach Norwood from Hastings, he arrived here shortly after ten o'clock. After he had spoken for a few minutes, Jim Hunter, Jamieson Bone, and Dr. Marshall arrived. They had battled seven miles of snow-filled road on the way in from Cobourg.

How to Read a Paper.

"It is hard to read the newspapers and find out the truth," Jim Hunter told the audience. "Don't pay any attention to special writers who are hired by the papers to write according to the policies of their particular paper and do not pay any attention to those fellows on the air either. If you want to read the newspapers, read the general columns and skip the special writers' columns."

"We have the finest country in the world and we must stand on our own legs as Canadians for the 'whole works,' because if we don't we will fall apart," he declared. "Let's be first, last, and all the time, Canadians. The United Kingdom has done far more for Canada than any other section of the world, Mr. Hunter told the meeting as he pointed out that one of the chief reasons Canada holds the position she does to-day is because of her affiliations with the Mother Country and her Dominions.

"We are now entering a new period of world history. It will be a fight for our very lives and for the lives of our children," he warned.

Referring to the election on Tuesday, Mr. Hunter, in his unbiased speech, cautioned the voters to mark their ballots for the men best suited to carry out Canada's war effort, regardless of party affilitions. In such a manner, he said, we can stand for a stronger and better Canada than we have ever known.

George S. White reviewed extensively the policies of the proposed National Governemnt and pointed out the alleged failures of the King Government. He urged that the people elect Dr. "Bob" Manion who would stand solidly behind the Mother Country in place of Mackenzie King, whom he charged, leaned too much toward the United States.

James Lorimer Isley is one of the youngest men ever to hold the job of Canada's "tax collector-in-chief." When he took over the portfolio of minister of revenue in 1935 he was just 41.

He has long been a student of national affairs. If a subject interests him—and most do—he probes into it deeply.

He prefers to dig for his own information rather than take the word of someone else.

He was the only Liberal in parliament who supported the Ottawa trade treaties which were brought forward when R. B. Bennett was prime minister.

His birthplace was Somerset, King's county, Nova Scotia. He graduated from Acadia university. A year later he entered Dalhousie law school where he led his class in every subject.

In a great many respects he was a "find" for the Liberal party. The riding of Hants, King, had long been Conservative. Yet Mr. Isley changed a majority of 1,000 for the Conservative in the previous election to a majority of 80 for himself in the election of 1926.

At Ottawa his speeches were listened to with attention. He was a member of the Price Spreads commission and took a prominent part in its deliberations. He was the major author of the minority report.

When the Liberal party was elected to power in 1935, Mr. Isley was given the revenue ministry which he tackled in his usual thorough manner.

Trent Freezes Up Roads Blocked

TRENT RIVER, March 25—(ENS)—The Trent River is frozen over from shore to shore in the back channel as a result of the cold dip over the week-end. Heavy winds prevailed Saturday, causing all roads to drift. Highway 30 filled in quickly and in many places along the Campbellford road, cars were held up while meeting cars to allow them to pass. Snow fences en route were completely covered with drifts, and concession roads were drifted full from fence to fence. A number of cars refused to start and had to get assistance, while other drivers resorted to Old Dobbin and sleighs to make the weekly trip to town. Notwithstanding the quantities of snow, water is scarce and has to be drawn for the stock.

Crows are seen daily. Weather prophets in this locality fail to recall similar developments for the first days of Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Cook have moved to Mr. Harold B. Wood's farm recently vacated by Mr. Chrysler.

Members of the "Anicus" Club are winding up their series of weekly meetings by sponsoring an afternoon tea, Wednesday from three to five o'clock at the home of Mrs. Earl Greenly.

Master Billie Innis of Campbellford has been spending a few days at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kraus and Miss Bertha Carnrite of Toronto were Easter Day visitors with Mrs. Robret Carnrite. Mr. Ted Chaplin accompanied them to Toronto, where he expects to return to work.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kearsey, Miss Laura Wight and Mr. Bill Goodfellow have returned to Toronto after spending over Easter at Cedar Isle.

Miss Alice Hay, nurse-in-training at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, was a visitor at the week-end at the parental home.

Mr. Foy Wright, son of Mrs. Will Wright of Havelock has secured employment at Montreal, and left last week to take over his new position.

Miss Dora Tedford, Reg.N., of Whitby, is an Easter visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tedford.

Mrs. Will J. Wright of Havelock was a Sunday visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown and family.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 26

The lunar transits for this day forecast a very lively day, with much stirring at particularly high tempo and probably with some agitation or excitement. Concentrated effort may be brought to bear on breaking up long static conditions in order to make way for important new ventures. This may cause sudden upsets and upheavals, with matters materializing quite unexpectedly. The state of health may also prove a disturbing factor.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively year, with much stirring of a surprising an unpredictable nature. These may involve radical change in plans, objectives and possibly in environs, preliminary to the shattering of old congestions so that more definite progress of a constructive trend may be engineered. It may take drastic action, perseverence and fortitude to cope with deep-seated inertia or restrictions. Be careful with the health. Elders may prove difficult.

A child born on this day may have much intellectual vigor and versatility, being alert, brilliant and keen as well as studious, profound and original. It may also be temperamental, emotional and restive.

White Credits Hatchery To Lancaster

MARMORA, Mar. 25 — (ENS)—A meeting of the National Conservative Party in support of the candidate, George S. White, was held in the Town Hall on Saturday evening. Owing to the bad condition of the roads, the attendance was small, about sixty being present. Reeve W. R. Linn acted as chairman.

Mr. White, the first speaker, regretted that the condition of the roads had kept many of his supporters from attending. He criticized the letter circulated by Rork Ferguson, in which Mr. Ferguson took the credit for getting the fish hatchery in Peterborough County. Mr. White stated that Percy Lancaster was responsible for getting the fish hatchery. He also spoke of the radio beam at Hubble's Hill, near Stirling, and stated that the geographical features of the district were responsible for the beam being placed in that locality, and not to Mr. Ferguson's efforts. He also criticized the mail service in North Hastings County. Mr. White contended that a lawyer became familiar with the farmer's problems and was often consulted by them in regard to their affairs. He also criticized Mr. Ferguson as never having made a speech in the House of Commons.

He cited France and other countries having a National Government during wartime, and he felt that Canada would be better under a National Government. He also scored Mr. King on patronage in the Air Force, and stated that two Liberal candidates in South Hastings were arguing over the patronage of the Trenton Airport. Mr. White promised that the National Government would do everything possible for the soldiers and help them to find jobs when the war was over. He promised a youth ministry and investigation into all social legislations as old-age pensions, etc. He also stated that his party was opposed to conscription. He promised a live stock board would be set up, and made reference to Dr. Manion's war record.

Frost Urges Unity.

C. Frost, K.C., urged the units of the parties in the interests of Canada. He attacked the King administration's inactivity in the past few years, when all other countries were preparing for war. He urged his hearers to forget all religious and political strife and get together under a good leader, and if they did so, Canada was sure of success.

GAS HELMET SAVES LIFE

An oxygen tent made from a child's gas helmet save the life of a three-months-old baby boy who was ill from bronchial pneumonia in London.

Give The Soldier An Insurance Policy

The question of insurance protection for the soldiers is one which Rollie Glover, Liberal candidate in Peterborough believes should receive the most careful and painstaking consideration of the Government of Canada. At present time the cost is prohibitive for those in active military service for the extra premium per thousand for those on service outside of home areas is $90.00 and in some branches of the service a little less. Mr. Glover believes the people in Canada would be willing to provide at least a $5,000 coverage for every man in service so that they would have an opportunity of providing protection at cost based on present day mortality experience. During the Great War the United States provided insurance at cost for soldiers who went overseas. Each man was allowed to purchase up to $10,000.

The rates were extremely low. A man entering the service at age of 20 paid 64 cents a month per thousand; at the age of 35 the rate became 74 cents per month per thousand, and at the age of 45 it was 93 cents.

Rollie Glover promises to support, if elected, such a plan for the soldiers serving in Canada's forces during the present war.

ASTHMA BRONCHITIS AND TOUGH, HANG-ON COUGHS DUE TO COLDS YIELD FASTER TO BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE

What Do You Think of this— WAR VETERAN?

Hon. G. N. Gordon has been shoving his oar into this campaign on behalf of the Liberal candidate in West Peterborough in his own peculiar style and in between his electioneering effort has evidently been doing a little reading—and letter writing.

The Canadian Veteran is a non-political paper published monthly in the interests of those who have served and those who are now serving in the armed forces of His Majesty the King. A recent issue contained something that Mr. Gordon did not like, and he fired a characteristic letter at the editor of the publication, from which the following is an extract:

> "Please discontinue this paper. I do not care to have an ex-serviceman's sheet which is a political journal, coming into my office, and please kill it as fast as you can. I desire to say this, that any organization of ex-service men that support the Tory Government ARE TOO DUMB to be called ex-service men, so it looks as if some Tory politician has got in control of this political sheet."

The Canadian Veteran has this to say of Mr. Gordon in reply. We quote in part:

> "So says Mr. Gordon. And what is our reply? First, to express surprise at the intemperate and undignified tone of his letter. It is not of the type that one would expect from an "elder statesman" of the Dominion of Canada whose first duty at all times is to place state above party. Certainly it is not the type that one would expect from an ex-member of the Cabinet, to whom might reasonably be ascribed broadness of vision and tolerance."
> "Secondly to express UNBOUNDED RESENTMENT AND CONTEMPT THAT ANY GROUP OF MEN WHO HAVE FOUGHT FOR THEIR COUNTRY SHOULD BE TERMED "DUMB" WHEN THEY CHOOSE TO EXPRESS THEIR VIEWS IN MATTERS CONCERNING THE AFFAIRS OF THAT COUNTRY WHEN IT IS AT WAR—a right which is just as much theirs as it is Mr. Gordon's. . . . . They did not fear once on a time, even as now to practice what they preached—patriotism in its best and highest sense They have today the right, earned on the field of battle, to more than a little say in the conduct of national affairs. We are afraid that the Hon. Mr. Gordon, in so brashly dismissing their right to speak, in insulting them by a reference to their dumbness has forgotten the words of Voltaire: "I do not necessarily agree with your opinion but I will defend to the death your right to express it.'
> "We have never been a believer in concerted political action by veterans. A cross-section of the Dominion, they belong to different political faiths. They will generally, in spite of all other factors adhere to those when the test comes. If a national question—such as the present one—arises, we believe that they will make up their minds independently on the evidence and vote accordingly. One thing is certain in such a crisis as the present—they will vote as they consider best for the country in which they live—which they have proved their willingness to serve 'even unto the end'—and not on biased, narrow party lines. Is that 'dumbness'?"

Here in West Peterborough tomorrow veterans will give their answer to Mr. Gordon's insulting words by a solid vote for National Government. No hit-and-run politician is going to call them "dumb" and get away with it. They have their views as to Canada's participation in the war, and no political Mortimer Snerd, in spite of language that has aroused the "unbounded resentment and contempt" of The Canadian Veteran, can prevent them from voting tomorrow for

In Whom Do You Trust:

The Real Soldiers or the Microphone Colonels?

Weigh the evidence; CHOOSE NOW – between Bedlam and Order – and back your choice with your vote.

A confusion of tongues fell upon Babel. And building ceased.

Babelites and Bedlamites have been hard at it in Canada for weeks—belittling Canada's great and growing war effort and striving to confuse the voter's mind.

Voters who have been misled by the petty gossip of Political Defeatism still have time to rectify their judgments in the light of the facts direct from the RESPONSIBLE LEADERS—the men who are informed of the Empire's strategic objectives.

What do these RESPONSIBLE LEADERS say? Listen again, for example, to Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., D.F.C., speaking of the Air Force: "I say without hesitation that it is the finest organization ever built up within such a short time"

Then, too, remember the considered judgments of:

Right Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Lieut. Col. the Hon. D. M. Sutherland, D.S.O., V.D., Minister for Defence in the Bennett Government.

Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., Officer Commanding the 9th Infantry Brigade.

Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.Sc., LL.D., Commanding First Canadian Division.

General J. W. Wilcox, Inspector General of British Infantry.

Right Hon. Anthony Eden, Secretary for the Dominions.

Reflect a moment, too, on the words above of the newly-arrived AIR VICE MARSHAL L. L. D. McKEAN who comes to Canada to succeed Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham as Chief Air Liaison Officer in the vast Empire training plan.

> "We all feel Canada is doing a magnificent job." West Peterborough citizens will show Tuesday that they have no time for the Gossips and Defeatists. They will vote overwhelmingly for the continuance of "a magnificent job." They will vote for—

LOCK CO. SOCIAL AND ATHLETIC CLUB RE-ORGANIZES FOR YEAR

Employees Lay 1940 Plans After Election

Officers were elected as the Social and Athletic Club of the Lock Manufacturing Company was re-organized for the year 1940. This club was formed Dec. 4th, 1938, the company making a grant through the effort of E. H. Howson. Since then the company has given its moral support and has aided whenever called upon in other ways, with Chas. Westbrooke, plant superintendent, rendering considerable assistance at the annual picnic.

The Social and Athletic Club has a number of ambitious plans to work out. These include social evenings, a picnic in the form of a boat trip, softball competition, a tennis court on company property, bowling and hockey, and possibly a club house on property back of the shop, this house to have a cafeteria for noon-day lunches, etc.

New Officers

The 1940 executive includes: Honorary presidents, E. H. Howson and W. L. Jordan; honorary vice-presidents, Chas. Westbrooke and Ed Prete; honorary members, F. H. Jobbitt and A. Archibald; president, A. Marrocco; vice-president, Miss J. Clancy; secretary-treasurer, Miss I. Throop; department representatives, Miss N. Brady, J. Burke, E. Manley, L. Burke, P. O'Toole, H. Black, A. Watkins, A. Hanrahan, E. Eggleton, B. McCarl J. Durocher, M. Chambers, F. Whatley and one or two more. W. L. Jordan was former president, with Ed Prete vice-president, and L. Symmonds, secretary-treasurer.

Past achievements of this young social and athletic shop organization were outlined at the re-organization meeting. Some of these activities included shop hockey in 1938-39, shop bowling the same year, a large and enjoyable picnic at the Oval last summer, a team which went to the Industrial Softball League semi-finals in '39, a social evening at the Y.M.C.A. last spring, another one at the Paragon Hall last fall, a Christmas tree for employees' children at the Paragon Hall, bowling the past winter and a shop hockey team called the Lock Co. Eagles which went to the finals in the District Hockey League.

Over 2,500 men cut and hauled sugar cane to Port-au-Prince during Haiti's last sugar-grinding season.

Industrial Workers Need Not Fear

Rollie Glover has always supported local industry. He has always taken a keen interest in the worker. Having risen from the ranks himself he understands their problems. His record also as an employer of labor stands high in the community.

He believes in a strong prosecution of Canada's war effort. With this end in view if there is anything to be secured that Peterborough's factories can produce Rollie Glover will be on the job. His ability to co-operate with factory managements and his familiarity with the production capacities of factories makes him an ideal industrial commissioner. The industrial workers of this constituency couldn't choose a better ambassador to represent them at Ottawa.

Hull Protests Sydney Team

OTTAWA, Mar. 25 — (CP). — Hull Volants unpacked their hockey equipment to-day, confident a protest sent the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association would be upheld and their disastrous Allan Cup playdown series with Sydney Millionaires thrown out.

Eliminated in three straight games by the Maritime provincial champions, the Ottawa and district titleholders protested eligibility of Robert and Ralph Anderson, utility forwards of Sydney who helped the Maritimers to a 6-3 victory over Volants here on Saturday. Sydney won previous games at home 6-0 and 6-2.

According to the protest by the Ottawa and District Amateur Association, Hull claims Robert Anderson played with North Sydney in the Cape Breton Colliery League and joined Millionaires on March 18 although the residence deadline was November 1.

It was claimed also that Sydney failed to present a C.A.H.A. card for Robert Anderson as required, and that Ralph Anderson also joined the club later than November 1, allegedly under the new C.A.H.A. military clause which permits replacement for a player unable to play because of military connections.

Vice-president George Dudley of the C.A.H.A. said last night in Midland that a vote of the executive would be taken as soon as he had collected the facts concerning the protest. At Sydney officials of the Cape Breton Island team denied the charges.

Zephyrs Cop Nod Over St. Paul's

"Zephyrs" captured a 36-22 verdict over "St. Paul's" at the Y.M.-C.A., Saturday, in an unique basketball game that combined members of the Zephyrs and St. Paul's with Quaker Aces of the Ladies' Senior City League. The game, put on in place of the opening men's Senior City League final series, drew a good crowd of fans, who saw a close battle with some good and some bad basketball, neither team taking things too seriously.

Zephyrs had a small edge in the opening half and led at that point 19-16. In the last period the winners had a big margin of the play to run up a 17-6 count in that half and finish 14 points up 36-22. Each team had four of the Quaker Aces, currently featured in the Senior Ladies' playoffs, with one including three members of the Zephyrs, finalists in Senior City playdowns and the other a trio of the champion St. Paul's club. Both teams passed the ball around, letting the so-called weaker sex do the shooting. Zephyrs had an edge in passing and carried most of the play to the winners while they retained a comfortable lead.

D. Weese, Gemmel, McArthur and A. Grady looked best for St. Paul's and V. Fowler, V. Wood, Stewart and Rogow led the winners.

Zephyrs made four of their 12 free throws, and St. Paul's missed their three free chances.

St. Paul's (22).—D. Weese 4, A. Grady 4, M. Hooton Gemmel 2, McArthur 6, Marsh 4 P. Lawless 2.

Zephyrs (36).—E. Elexander 9, J. Fowler 6, E. Kirn, V. Wood 6, S Rogow 6 L. Grose 1, J. Stewart 8.

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

Next to meals, a boy likes muscles. At least, it seems that way and well do we recall our own neighborhood gang over Ashburnham way going in for these physical culture magazines, lessons and pulleys to try and look like a Sandow in six easy lessons. The "body beautiful" was the big ambish among our gang and ya never saw such a scrawny bunch of orchard-robbers in your life! Anyway, no doubt the exercises did us a bit of good and possibly kept us out of jail, the boys being too busy being athletes and "strong men" to do much street-corner damage. It comes back to us with announcement of formation of a body-building and weight-lifting club operating now at the "Y", Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights weekly at eight.

* * * * * *

About a dozen men are in it so far and doing fine, several being able to lift 200-pound weights straight over the head now. Such clubs operate in Toronto, Belleville and other centres, and inter-city competition may be built up when the club is enlarged locally. We're told that there is no danger of over-strain or anything like that, the way the boys are trained. They work up gradually till they're bigger, stronger and in much better physical health, provided they stick with the regular practices—and we believe it's a good thing for youths. In fact, local officials claim they can cite instances here of boys increasing their strength and health after giving it a go. Ira Dundas is instructor of the "Y" weight-lifters, and officers are Cliff McInroy, Stan McBride and Jim Hardy.

Petes Left On Limb

Like a frozen apple in November, the Petes' puckists are perched away out on the well-known limb, left high and dry—and forgotten—by Secretary Bill Hewitt of the O.H.A. Playing three important playdown tilts in a week, the locals hurried through and are now in a final playoff berth. They expected to hit into the finals next Wednesday—maybe here the first game, since the weather was cold enough. But nope, it's not to be. Kitchener was supposed to finish the round-robin in Owen Sound tonight, but now the O.H.A. says ixnay, that game won't be till Wednesday. And here's the next laugh—heh, heh, heh—if Owen Sound wins, the same two teams play it off (they'd be tied in second place then) on Friday.

* * * * * *

So here we have the Petes with no game before next Friday—which means they've had one game in two weeks—and possibly no game till next Monday! O.H.A. secretary's excuse is that tonight's tussle in Owen Sound was postponed 'cause the Trappers said they didn't have enough notice. A blinkin' lie—as it was announced a week ago in the Toronto a.m. sheet. Also the O.H.A. said, in case of a tie in the round-robin standing for a playoff berth, the team with most goals would get the nod. But that's been changed now to a possible further game. (Dear Mr. Hewitt: Why don't ya say that the five p.c. cut for the O.H.A. round-robin games have something to do with this messing around?)

* * * * * *

Coach Buckland Says

The Petes and their officers are madder than mailmen with corns, and Coach Frank Buckland in an exclusive interview with The Examiner stated definitely: "I'll be x%?!x$&%½$!!" Yeh, he was riled all right, and we don't blame him a bit. The speedy Petes are at their peak now, even after but one game in a week—and too many in a hurry before that. So now they'll wait another week, and maybe more for a postponed game, and possibly two, for which there is no good reason. And our last ice will run down the drain and the squad will lose plenty of shekels. But not the O.H.A., nossuh!

* * * * * *

Puck fans of this city supported their squad good this year. They came out regularly to see the flying Petes play, even in schedule games when the opposition wasn't any hotter than two feet into a Douro snow drift. The payees viewed some fine round-robin series scraps and are now het up and (with the dip in temperature) naturally expected a peek at a final playoff. But no, there is a political rally or something up Owen Sound way and the O.H.A.—which has a huge sum stuck away—must get its rakeoff from the little guys. Secretary Bill has been on more spots than laundry benzine but he is also slicker than two coats of enamel, and what can you do? It's too bad, folks, but we doubt if you'll see a final here.

* * * * * *

Red On A Rampage

After the Greenshirts trimmed Owen Sound last game, the Kitchener writer remarked: "Happenings in the early stages of the O.H.A. round-robin playoff indicated that the balance of power in this division lay in two widely-separated points, Kitchener and Peterborough, and subsequent games have proven that to be the case." After reviewing the last tilt, he continues: "This fellow Red Creighton, fiery-haired winger of the Trappers, must spend a lot of time with the penalty timers during a season, if he always plays the brand of hockey he showed here. Red appeared to be carrying a chip on his shoulder from the time the game started until he went out with a gashed foot midway through. He was in a chewing match with Gamey Lederman before the game was two minutes old."

* * * * * *

While the Thump Valley Loop has finished up for this winter—with Campbellford edging Norwood for the title—these same two teams tangle this Wednesday e'en in Campbellford. A sort of spite joust to satisfy the Hornets, and home fans too, that the C's deserved the championship. Last Wednesday in Campbellford, the home club was short on players with Free, Couch and Blake out. Coach Hendy used Buster Whitton in the lineup, the Hornets sportingly agreeing to it—though Buster isn't eligible under league rules. Campbellford won the game and there was no squawk from Norwood, but the champs will feel better if they can trim the Hornets again this Wednesday p.m.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Just in case Saturday was the last curling for this season, we are printing a little piece of poetry handed in the other day:

"Who's that stranger, mother dear?
Look, he knows us. Ain't that queer?"
"Hush, my child, don't talk so wild;
He's your father, dearest child."
"He's my father? Not at all—
Father passed away last fall."
"Father didn't die, you dub,
Father joined the curling club.
"Now they've closed the club, so he
Has no place to go, you see.
No place for him to roam,
That's why he's coming home.
Kiss him, he won't hurt you, child—
All these curling guys look wild."

We don't know what the program if any, will be for the rest of the week. We notice this morning that the probs say moderating all over; and at this time of the year we all know what that means.

Ten rinks were out on Saturday afternoon and six mixed rinks at night, and if that is the final, we hope that you all had a good season of curling, and hope to see you all back again around December 1, 1940.

Don't forget the annual meeting to-night in the club rooms at eight o'clock.

Port Perry Wins Round 10-2

CAMPBELFORD, March 25 — (ENS)—Port Perry went winging towards the Eastern O.J.H.A. title in their final game against Campbellford here Saturday. The Hendy coached band had moved within two games of the coveted honor of a game in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens when the speedy organization from the Port gave them a 5-1 trimming. Having earned a four goal advantage in the initial game of the series last Thursday, the Ports came here for the return game determined to hold their lead by defensive tactics which they not only succeeded in doing but by taking advantage of the opportunities created by the homesters' efforts to cut their lead they managed to win the round 10-2.

On the night's play the Ports hardly deserved the split on points even if they were a heavier crew for the locals worked like Trojans but failed to get most of their passing plays clicking. This was largely due to the Ports who once they got past the first period covered their checks like leeches rarely allowing the losers to get their plays in operation. It was not a tough or rugged game, however it was a rugged aggressive clash and the fans were given plenty of thrills as Hendy's Juveniles fought an uphill but futile battle.

Scored Early in Game

From the start it looked as though the locals might be able to fight their way to the top but following the opening tally the winners tightened up and successfully thwarted all scoring efforts. Summary.

Port Arthur Bear Cats Out To Take Allan Cup Back For Fifth Time

WINNIPEG, March 25.—(CP)—Port Arthur Bear Cats, Canada's senior amateur hockey champions in 1939, are pounding down the playoff trail again, determined to take the Allan Cup back to the Lakehead city a fifth time.

Bear Cats reached the western semi-final when they beat Winnipeg Rifles, Manitoba champions, 4-0 at Port Arthur Saturday night to take the best-of-three series in two straight games. They won the first game Thursday 6-0.

Almost intact from last year when they beat Montreal Royals three games to one in the national final, Cats hope to emulate the great Port Arthur club that won the Allan Cup two straight years in 1925-26. The Bear Cat coach, Gordon (Phat) Wilson, played defence on the original Allan Cup club and again in 1929 when Port Arthur won the trophy a third time.

Ports meet the Saskatchewan champions, Moose Jaw Millers, in the first game of a best-of-five semi-final at Port Arthur tomorrow. The second game will be played at Port Arthur Thursday and the third at Regina Saturday.

Calgary Wins 3-0

In the other western semi-final Calgary Stampeders invaded Trail Smoke Easters' home ice to score a 3-0 victory over the 1938 Allan Cup winners who toured Europe last year and won the world title overseas.

Trail and the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association protested the victory on grounds the Stampeders, Alberta champions, used five "imports" who played on teams outside Alberta last season while the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association transfer rule permits only four "imports." The best-of-five series is scheduled to be continued tomorrow night at Calgary.

Edmonton Athletic club, 1939 Western junior champions, opened the best-of-five western semi-final series with Regina Abbott-Generals by scoring a 6-4 win at Edmonton Saturday night. Regina penalty played a part in an early 5-1 lead for Edmonton. The series continues tonight.

Kenora Thistles came within a game of reaching the other western semi-final with Port Arthur. Thistles took a 2-0 lead in games in the best-of-five Manitoba junior final by beating Winnipeg Elmwood 2-1 here Saturday night. They can end the series tonight in the third game.

SPORT BRIEF

Al McCoy is favored over Gus Dorazio in Philadelphia tonight and Jimmy Perrin, second ranking featherweight contender (N.B.A.) is the choice over Al Reid in New Orleans...Bill Rose of Kitchener, Ont., who developed most of the fine front line of Boston Bruins, is commuting between New York and Boston for the Stanley Cup series...They say Mike Jacobs is considering another Joe Louis title this year with either Lee Savold or Buddy Baer and we do mean Buddy.

ASK THE SOLDIERS?

Aldershot Camp's Answer

By M. H. HALTON

The Canadian Active Service Force is receiving its finishing touches as an instrument of victory and it would do any Canadian's heart good to see it to-day. I have spent several days "Somewhere in England" with our troops, watching them at their work with modern weapons, talking to them in their billets and meeting senior officers, and for pride, confidence and efficiency I have never seen troops to surpass them, not even the Finns.

"If you could see the Canadian Active Service Force as intimately as I have seen it you would laugh at the stories which have been circulated in Canada to the effect that your soldiers are poorly equipped and even suffering from lack of clothes. I assure you would laugh unless you were too surprised to laugh.

"What's this about the troops freezing for lack of clothes?" I asked. From the mouths of both my hosts —JAMES McGOWAN OF LAKEFIELD, and John Kirken of Camrose—came a monosyllabic reply which has come to be synonomous with BUNK.

The story circulated in Canada that soldiers have no changes of boots or uniforms is regarded here as the worst kind of distorted political propaganda. When in the past has any army issued every man with two pairs of heavy waterproof boots at one time? Well our army does just that to-day.

I am authorized to-day by divisional headquarters to state categorically that there are two pairs of shoes for every soldier and that in addition to full battle dress uniform there are two other suits for each man. No other army in the world has such equipment—excellent battle dress uniform, the same for generals as for privates, with greatcoats and waterproofs—and two suits of comfortable overalls. The Imperial army is issued with the same extra clothes, but with only one suit instead of two.

DETROIT ELIMINATES AMERICANS AND NOW MEET MAPLE LEAFS

Boston Bruins Are One Up On The Rangers

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Modere (Mud) Bruneteau, who hase known all the ups and downs of hockey, is potting important goals for Detroit Red Wings again in the heavy-money scrambling that marks the National League playoffs for the Stanley Cup.

The French-Canadian forward from St. Boniface, Man., who broke up the longest game in hockey history in 1936, fired his third goal of the current cup series last night to give the Red Wings a 3-1 victory over New York Americans at Detroit and success in the preliminary round. Bruneteau moved to the top of the series point-makers with four points and the Wings entered the the semi-finals against Toronto.

Nine minutes after scoring the goal that put his club ahead 2-1 in the third period, Bruneteau passed to Ken Kilrea for the one that made certain the elimination of the gallant Americans, who fought through the last two games of the best-of-three round with only 12 players. Detroit had won the first contest 2-1 in overtime and the Americans the second 5-4 with a brilliant late rally.

The Bruins, league champions, took a one-game lead in their best-of-seven semi-final round with New York Rangers through a 4-3 victory in the third test last night at Boston. The teams will continue tomorow at New York.

Semi-Finals Start Tuesday

At Toronto tomorrow, Detroit opens its best-of-three semi-finals against the Maple Leafs, who eliminated Chicago in two straight games last week, and the winner will play Boston or the Rangers in the best-of-seven finals.

Bruneteau seemed to be on the way to a great career in 1936, when he fired a goal that gave the Red Wings a 1-0 victory over the old Maroons at Montreal after a record-breaking 176 minutes and 30 seconds of Stanley Cup play. Mud, in his first year as a professional, had come into the big league in mid-season after starting with Detroit Olympics.

But ever since that big 1936 shot, which started the Wings on the way to their first world title, Bruneteau has been dogged by ill luck. Injury has kept him out for the most of two seasons—once it was a broken leg—and he spent part of 1938-39 in the minors.

Cecil Dillon sent Detroit ahead in last night's first period but Hooley Smith, one of the fightingest of the fighting Americans, tied the score before the first interval. The second session was scoreless.

Quick To Capitalize

Then Al Murray of the Americans was penalized with seven minutes of the third gone and Bruneteau was quick to capitalize. Sid Abel passed to Ebbie Goodfellow and the captain got the puck to Bruneteau, who whizzed it from the boards and drove his shot home off Goalie Tiny Thompson's pads. As the Americans pressed in an effort to tie the count, Bruneteau started Kilrea away and he outskated Charlie Conacher to complete the scoring.

Eddie Wiseman, who joined Boston in mid-season in a trade with the Americans for Eddie Shore, was the hero of the Bruins' victory with two goals, though his second was flukey. He shot it at 7:49 in the third period and the puck bounced off Goalie Dave Kerr's chest, then hopped over his head into the net.

That left the home team ahead 4-3 and the best the Rangers could accomplish in the remaining minutes of play was a single goal by Lynn Patrick, son of Manager Lester Patrick, with eight minutes to go. The Blueshirts never did unleash the 'strategic masterpiece" that Coach Frank Boucher had promised.

Wiseman's first goal put the Bruins ahead in the opening period and they never were headed, though the Rangers tied matters temporarily in the second when Muzz Patrick, the manager's other son, scored a 50-foot shot. Bobby Bauer and Roy Conacher fired goals for the Bruins before the second period closed and Babe Pratt shot the Rangers' second as the third chapter began.

Golf Champ In a Sulky

Last month, Patty defeated U. S. National Champion Betty Jameson to win the Miami Biltmore women's golf championship at Coral Gables for the fifth straight time.

Goodyears Held To Tie In Second Game

TORONTO, March 25.—A laboring, erratic collection of puck-chasers for two periods, Toronto Goodyears came back with a biff and a bang and literally bulled their way into a 1-all saw-off with Kirkland Lake Blue Devils Saturday night in the second game of the North-South Ontario senior championship series.

In one of the season's most exciting struggles—70 minutes of almost sustained action—Goodyears fought an uphill battle against their more polished rivals and earned the admiration of over 13,065 fans, who were on their feet as much as sitting through the nerve-tingling affray.

The huge crowd—pulling hard for a Toronto victory which would square the best-in-five series at one victory each—was utterly annoyed and shameful of the stumbling tactics of Goodyears during the first two periods, but they cheered them to an echo when they came back with a determined drive to back the Northerners up and almost snatch victory in a hectic third period.

Mortimer's Misfortune.

Herbie Mortime, agile goalkeeper, again stood out as Hero No. 1 in the Goodyear cause. For over half the game it was strictly a case of Blue Devils v. Mortimer, as Herbie robbed the invaders with super-sensational stops and the crowd groaned with satisfaction. And it was only a mean twist in fate that enabled Lake Shore to tally the first goal and deprive Mortimer of a shutout.

Joe Brown and Bobby Walton combined for the first counter which gave Lake Shore the lead. It came at 7:45 of the period with the crowd simply screaming advice at Mortimer. Brown blasted from 10 fet out while players milled around. Mortimer saw it coming and partially blocked the hard drive. The puck struck his glove, rolled over his arm and dropped on the ice behind him. Then came the second that seemed like a minute as the puck trickled lazily just half a foot over the goal-line, and Mortimer turned just in time to discover the worst.

Russ Bowman, Goodyear defense stalwart, sparked the drive that brought the equalizing goal at 5:03 of the third period. Bowman came back after being cut down by Jo Jo Graboski in the second period and it was his exhibition of sheer courage and determination that inspired Eddie Powers' boys to the necessary heights.

Grabbing the puck at his own blue line, Bowman bulled his way down the boards into Blue Devil territory. And the battling Tiremen hammered away there for a full minute before Bert Turney finally slapped the rebound from Johnny Inglis' shot home and brought a wild and happy demonstration from the crowd.

Bill Durnan, who had little of consequence to handle up until this stage, was kept on the alert for the remainder of the game, with Goodyears travelling at top speed and the Lake Shores seemingly tailing off somewhat.

Stalwart Defense.

In the closing 10 minutes the Northerners often had five forwards out gunning for the payoff goal, but Mortimer and his mates, Jimmy Drummond, who played a stellar game, Bowman, Bobby Laurent and Jack Draper, held them at bay with brilliant performances.

Graboski, whose every move was cheered by the fans, turned out to be the evening's "Bad Man." He was waved to the penalty box on three occasions, for tripping and slashing, and again for roughing with Johnny O'Flaherty. Jo Jo was a marked man Saturday and could make little headway against the watchful Goodyear forwards.

The Blue Devils played clever hockey pretty well all down the line, but one lad who caught the eye was little Dick Kowcinak, pivot star of the "Midget Line" . . . He was continually a threat and only remarkable saving by Mortimer kept him off the score sheet. Brown, Walton and Stu Smith worked very well together, their picture plays continually having Goodyears in hot water, while Johnny McCreedy, right winger of another attacking unit, was another star of the game.

CAMP BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25—(AP).—If Joe McCarthy makes any changes in his New York Yankees squad this spring, one of them probably will be the dropping of Oral Hildebrand, one of the club's best relief pitchers last season. The veteran was belted hard by St. Louis Cardinals yesterday and hasn't shown much pep or enthusiasm in any of his appearances.

LAKELAND, Fla.—It's still uncertain when Charley Gehringer will be ready for active duty with Detroit Tigers. "I can throw, run and bend a little bit and nothing happens," he says, but his physician says he still must go easy. He has suffered pains in his back through the entire training season.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Washington Senators are banking heavily on experiments and developments haven't been particularly encouraging thus far this spring. The shift of Cecil Travis to third, Buddy Lewis to the outfield and installation of Jim Pofahl at short has not yet proved the key to victory and observers see hitting weaknesses.

Bain, Toronto stockbroker, fell at the famous water jump in front of the main stands and died.

SAN FRANCISCO.—President Bill Benswanger of Pittsburg Pirates, who raves about the California climate, was instrumental in getting Connie Mack to bring his Athletics west for spring training. Now Benswanger is scratching his head, for Connie has stolen a good part of the show and the box office patronge from the Bucs besides winning two of their four encounters.

7,000 Skiers Are Unable To Return Home When Snowstorms Block Railroads

ST. JEROME, Que., Mar. 25. — (CP). — A week-end prank of the weatherman left some 7,000 weary skiers in the Laurentian Mountains on Sunday, unable to return to Montreal because of storm-disrupted train schedules. Sixteen trains were held up.

Laurentian villages thronged with men and women skiers while railway ploughs attempted to clear lines packed with snowdrifts after a gale had swept the mountains for more than 24 hours.

Stalled trains were reported at almost every station along the Laurentian rail route to Montreal.

Some of the skiers abandoned their trains to jam most of the villages' available hotel accommodations. Everywhere food was in great demand and the Laurentians' sandwich and coffee business enjoyed an unprecedented boom.

More than 1,500 skiers were estimated to have invaded St. Jerome, after leaving two trains which they had boarded earlier for Montreal. St. Jerome's three hotels reported within an hour after the invasion that they had practically run out of food.

One of the trains carried a young man who had suffered a fractured leg in a ski accident. He was cared for by a doctor on his train.

ELECTION RESULTS
ANNOUNCED TUESDAY NIGHT

The Law Closes In

Two foot policemen and two mounted policemen close in on would-be demonstrators during an attempt to picket the French consulate at Radio City, New York City. The emergency conference to save Spanish refugees had announced earlier in the day that they would try to picket the consulate in protest against an alleged edict closing Spanish refugee camps in France to all but those willing to fight for the Allies, but when the two-score would-be demonstrators showed up, more than 400 police were ready for them. Before they had time to form ranks, the police closed in and the actual action was over in ten minutes. 22 were arrested.

Gordon Denies Amalgamation Cure For Railways, At Ferguson Rally

HAVELOCK, March 25.—(ENS)—"Amalgamation is not the cure," voiced Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., prominent Peterborough lawyer, in discussing the railway situation during a Liberal rally held in this C.P.R. divisional point, Saturday night. Mr. Gordon, himself a former C.P.R. employee, was principal speaker at a meeting in the Havelock town hall, held in the interests of Rork S. Ferguson, the King candidate for this Hastings-Peterborough riding in the federal election. Col. Roscoe Vanderwater who was to have addressed the rally, was unable to reach here due to snow-bound roads. For this reason also the general attendance was rather light.

Reviewing the growth of the Canadian railway systems, Mr. Gordon showed how totally unprepared they were for the world-wide depression from which they are just now recovering. Presenting recent C.N.R. figures, which are nearly parallel to those of the C.P.R., he demonstrated how conditions were improving. Instead of laying aside a reserve during their flush times, said Mr. Gordon, the C.P.R. management paid their shareholders an exhorbitant 10 per cent, while other utilities were paying but 5 per cent or less. The railway companies extravagantly purchased land at $1,000 per acre to build the front lines from Toronto to Montreal. It is to the everlasting credit, praised Mr. Gordon, of John A. Sexsmith, who at that time as representative from this riding at Ottawa, fought againts the above scheme and urged instead that the companies double-track the line from Toronto to Ottawa.

The C.P.R. then the third largest taxpayer in Canada, paid the same amount of taxes on their property when business became bad. A loan of 20 million dollars was handed by Mr. Meighen to the C.N.R., which went into bankruptcy 2½ years later. Called the gramaphone of the C.N.R. by the Hon. R. B. Bennett, Mr. Meighen appointed later to the Senate, has been a source of difficulty to his Conservative party, and carried through a resolution for the amalgamation of the railways of Canada.

Dr. R. J. Manion says he is not in favor of either unification or amalgamation, stated Mr. Gordon, yet let me read you his views in the matter, written when he had a clear conscience a few years ago. At that time Dr. Manion wrote a book entitled "Life Is An Ambition." Referring to the railway problem in this he says, quote: "Enforced cooperation can only be brought about under either a one-man dictator or a strong commission. In our neighboring republic there has been appointed a dictator in the person of Mr. Eastman, with the title of Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation, but he has accomplished little so far because of pressure by localities affected by his proposal and opposition by labor unions. Nevertheless had he the power he could work wonders. The same is true here, but political and public pressure would have to be ignored as would the competitive attitude of the railway managements. And the labor unions must be made to realize that. If these conditions are adopted, a dictator could bring about every economy possible under unified management, except the economy of one headquarters staff. This railway economy plan is the only practicable one apparent to me, and undoubtedly it will require sacrifices on the part of localities and employees."

Dr. Manion and his friends, lashed out Gordon, have a short-sighted policy which will destroy the railway system, just as much a public utility as our Hydro. They're making rash promises which they can't keep nor never will, such as the abolition of radio licenses. Manion headed the department controlling this revenue for five years, yet never once tried to reduce the license fee. This is what Dr. Manion said concerning conscription in his book, "I am convinced that the only fair and just method of raising men for the army during war is by conscription."

We are living in a democracy where we govern ourselves, said Mr. Gordon. Under dictatorships, the people have no voice in the affairs, which is operated by one man. Remember that wise saying, that "in a multitude of counsellors there is safety," and be sure to exercise your franchise on election day. If we do not we are now allowing ourselves the privileges of a democratic country. It is our policy to settle differences by ballots rather than bullets. In his concluding remarks, Mr. Gordon strongly advised a man such as Rork Ferguson, a man of the soil, to represent this riding which is largely rural and semi-urban, rather than to trust it to the care of a professional man, unexperienced in our needs."

Lauds Ferguson

Reeve Ernest W. Seeney who officiated as chairman of the meeting, spoke of the sincerity which Rork Ferguson had served this riding, in the past few years, and introduced the Liberal candidate to the audience. In this particular district, Mr. Seeney named the local post office, fish hatchery, pavement through Norwood and Havelock, and the mining roads as some of Mr. Ferguson's accomplishments.

Included on the evening's program were a few song and dance items contributed by local talent. Miss Jacqueline Sanders sang and tapdanced to "Oh Fergie" following the tune of the popular "Oh Johnny" and Misses Jean and oJan Quinn, nine-year-old twin sisters, sang a parody of "We'll never let the old flag fall." The Young twins, Wallace and Wayne in Scottish kilts, danced an intricate Highland reel, and Miss Margaret Anderson sang and danced a novelty number. She was assisted by Misses ean Peters and Eileen Iles, and Lloyd Brisbin. Piano accompanists were Mrs. T. W. Quinn and Miss Helen Spencer.

Times Looking Up.

"When I visited this hall one night in my election campaign four years ago, said Rork Ferguson, I remember well that it was packed with people, and that the majority of them farmers. They were there because the farmers were then in an unpleasant financial condition, many finding it impossible to meet their debts. I am glad to say to-night that times have improved considerably for them, the tax rolls being ample proof of this. Farming, lumbering, and similar industries which were in a desperate condition four years ago, began to recuperate immediately as soon as the King government placed in action their policy of trade expansion.

Speaking of the criticism directed at the King government"s prosecution of the war, particularly of their treatment of the soldiers, Mr. Ferguson, said, "I've talked to dozens of men in the C. A. S. F and have yet to find one dissatisfied with conditions in the army."

As far as criticizing Mr. King for his effort, I can say that he warned us during the first caucus meeting that there would probably be war before the end of their term of office. Despite this the estimates for national defense were continually held up, year after year. King and Lapointe repeatedly stressed the danger of war at every meeting, and except for them Canada would not probably have been as well prepared as she is at present.

Premier King has been leader of the Liberal party for 21 years, and for 15 years head of the government and is a good, experienced and tried man. On the other hand there is Manion of the National Government cause, who promises if elected to select the best brains of the country regardless of politics to form his cabinet. I ask you, said Mr. Ferguson, would you elect a reeve giving him power to name his own council. One is as absurd as the other.

I have tried to deal fairly with everyone who has asked my assistance, and I defy anyone, said Mr. Ferguson, to say that I have ever considered their particular politics. Should I be re-elected I shall continue to represent my riding as faithfully as I have in the past.

ONLY 40 PER CENT. RURAL VOTE IS EXPECTED

Big Ben Signal For Count Of Troop Votes

LONDON, March 25.—(CP Cable)—The chiming of Big Ben at 6 p.m Tuesday will be the signal for six scrutineers, appointed by Canada's political parties, to begin the job of ripping open envelopes and counting the votes of the Dominion's voters-in-exile—the members of the Canadian Active Service Force now abroad.

Heavy mailbags brought into London during the week-end represented the final delivery of the ballots posted by the soldiers and airmen of Canada's forces in England.

The scrutineers, working mostly night, have until 3 p.m. April 1 to complete the count, but it is estimated that the final figures will be cabled to Ottawa long before then. Advice will be sent as soon as the count for each province is finished.

The Maritimes result, it is expected, will be transmitted first, probably election night. There is no indication at present of the size of the vote.

A number of soldiers have kept their ballots as souvenirs—a lot of votes went that way in 1917.

Soldier's Arm Is Amputated

WINDSOR, Ont., March 25. —(CP).— Howard Hines, 27, of the 45th Artillery Company, Lindsay, had his left arm amputated below the elbow Saturday afternoon. Grade Hospital officials said this morning he is "resting fairly well,' they added.

Hines accidentally shot himself in the arm Thursday while shooting starlings at the back of the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hines, Essex.

Three Skiers Are Snowbound

Week-end skiing events indicate several members of the local Ski Club would be worthy members of the Finnish Ski Battalions.

Seven men who left Peterborough at one o'clock on Saturday to ski at Bethany were marooned in the village over the week-end and three of their number are still there waiting for the highway plow to break a road through.

The two cars got about three miles out of Bethany on Saturday night but had to turn back and the group found overnight lodging in private homes in Bethany. After skiing again on Sunday while the highway continued to block they found on Sunday evening that there was no chance for a car to get through.

Toby Westbye, Otto Laderach, Jack Richardson and Jack Holland set out across the fields and on the road in the shortest route between Bethany and Cavan on Sunday night covering the six-mile stretch in good time, and from that point were able to grab a ride to Peterborough.

George Cook and Harry Hunter of Lakefield with J. Monahan of this city are still sitting in Bethany village waiting for the snowplow to open the road. These three stayed behind to bring the two cars out and up to noon the road was still impassable.

Highway crews and a huge plow worked all day Sunday in an attempt to open this highway from No. 28 through to Port Perry and are continuing but so far the drifting snow reigns supreme.

Bicyclist Suffers Injury To Shoulder

Reginald Green, 16, of 325 George street, had his right shoulder bruised, when his bicycle skidded in front of a motor car on George street Saturday and he was struck by the car.

Green was riding north between Dalhousie and Sherbrooke streets when he hit a patch of icy road and his bicycle slipped to the side and squarely in front of an automobile driven by George Gall, Keene. The boy was knocked off his wheel by the impact. Gall stopped his car, picked up the lad and drove him to the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic where on examination he was found to have no other injury than a bruised shoulder.

The bicycle was not badly damaged.

The Election Returns

Supporters of National Government are invited to hear the election returns in comfort Tuesday night, both from the local riding and throughout the country, at the National Government Headquarters, George Street, and in the Canadian Legion Hall. There will be telegraph service into both places.

For information as to voting, cars, etc., during the hours of polling telephone 9921, 9922 or 3591.

—THE CONSERVATIVE VICTORY COMMITTEE.

Plows Are Busy Opening Up Main Highways

Not more than forty per cent. rural vote will be cast in this riding, according to forecasts of party leaders who took a mournful view of the situation to-day. Blocked roads stretched for miles in every township of the riding, with Douro and Ennismore almost isolated.

The storm and high winds worked such havoc that both railways had running schedules interrupted. The passenger train from Toronto due in this city at eight o'clock on Saturday night was storm-bound for several hours in the Uxbridge district and finally steamed into the station at 1.30 on Sunday morning. Sunday night trains running east and west on the C.P.R. line were more than an hour late.

Township Isolated.

The north end of Ennismore Township is isolated and this also applies to the area around Gannon's Narrows bridge. Rev. Father Gillogly, parish priest, told the Examiner by telephone that there were not more than 125 people at church on Sunday counting both Masses. Ordinarily the church would be filled for both services. The road from the village to the lake is blocked and the roads leading north are piled with snow level with the fence tops. They expect that a power plow will get through to-day. On Saturday some of the Ennismore roads were plowed, but the wind continued to drift the snow, and within three hours they were impassable again.

Douro Township, where there is a big vote, is about in the same condition as Ennismore, with all roads except two main roads reported as being impassable. The road from Nassau east to the Warsaw road is blocked and snow is piled high.

Main Roads Open.

Otonabee is leading in the digging out process. The big county plow has been operating night and day since the storm started last Thursday and main roads are open. Sixth Line from Keene up to the highway is in good shape and the Zion road is also open. The Norwood road from Peterborough east to the Sixth Line his a single track and will not require much plowing to make it good. On the other hand, the boundary between Douro and Otonabee from the Warsaw turn eastward passing Howard Quinn's farm is a solid bank of snow. Not a single vehicle has been over this road since Thursday night.

North Monaghan is a little better off with the trunk highway cutting down through the centre, but side roads in this township are bad. To-day and Sunday highway workers were battling to clear the road on the cut-off leading to Bethany, and it is just passable. The river road through Crawford's Grove to Springville is impassable.

Mail Men Hit Hard.

Ross Smith of Lakehurst, rural mail carrier on the route from Peterborough to Lakehurst by way of Bridgenorth, Ennismore, and Gannon's Narrows, reached the city this morning by way of Buckhorn, the Oregon Trail, Burleigh Falls, and Lakefield.

"For the last three weeks or thereabouts, I've been using a motor sleigh from Lakehurst to the bridge at the Narrows," Mr. Smith said to-day. "The bridge is covered with snow and ice packed in higher than the railings. In fact, you can't see the railings, and a stranger to the place would hardly take it to be a bridge.

"I'd leave the motor sleigh on the north side of the bridge, walk across and then pick up a light motor truck on the south side. After the snow and blow on Thursday night, I got about a mile down the road below the Narrows, and right there I stalled, and I had to get a team to haul me back the mile to the Narrows bridge."

The Smith light truck is stranded in the snow south of the bridge, and fortunately there was an automobile at home for to-day's trip into the city.

"The snow has packed in and frozen so tightly that you can shovel it out in blocks," Mr. Smith said. "Men were working in Ennismore on Saturday and Sunday trying to get the roads open, but I was told they had to give it up. I don't know how the are doing to-day."

Mr. Smith said that a great deal of Saturday's mail for the Peterborough routes was not taken from the Post Office, and it was still in the racks this morning. Some farmers who came in with milk and to market called at the Post Office and picked up the mail for themselves and nearby neighbors.

Collacutt bus from Port Hope to Peterborough arrived on time this morning and the DeNure coach is operating regularly through to Lindsay and back.

Gordon K. Fraser reports the road is heavy between the city and Burleigh and in some places snow piled on the side of the highway is higher than the top of a car.

Generally speaking a wide section of territory from the west taking in Ennismore, most of Smith and Douro on east is practically isolated. The two northern townships of Galway and Cavendish are isolated. Harvey township with the exception of the road from Burleigh to Buckhorn and the highway through Buckhorn to Bobcaygeon is snowed in.

Millbrook is sitting in the middle of a snowed in area with all roads blocked, many of them not even passable to teams and sleighs. The highway from Millbrook to Highway 28 is blocked and there are several cars marooned along this stretch. A county snowplow is somewhere between Millbrook and highway and is broken down. At present they are waiting for another plow to arrive.

Milk truckers reached the city almost on schedule but farmers had to draw the milk to the highway as the truckers did not venture off the trunk lines.

Shovelled Market Road In Moonlight; Sold 80 Dozens Of Eggs In Two Hours

Possibly Erle Tuly of Smith township was thinking of that line from the song "Beautiful Katy" about the moon shining over the cowshed Saturday morning while still the night was at odds with day as he began to dig his way through snow banks in the general direction of Peterborough.

Mr. Tully, recalling his Herculean stunt, said the moon was almost as bright as day when he laid into the nearest drift, and that was right in his lane. It was just a little after 5 a.m. with plenty of zero in the weather, and it was the most of two hours later when Mr. Tully had reached the road of the seventh line.

To make a long story short, the "potato king" of Smith reached the city around 11 o'clock and proceeded to sell 80 dozens of eggs in the next two hours.

Passing out 960 eggs in less than 120 minutes was fairly lively business at times. At any rate Mr. Tully got rid of the whole load at prices from 23 to 25 cents, the total income being around $20.

Erle Tully's only grievance Saturday night was that the wind had filled in his lane again during the day, and a telephone call to his home this morning brought the news that he was shovelling snow out on the concession line.

And that was just one farmer's week-end experience.

Main Street Topics

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By Examiner Reporters.

NO POLICE COURT

Owing to this being Easter Monday there was no session of the police court. Several persons arrested over the week-end were released on their own bail to appear before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Tuesday morning.

SOME GET A HOLIDAY

Stock brokers and employees joined the ranks of the fortunate today and enjoyed a full holiday along with bankers, liquor store employees, and others. Restaurant owners felt they should be included in the list, judging by the fewness of their customers.

MAIL CARRIER BLOCKED

Owing to blocked roads the Bailieboro mail carrier, Oswald Martin, was unable to get through with the return mail from Millbrook Saturday. The highway snow plow broke down and mail was sent by train to Fraserville and being brought on the highway to the village.

DRIVER ARRESTED

Following a traffic accident in which his car was involved in a collision at Water street and Parkhill Road with an automobile driven by Walter Yale of Lakefield, Saturday, Bert Twomey, London street, was arrested on a charge of careless driving and allowed to go on bail to appear on Tuesday. No one was hurt in the accident.

THREE FROM ONE FAMILY

The rather unusual event of two brothers and a sister having babies christened at the one time took place at All Saints' Church Sunday. The proud parents were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith, Lake Street; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smith, Cameron street, and Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Hope, Rink street. The Smiths are brothers and Mrs. Spencer is their sister.

FAST WORK

Local men who are enlisting at the Armouries in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment are being outfitted as fast as they are signed up. Last week 12 new recruits went to Picton and were home on leave two days later fully equipped with smart looking battle rompers, winter overcoat, forage cap and a heavy winter cap. Ross McColl, Bill Coursey and George Biggs were seen on Saturday in uniform. More than 40 have been recruited and fully equipped in the past 10 days.

HIT BY BIG ICICLE

Struck on the head by a big icicle as he was coming out of George Street United Church after the evening service Sunday Alvin Metcalfe, Maitland avenue, received a cut that required three stitches to close. Mr. Metcalfe had just stepped outside the door when the piece of ice dropped on him and although his hat stopped some of the force of the blow it was not sufficient protection to prevent him from sustaining a painful cut.

UNKOWN MAN HIT

An unidentified man was struck and knocked down by an automobile while crossing Charlotte street in front of the Empress Hotel Saturday. C. W. Nicholson, 563 Bolivar street, the driver of the car involved, told police that he was driving west when the man walked in front of the automobile. Nicholson said that the pedestrian who was apparently unhurt, did not give his name or address and walked away from the scene of the accident.

BUSY DRAWING CARS OUT

J. E. Gregson of the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company reports that two farmers did a land office business Saturday in towing stalled trucks and automobiles through a big snow drift on the road between Highway 28 and Millbrook. One of the Fuel and Transfer Company's trucks, carrying oil for Millbrook, was among the motor vehicles that could not get through and at one time there were several other trucks and a dozen cars tied up.

NINE SOLDIERS VOTE

Nine Peterborough soldiers in training at Kingston cast their vote last week during the period allowed for military voting according to information reaching the city.

A LONG DRAUGHT

Luckiest workers in Peterborough this month are those at the In and Out store, which was closed on Good Friday, today (Easter Monday), and will be closed Tuesday because it is election day. The thirsty man who patronized the store on Saturday had to make provision for a long siege.

A LONG LINE

According to the chief electoral officer there are approximately 6,400,000 persons eligible to vote in this election in Canada. If all the voters stood in a line each occupying a space of two feet the line would stretch about 2,400 miles, roughly the distance from Halifax to the Canadian Rockies.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED.

Osborne Pink, Welcome, suffered undetermined injuries which necessitated his admittance to Port Hope General Hospital Sunday night when he was struck by a truck on Highway No. 2. Pink was walking beside Ray Jones, who was pushing a bicycle when the accident occurred. The two men were thrown to the ground.

NO CHARGE MADE

The Examiner has not yet made, nor has it any intention of making, any charge for soldiers' pictures. The Examiner's photographer will take, free of charge, pictures of any and all Peterborough men who have enlisted in the Active Service Force. One woman said today that she had understood a charge of 75 cents was made by the Examiner for each soldier's picture. This is not the case, nor has it ever been.

TWO MAIL DELIVERIES.

Two deliveries of mail will be made in the city on election day, Postmaster Lacheur reported today. The carriers will be allowed extra time to vote. It had been proposed from Ottawa that there would be only one delivery, but on account of the Easter Monday holiday and probable accumulation of mail it was decided to cancel that arrangement and revert to the two deliveries on Tuesday.

GRAIN FIELDS PROTECTED

March getting ready to go out like a lion has tied up side line traffic in the townships, but several farmers say that apart from the inconvenience in getting out and around the weather has something to be said for it on the credit side. Dave McIntyre of Otonabee remarked that the fields of fall wheat are covered with a deep blanket of snow, protection against the thawing and freezing that are usual variants of late March days. He said he had not seen a bare field since winter settled down in earnest.

WORKING IN OTTAWA

Civil servants at Ottawa might well start a Peterborough club now judging by the number of former residents of this city who are now employed there by the government. Some of them are Barney Barnes, Michael English, Dick Cowan, Dorothy Strong, Mary Thomas, Reg McClavey, Art Malane and Bruce Mills. In all, the 2,500 additional workers have been added to the Civil Service staff since war began. Some of these Peterborough people were in the various departments before outbreak of war.

FRUIT NOT DAMAGED

In a report telling of efforts of reporters to reach Bancroft on the night of Col. Drew's appearance there it was mentioned that a Strano's truck from Peterborough was stuck on the road between Apsley and Bancroft, and for that reason cars could not get by. It was also stated that the fruit on the truck was frozen and became a total loss from exposure. We are informed this was not the case as the truck was fitted to withstand cold weather and the load was not damaged.

Factories Plan To Give Men Time Out To Vote

Although the Elections Act provides two hours for employees to go to the polls most of them manage to do their duty as citizens without serious disturbance of factory and store operations, according to information of employers.

The Act says: "Every employer shall, on polling day, allow to every elector in his employ at least two additional hours other than the noon hour, for voting, and no employer shall make any deduction from the pay of any such elector nor impose upon or exact from him any penalty by reason of his absence during such hours."

H. A. Cranfield, employment director at the Canadian General Electric Company, said most of the employees of the big plant do their voting during the noon hour, and that there is no serious loss of time or disturbance to the day's operations. They are permitted to take whatever time they need to go to their respective polls and mark their ballots. A group of Lakefield employees requested that they be allowed to stay out in the morning, and as the polls do not open until 8 o'clock they expected that it might be around nine o'clock when they arrived at the factory. Usually, others are delayed by the noon hour rush at the polls, but on the whole production is not greatly obstructed.

The Utilities Commission's employees were advised to-day to take time out between 10 o'clock and noon. R. L. Dobbin, manager, said that quite a number of the men vote during the noon hour, but those who need extra time are being asked to go early and avoid the midday rush.

L. H. Ingram, personnel manager of the Quaker Oats Company, said that most of the employees arrange with their foremen for time off throughout the day. The absence of the men is "staggered," and plant operation is not held up. Some of the employees vote at noon.

"Employees are entitled to two hours with pay if they require that time to vote," Mr. Ingram said, "but I have never known of any of them to take two hours. It is enirely up to themselves, and it seems they don't waste any time about it."

BERLIN.—(AP). — The German High Command communique this morning said:

"In the west the day passed quietly. The air force continued scouting over France. During border patrol on the west front, in the Zweibruecken regian, a French reconnaissance plane was shot down by German pursuit craft."

LONDON.—(CP).— A new German aerial torpedo—decorated with a portrait of Prime Minister Chamberlain with his umbrella — was found to-day on a beach near Bridlintgon, Yorkshire.

Admiralty experts were called to examine it. The torpedo is about 21 feet long, with two propellers at the tail. It is believed to be as dangerous as a floating mine after its motive power is exhausted.

Some Objection.

NOTTINGHAM, England—(CP)—The Independent Labor Party, in annual conference here, adopted a wartime program today expressing opposition to all emergency powers which restrict workers' organizations and freedom of speech and press. The program also opposed a political truce with the Chamberlain government or an industrial truce with employers.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A GOOD SAMARITAN

If Charlie Elliott knew this story was going to be published he'd probably be greatly embarrassed, but it's too good to keep from the readers of the Examiner.

It happened today and shows Charlie in a light that anyone would envy being shown in—because he little knew it would come to the attention of the general public.

Jack Huggins, who has enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and who is due back in Picton this afternoon, happened to hitch a ride downtown with Charlie this morning and told him those facts. It was also evident he was suffering from a very bad cold. So Charlie asked him how he was travelling to Picton, and the young soldier raised his thumb in eloquent explanation.

"Oh, no you're not—not with a cold like that," replied Charlie and took him in hand.

Upshot of the conversation was that Charlie Elliott paid his bus fare from Peterborough to Picton, just to make sure the youngster wouldn't develop serious illness from exposure in this afternoon's high wind.

Salvation Army Given $11,966

Receipts of $11,966.88 were turned over to the Salvation Army by Treasurer Lt.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., at a special service in the Army Temple yesterday afternoon. The meeting was attended by Commissioner Benjamin Orames, Brigadier Walter Putt, Brigadier F. J. Richards, and Adjutant Hilda Broom and was presided over by Mayor James Hamilton.

A good representation of war veterans attended the service under command of George Gimblett, president of the Canadian Legion, to honor Commissioner Orames, a padre with the Australian forces in the Great War.

Mayor James Hamilton was chairman of the service; Sergeant-Major R. C. Braund led in prayer; the Temple songsters sang "Glorious in Excelsis"; scripture reading was given by G. H. Roper, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A.; and the Temple band played a selection.

Rev. F. C. Craik, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, welcomed Commissioner Orames to Peterborough on behalf of the Protestant clergy of the city and the address of the day was given by the Commissioner. Charles Lacheur moved a vote of thanks.

3 Men Escape When Truck Struck By Train

Passengers in a truck that was struck by the Lakefield train at the Barnardo avenue crossing of the C.N.R. Saturday afternoon, three men had a very narrow escape from serious injury. One of them, Charles Collins, 26 New Chamberlen street, was thrown against the windshield and broke the glass with his head but was not hurt.

The truck, owned by H. H. Dinsdale, was in charge of George Swan, 32 New Chamberlen street, and had just left the Kingan barrel factory at Barnardo avenue and made a left turn on to the crossing when the train, south-bound, came along. The engine struck the rear of the truck, pushed it sideways in a southerly direction and then into the ditch. The motor vehicle was damaged to the extent of $135, but Swan, Collins and the third man in the truck, J. Hewie, Burnham street, were the none the worse for their exciting adventure. Swan told police that he did not see the train coming until he was on the crossing.

The accident happened shortly before 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Y.W.C.A. To Accept 3 Major War Services

The responsibility of the three major services which the government has asked the Y.W.C.A. to assume, keeping in mind the necessity for securing money to meet these needs, was accepted by the organization after a careful discussion at a conference held at National headquarters in February, and attended by national and local board and staff members.

These responsibilities are to supply and supervise hostess houses for the convenience of women relatives and friends of R.C.A.F. men; to arrange "leave" billets for Australian, New Zealand and English airmen, and to make available lists of suitable rooming and boarding houses in the vicinity of training centres.

This conference coliding with a week-end visit of Miss Ruth Rouse, the world president, much assistance was gained through her accounts of what is being done by the Y.W.C.A. in relation to the war, in other countries.

Of much interest at the local Y.W.C.A. Thursday night of this week will be the address on "My Country," which Miss J. Matouskova of Czechslovakia will present in the quiet, impressive manner that pleased her audience so greatly the last time she was in Peterborough, when Y.W.C.A. work in Czechoslovakia and other European countries was the subject of her address.

Lady Tweedsmuir Is Presented With Mink Coat By Canadian Women

Peterborough's women who were at the meeting of the Local Council of Women last Thursday, at which a collection was taken up towards the gift of furs for the Lady Tweedsmuir, a gift which Canadian women from all over the Dominion have made possible through contributions of small amounts of money, will be interested to know that the presentation of a handsome mink coat was made to Lady Tweedsmuir on Good Friday, prior to her departure from Canada for her home in England, which is to be made this month.

Seven representative women waited on The Lady Tweedsmuir at Government House, and asked her to accept the gift as tangible evidence of the affection in which she is held by the women of Canada.

It was the intention of the committee in charge of arrangements to allow women of all means and classes to participate in the pleasure of a gift to Lady Tweedsmuir, so contributions were asked to be made small.

Money poured in from the Yukon right across Canada to Cape Breton. It must have meant self-denial to many for small amounts in stamps were received, some from the Peace River district and the Caribou.

Farm women in isolated districts of the West said they would always be grateful to The Lady Tweedsmuir for originating her Prairie Library scheme, through which their long Winter evenings were brightened.

The cost is a graceful, full-length model of the finest selected mink skins. It is very dark and rich in color, only the backs of the skins being used. Even the lining is of Canadian manufacture.

....We women cannot right all the world's wrongs—we can only do our part, so it is up to us to be prepared for the much-talked-of election by having the right selection of candidate.

Don't fold and stack linen damask cloths. Instead, roll them on a cardboard mailing tube or a cut-down broom handle. If you have no place for long rolls, do change the creases in which the linens were originally folded, even if you move them only an inch or so.

Keep a roll of dark blue or black tissue paper handy for wrapping. It's time-tested recipe for keeping white linens white.

Store linens in as cool a spot as possible. In other words, keep them away from heating pipes or chimney flues.

Are 57 Years Married On Easter Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Siddall, Park street south, celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary on Easter Sunday. Mr. Siddall is approaching his 83rd birthday, Mrs. Siddall is 74 past. Their five sons served in the Great War, and all returned after the Armistice had been signed, following four years of anxious waiting on the part of their parents.

Arthur Siddall, who now lives in Peterborough, their eldest son, was in Canada when the war broke out, and joined up with the Canadian Artillery George was in the Northumberland Fusiliers, and also makes Peterborough his home. Hugh, with whom his parents now live on Park street south, was in a Manchester regiment. Sidney, now dead, was with a Welsh regiment; Albert served on garrison duty in Bermuda. The two daughters are Mrs. Sam Smith of this city, and Mrs. Fred Jefferson, who returned to England with her husband only a short time ago.

Those war days were anxious ones for Mr. and Mrs. Siddall. "You people in Canada don't know what war means," said Mrs. Siddall. She recalled that she and her husband had stood in queues for hours waiting for a little margarine, or bread, or tea, only to find the shop sold out a few minutes before their turn came. "We never saw a bit of butter during the entire war," said Mrs. Siddall, "and eggs were out of the question, they cost so much."

Mr. and Mrs. Siddall were married in Manchester, England, and came to Peterborough on September 21, 1921. They celebrated their anniversary very quietly yesterday. Mr. Siddall, who is a retired tailor and still gets his hand in occasionally by sewing for his grandchildren, has lately been in poor health.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—If, as they say, a woman is a conundrum that no one can solve, what sort of a riddle is man? What's the answer to this one: A man—a gentleman in the usual sense of the word—considered honorable and respected by everybody in the community, has a splendid wife and two lovely babies, yet he protests that he is in love with ME. I have done nothing to attract him, as I have strong convictions about a single girl deliberately vamping another woman's husband. Now here is what I want to know: How can a married man with children be conceited enough to think a young girl is in love with him? How can a man, honest in other things, deliberately try to get a girl into a situation which will break her heart if she does fall in love with him, and ruin her reputation, anyway? How can a man with a wife, home and children and good business prospects jeopardize them all for a little fling with another woman, for he is sure to be found out? Maybe the Greeks had an answer for this conundrum, but it has got me guessing.—F. F.

ANSWER:

I once had an old cook who, when discussing the vagaries of the masculine sex, always ended up by saying: "Well, I tell you, men are the most undiscovered nation there is." And she was right.

No discoverer has yet penetrated into a man's mind and heart and found out what was there, or what made him do the things he does. We see, for instance, men who have lived sober, moral, upright lives at middle age suddenly going haywire. We see shrewd old men letting themselves be gyped by little gold-diggers whose purposes were so apparent that you wouldn't think they would fool an idiot baby. And we see prudent, sensible men every day risking their all for a single adventure and selling their birthrights for a mess of pottage. And not good pottage at that.

Take the case of the philanderer, for instance. Of course, there are men who are unhappily married who fall out of love with their wives and in love with some other woman. That happens. But, nine times out of ten, the philanderer has really given what little heart he has to his wife and admires and respects her more than he does any other woman. He doesn't want to divorce her and marry some other woman. He is just a wanderer who craves change. He just wants the adventure and the spice of an illicit romance.

And for the sake of that he is willing not only to break his wife's heart, but also to risk the wreck of his home and being separated from his children; losing the respect of all who know him, and nearly always ruining his business career. No one can figure out why the philanderer is willing to buy his fun at so high a price.

Nor can any one understand why a man who has one shred of honor in his composition or one throb of pity in his soul will deliberately set about trying to win a young girl when he knows that the end for her is bound to be disaster, just for the sake of gratifying his own vanity and showing that he is still a devil among the ladies, even if he is married and a father.

As you say, the Greeks must have had a word for this. I think it was CAD.

ASK THE MOTHERS?

37,000 Cheques Answer

LAST WAR—The mother got an allowance only if she was a dependent on a soldier and it could be shown he was the sole support of his mother. The MOTHER could not get an allowance if the WIFE of the soldier was receiving one.

THIS WAR—Regulations do not require it to be shown that the son is the sole support of his mother. All that is required is that the son was contributing to the mother's maintenance. The MOTHER can get an allowance if the wife is getting one. Allowances far as many as three dependents may be made. Even if the soldier did not actually contribute to his MOTHER'S support, if such non-payment is shown to be due to circumstances beyond his control, allowance may be made to the MOTHER. Similarly, generous are the allowances to wives and children. In all, 37,000 FAMILIES ARE RECEIVING MONTHLY CHEQUES.

Campaign Finale

speech in Ottawa tonight, attacked the national government plan and declared the campaign methods of the Conservatives, "seeking to destroy the character and reputation of their opponents," had removed every possibility of a national government headed by Dr. Manion.

Bury Partisan Hatchet

In his last campaign speech at Fort William, Ont., also broadcast over an Ontario network, Dr. Manion appealed for endorsation of national government and asked Canadians to "do the big thing and bury our partisan hatchets until peace has been won."

"A National Government can more effectively retrench can more successfully organize for voluntary service than can a group of party politicians pledged to serve their party first and the nation second," he declared reviewing in details his party's platform. Dr. Manion is returning to Ottawa to vote in the capital.

Mr. Woodsworth told a Plum Coulee, Man., rally that certain interests are making profits out of the war. The Canadian people are entitled to know why the export of nickel has been left in the hands of private business.

War Business.

Mr. Woodsworth referred to an article in Harper's magazine which he said had shown that "a steady and remunerative trade is being carried on by certain financial interests in Germany and France."

"This article bares the fact that German coal is being shipped into France via Luxembourg while iron is being sent to Germany in return."

Mr. Woodsworth asked whether this practice is any worse than the shipment of Canadian nickel to Germany via Russia and referred to an article in the current edition of the New York Times.

This article had said that Canada sent large quotas of nickel to make sure that none reached Germany and Russia. It had been explained that at the outbreak of the war it was announced that since the allies control the world's supply of nickel it was being left to the private companies concerned in its manufacture to see that it did not reach the enemy.

The article had said that since 1934 France had barred the export of nickel.

Mr. Woodsworth said the Canadian people are entitled to know why the export of nickel has been left in the hands of private business.

"Our War Too."

Canada must participate in the war in every possible measure because "it is not only England's war but our war too," Works Minister Cardin said at Montreal.

He charged none of the National Government candidates in Quebec has had the "courage to declare he was openly and heartily behind Canada's participation."

The tactics of National Government candidates had been to "seek to unearth difficulties in the Liberal family—to discuss local questions."

"None of the National Government candidates has said even that it is necessary for Canada to participate in the war," Mr. Cardin said.

The Liberal party by its "formidable opposition" to conscription has converted "the Conservatives, the parliament and the entire country, with the exception of certain extremists, to the doctrine of free and voluntary recruiting," Justice Minister Lapointe said at Quebec.

"Certain of our adversaries proclaim today their opposition to the conscription which they themselves established and defended with all their efforts," the Liberal Cabinet Minister said in a 25-minute address over a provincial hook-up of privately owned radio stations. "It is up to the people to decide whether to put any more confidence in these last-hour converts."

Voters in Tuesday's Dominion general election probably would be casting the most important ballot in their lives. The government returned would have the task of directing Canada's war effort and of preparing the country's future "after the victory."

"In the course of this campaign certain hot-heads, over-excited by the desire of assuming power, have made all sorts of accusations against the government," he said. "Most of these falsities have been categorically disproved. It has been proved, to the satisfaction of thinking souls, that there has been neither graft nor favoritism."

People in Glass Houses

Also at Windsor, Labor Minister McLarty said that Arthur J. Reaume, his National Government opponent, in Essex West, could be compared with people in glass houses who throw stones for his statement that Mr. McLarty's election circulars were printed by non-union labor.

The minister produced campaign bills bearing the name of Mr. Reaume but no union label.

"I've tried to keep this campaign on a high plane," Mr. McLarty said. "I believed that the voters of this riding were not concerned with petty things when so many more important things were confronting them in this election.

"But now I do find it necessary to reply to one attack that has been made on me, and it is the charge made persistently by my Nationalist opponent that union labels were not carried on some pictures of me that were printed for this campaign. My Nationalist opponent, apparently unable to find anything better to use as a means of attacking me, has made much of this from the public platforms and through advertising in the press.

"I want to make it abundantly clear that the pictures in question, of which there were 500, were printed without my knowledge or the knowledge of my organization. They were donated by a company in Windsor that wished to support me in this campaign and took this means of doing it. When it was discovered that they carried no union labels they were immediately called in."

National Regimes Abroad

All belligerent nations except Canada have seen fit to form national governments for furthering their war efforts, Lieutenant Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, said at Windsor.

"Why shouldn't Canada do the same?" he asked. "You must choose between national government for Canada or a government whose first interests will be party. Your vote will not be a personal vote; it will be a pledge in support of party politics or united effort."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King evidently was "in his dotage" in suggesting national government would bring dictatorship, Col. Drew asserted.

"Every other country at war has seen fit to break party lines. Shouldn't Canada do likewise?"

Many worthy Liberals would be glad to serve in a national government cabinet formed by Conservative leader Manion.

At Chatham, Ont., Col. Drew charged that the Prime Minister flatly had turned down a British government request last Autumn for a railway military unit.

At Paris, Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario Provincial Secretary, said that he believed Canada was prosecuting the war as vigorously as possible, explaining also for the first time publicly his resignation and return to the Ontario Cabinet within 48 hours recently.

Mr. Nixon supported Premier Hepburn's motion of censure on the Federal government in the Ontario Legislature but later withdrew his support in his resignation statement.

"When the King government was carrying on so satisfactorily, it did not seem that it would be fair to you, fair to myself or fair to Premier Hepburn if I remained in the Cabinet while criticism was going on.

"I offered my resignation in good faith and, knowing my leader as I do, I had not the slightest doubt that he would accept it. When members of the Cabinet and the Premier came to me expressing a desire for my return, I did so without withdrawing or retracting the statement which I had given to the public. I don't think, and didn't then, that the administration of the war effort of Canada comes within the jurisdiction of the Provincial government."

Denies Charge.

Defence Minister Rogers declared at Enterprise, Ont., that charges against the government of patronage, profiteering and favoritism prove to be without foundation, when analyzed thoughtfully.

Revenue Minister Ilsley spoke at Kentville, N.S., and said the main election issue is the effective administration of the war effort and Opposition candidates had been forced to avoid it because of the admirable record of the King government.

At Edmunston, N.B., meeting heard Fisheries Minister Michaud say the unity of Canada is not threatened by the war and no national, racial and religious clashes have resulted.

"Attack Near The Westwall"

Passed by the German censor, this photo purports to be an attack by a German patrol "outside the westwall." The German caption says that "the patrol commander leads the attack." He is the man who is flourishing the "potato-masher" grenade familiar to C.E.F. vets. The same C.E.F. vets can form their own conclusions about the authenticity of the "attack," particularly as one of the strange German customs appears to be that of going over the top with the rifle slung on the back.

Peace River Close

In addition to these second-count ridings, one straight fight remains in doubt—Peace River constituency where 45 of 49 polls have been heard from, giving E. J. Martin, Independent, a 164-vote lead over W. J. Lampley, Social Credit member of the last legislature.

Premier Aberhart and four of his cabinet were re-elected but second counts are needed in two of the ridings where ministers ran. The eighth member, Provincial Treasurer Solon Low, was defeated. Those still doubtful are the ridings of Hon. D. B. Mullen, Minister of Agriculture, who is leading C. A. Ronning, C.C.F. leader, by more than 900 votes; and of Hon W. A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works, who has 390 more than S. C. Heckbert, Independent. The ridings are Camrose and Vermilion respectively.

Yesterday two Social Crediters, J. L. McPherson in Bruce and A. J. Hooke, re-elected in Rocky Mount House, increased the Social Crediters elected list to 20. The election of L. J. O'Brien in Grande Prairie brought the Independents' total to 14.

sion from Rumania of Maurice Lovell, Bucharest correspondent of Reuters, British news agency, as an incident in a Nazi intrigue to get hold of Rumania's oil.

The Daily Mail's Bucharest correspondent laid Lovell's expulsion to the work of "10,000 German agents who have begun a vast campaign to undermine and disintegrate the Rumanian nation."

Energetic diplomacy was demanded by the News Chronicle, which declared "It is of supreme importance to the Allies that Rumania should not be coerced into accepting the Nazi embrace."

"Large and increasing British-French forces are marshalled at the eastern end of the Mediterranean ready to act wherever they are needed," the Daily Telegraph commented.

"Rumania and Yugoslavia know well that their interests, like their sympathies, are on the side of the Allies."

Britain looks toward the arrival of a Rumanian trade mission a week from today as an opportunity to improve commercial relations between London and Bucharest.

Norway Complains

Norway's minister to London made complaints to Britain alleging infringement of Norwegian neutrality during recent days. There was no immediate British comment.

In Oslo, the Norwegian admiralty said there had been at least two instances of trespassing by British warships and a possible third was being investigated.

But the Daily Mail observed that neutrals already have been "warned," particularly by Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, "that they are not playing the game and the navy are only trying to stop the 'leaks' and make our blockade 100 per cent effective."

Answering Norway's previous protest in the Altmark case, when a British destroyer forced the German prison vessel aground on the Norwegian coast, Prime Minister Chamberlain accused Norway's government of "complete indifference as to the use which might be made of their territorial waters by the German fleet."

Danish naval authorities sought to determine whether the ship had been attacked while within the three-mile territorial limit.

Members of the ship's crew said the submarine appeared between them and the shore and when their vessel refused to heed the warning shot, three more shells were fired, one of which struck the bridge.

welfare and individual life, but also the very salvation of human society."

See Worse for Future.

Unless there is a reaffirmation in the principles of Christ, he declared, "more frightful things are feared for the future," because "that which inventive genius, study and experience have produced, energies, well-bein gand riches, almost all is turned over either to making war or to increasing armaments."

Describing the low estate of international law, he said, "you well know in what times we are living. Concord among peoples is miserably broken. Treaties solemnly stipulated sometimes are unilaterally changed or violated without previous definite agreement....

"It happens that open cities, farming towns and villages are terrorized, burned and devastated by bombardment. Citizens unarmed and even infirm, staggering old people and innocent children are deprived of roof and often even killed....

"Only Christ, with His law and His grace, can renew and restore private as well as public customs, re-establish a just relationship between right and duty, put a brake on immoderate desire for conquest, repress passions and temper and perfect a rigid and cool justice with the breath of charity."

the polls.

Main highways will be passable in most instances, by tomorrow, but farmers living miles off these arteries will find it impossible to get through the drifts with horse and cutter. Even if there is no more snow between now and voting day, the country residents in many communities will have to resort to skis if they wish to exercise their franchise. The horse, reliable stand by of rural residents when automobiles fail to make the grade, is of little use under present conditions, it was pointed out.

Trains Five Hours Late

Some idea of conditions in Ontario is given by the report of two trains being delayed five hours by a ten-foot snowdift in the Uxbridge district. The night train from Toronto to Port Hope was stalled for this length of time, Saturday night, a few miles south of Uxbridge. A special C.N.R. excursion train from Peterborough to Toronto was forced to wait at Uxbridge until a railway plow from Lindsay had dug out the drift and released the Port Hope, train. Both trains arrived at their respective destinations many hours behind schedule.

The railway plow pushed the train to the nearest water tower at Black water and finally the Toronto-bound train was given the clear signal on the one-track line and was able to complete the journey. During the stay in Uxbridge restaurant owners did a thriving business taking food and drink to hungry passengers on the train.

"It all depends on the wind during the next twenty-four hours," one road official declared. "If this wind keeps up, there will be lots of people who won't get within miles of a polling booth."

The coldest Easter Sunday in years was experienced throughout the Province. It was zero in Wentworth County and only a few degrees above that mark in Hamilton. Farmers on sideroads were isolated and regarded the task of shovelling as hopeless in view of the constant drifting. Many electors in the riding of Frontenac-Addington were resigning themselves last night to staying at home on election day.

Provincial and county snowplows worked overtime Saturday and Sunday but the strong winds defeated most of their efforts. A dozen cars in the Milton district were abandoned in snow-filled ditches.

Traffic was at a standstill in the Lindsay district. Even snowplows became stuck in drifts. A Toronto-bound bus and several cars were stranded in a ten-foot drift at Saintfield on Highway 12. Cars travelling on the Lindsay-Peterborough and Bobcaygeon roads were halted by drifts and travellers took refuge from sub-zero temperatures by hurrying to nearest farmhouses.

"I have never seen highways in such bad condition," said Traffic Officer William Kennedy. "I would strongly advise anyone contemplating a trip to postpone it."

Officials of both major political parties were downcast over the situation and expressed fears of a light rural vote.

County roads in the Peterborough area were sealed by huge drifts. The temperature dropped to three degrees below zero early Sunday morning in Peterborough.

Many Accidents.

Numerous accidents were reported from the Belleville district. Drifts three and four feet high blocked all north and south roads and only the constant work of snowplows kept main arteries fairly passable. Three transients who stopped at Belleville police station needed medical attention for frozen ears and feet. Few farmers ventured from their homes over the week-end and the Belleville market was the smallest in years.

All rural church services in the Napanee area were abandoned, following two days of the heaviest drifting of the winter. Biggest traffic tie-up occurred on Highway 41, north of Napanee, Saturday, when more than thirty cars and trucks came together in a tangle. During the afternoon two truck collided head-on when the drivers became momentarily blinded by whirling snow. Rural mail deliveries were cancelled. The mailmen will face the heaviest test today when delivery of ballot boxes must be made.

Roads in the northern section of Ontario County are blocked and it is believed little can be done until the wind subsides. Scugog Island was reported cut off from the mainland. There is a polling booth on the island. Only the 10th Concession road linking Uxbridge to Highway 12 was clear last night and the road to Stouffville was reported

Some New Bonnets Out

While drab Winter colors were interspersed only here and there in Eastern Canada by bright toggery, the women folk were not to lose out all the way, and the latest styles in hats were prominent everywhere.

The storms in the East tied up traffic in the country and Defence Minister Rogers had to travel by horse and sleigh to reach Kingston from a political meeting in Enterprise, Ont. Premier Adelard Godbout was forced to cancel a federal election speech because of snow-drifted highways.

The two-day blizzard that isolated towns and disrupted transportation services in Quebec was described there as the worst in ten years. Trains were delayed as much as nine hours. Approximately 7,000 skiiers were snowbound in 16 trains in the Laurentian Mountains.

A sun spot added to the difficulties, disrupting communication lines across the country. Telephone and telegraph circuits were tied up for four hours, with only messages to a few central cities being transmitted. The interruption was termed the "worst disturbance in 25 years" by Canadian Pacific telegraph officials.

When You Mark Your Ballot

TOMORROW, I EARNESTLY URGE YOU TO Think of Canada

THAT IS THE ONLY THING THAT MATTERS

What happens to Mr. Glover and myself tomorrow means little or nothing, except to ourselves. The kind of government Canada gets as a result of the election means everything.

The government that emerges from tomorrow's voting will direct Canada's war effort and will have to face the responsibility of planning for the post-war period of reconstruction—two tremendous tasks.
Men of all parties will fight in this war. Men of all parties will die in it. Men of all parties are paying for it. This is not a Mackenzie King war; it is everybody's and I contend that men of all parties should have a hand in running it.

Only the election of a National Government will make that possible and a vote for me is a vote for National Government.

On the other hand a vote for Mr. Glover is a vote for five more years of Mackenzie King rule, a vote for the managing of Canada's war effort on a partisan basis, a vote to hand the solving of post-war problems to a government that failed completely to solve similar problems in peace time.

Your choice is between Manion action and King inertia, between a fighting leader and a shadow boxer, between party control of the country's war effort and effective, enthusiastic and inspirational direction of that effort by a National Government. The issue is in your hands. I am content to leave it there.

Market Small As Snow Block Roads

Snow-blocked roads and weather that hovered above the zero mark reduced Saturday's market to a small attendance on both sides of the counters. Butter was unchanged at 28 to 30 cents; eggs were plentiful at 21 to 25 cents; broilers were 35 cents, chickens 23c and hens 20 to 22 cents. One woman with a fine showing of chickens weighing around seven pounds priced them at 24 cents.

One turkey was presumably an offering to Easter. It weighed 22 pounds and at 23 cents a pound it represented dinner value of $5.

Harry Gill reported a good demand for fresh meat—pork 13 to 15 cents, beef 12 to 14 cents and veal 16 and 18 cents.

Norman Moncrief's apple prices were 45 and 50 cents for Spies, 35 cents for Starks and Talman Sweets, 30c for Russets. Ben Isaac of Warkworth quoted Spies at $1.40 and $1.75 a bushel.

The usual supply of wood was missing from the market.
